EDITORIAL COMMENTS

BROTHER preacher, how many opportunities of doing good have you neglected? Do you carefully seek out the poor, and the needy, and the afflicted, and make them the objects of your care and prayer? Or do you pass them by as objects unworthy of your attention? Yours is a high and worthy calling. The Master has anointed you to preach good tidings unto the meek and to bind up the broken hearted. Keep your heart warm and your hands pure.

O WATCHMAN!

That unconverted man is watching you; perhaps he has been attracted by your preaching, or there is something in your manner or address which is pleasing to him. You have a splendid opportunity of adding a star to your crown of rejoicing. Rest not until you have given him the warning; to-morrow may be too late. "Let your speech be always with grace seasoned with salt, that ye may know how ye ought to answer every man." And let your private and public life be above reproach.

"BEAR ye one another's burdens" is no less binding upon the professor to-day of when first uttered; "And so fulfill the law of Christ" is proof positive of its divine sanction. It is no easy task for some people to recognize the relationship which they sustain to the rest of humanity. To do good unto all men is binding upon everyone that names the name of Jesus. Selfishness is always partial and one-sided; but the true spirit of love inclines us to be "courteous, pitiful and kind, and if there are burdens to be borne to do it cheerfully, whether our own or our brother's.

SEASONABLE AND APPRECIATED.—Our distinguished confrere of the Central Christian Advocate has this to say:

"The SOUTHWESTERN has changed its form, and makes a good appearance in its fresh guise. We hope our brethren in the southwest will appreciate to the full the work which Dr. Hammond, the editor, is doing upon that paper."

The SOUTHWESTERN has indeed changed its form, and at first appears to be very greatly reduced in many material respects; but this is only apparent, not real. We have about the same amount of reading matter, which is made possible by a more general use of brevier instead of long primer. There has not been, nor will there be, any abatement of effort on the part of the editor to make the paper more and more popular with the people among whom it more largely circulates. But few people outside of [illegible] fully appreciate our very exacting duties, and hence the noble words of Dr. Berry are unusually helpful—Quoting the words of the wise man: "A word fitly [illegible] like apples of gold, in pictures of

WHAT does all this talk about fraternity, and organic

tion mean? Is the world to understand that after nearly nineteen hundred years have passed away that the spirit and teachings of the Man of Galilee are not yet accepted, endorsed and practiced by his followers? The Christian Churches of to-day ought to be thoroughly equipped and ready to enter upon the final conquest of the world for Christ. But the Master's prayer that "they all might be one" finds its greatest objectors within the fold, while the royal law of love, which teaches us that God is no respecter of persons, and that we should do unto others as we would have them do to us, is frequently ignored by those who claim to be the custodians of the keys of the kingdom. All these hindrances must sooner or later give place to the advancing power of the pure gospel of Christ.

DON'T sow your wild oats; they are bad reaping. Many talk as if young people ought to be vicious for a time, or as if it was a very excusable thing for a young man to be impure in his behavior. This is very pernicious. Alas! throughout life men have had to feel in their bones the sins of their youth.

BETTER live on a little than outlive a great deal. Economy must be strictly practiced when a business is in peril, for the greatest pinching will be better than losing the chance of a livelihood. Cultivate thought upon a little oatmeal. Jeans would be an excellent substitute for broadcloth, and cheap furniture paid for is better than a millionaire's spread with the creditor threatening.

A HINT.

From the Christian Advocate, Nashville, Tenn., we clip the following, which we prayerfully commend to our ministry:

"The late Dr. J. O. Peck, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was a peerless [illegible]. He was also a notable revivalist. Wherever he went his labors were crowned with God's approval in the conversion and edification of souls. Yet this man was in the habit of sowing down the ground thick with the New York Christian Advocate. At one time he procured for it more than two hundred and fifty new subscribers from a single congregation. What other thing could he have done that would have had such a tendency to solidify the fruits of his ministerial toil?"

We are acquainted with some ministers who are doing a grand work along this line. They speak often and earnestly of the SOUTHWESTERN, and frequently in congregations where the proportion of reading people is quite small they secure wonderful results. We could give their names if necessary. On the other hand, there are others who are seeking diligently to impress the Church with their own great importance, and who are continually clamoring for the leading positions, who not only do not urge the people to subscribe for the SOUTHWESTERN, but, on the other hand, speak disparagingly of it and discourage other enterprises. There are others who, because we do not "puff" them early and often, grow lukewarm and indifferent. By their fruits ye shall know them. Our willing workers, however, are abroad in the land, and these [illegible] obstructionists. [illegible] learned the happy

PREACHING VERSUS PRACTICE.

To hear some preachers preach and talk upon the subject of religion would almost make one believe that they were real saints; but to witness their practices one would be disposed to think that they were the emissaries of Satan. But it is as true to-day as in the days of the Apostle Paul, who, speaking of this class of counterfeit preachers, had this to say: "For of this sort are they which creep into houses and lead captive silly women laden with divers lust." (2 Tim. 3-6.) Frequently this sort get into positions of trust and power as the result of corrupt bargaining, and they are ever ready to do the bidding of their equally corrupt masters. Morally and intellectually weak, they resort to the most questionable methods without the slightest twinge of conscience. They brook no opposition, and are continually on the warpath. Unfortunately they frequently have a large following of "silly women" and weaker men.

Such appear, at times, to have success in the work to which they profess to have been called, but on close inspection this apparent success will be found to be a merely spasmodic effort to advance personal interests. We should have in the pastorate manly men—men of strong religious convictions, of deep fervent piety, of commanding ability and culture. Bookish men—men who love to read and study, and watch, not for the loaves and fishes, but for souls. Such men will attract the people, fill the churches and bring sinners to repentance. Their tenure of office and success will not depend upon favoritism, nor will they be tempted to indulge in fulsome praise or bribery to hold on. God being in them, and the Holy Spirit accompanying their word, will make them popular everywhere and at all times.

THE CLASS MEETING AS A MEANS OF GRACE.

It is feared that there is a tendency in these busy times either to overlook the importance of the class meetings as a means of grace, or to so adjust them to the convenience of the multitudinous organizations of our growing Methodism, that they are either relegated to the tender mercies of some Methodist historical society, or so minified as to be of but little practical value.

Since the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the class meeting has been one of its most important distinctive features. Indeed, we proudly trace our origin as a church to the class meeting organized by Mr. John Wesley in 1730, since which time these important meetings have been retained in the Church. We favor the class meeting, because it establishes "a system of pastoral oversight" that most effectively reaches every member of the Church. It is highly conducive to the promotion of that Christian sociality which fosters and keeps alive the social [illegible] which [illegible] supplies. It [illegible] social opportunity for [illegible] and [illegible] by [illegible] and [illegible] ducted furnishes a most wonderful opportunity for the promotion of that growth in grace, and that acquisition of the knowledge of the Son of God which so completely establishes our identity as Methodist Christians. The hymns, the testimonies, the fervent and timely exhortations by faithful leaders, are manifestly helpful to the development of each member. Pastors should not allow any other meetings to take the place of these established means of grace. Church prayer meetings, league prayer meetings, praise meetings, speaking meetings, etc., are all very good in their legitimate places; but experience teaches us that there can be no good substitute furnished for the regularly established class meeting.

"OUR NATION'S DISGRACE."

The strong editorial note under the above caption, clipped from the great Epworth Herald, is responsible to some extent for this deliverance. The statistics which Dr. Berry gives are not only true, but suggestive of a condition of things of which the New South ought to be heartily ashamed. Why don't the South quit its meanness? But read:

"Judge Lynch did a large and terrible business during last year. One hundred and ninety victims met a violent death at his hands. The lynchings in the various States were as follows: Alabama 19, Arkansas 10, California 1, Colorado 1, Florida 7, Georgia 20, Illinois 1, Indiana 2, Iowa 2, Kansas 4, Kentucky 19, Louisiana 19, Maryland 1, Mississippi 16, Missouri 5, Nebraska 4, North Carolina 1, Ohio 2, Oregon 1, Pennsylvania 1, South Carolina 13. It will be seen that the major part of the diabolical deeds were prepetrated in the South. One hundred and thirty-four out of the one hundred and ninety were colored men. In many cases these men suffered death for suspected barn-burning and horse-stealing, and in one instance a colored man was strung up for writing a letter to a white woman. This record is a disgrace to our whole nation, and a special and burning disgrace to the localities that permitted it with scarcely a protest. We have quite a distance to travel yet before we get away from barbarism."

REV. W. H. BOOKER.

Only a few weeks ago we met Rev. W. H. Booker at the session of the Texas Conference. Word comes to us [illegible] that he has fallen at his post of duty, sword in hand. How true it [illegible] the midst of life we are in death. workmen indeed fall, but the [illegible] on. Brother T. OUR SPRING CONFERENCES.

On January 16 the Mississippi Conference convenes at Handsboro; the Savannah at Waynesboro, Ga.; the South Carolina at Florence. On the 24th the Little Rock convenes at Pine Bluff, Ark., and the Florida at Jacksonville, Fla. The Central Alabama convenes at Anniston, Ala., Jan. 31, and the Louisiana Conference meets at Monroe Feb. 6. We had mapped out an itinerancy covering these dates and conferences, and anticipated a great and a pleasant time with the brethren. We are disappointed thus far, having been compelled to yield to an aggravated case of physicalibus indispositionem. We regret this turn of affairs for several reasons: First, we had a desire to greet the brethren in the conferences which we have not heretofore visited, and to congratulate personally those loyal preachers who are helping to make the SOUTHWESTERN a financial success; secondly, to assure them of our interest in the great work in which they are engaged "by word of mouth;" thirdly, to enjoy that hospitality for which the true Methodist ministry is proverbial. But we must wrestle awhile with the pain and other inconveniences incident to this temporary imprisonment, all of which will be very greatly modified by the reflection that

> "We share each other's woes
> Our mutual burdens bear,
> And often for each other flows
> The sympathizing tear."

If any brother should be disposed to exhibit a captious or fault-finding spirit against the editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, let him remember the lines just quoted. Personally, it would be a great pleasure to visit all the conferences in our vast patronizing territory, even though a temporary indisposition might intervene. We would cheerfully bear the inconveniences of travel, the fatigue, the wear and tear, and, in fact, all the circumstances which invariably enter into our experience while traveling through the great Southland, could we feel assured that our editorial work could be accomplished just as well a hundred or a thousand miles away as in the office at New Orleans. We have learned from experience that this cannot be successfully done; that prolonged absence means neglect of correspondence and of the literary departments of our paper. And, since this entire work devolves solely upon the editor, he must, therefore, reluctantly forego the pleasure of frequent touch with the men who are expected to contribute toward his success. He relies upon the good Father to bring about such a sweet disposition on the part of all concerned, that there will be not only cheerful co-operation, but more of it.

The accounts of the SOUTHWESTERN will be placed in the hands of competent brethren, whom we trust will be treated in every respect as are the representatives of any of our publishing departments.

GILBERT ACADEMY.

Gilbert Academy and Industrial College at Winsted, La., opens up with flattering prospects of success. The literary department is in charge of an excellent corps of teachers. Prof. Jas. L. Murray, A. B., is principal, with Misses Henrietta Brown, Virginia Duncan and Miss Spencer assisting. The music department is under the direction of Mrs. J. L. Murray. Prof. Z. T. Spencer is superintendent of the mechanical department, and Mrs. Spencer is teacher of sewing and dressmaking. Charles Landry and wife superintend the cooking department. There is already a good attendance of students, and more are coming in every day. Dr. L. G. Adkinson, president of New Orleans University, paid a brief visit to this promising school a few days ago, and is highly pleased with the outlook.

THE first number of the Republican, of Providence, R. I., edited by Rev. E. C. O. Benjamin, comes to hand. It has a neat appearance and gives evidence of careful manipulation in all its departments. We wish it success.

EMANCIPATION DAY AT THE SEVERAL CITY CHURCHES.

Emancipation Day was pretty generally celebrated in this city on January 1. The decorations were elaborate and appropriate, and the programs enthusiastically carried out.

At First Street M. E. Church, Rev. W. R. Butler pastor, addresses were made by the editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, W. H. Williams, Brothers Little, Hall and Washington. Miss Emma B. Smith and Louisa Alton read beautiful essays. The music by the Sunday school choral was fine.

At Wesley M. E. Church a joint celebration was held between Callioux Post, G. A. R., and the church. A sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Brown. The Emancipation proclamation was read by Dr. Moore, addresses by Mr. E. W. Newsome, W. J. Rudolph, R. B. Baquie, Col. C. H. Shute, Hon. C. C. Antoine and C. W. Keating. Rev. T. Johnson preached the sermon.

At Simpson M. E. Church the services were opened by a fervent invocation by Rev. E. W. Osborne, D. D., and Rev. J. F. Cox read the lesson. Chairman J. W. Pierce presented Miss Ida Harris, who read the Emancipation proclamation. Then followed addresses by the editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, Colonel Lewis, Dr. Clanton and others. The solo by Mr. J. L. Crosley was excellently rendered. Rev. Henry Taylor, pastor, and others took part in the exercises. The singing by the choir was grand.

At Mount Zion M. E. Church, Rev. T. J. Montgomery pastor, was in full line with the spirit of progress and celebrated the occasion in a vety appropriate manner. The pastor delivered the oration.

At Mallalieu Chapel Rev. C. D. Shaliowhorne held a most excellent service, consisting of addresses, songs, personal experiences and reminiscences. The pastor delivered a most excellent address.

Our Baptist brethren held an enthusiastic meeting at Tulane Avenue Baptist Church, Rev. Dr. A. S. Jackson pastor. The attendance was large and enthusiastic and the program excellently rendered.

EMANCIPATION ECHOES.

Many of these reports came in too late and are frequently too elaborate to be utilized. We give a brief sketch of some:

Hahnville, La.—The day was gloriously spent; N. Kyles, A. Murrell, A. Brobier, R. Pierce and A. Mitchell orated. The latter represented our paper.

Canfield, Ark.—The celebration passed off grandly in the M. E. church. There were several speeches delivered and much enthusiasm.

Plaquemine, La.—Came to the front grandly in a celebration of large dimensions at Hurst's Chapel. The decrations were good and a devotional spirit was manifested throughout. Rev. J. W. Hilton led grandly.

Natchitoches District, La.—Rev. H. J. Wright reports that Emancipation Day was observed with spirit and enthusiasm at Asbury Church.

Cherry Valley, Tenn.—Addie Carter gives an account of the celebration at that place. Revs. Richmond, Carter, Todd and Greer, with Misses Mollie Carter and H. Donnelle, spoke eloquent words.

Springfield, Tenn.—The Emancipation anniversary was appropriately celebrated in the M. E. Church. The exercises were of a very high order. Rev. Jesse P. Price, Mr. C. A. Carr, Revs. G. N. Norman, W. Bryant and Harden were the speakers.

Warrensburg, Tenn.—The day was celebrated in great style. There was a splendid turn out of the old and young people. The Epworth League and guards was a special feature. Rev. C. W. Walton and other gentlemen and ladies delivered interesting addresses.

Roseneath, Miss.—This place was fully abreast with the best in her appreciation of Emancipation Day. The program was fully carried out. Addresses were made by A. T. Morrison, Rev. J. M. Dixon, J. C. Martin, D. Griffin, M. M. Hulsten, Hannah Thompson, S. Pathan, C. Dixon, M. D. Bobbet and Rev. M. J. Comfort.

Moss Point, Miss.—A fine time was had at this place. The meeting was held in the church. The speakers were Rev. G. W. Smith pastor, Mrs. S. B. Moton, and Messrs. P. M. and T. B. Stallworth, S. C. Wallace, F. J. Hill, Attorney J. B. Dixon and Mrs. Anna Hawkins, who writes: "The addresses made, songs rendered and essays read on this occasion made the day a most pleasant one."

Roanoke, Ala.—This place boasts of a most excellent celebration. Rev. J. T. Martin, Professor P. P. Wright, M. D. Marsh, C. C. Coleman, C. H. Young and James Yarnell took part in the exercises.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

Mrs. Lucy R. Ackley, a devout Methodist lady of Connecticut, has donated the Chartered Fund $1000, upon which she is to receive an annuity for the remainder of her life. She will have the satisfaction of knowing that through all the years to come, her benefaction will continue to aid in the support of the faithful veterans of the Church. Will not one hundred Methodists imitate her good example? This is the oldest benevolent organization in Methodism. It was established by the General Conference in 1796. Every General Conference since has commended the administration of the Board of Trustees. The trustees are prominent Philadelphia laymen who have shown great business judgment in their care of this Fund. The original Fund began with $2,300 contributed by the first Board of Trustees. Despite all the depressions and disasters in financial affairs during the past century, this Fund has been the source of great blessing to the Church. At the division of the Church the trustees paid to the Church South nearly ten times the amount of the original capital. The dividends to the annual conferences have been over $170,000. The present capital is nearly $50,000. The Presbyterian Church, in less than ten years, has created an invested fund of over one million and a half to aid in the support of her retired ministry. Is it asking too much of Methodism that she shall so celebrate the centennial of the Chartered Fund in 1896, as to increase its capital to one million dollars?

Information concerning the Fund and the new movement now being projected for its increase may be obtained by addressing the corresponding secretary, Rev. Jay Benson Hamilton, D. D., Hackettstown, N. J.

Williams' Chapel.

Program for the Re-opening Day, January 27, 1896.

The following divines are invited to address the people:

The resident Bishop Fitzgerald, D. D.; A. E. P. Albert, D. D.; E. W. S. Hammond, D. D.; L. G. Adkinson, D. D.; Rev. J. F. Marshall, presiding elder of Baton Rouge; Rev. S. Duncan, P. E. of Shreveport District; Rev. Pierre Landry, architect and presiding elder of South New Orleans District; Revs. H. Taylor, ex-pastor, D. J. Price, St. Matthew's Chapel; D. G. Butler, Boyton Chapel; W. L. Harris, Camp Parapet; W. R. Butler, First Street; W. P. Forrest, Haven Chapel; Dave Young, Plymouth Rock; Henderson and members. Revs. D. Richards, Zion Traveler; E. Fields, LaHarpe; T. T. Montgomery, Mt. Zion; C. D. Shallowhorne, Sixth Street; J. W. Hudson, Union Chapel; T. J. Johnson, Wesley Chapel.

The members and officers of Williams' Chapel will leave the Morning Star Hall at 10 a. m., and services will commence in the new church at 11 a. m., and close at 9 p. m. All friends are cordially invited. The editor and business manager of the SOUTHWESTERN are requested to be present to take notice.

STEPHEN PHINNEY, Pastor

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Woodlawn, Tex., is progressing favorably with Rev. S. S. Kelly, a supply, in charge.

—Our church at Dublin, Va., flourishes under Rev. W. H. Perkins of the East Tennessee Conference. He has been annoyed somewhat by an intermeddler, but God and the Church are standing by him.

—At St. Martinsville, La., the fourth quarterly conference was held, with Rev. S. E. H. Morant in the chair. Reports show increase on all lines. Total collection this quarter, $265. The members presented to Rev. J. W. Turner, pastor, a suit of clothes. So writes V. B. Lerake.

—Brother John D. Brightop, who was appointed to Benton and Midway, La., has developed excellent pastoral ability. He has built a new church, paid for it and is now making preparations to organize at another point. He is withal, in the language of a correspondent, "talking up the paper like a man."

—Rev. Dr. C. P. Westbrooks of Victoria Texas, writes: "With a membership of 11,047, with 7,737 enrolled under our Sunday school banners, we must and will succeed. The West Texas is keeping pace with the growing world. With another district we would increase 75 per cent. We are looking forward hopefully."

—St. John's M. E. Church at Shelbyville, Ky., under the pastorate of Rev. E. D. Miller, flourishes grandly. Raised $811 for all purposes, the church revived along all lines, a strong petition for the return of the pastor and Presiding Elder G. A. Sissell, and good work in the interest of the SOUTHWESTERN are among the occasions for congratulation.

—R. H. Johnson, pastor at Dickson, Tenn., writes: The last quarterly conference was a success. Presiding Elder Danly rendered good service; speaking good words for the SOUTHWESTERN and the church benevolences. An Epworth League has been organized with 36 members. Total collection, $61.38.

—Rev. Manley S. Hard, D. D., assistant corresponding secretary Board of Church Extension, in company with his wife, is now working his way South to represent his Board at many conferences, and to preach and lecture in many places. He will visit the South Carolina Conference at Florence, the Savannah at Waynesboro, the Florida at Jacksonville, the Georgia at Breman, the Central Alabama at Anniston, the St. Johns River at Daytona, etc. He reports that he is in the South for a couple of months of solid work wherever it is to be done.

—Bishop Grant, of the A. M. E. Church, says that "Big Bethel Church, of Atlanta, Ga., is $27,000 in debt, and the same may be said of scores of other churches throughout our connection. They are buried with debts when there is no earthly need of it. $13,000 or $15,000 could have built a magnificent structure that would hold as many people as Big Bethel, with its ginger-cake ornaments. The next General Conference ought to create a sensible board to direct how our big churches should be built, and put an end to this nonsensical expense, which will ruin our Church soon, the way we are going on."

THE Israelites of this city are a numerous and prosperous class, having various and important institutions of charity, as well as some of the finest synagogues to be found in the country. Hence, there is a ripe field for the Jewish Ledger that has been lately founded in their interest. The numbers received take high rank in newspaperdom, being able and artistic. Published at 116 St. Charles St. by A. Steeg. Albert Harris is the editor.

—Books on Christian evidences are read by the few, but "living epistles" are "known and read of all men." A gospel life is an ever-recurring incarnation of Christ.

LIGHT FROM HEAVEN.

Bright was the guiding star that led,
With mild, benignant ray,
The Gentiles to the lowly bed
Where the Redeemer lay.

But lo! a brighter, clearer light
Now points to his abode;
It shines through sin and sorrow's night,
To guide us to our God.

O gladly tread the narrow path,
While light and grace are given;
Who meekly follow Christ on earth
Shall reign with him in heaven.

DAILY THOUGHTS.

[From Phillips Brooks.]

JANUARY 17.—I cannot think for a moment of Jesus as doing that which so many religious people think they are doing when they serve Christ, when they give their lives to Him. I cannot think of Him as simply saving His own soul, living His own life, and completing His own nature in the sight of God. It is a life of service from beginning to end. He gives himself to man because he is absolutely the child of God, and He sets up service, and nothing but service, to be the ultimate purpose, the one great desire, on which the souls of His followers should be set, as His own soul is set, upon it continually.

JANUARY 18.—That men should be true to their best convictions, and to their simple duty, this is the blessing that gives all blessings with it, and is the fountain of all charity and progress.

JANUARY 19.—He who thinks that he is being released from the work, and not set free in order that he may accomplish that work, mistakes the Christ from whom the freedom comes, mistakes the condition into which his soul is invited to enter. For if the freedom of a man simply consists in the larger opportunity to be and to do all that God makes him in His creation capable of being and doing, then certainly if man has been capable of service it is only by the entrance into service, by the acceptance of that life of service for which God has given man the capacity, that he enters into the fullness of his freedom and becomes the liberated child of God.

JANUARY 20.—Truths are the roots of duties. A rootless duty, one that has no truth below it out of which it grows, has no life, and will have no growth.

JANUARY 21.—The thing that impresses me more and more is this—that we only need to have extended to the multitude that which is at this moment present in the few, and the world really would be saved. There is but the need of the extension into a multitude of souls of that which a few souls have already attained in their consecration of themselves to human good, and to the service of God, and I will not say the millennium would have come, but heaven would have come, the new Jerusalem would be here.

JANUARY 22.—The Church has been spread by force, but Christianity never. To try to think of extending a faith by force is to try to think a contradiction. It is like thinking of raising enthusiasm with levers, or crushing genius with sledge hammers. The tools have no relation to the material or the task.

JANUARY 23.—Any man or any institution which attempts a great religious work in behalf of the growing generations of a country, must undertake as preparatory to it, and as a necessary part of it, a great moral work as well. A faithful ministry, we hold, must not merely declare the Savior, but must attack and beat down those special sins which stand in the very doorways and keep the Savior out of the hearts of men.

Hood's Sarsaparilla, acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, and in this way positively cures catarrh.

Texas Epworth League.

The annual meeting of the Texas Conference Epworth League convened at Huntsville, Texas, December 14, 1894.

Friday, First Day—The meeting opened at 4:30 p. m., with Prof. H. B. Pemberton, A. B., president, in the chair. After many good suggestions from the president, J. C. Pitts was elected secretary protem. By roll call it was found that nearly all the districts were represented. Reports, full and creditable, were had of the several district presidents present, and from these reports we feel that much interest has been manifested in the League throughout each district, and that as a result they are in good, active condition; and many a soul is finding peace, yea, the love of God through them.

Saturday, Second Day—The meeting was opened at 6:30 p. m., and the literary program taken us. Worthy papers were read by the following persons who showed much familiarity with the subjects to which they were assigned:

"Origin of the Epworth League," by J. C. Pitts.

"The Spiritual Department," Miss H. E. Palmer.

"The Social Department," Miss Hattie Watson.

"The League and Revivals," Miss E. N. Bowers.

"The Junior Epworth League," Mr. E. D. Cade.

"Epworth League and Temperance," Rev. O. I. Jones, D. D.

"The Literary Department," Mrs. H. E. Cole.

Able addresses of the following gentlemen: Prof R. B. Smith, Rev. Gibbons, Rev. J. H. Reed, A. M, and Prof. H. B. Pemberton, A. M., of the West Texas Conference.

The following distinguished gentlemen and ladies took active part in our meetings: Revs. Thos. Cole, J. F. Crozier, M. McKinney, E. Lee, and Mrs A. D. Logan.

Following are the officers elected for the ensuing conference year: President, Prof. H. B. Pemberton, A. M., Marshall, Tex.; first vice president, Mrs. E. N. Bowers, Paris; second vice president, Mrs. Mary Brown, Navasota; third vice president, Mrs. A. D. Logan, Navasota; fourth vice president, Miss H. E. Palmer, Dodge, secretary, Prof. J. C. Pitts; corresponding secretary; Mr. E. D. Cade, Hearne; treasurer, Mrs. H. E. Cole, Paris.

Before adjournment, resolutions were passed; one of them, introduced by Rev. Thos. Cole, was that each member of the Conference League subscribe for the SOUTHWESTERN and the Epworth Herald. The good people of Huntsville were very much thanked for their hospitality in entertaining our delegates.

J. C. PITTS, Sec'y.

Our Troy (Ohio) Letter.

Our charge is in the general struggle to advance the common interest of the Church. There is an opportunity opened to all of us to do good. Our prospect for improving the condition of our church seems to brighten up a little. Our bereavements are being severely felt. During the present year we have lost three members of our flock: Sister Sabie Sewell, Wm. Shutts and Sister Belle Curry. They died in glorious triumph over the last foe, but we miss them from our ranks because of their zeal and piety; nevertheless, it is all right. There are some things which happen to the preacher and his family that we are disposed to tell. We were in the parsonage at an evening hour, quietly enjoying the blessings of home life, when suddenly there was an unusual alarm, both at the door and window, and lo! there were a goodly number of persons, being led by our good brother, Rev. N. A. Ellett. They rushed into the kitchen; and when we had sufficiently recovered from our surprise, we at once submitted with grateful emotion to their persistence in piling the necessaries of life upon the table and roundabout in an [illegible] reality. Then, after an [illegible] a few pleasant words we [illegible] sincere thanks for the expressions of their kind and thoughtful visit. Rev. N. A. Ellett spoke words of encouragement and cheer in behalf of 45 persons.

Pearlington and Bay St. Louis Letter.

Our fourth quarterly conference was held, with Rev. J. M. Shumpert, P. E., in the chair. R. W. McCoy was elected secretary. Report of the pastor showed much progress. The revivals held resulted in 49 members being added to the church. The reports of class leaders, Sunday school superintendents, stewards, trustees and committees were creditable. The work for the past four years, under the pastoral care of Rev. O. H. Flowers, has progressed wonderfully. Bought three lots worth about $350; built one among the best parsonages in the Mississippi Conference worth $800; built one fine church worth $2000. He is a faithful and earnest worker. Yours most respectfully,

R. W. McCOY.

Notes from Nashville.

Christmas has come and has been enjoyed in much the usual manner in this city. The usual amount of noise from pistols, guns and fire-crackers prove that the old-time habit of celebrating this day has not been forgotten. This manner of commemorating the birth of the Prince of Peace is not calculated to inspire men with the higher ideas of the Peaceable Kingdom of Christ, by making Christmas a season of revelry, and a special time of indulgences in drunkenness, and noisy demonstrations of joy, by the use of the implements of war. It is, however, a reminder of the days of slavery, and is simply a clinking of the chains of the fathers, in the faces of their children. If the colored people wish to get away from the influence of slave times, they should observe Christmas in a more appropriate way than with guns, pistols, fire-crackers and whisky.

There were religious services in a few of the churches in this city. The union service of the colored churches was held at Clark Chapel and was a pleasant service. The congregation was small for the occasion. There were several addresses by the pastors and presiding elders, representing the Preachers' Alliance of the city, under whose auspices the meeting was held. The choirs of Clark Chapel and the Jackson Street Congregational Church furnished excellent music on the occasion. There has been some revival spirit in some of the charches. A recent meeting at Braden Chapel resulted in seven conversions. Seven additions are reported for Clark Chapel on a recent Sunday.

—The logic of wit is the most destructive logic employed against error. It annihilates sham and dashes down towering structures of sophistical reason at a blow. A Scotch advocate limping down High street in Edinburg, heard a lady say to her companion, "That is Mr. C——, the lame lawyer." Turning round, he replied, "No, madam, I am a lame man, but not a lame lawyer."—Epworth Herald.

OUR WOMEN'S ROUND TABLE.

The Influence of the Home in the Uplifting of our People.

THIRD LETTER—BY T. E. W.

WOMEN AS WIVES.

Passing through this world there are thoughts that arise in our minds that at first seem trivial, but as time goes on we discover they are very important. Thinking, perchance, they will reach the eyes of some poor women in whom the desire to be great and good is fully realized, I hasten to jot them down. The most important topic with which I am confronted at present is the beautiful yet unfamiliar subject of "Women as Wives." As I think of the number of people who marry yearly, I can but wonder how many of them are wives in the true sense. In order to be successful wives we must be possessed with unbounded power for a great many things. We need power to love, power of patience, power to control our disposition, in every respect. It is not always the attractive woman that makes the best wife. Pope gives a beautiful description of a true wife in the following lines:

"She who ne'er answers till her husband cools,
And if she rules him never shows she rules;
Charms by accepting, by submitting sways,
Yet has her humors most when she obeys."

"A woman may be profoundly learned, she may be pre-eminently devoted to religion, she may be widely philanthropic, and yet be a perfect wife." Therefore, there is no earthly excuse for the imperfect wife. Some one may say, "I am too old to learn now." But, my friends, we are never too old for this. And we can begin this undertaking with learning how to be neat in all things. A great deal can be gained by making the home attractive and happy. Let a man have his pleasures at home and, if he loves you and appreciates the sacrifices you are making, he will be less apt to acquire bad habits away from home. And as for yourself, there is no excuse for your not being tidy. Some wife will say, "I have to work." All this is true, but with the proper management you will get through in time to prepare for the coming of him whom, before you were married, it took you a day to prepare for his coming at night. "It is true your market is made, but you cannot afford to have it broken." Arrange certain hours for work, and certain work for those hours, and at the close of the time which you have allotted for certain work if you have not accomplished what you desired leave it until the next day. For indeed no one will thank you for working yourself to death. They will say poor thing! but the world will go on. Acquire the habit of reading, and discuss what you have read with your husband. This will help both of you.

Dress and gossip will soon wear out; if your husband is an intellectual man he will soon grow weary of this practice. Help us to help each other, Lord each other's cross to bear." When we learn to do these things I will feel that the race has accomplished what should be one of its greatest undertakings, making the world better by women's influence.

I will be glad to answer any questions with reference to home and woman in this column. Address, T. E. W., 631 Poydras street, New Orleans, La., care Southwestern Christian Advocate.

Miss Henrietta E. Brown of Gretna, La., and a graduate of New Orleans University, is a member of the faculty of Gilbert Academy, Winsted, La. She is highly accomplished, and will reflect credit upon her alma mater and the race.

Miss Carsie Gooden has secured a place as recorder in the county clerk's office at Denver, Col. This is the first position of the kind ever held by a member of the Negro race.

Three young colored ladies are attending three of the leading female colleges of America: Miss Anita Hemmings of Boston, Vassar; Miss Bettie Baker of Cambridge, Wellesley; Miss Alberta Scott of Cambridge, Ratcliffe.

Man and the Reason Why.

Did you ever know of a man that didn't have a reason for everything wrong that he did? I never. Perhaps you have never paid much attention to this. Well, just watch them, but keep the secret to yourself, and you will be furnished with the greatest amusement imaginable.

I knew a friend once who's husband would invariably come in late, and when he came she would say, "Why, John, what kept you so late?" and almost before she could finish the sentence he would begin with—"The reason I am so late those electric cars are a nuisance." The next night—"Well, my dear, I know you are tired waiting, but the reason I am so late there was a collision just ahead of the car I was in, and there we were." The third evening you would just be about to say, "Well, John, what——" and before you are able to finish your sentence he will begin by saying: "I'm so mad! A garbage wagon got on the track and the wheel broke, and it had to be attached to the car in order to get it started. I tell you those cars are splendid." He forgot what he had said about them a few evenings previous. Oh yes! we forgot the evening the power was off, or that the cars were so crowded that he was compelled to go to the station, or that he started to walk home. Now if you want to enjoy knowing the reason why, just keep this a secret. T. E. W.

Our Augusta, Ga., Letter.

Mr. Editor—The SOUTHWESTERN is a welcome visitor each week. A few weeks ago I was sent for, to take twenty-five members of the Zion A. M. E. Church into the M. E. Church, including the pastor in charge, five local preachers and one exhorter. Our church at this place has had a hard time, but is now coming to the front at last. I found ten members ten miles from Augusta and have been preaching to them since April, and ten others have joined, and had one convert. I organized a Sunday school for them and it now has fifty scholars. We have purchased a large lot at Gracewood, where we are trying to build a good church for these people. I have taken in our church in Augusta ten new members this year. Our Sunday school in St. Mark's Church is very good; having 120 enrolled, ranging in age from two to eighty years.

Our young people, under the leadership of Miss Rebecca Gadding, have built a new fence in front of our church, and the good work goes on. God is blessing us at this place. With our noble membership we hope to do wonders for God and humanity. H. C. DENNIS.

—Those who are not bishops may thank God, for annual conferences are getting to be a regular termagant time. A bishop has not a moment's rest from the time he meets a preacher on the train going to conference until he leaves the last one on the train going from conference. If he walks out in the yard he is followed, and if he sits down to read letters and write, he is besieged every moment, and to take a nap, however much exhausted, is impossible. If he goes to the postoffice, telegraph office or express office, he is pursued and surrounded, and the burden of all their talk is me, me, me, and my, my, my, and I, I, I, and not God and his church once.—Bishop H. M. Turner, in Voice of Missions.

—The Mississippi Valley railroad has donated to the Campbell University, of the A. M. E. Church, a thousand acres of the richest land in the nation, valued $20 per acre, equivalent to a gift of $20,000, and a wealthy white Mississippian says if our Church will raise $10,000 for the said university, he will give $10,000. So look out for another free school.—Ex.

OUR PRESIDING ELDERS.

Augustus M. Trotter.

AUGUSTUS M. TROTTER was born near Holly Springs, Miss., May 6, 1849. He is the only surviving one of a family of four children, both parents having died in his infancy. He was a student in Rust Univesrity. Finding himself free in 1865 under the great proclamation of Abraham Lincoln, he began seeking spiritual freedom under the gospel. This was not fully realized until March, 1875, when Rev. H. R. Revels, D. D., in a great revival, led him to the Savior. In the Holly Springs District Conference in 1876 he was licensed to preach by Dr. Revels. He taught in the public schools of Mississippi, and was principal of the city school of Holly Springs in 1880. He supplied the Abbeville Circuit as pastor in 1879. He joined the Mississipi Conference at Canton, Jan. 12, 1881; was ordained deacon, and appointed to Holly Springs Circuit by Bishop C. D. Foss. In 1882 he was appointed to Grenada and served three years. In 1885, at Aberdeen, he was ordained elder by Bishop Mallalieu, and was appointed to Holly Springs, his native home, where he served the full term of three years. In 1885 he was also elected conference treasurer, and served the conference as such regularly till 1893. For several years he has been a member of the Rust University Board of Trustees. In 1893 he was appointed presiding elder of Meridian District by Bishop Andrews, and reappointed by Bishop Walden in 1894. He is deservedly popular among his brethren; is studious, thoughtful, consecrated, zealous. His record in favor of increasing the circulation of the SOUTHWESTERN is among the best, and indicates to some extent the progressive spirit of the man.

—The Methodist is the largest Protestant communion in the United States, as indicated by the last census. In 1890 its 17 bodies aggregated 4,589,284 members, the Baptists (13 bodies), 3,717,969; the Presbyterians (12 bodies), 1,278,332; the Lutherans (16 bodies), 1,231,072; the Disciples of Christ (Cambellites), 641,051; Protestant Episcopal (2 bodies), 540,509; Congregationalists, 512,771.—Ex.

A False Diagnosis.

La Grippe is confounded by many persons with a severe attack of catarrh, which in some respects resembles the former. These individuals suffer severely with pain about the forehead, eyes and ears, with soreness in the throat and stoppage of the nasal passages, and in fact are incapacitated for work of any kind for days at a time. These are catarrhal sufferers. Ely's Cream Balm has been used with the best results in such cases. The remedy will give instant relief.

Louisiana Conference Railroad Rates.

Members and visitors attending the conference at Monroe, La., Feb. 6, are hereby notified that a rate of one fare and one third, on the certificate plan, has been granted from all points in the State. Tickets will be sold Feb. 4 and 5. Extra accommodation will be afforded those leaving on the T. and P. railroad on the night of Feb. 4. Be sure and get certificate from the agent that you paid full fare going, and you will be returned at one-third fare after the certificate is signed by the conference secretary. In addition to the above, the V. S. and P. R. R. will grant the same rate between Shreveport and Delta on Saturday, Feb. 9, good until the close of the conference.

WORLD'S FAIR
CHICAGO

Why Was It

that Ayer's Sarsaparilla, out of the great number of similar preparations manufactured throughout the world, was the only medicine of the kind admitted at the World's Fair, Chicago? And why was it that, in spite of the united efforts of the manufacturers of other preparations, the decision of the World's Fair Directors was not reversed?

BECAUSE

According to RULE 15—"Articles that are in any way dangerous or offensive, also patent medicines, nostrums, and empirical preparations, whose ingredients are concealed, will not be admitted to the Exposition," and, therefore—

Because Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a patent medicine, not a nostrum, and not a secret preparation.

Because its proprietors had nothing to conceal when questioned as to the formula from which it is compounded.

Because it is all that it is claimed to be—a Compound Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla, and in every sense, worthy the indorsement of this most important committee, called together for passing upon the manufactured products of the entire world.

NEW ORLEANS ITEMS.

Mount Zion M. E. Church is moving forward with the able and genial pastor, Rev. T. G. Montgomery, in command. For a New Year's gift the church received a new iron fence and the pastor a new suit of clothes.

Revs. Harvey, Monroe, P. Landry, S. Duncan, J. F. Marshall, H. Taylor, T. G. Montgomery, T. J. Johnson, J. W. Hudson, F. T. Chinn, F. Walker, C. D. Shallowhorne, W. R. Butler, D. J. Price and Luke A. Ateman, Esq., constituted a most happy group of visitors last week.

Don't forget the mass meeting at Simpson Chapel, Valence street, Thursday night, Jan. 17. Let the trio friends of the SOUTHWESTERN rally. Able speakers will address the people.

The fourth quarterly conference of First Street M. E. Church, with Rev. Pierre Landry in the chair, was a meeting of unusual interest. Peace and quiet prevails in all departments. Presiding Elder J. F. Marshall and Rev. T. G. Montgomery were present and spoke words of cheer. Rev. W. R. Butler, the pastor, is energetic, capable and progressive. It is proposed to build the new church at once. The Flora Batson concert was conducted without the advertised attraction, but the sweet voiced Miss Sarah Little, prominent in the Sunday school and choir, filled the place of Mrs. Batson to the entire satisfaction of the large audience present.

Clippings from "Ram's Horn."

—"Go it while you are young," and you will not "go it" when you are old. The chances are that you will not "get there," and if you do, that you will not be able to go. A man must bear the yoke in his youth if he would have a free neck when he is old.

—If you are on a railway train, your falling asleep will not hinder you from reaching your journey's end. If you are in Christ, you will pass into glory even though you may do so in a state of insensibility.

—While the potter is molding the clay, he can make it any shape he pleases, but not after it is "fired." In this life we are molding an eternal character and state. Death makes change impossible.

—When we go from one room into another, we do not become different persons. When we pass into the other world we shall take with us the character and the recollections which we had here.

—"If thou wilt, thou canst." God's power is never doubted, but all sinners doubt his willingness. Men know that he can make worlds, but they are slow to believe that he can love. The first thought of a penitent always is that he must do some great thing to make God willing to save him. He must agonize and pray and weep before the obdurate heart of God will relent and grant him pardon, and the thought that God waits to be gracious is the last thing to enter his thought.

—Morality is like a Christmas tree, whose fruit is tied to the branches. Religion is a tree whose fruit is the organic product and vital expression of hidden roots anchored in a soil of spiritual fertility. Self-righteousness is worm-eaten morality.

—In one sense we are already in eternity. We have come into being, but we shall never go out of it. We shall live as long as God himself. We can kill ourselves, but we cannot turn ourselves into nothing.

—Begin a work well, go on doing it well, and you cannot but finish it well. Receive Christ as your only Savior, go on resting on him, following his example, and living to his glory, and you are sure to do well.

Beyond Comparison

Are the good qualities possessed by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Above all it purifies the blood, thus strengthening the nerves; it regulates the digestive organs, invigorates the kidneys and liver, tones and builds up the entire system, cures Scrofula Dyspepsia, Catarrh and Rheumatism. Get Hood's and only Hood's.

Hood's Pills cure all liver ills, billiousness, jaundice, indigestion, sick headache, etc.

"The Healthiest Spot in America."

This is a phrase often used in describing the Parish of St. Tammany, in this State, especially that portion of it at and adjacent to Ahita Springs, only 50 miles from New Orleans. The writer has personal knowledge of many persons having received great benefit from residing there, or even a short stay. The combination of a delightful climate, piney air and life-giving water, seems to be just what is needed to invigorate a warm human body. The locality is reached by the East Louisiana and Queen and Crescent railroads, with excursion trains and rates every week.

Notice.

Candidates for reception on trial will please meet the committee for examination Feb. 5 at the seat of the conference at 4 o'clock p. m. Committee: W. S. Harris, Chas. Monroe, F. Walker.

—Do not try to do a great thing; you may waste all your life waiting for the opportunity which may never come. But since little things are always claiming your attention, do them as they come, from a great motive, for the glory of God, to win His smile of approval, and to do good to men. It is harder to plod on in obscurity, acting thus, than to stand on the high places of the field, within the view of all, and to do deeds of valor at which rival armies stand still to gaze. But no such act goes without the swift recognition and the ultimate recompense of Christ. To fulfill faithfully the duties of your station; to use to the uttermost the gifts of your ministry; to bear chafing annoyances and trivial irritations as martyrs bore the pillory and stake; to find the one noble trait in people who try to molest you; to put the kindest construction on unkind acts and words; to love with the love of God even the unthankful and evil; to be content to be a fountain in the midst of a wild valley of stones, nourishing a few lichens and wild flowers, or now and again a thirsty sheep; and to do this always, and not for the praise of man, but for the sake of God—this makes a great life.—F. B. Meyer.

LESSON HYMN. S, 7, 4.

Guide me, O thou great Jehovah,
Pilgrim through this barren land:
I am weak, but thou art mighty;
Hold me with thy powerful hand:
Bread of heaven,
Feed me till I want no more.

When I tread the verge of Jordan,
Bid my anxious fears subside;
Bear me through the swelling current;
Land me safe on Canaan's side:
Songs of praises
I will ever give to thee.

Time.—Probably about April, A. D. 29.

Place.—Capernaum, where Tell Hum now is.

Rulers.—Herod in Galilee; Pilate in Judea.

Connecting Links.—Jesus hastened from the multitude he had miraculously fed into solitude. His disciples started across the lake. A great storm arose. Jesus walked toward them over the sea, and, seeing their terror, said: "It is I; be not afraid." He stepped aboard, and immediately the ship was at the head of the land whither they went. The crowds came back around the head of the lake in search of the wonder-working Teacher, and at last found him in Capernaum, where this conversation was held.

John 6.25-25.

Rev. G. N. Jolly, Kentucky Conference.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"He gave them bread from heaven to eat." (John 6.31.)

When the multitude heard the discourse Jesus delivered, and saw the miracle He wrought in feeding them, they decided to take Him and by force make Him their king. Jesus was a king, but his kingdom was not of this world. Satan had offered him "all the kingdoms of this world, and the glory of them," if he would "fall down and worship him" (Matt. 4:8.) This he refused to do. The Master constrained the disciples to enter the boat and set sail for the other side of the lake. He spent some time in communion with God. A storm arose on the lake. The winds were contrary. "Jesus saw them toiling in rowing." He went to them "walking on the sea." When they saw him they were troubled. He told them to "be not afraid." Peter desired to go to him walking on the water. Jesus bade him come. He went down out of the ship and "walked on the water," "but when he saw the wind boisterous he was afraid, and began to sink." He cried to Jesus for help. He "stretched forth His hand and saved him. When Jesus entered the ship "the wind ceased," and immediately the boat was at the land whither they went." They "came into the land of Gennessaret." Capernaum stood on its northern border. The people brought their sick to Him, and He healed them. Some time during the day he passed North and entered Capernaum. Here a number of the Jews, who the day before had eaten of the loaves and fishes, found Him. This lesson is a part of the discourse delivered to them. His subject was the Bread of Life.

Seeking Jesus—"Ye Seek Me," not because ye saw the miracle, but because ye did eat of the loaves and were filled." This miracle was a clear proof of the divine nature of Jesus. From it they should have learned that He was the Son of God. And that knowledge should have caused them to have sought Him. But it did not. Their motive was low and animal. It was their stomach and not their heart that caused them to seek Him. "We should not make this our chief object in life. To be always saying, "What shall we eat Or, what shall we drink? Or where withal shall we be clothed?" is an insult to Deity. If we "seek first the kingdom of God, and its righteousness, all these things shall be added unto us." Our first work is to labor "for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life." Christ and his Gospel will abide forever. That meat is given. It is without money and without price. (Isa. 55:1.) That meat is given by the "Son of Man." This assertion occurs seventy-one times in the New Testament, and in every instance, save one (Acts 7:56), it is applied by our Lord to Himself. It teaches that He was truly man. Jesus, in a broad sense, let His works prove His divinity, and His words His humanity. The assertion, "Him hath God the Father sealed," means that God has set Him apart for the salvation of the world, and impressed on Him the sign of His mission. That sign here was his power to work miracles.

A beam of light entered their mind, and a ray of hope sprang up in their soul. They ask the great question—"What shall we do, that we may work the works of God?" With the unsaved the work of God is to "believe on Him whom He hath sent." This is more than the assent of the understanding to the truthfulness of God's word. It is more than the consent of the will to be saved on the terms of the gospel. It is a principal working in us, moving us to repentance, prayer and consecration to God. Faith is a faculty of the mind. It is a creature of cultivation. The Jews believed in God, but they did not believe in Christ as the Son of God. It was this second step in faith He was urging them to take! Obeying the law, offering sacrifices and observing the ordinances of God's house are well, but to the sinner there is no salvation in them. It is faith alone that saves the soul. No one can believe in Christ without an effort on his part. That effort is work. That question—"What shall we do?"—teaches that we are under obligations to God; that we do not know his will; that we are able to do what He requires; and that we desire to obey Him.

The well-known preacher, lecturer and newspaper writer, Scott F. Hershey, Ph. D., of Boston, is at work on a book which deals with the Roman Papacy, as everywhere and always opposed to civil and religious liberty. Doctor Hershey has been a student for years in the history of Romanism, and has made researches in the libraries of this country and Europe. He has spent years in Washington City accumulating a wonderful fund of fact concerning the power of the Roman Church in the affairs of government. Terrible in fact and popular in style, his book will have an immense influence on the Patriotic movement of the day, and will have the largest sale of any book in this generation

OUR BOOK TABLE.

A Plain Talk With Men and Women Who Work. By Amos R. Wells. Fleming R. Revell & Co., 112 Fifth avenue, New York. Price, 35 cents.

A most interesting book. The author has, with rare tact, woven around the reply of the carpenter's son, "Wist you not, mother, that I must be about my Father's business," a narrative of wonderful interest. The lessons are both forcible, pertinent and instructive. It is by all means fully worth the purchase price and many times more.

Imperial Songs. For Sunday school meetings, Epworth Leagues, Revival Services. By Jesse L. Hurlbut, D. D., Stephen V. R. Ford, editors. New York: Hunt & Eaton. Cincinnati: Cranston & Curts. Price, 35 cents each; $30 per 100.

This book is a most helpful acquisition to the Christian hymnology of our day. Helpful in that, it is composed of a choice selection of such songs as will inspire and incite to ardent piety. There are several of the old songs, such as "What a friend we have in Jesus," "Blessed Assurance," and others of like spirit and power, which, with the new compositions, will render this book very popular.

Sarah Dakota. By May E. Q. Bush. New York: Hunt & Eaton. Cincinnati: Cranston & Curts. Price, $1.

This is a most charming story and will be of special interest to young people. The heroine, Sarah Dakota, was born in the territory, but was at an early age deprived of a mother's care; but out of the salient traits of her character the author has made a story of thrilling interest, showing the dominant influences of integrity and righteousness in overcoming great difficulties, and achieving great victories.

A Noble Fight.

AN EMINENT SOUTHERN LAWYER'S LONG CONFLICT WITH DISEASE.

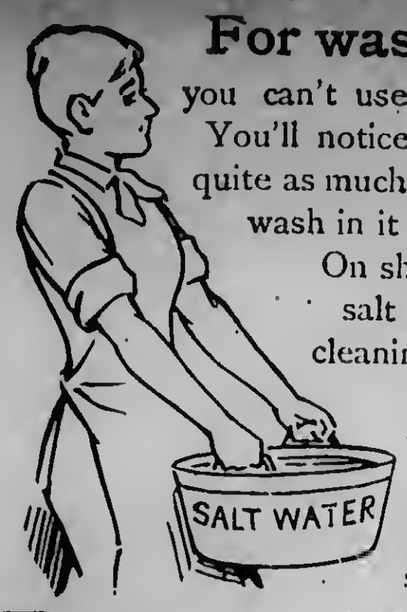
Twenty-five Years of Prosperity, Adversity and Suffering. The Great Victory Won by Science Over a Stubborn Disease.

[From the Atlanta, Ga., Constitution.]

Foremost among the best known lawyers and farmers of North Carolina stands Col. Isaac A. Sugg, of Greenville, Pitt Co., a man who has been on the edge of eternity and whose life had been measured by minutes.

"It has been twenty-two years since I became a resident of this town," said Col. Sugg in telling his story to a reporter, "even then the first symptoms of Gravel were asserting themselves but were slight. Gradually, however, my disease developed, and fight it as I would it seemed to gain a stronger foothold day by day until my misery was complete. For sixteen years I never knew what it was to be free from pain, not pain as an ordinary man thinks of it, but agonizing, excruciating, unendurable pain. Tortured from head to foot, at times thrown into spasms when it would require the united strength of four men to hold me until I was stupefied with stimulants and opiates. I could not sit, lie or stand in any one position but the shortest time. Sleep was out of the question unless brought about by the strongest stimulants or opiates. Oh how many, many times have I thought of putting an end to that life of suffering. But then my mind would revert to my wife, my children, my home, and I would restrain my hand with the hope that some other means of escape would be offered. I searched the archives of medicine for relief. Doctors were consulted, lithia waters, mineral waters, drugs, opiates and stimulants of all sorts were tried without avail. Why I sent clear to the West Indies for medicine and yet the result was the same.

"I kept at my work as long as I could but nature gave way at last and I succumbed to the inevitable. My entire nervous system had been shattered by the stimulants and opiates I had taken, my blood had actually turned to water, my weight had dropped from 173 pounds to 123, and it seemed to everybody that the end was in sight. Why I could not bear the gentle hand of my wife to bathe my limbs with tepid water. I was simply living from hour to hour. I had made my will, settled my business and waited for the last strand of life to snap.



It was at this time that a somewhat similar case as my own was brought to my notice. This man had suffered very much as I had, his life had been despaired of as mine had and yet he had been cured. Think what that little word meant to me—CURED. The report stated that the work had been accomplished by a medicine known as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I investigated the report thoroughly and found that it was true in detail. Then I procured some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and began taking them and began to get better. I began to sleep like a healthful child, sound, calm and peaceful. My appetite came back and, my nerves were soothed and restored to their normal condition and I felt like a new man. But the greatest blessing was the mental improvement. I began to read and digest, to formulate new plans, to take interest in my law practice, which began to come back to me as soon as my clients realized that I was again myself. After a lapse of 10 years I ride horseback every day without fatigue.

"That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life is beyond doubt, and I am spreading their praise far and wide."

Inquiry about the town of Greenville substantiated the above facts of Col. Sugg's case, and that many others are being benefited by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are considered an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, that tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularies, and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box, or 6 boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

For washing in Salt Water

you can't use soap, but you can use Pearline. You'll notice its wonderful cleansing properties quite as much in salt water as in fresh. You can wash in it or wash with it, just the same.

On shipboard, yachting, etc., you can use salt water and Pearline for washing and cleaning in a hundred ways.

You'd have to take fresh water for them all, if you had nothing but soap, and couldn't get hold of Pearline. Luxurious—bathing in salt water.

Beware

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 393 JAMES PYLE, N. Y.

—The tramp had got into the kitchen where it was warm, and a bountiful repast of second-hand victuals was spread before him, the lady of the house standing by. "Is that all fer me?" he asked, looking over it greedily. "Every bit of it," replied the lady, encouragingly. "Kin I eat it er take it away with me?" "It's yours to dispose of as you please." "Thank ye, mum," he said, rising and bowing. "I'd like to sell it to you fer a quarter in cash."—Detroit Free Press.

AMERICAN UNIVERSITY PLANS.

The American University is going forward with increasing interest on the part of its many friends. The meeting of the Board of Trustees, which was held in Washington, D. C., on Jan. 16, was the most thoroughly representative and enthusiastic session that has been held so far in the history of the institution. There were present: Mr. John E. Andrus, president of the board: Messrs. Anderson Fowler and John S. Huyler, Drs. Charles H. Payne, James M. King, Jesse L. Hurlbut, and A. J. Palmer, of New York; Bishop A. W. Wilson and Dr. D. H. Carroll, of Baltimore; President W. W. Smith, of Lynchburg, Va.; Bishop John F. Hurst, the Hon. W. M. Springer, Judge L. E. McComas, the Hon. Matthew G. Emery, Messrs. C. C Glover, B. F. Leighton, A. B. Duvall, H. B. Moulton, Vice-Chancellor Beiler, Secretary Baldwin, and Registrar Osborn, of Washington.

The reports of the officers and committees were full of encouragement. The Finance Committee estimate the assets of the university to be $372,633, exclusive of the site. This latter, consisting of ninety acres, and costing $100,000, is now commonly said to be worth several times its cost.

A movement will be made at once looking toward the erection of the Hall of History, and an appeal is made to the friends of the university to respond at once, and with such liberality as will secure its success.

AN APPEAL TO THE PULPIT.

Mr. George T. Downing, one of the leading colored men of the country, writes a letter to the New York Independent, with the request that it be published by other papers. We publish some of the timely things mentioned:

"Whom am I to go to sooner and with more hope than to those Christians who profess to be followers of Jesus, servants of the Savior who is no respecter of persons. * * * I do not come to you because the law of the land needs be altered, but because a moral and religious sentiment needs be increased to strengthen existing laws and because there is much in the case that legislation cannot reach. * * * It is needless for me to present an array of facts to convince you that the colored man is a subject of great injustice all over the land; that he is prescribed and discouraged at almost every turn; that he is treated as a pariah, with contempt on almost every side; that he is obstructed whenever he moves to better his condition. He has no fair show; he is maligned; he is widely and wickedly abused; he is blamed for what he cannot help. Do I exaggerate? No; it is well known that all this and more is true in the face of efforts on his part to raise himself and his children from poverty, ignorance, and a degradation that has been forced upon them. Am I wrong in the belief that if our Christian pulpits shall be heard preaching earnestly, convincingly against the sin of being a respecter of persons, preaching in such a manner as to impress us as to their sincerity; that if they give their utterances point and proper direction, the weight now so heavily pressing down and hindering the colored man, making life to the sensitive miserable, adding to the dishonor of the nation, would be lifted soon from the colored man and the nation?"

The pulpit is charged with a grave responsibility, and if our country is to be relieved of the "bitter and grievous agitation concerning the rights of the colored man," the quicker it wheels its mighty influence in line, the better it will be for humanity.

Both pulpit and press should insist on equitable and just treatment of all men, without regard to color. To evade this plain Christian duty, or to treat it with indifference is sin.

—Zeno Calhoun, of Yarborough, Tex., writes of the work as being very prosperous. The visit of Presiding Elder W. L. Duncan is highly commended. Rev. J. K. Loggins, the pastor, is spoken of in the highest terms as a faithful and efficient pastor. The quarterly meeting was a great success. The SOUTHWESTERN is regarded with high favor, and strong efforts are being put forth to have it in every family.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Bishop Thomas Bowman, D. D., LL. D., will preach at St. Charles Avenue M. E. Church on Sunday morning, Feb. 3.

—The great Epworth League rally for missions realized the magnificent sum of thirty thousand dollars. Praise the Lord.

—The members of Lee's Chapel M. E. Church, Bryan, Tex., recently gave an agreeable surprise to their pastor and family.

—We gratefully acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to the reception and banquet tendered Rev. C. S. Smith, D. D., in honor of his return from Africa.

—Rev. D. J. Butler, of Gretna, reports the church and Sunday school flourishing. He is just closing up a prosperous and successful year.

—The editor of the SOUTHWESTERN has accepted an invitation to deliver a lecture at Union Bethel A. M. E. Church, corner Liberty and Thalia streets, on Thursday night, Jan. 31.

—Mrs. Anna Claude, formerly of New Orleans, and prominent in Mount Zion M. E. Church, has been visiting friends in the city lately. She returned to her home in Tampa, Fla., a few days ago.

—St. Mark M. E. Church, Washington, La., A. J. Pickett, pastor, is in a prosperous condition spiritually and financially. During the holidays six souls were united to the church. The blessing of the Lord is upon them.

—The appreciative words and work of Revs. C. D. Shallowhorne and H. Taylor, of Mallalieu and Simpson churches respectively, are exceedingly helpful. The work is helping to augment our subscription list, while their words—well, they will bring joy to the heart of the editor.

—Our most profound sympathy goes out to our dear brother, Rev. Dr. R. M. Freshwater, whose beloved but invalid wife was killed in an elevator accident at the hospital where she had gone for treatment. How mysterious are the ways of providence; yet He doeth all things well.

—From Cleveland, Ohio, Rev. E. A. White, pastor, comes this cheering note: "Our fourth quarterly meeting was a success. Presiding Elder M. S. Johnson was present and rendered profitable assistance. It was a great day for Cory Chapel. The attendance was good and the meeting was glorious. Five united with us."

—Rev. W. H. Robinson, pastor at Lawrenceville, Ill., Lexington Conference, writes: "We are on the high tide. Rev. E. L. Gilliam, P. E., was with us on the occasion of our last quarterly meeting, and served us faithfully. We are preparing to open our remodeled church, in the near future. Church and Sunday school flourishing."

—Rev. M. F. Black, a superannuated member of the South Carolina Conference, writes concerning the death of Brother Simon Barker, which occurred at Allendale, S. C., a few weeks ago. Brother Barker was a strong, faithful Christian and a useful member of our Church; a great friend of education, a loving husband and father. He died as he lived.

—Rev. Jesse P. Price writes from Springfield, Tenn.: "I reached here on my new work Oct. 13, 1894. I was cheerfully received. We have organized three Epworth League chapters and greatly revived the Sunday school work. We have four appointments that are doing well. Raised for all purposes this quarter, $95. We had a good quarterly conference. Our elder was present. We have secured five subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN, and are doing all we can to put the paper in each family. Prof. D. W. Byrd, of the Central Tennessee College, was with us and preached with great acceptability. His sermon and lectures are much spoken of by the people. We have a good school here, taught by Prof. J. W. Hughes, Miss A. L. Bransford and Mrs. E. Edmonson, of this place."

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—All matter intended for publication in this paper, must be addressed, not to Hunt & Eaton, but to the Editor. Private letters to the Editor should be marked "Personal." We hope this matter will be thoroughly understood; many of our correspondents insist on sending matter to Hunt & Eaton which should be addressed to the Editor. We will give the preference to matter that comes properly directed and will be responsible only for such matter. Secondly, don't send any money to the Editor. Hunt & Eaton is the regularly authorized firm to receive monies and look after the publishing interests of the paper. Therefore, in forwarding money for subscriptions, books, periodicals and advertisements, address all letters to Hunt & Eaton, 631 Poydras street, New Orleans. All other letters should be addressed to the Editor, at his residence, 1147 Cadiz street, or at the office, 631 Poydras street.

RACE SAYINGS AND DOINGS.

William T. Shorey has the honor of being the only colored man sailing out of the port of San Francisco as master. He is captain of a whaler, and has just returned from Alaskan waters with a big catch.—Boston Courant.

Rev. George E. Strobridge of Trinity M. E. Church, Poughkepsie, N. Y., in a sermon recently, made a plea for our people of this city. He referred to two of our girls named Dolin, who are graduates of the high school, and who are unable to obtain employment in any of the stores or offices because of their color. He asked that the merchants employ our educated girls, and that the factories and offices be open to them.

"These girls," he said, "have three things to commend them. They are Americans, they are Christians, they are educated. This means that they should have a chance, but there is no chance offered them because, forsooth, God Almighty made a mistake in not making them white."

Many of the leading merchants of this city are members of Dr. Strobridge's church, and the sermon caused a great deal of comment. The Rev. Francis B. Wheeler, of the Presbyterian Church, also referred to the employment of our people, in his sermon to-day.—Ex.

The holiday editions of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, Richmond Planet and Indianapolis Freeman were attractive papers. They were not bulky in make up, but presented the appearance of neatness, clean and almost typographically perfect, reading matter strong and sensible showing at a glance that race journalism is becoming to be as much of an art as fully characterize white papers.

If for no other reason than these special editions, the ADVOCATE, Freeman and Planet, ought to receive special encouragement from the race during this year, that would lead them to redouble their efforts at the close of another twelve months. The Chicago Appeal, one of the brightest newspapers of the country, presented its readers with a special number during the holidays, but not fortunate in getting a copy, we can only judge of it by the many favorable newspaper comments.—Florida Sentinel.

They had an Emancipation Day celebration at Claflin University, Orangeburg, S. C., when Prof. Wm. H. Crogman, A. M., of Clark University, Atlanta, Ga., delivered an admirable address. There was nothing remarkable about a colored man delivering such an address at a colored institution on Emancipation Day. But it was remarkable that the exercises were opened with prayer by Bishop P. F. Stevens, of the Reformed Episcopal Church, who thanked God that he had "emancipated one race from the dominion of another;" that he had "relieved the other race of the responsibility that rested upon them as masters," adding that they were still responsible for their moral influence as men, and as members of a race that has enjoyed superior advantages; for Bishop Stevens is the one who fired the first shot of the Civil War, when he sent a shell at the "Star of the West." He was, at the beginning of the war, superintendent of the South Carolina Military Academy, at Charleston, and was commanding a battery on Morris Island when the "Star of the West" steamed into the harbor. Since the war he has devoted himself to the uplift of the people whom the Confederacy aimed to keep down. He has been for several years professor of mathematics in Claflin University. Claflin itself, by the way, occupies the site and originally the buildings (till fire destroyed them) of a female college used for the whites before the war; and some of its buildings are on the spot where the slave quarters were and the whipping stake.—New York Independent.

The Book Committee will meet in annual session Wednesday, Feb. 13, 10 o'clock a. m., at 150 Fifth avenue, New York City.

The Eastern and Western sections will meet separately Tuesday, the 12th, at 2 o'clock p. m. W. F. WHITLOCK, Chairman.

Good Words for the "Southwestern."

Rev. F. P. Blakemore, of Cooksville, Tenn., Tennessee Conference, writes: "The SOUTHWESTERN is grand. May the blessings of God attend it."

Prof. H. B. Pemberton, Marshall, Tex., writes: "I am glad to know that the SOUTHWESTERN is still keeping up the tenor of her way, giving no uncertain sound."

Rev. J. M. Shumpert, presiding elder of Shubuta District, Mississippi Conference, writes: "I hope you will reach the 10,000. You ought to have them. I shall continue to urge the ministers on my district to push the work for the SOUTHWESTERN."

Prof. J. A. Williams, of Rust University, Holly Springs, Miss., writes: "The SOUTHWESTERN is doing great good in encouraging the people toward getting homes, etc."

Rev. W. H. Perkins, Dublin, Va., writes: "I have asked for twenty-five cash subscribers on my circuit this year, and propose to put the grand old SOUTHWESTERN at the front."

Rev. D. B. Harston, Texarkana, Ark., writes: "The first money collected in my church in 1895 was to pay for a subscription to the SOUTHWESTERN. We are sure the paper will help us. Our loyal members in every department of the church appreciate it very highly."

Rev. S. H. Wallace, Moss Point, Miss., writes: "The SOUTHWESTERN will be presented as one of the instruments of progression, both religiously and intellectually."

Rev. W. P. Thirkield, D. D., president of Gammon Theological Seminary, Atlanta, Ga., writes: "You are making an excellent paper."

Rev. J. S. Tedd, presiding elder of Central Alabama Conference, writes: "In increasing the subscription list of the faithful old SOUTHWESTERN, surely you can depend on me as being one of its staunchest friends. You have my heart, hand and money."

Notice.

The third chapter of Bowling Green District Epworth League will convene in Simpson Chapel, Eddyville, Ky., Feb. 12. Rev. T. L. Ferguson, P. E., will preside. There will be addresses by Messrs N. H. Woods of Eddyville, Prof. John Cook of Princeton, Elder Ferguson and others.

J. E. WARREN, Pastor.

LORD, HELP MY UNBELIEF.

How sad our state by nature is!
Our sin, how deep it stains!
And Satan binds our captive souls
Fast in his slavish chains.

But there's a voice of sovereign grace
Sounds from the sacred word:
"Ho! ye despairing sinners, come,
And trust a faithful Lord."

My soul obeys the gracious call,
And runs to this relief:
I would believe thy promise, Lord:
O help my unbelief!

To the blest fountain of thy blood,
Incarnate God, I fly:
Here let me wash my guilty soul
From crimes of deepest dye.

A guilty, weak, and helpless worm,
Into thine arms I fall:
Be thou my strength and righteousness,
My Jesus, and my all.

DAILY THOUGHTS.

[From Phillips Brooks.]

FEBRUARY 1.—Christianity is one and everlasting. Its work of salvation for man's soul is the same blessed work forever. But its relation to the world's life at large must be forever changing with the changes of that world's needs and seekings. The larger applications of Christianity must of necessity be from time to time readjusted, and in their readjustments its power may be temporarily obscured or unrecognized as it passes into new forms of exhibition.

FEBRUARY 2.—Through our fathers' wisdom and devotion, we must become wiser and more devoted than they. Friends, we must rise to thoughts beyond our fathers, or we are not our father's worthy children. Not to do in our days just what our fathers did long ago, but to live as truly up to our light as our fathers lived up to theirs,—that is what it is to be worthy of our fathers.

FEBRUARY 3.—Men talk about morality as one thing, and religion as another. Sometimes they pit them one against the other, as if they were some sort of natural antagonism between the two. There can be no such thing as morality without religion, and morality becomes more and more genuine just in proportion as religion becomes more and more sound and true. We do not believe in any reform which finds its whole motive within the region of human relations. We look for the permanent success of no effort, however noble its appointed aim may be, which does not draw its impulse from some association of humanity with a power and a will above its own.

FEBRUARY 4.—Life can only be truly communicated by truly living methods. Nothing else will do. This takes all power away from mere machineries, from the highest to the lowest.

FEBRUARY 5.—I know no man's nature finally but by that testimony which the nature gives me of him. Bring me all evidence that the man is trustworthy, and then when I am convinced I will go and stand in the presence of that man himself, and he shall tell me. So the world stood, so the world stands to-day in the presence of Jesus Christ. His presence on earth is an historic fact. The words that He spoke are written down in a true record. The deeds that He did are the history of the manifestations of His character, and the story of His christendom is the continued manifestation of His life, the divine life in the life of man, made divine through Him.

FEBRUARY 6.—Religion is not something that is fastened upon the outside of life, but is the awakening of the truth inside of life.

The only way to cure catarrh is to purify the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood and tones up the whole system.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

At the Home of a Hero.

BY A HERO WORSHIPER.

What a glamour there is about the haunts of greatness! What a heroic coloring everything takes on along the pathway of a hero!

The old town of Galena, in the northwest corner of Illinois, with its more than seven hills, its varigated valleys, its terraced and tree covered bluffs, is naturally "beautiful for situation." It is also the joy of the whole United States; not, however, because of these natural beauties, but because it is the old home of Ulysses S. Grant. If his record had been made in some other land, at some other time, he would have come down in history to us as "Grant the Great." As it is he is only plain U. S. Grant, which some one has appropriately and significantly spelled into "United States Grant."

It is hard to tell whether the natural beauties of Galena have an added charm from the heroic glamour that is cast over it, or whether these natural beauties are put to a disadvantage by the glamour. I am inclined to think the latter is the case, for any town with such associations as Galena, would be beautiful, however uninviting its natural physiognomy might happen to be. And Galena would be beautiful in the absence of either of these resources—its natural picturesqueness, or its heroic haloes. As it is, having both, the traveler can revel in either or both, for they are quite independent of each other. Galena has given to the world quite a galaxy of brilliant and brainy men beside this modern Ulysses, her superior star. Not to name them all, there was Elihu B. Washburn, once our minister to France, whose house still stands on a prominent street; and also Mr. Kohlsaat, formerly of the Chicago Inter Ocean. This last named gentleman has recently honored himself and his native town by placing in Grant Park, as his own gift, a statue of General Grant. As a piece of statuary, to say nothing of its illustrious subject, it would be an ornament to any city. The writer found occasion, during the last week of September last, to stop off in this quaint old Illinois town as a visitor at the session of the Rock River Methodist Conference, which was being held there at that time. There was something of an unusual interest in connection with this ecclesiastical gathering this year, on account of the blending of religious and patriotic memories. It was the place where the first Methodist mission was founded in the present bounds of the conference, sixty-six years ago.

Another feature of interest was in the fact that the conference was sitting in a church where it held a session in 1859, when a young man was elected as its secretary at its opening, and at its close appointed pastor of that same church, and who at this session of 1894 was presiding over it as Bishop John H. Vincent. Blended with this was the fact that while young Vincent occupied the pulpit of this church in 1859, one of its pews, No. 65, was occupied by "Captain Grant" and family. The conference signalized this fact by draping that old pew with the American flag on this morning of its session. A day or two later a gentleman, on behalf of the Galena Church, presented to its former pastor, Bishop Vincent, a gavel made from the work bench in the old Grant tannery, and its handle from pew No. 65 in the church where the conference was assembled, and in which the general worshiped.

A "hero worshiper" who had only a day or two stay in the town, could not long content himself with the business routine of a conference in a town where there were so many haunts of one of the world's most famous heroes; so, along with a congenial companion, I proceeded to visit every place associated with the life of the great general in that town. The three most prominent of these places are the two houses in which he lived and the old leather store. We first went to the house that was given to the general by Galena citizens about the close of the war, when he returned to live among them. This house is still owned by Mrs. Grant, and though it is occupied by renters, some of the furniture of the Grants remains within. The house is a two-story brick, near the top of a hill overlooking the town. It stands quite alone, in a large sloping lawn, well covered with grass and trees mostly maple. It is not a large house, and not a fine house, though doubtless for the time and the town, it was considered nice enough for a noted American when it was presented to him. On the plea that we were hero-worshipers, my companion and myself were admitted to the house. We were first taken into the library. There sits the large cushioned arm chair, in which the general sat when resting at home. Like real hero worshipers, we of course each sat down in that chair for a time, yielding ourselves up to the influence of that mental law of association, whereby land object associated with a great man makes us think of the man himself and his history. That chair was to me not unlike what the tripod must have been to the ancient Greeks in their divinations. The mental effect was to me similar to that produced by the first sight I ever had of the old liberty bell. What suggestions these objects were of mighty and heroic history! There was nothing in or about this house extraordinary in itself, but these silent things seemed to tell volumes about the silent man who was once associated with them, but now silently sleeps his long sleep.

On the walls of the parlor hang the framed pictures of the members of the Grant family, and the observant eye can see several little marks which indicate the tastes of the home-loving and peace-loving man who once lived there. A suggestive picture hangs over the hall-tree in the hall. It is the "Trimmviri," a picture of the busts of Washington, Lincoln and Grant. Under each head is an inscription. Under Washington we read this: "Pator, 1789-1797." Under Lincoln, "Salvator, 1861-1865," and under Grant, "Custos, 1869-1877." These dates are evidently designed only to give the presidential terms of these three men respectively, for it will not do to restrict those terms—Pater, Salvator and Custos—to these dates. If we did, we should have the greatest of Grant's history unexpressed in the picture; namely, his war record.

We are loath to leave this home, for it is to us as hero-worshipers a sacred place. But when we do leave it is with the feeling that we have worshiped at the shrine of one of America's greatest heroes. We pluck a rose and a few leaves from a maple tree by the gate, and as we depart my companion says, "This was the home of the typical American."

We next go the statue in Grant Park, previously mentioned, and then to the old leather store, which is now a Bible depository and general stationery store. The next and last thing to be seen was the house. "Captain Grant" lived in when the war came on. It is also a brick house, much plainer than the other, but still a substantially appearing structure. Here lived "Grant, the tanner," while in partnership with his father in the tannery and leather store.

We leave Galena, so imbued with the spirit of hero-worship that it is with regret, a day or two later, that we are compelled to pass through Springfield, Ill., the home of Lincoln, without being able to stop off and worship at the shrine of another noble and notable American hero.

We speed on and crossed the Mississippi river, speaking back to Illinois as we left her soil: "Grand, old Illinois—thou art rich in the soil of thy broad prairies, and in thy treasures of coal, but richer still in thy heroic sons."

The well-known preacher, lecturer and newspaper writer, Scott F. Hershey, Ph. D., of Boston, is at work on a book which deals with the Roman Papacy, as everywhere and always opposed to civil and religious liberty. Doctor Hershey has been a student for years in the history of Romanism, and has made researches in the libraries of this country and Europe. He has spent years in Washington City accumulating a wonderful fund of fact concerning the power of the Roman Church in the affairs of government. Terrible in fact and popular in style, his book will have an immense influence on the Patriotic movement of the day, and will have the largest sale of any book in this generation

OUR : WOMEN'S : ROUND : TABLE

The Influence of the Home in the Uplifting of our People.

FIFTH LETTER—BY T. E. W.

True confidence in a mother is one of the essential qualifications in the making of a great woman. Therefore, I advise all mothers to encourage and cultivate this very important relationship from their children's infancy. As dearly as you love them, why should they not love you enough to confide in you?

There are various reasons why they should. You are mother, but this alone is not the only reason why you should deserve their respect. You are the only true sympathizer. There is no one on earth from whom comes more sympathy than a mother. You have this opportunity in your hands; why not improve it?

I have seen children come in and attempt to tell their mother something, and they would send them off to play, with an excuse that they talk too much; and the poor children for fear of having a similar experience, refrain from telling their mother what might be an advantage to her.

I have heard mothers say this makes a child think she is a woman; but indeed this is not so. I have always been taught to tell my mother everything and to make her my confidant, even in the most minute things of life; and I am sure that but for her advice my life might have been far less pleasant. That a mother can give better advice than anyone else is self-evident and hardly needs argument. I know that girls often think hard of what they are pleased to term the "Watchfulness of mother;" but I am certain that the true mother's heart is always full of anxiety about her children—especially her girls. She cannot be too watchful with reference to the company which they keep. No true, loving and dutiful girl would dare to receive a letter which she would not have her mother read. Some one in giving advice to girls, says: "A little secretiveness has set many a scandal afloat." The girl that says: "I have been there; I have met so and so; such and such remarks were made," will be certain of receiving good advice and sympathy. If all is right, no fault will be found. If out of great experience the mother knows that something was improper or unsuitable, she will, if she is a good mother, kindly advise against its repetition. My advice to mothers, if they have not already begun this work, to do so at once. They will be ten thousand times happier with the reflection that their children confide in them as their best and truest friends.

Here is a simple bill of fare: Soup, fried oysters, baked chicken, jelly, beet salad, cheese straws, fried plantains, custard—coffee. Cheese straws are made as follows: "Grate the tablespoonful of cheese (any kind). Add the tablespoonful of flour, a little red pepper and salt. Add to dry ingredients one tablespoonful of melted butter, one of water, and the yolk of an egg. Roll thin as for cookies; cut in strips four inches long and one half inch wide; bake fifteen minutes; serve on plate and fringed. Build the straws up like a log-cabin. They are delicious with salad."

That our Southern women need spend more time in instructive reading, is evident from the following clipping from a Northern paper:

Editor Christian Advocate: Bishop Haygood, writing in the Nashville Christian Advocate, says:

"Unless they be novels, Southern books hardly go North at all. This is partly due to the dense ignorance of the South that prevails throughout the North.

"A cultured woman, who could talk intelligently by the hour of Europe, once asked me this question: 'Georgia is north of South Carolina; is it not?' We were in a splendid library with several thousand of the best books."

Dr. Buckley, in the Christian Advocate, says:

Shortly, after my return, I met a lady who had been in California, and asked her if she saw the geysers, referring to the hot springs misnamed geysers, about twenty-seven miles from Calistoga. She replied, 'No, I spent most of my time with the Williamsons, of Oakland.' She may be a type of not a few who really do not know what a geyser is."

Neither of the above are more striking than the fact that Bishop Haygood presents the first named to prove that a "dense ignorance of the South prevails throughout the North."

James Lane Allen, a Southern author, says the people of the South do not purchase the works of their own authors, and gives a long list of Southern writers who have gone North to reside for the lack of encouragement at home.

Important Facts.

If you have dull and heavy pain across forehead and about the eyes; if the nostrils are frequently stopped up and followed by a disagreeable discharge; if soreness in the nose and bleeding from the nostrils is often experienced; if you are very sensitive to cold in the head accompanied with headache, then you may be sure you have catarrh, and should (immediately) resort to Ely's Cream Balm for a cure. The remedy will give instant relief.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

A valuable and useful booklet is that by George W. Poase, and published by our Book Concern, entitled "The Books of the Bible;" a series of supplemental lessons for the primary and junior departments. It is a neat and effective system of memorizing many of the great facts of the Bible and to more thoroughly know its contents. It needs to be seen to be appreciated. Price, 10 cents net.

The January-February number of the Methodist Review, edited by Rev. James J. Tigert, D. D., LL. D., maintains the usual high standard. The contributed articles are from the pens of some of the ablest writers of the age, including such names as Maurice Thompson, Rev. R. H. Mahon, D. D.; Paul Whitehead, D. D; Wilbur F. Willet, D. D.; John S. Bassett, D. D.; W. M. Baskervill, M. A., Ph. D.; J. C. C. Newton, D. D., and E. L. T. Blake, D. D. Dr. Tigert brings to his department that ability which is making the Review one of the best periodicals of the age. Barbee & Smith, agents, Nashville, Tenn.

COMMUNICATED.

Are Our Young Ministers Loyal?

P. P. BROOKS, P. E., Chattanooga Dist.

There are a few who are willing to suffer for the cause of Christ, and just a few. Most of them, both local and traveling, want to know before they take a work how much missionary money there is on it, and if there is not as much as they think should be, they begin grumbling and blame at once the presiding elder. Very often they call for the money before they even begin the work, and if the money is not forthcoming, they give up at once. Years ago ministers had to take up their work with little or no missionary money, and then it was not given them till the meeting of the quarterly conference, where a report was first made as to what was done; but now they must be paid in advance, and when that money is used up they very often leave the work with nothing done. Then they go to the annual conference with a great complaint to the bishop against the presiding elder about their missionary money, when, in truth, nothing is due them unless they work. Often the presiding elder pays them when it is not actually due them, because they raise such a yell and keep the people in a continual stir, thus causing a great drawback in the work.

The Missionary Society has done a great work in helping to evangelize the world by aiding ministers on poor charges to live! This help was once very highly appreciated—but what is the sad state of affairs to-day? Men know of the generous principle of the Methodist Episcopal Church towards helping ministers, and have and are coming in—not to work for, but to merely get the "loaves and fishes." I am very sorry of the present state of affairs among our ministers, but what I say is nevertheless true. We have enough of such men; what we want are those willing to work, and suffer if necessary, and pay and be paid—men who are not especially seeking "city charges" only, and horses and buggies, but who are willing to work for Christ and the Church anywhere.

I thank God for educated ministers, if they are educated towards and not from the people; if they are willing to share in the "pioneer" work and not stop to "pick and choose."

The great Methodist Episcopal Church proposes to educate men to work for God and humanity anywhere and everywhere, and not for the very few good places only. I believe the time has come for us to be more self-supporting. There are other churches in the same fields whose ministers receive not a dollar of missionary money, yet they raise as much, or nearly as much, money as we. Probably the other churches receive more local aid than we, but their local aid certainly does not come up with the aid given our ministers from the Missionary Society. I think the ministers in the Methodist Episcopal Church should strike out on more independent lines and go to their work—not for the missionary money alone, but for the love of Christ and the work—and teach the people that the "Laborer is worthy of his hire;" since we all know that the minister ought and must be paid for his work.

Ministerial Unity.

G. W. BRANNER, State Line, Miss.

"Behold how good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

No class of men that walk the globe holds as high an office as the minister of Christ, and no class of men ought to stand more closely united than they. The true ministry is styled as "The light of the world," and therefore it should shine in the pulpit, on the streets and the highways, and in the homes of all whom they visit. Shine everywhere as God requires them, and they should be as golden links of a chain, solidly united. We know that when one link is broken, it shatters the chain, and when one of Christ's ministers is crippled, it weakens others. How little a minister looks when he tries to destroy the morals of his companion in the gospel. How often is this the case with some preachers, especially when superceding another—when he seeks to build himself up by speaking evil of his predecessor, when he should seek his brother's welfare and try to strengthen him where he might be weak. Such ministers have crept in unawares. Brethren, let each seek another's welfare, and not his own. "He that exalteth himself shall be abased, and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.

NEW ORLEANS ITEMS.

Rev. D. J. Price, of Algiers, has been reported very ill during the past week. We are glad to say that he is now convalescent.

We had a delightful service Sunday a. m. at Thompson M. E. Church. Rev. Frank Walker, the pastor, is earnestly and faithfully discharging his duties, assisted by his genial and zealous wife.

The Sunday night services at First Street M. E. Church were of a high order. The large and efficient choir rendered excellent service. Rev. W. R. Butler, the pastor, has the church thoroughly organized. Ground will be broken March 1 for the erection of a new church, which, when completed, will be the finest and most commodious church in the city of our denomination.

At Mallalieu M. E. Church, Rev. C. D. Shallowhorne pastor, the services on Sunday were unusually interesting. Father Lewis preached at 11 a. m.; at 3 p. m the local Preachers' Union was held, and at night Rev. D. B. White opened the service, the pastor following in an able and instructive sermon. A committee of ladies and gentlemen, with members of the church, will tender the pastor a reception on Saturday night, Feb. 2, the occasion of his 42d birthday. Brother Shallowhorne brought in a number of new subscribers this week.

Rev. Simon Evans, pastor of Pleasant Plains M. E. Church, this city, died on Monday, the 28th inst. His funeral took place from Williams' M. E. Church on Tuesday, the 29th. Brother Evans was an earnest, faithful servant of God, and died in the harness.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL ST., NEW-YORK.

Our Dallas, Tex., Letter.

Our church here starts off with the year. Watch-night services were full of interest; also the holidays passed of quietly and lovely. We are commencing our third year with many indications of success. All the Methodist churches in the city have new preachers but ours; hence, my folks call me their new preacher, and from the way the work brightens, it seems that I am.

The Sabbath school and Epworth League have put on new life, the attendance of both being better than ever; also the public services are better attended than ever before.

Pursuant to a call, the ministers of the Methodist churches met at the parsonage and organized a Ministers' Union, which will meet each week. The brethren seem well pleased with their new fields.

Now, brethren of the West Texas Conference, Dr. Hammond told me at Columbus that we could have a column every two weeks if we needed it for our Church and other items of interest (news). And in view of the fact that the average member of our churches in this conference would appreciate hearing about the work in their immediate conference, and hence thereby increasing the circulation of our Church organ — the SOUTHWESTERN — I wish to inform the pastors that if they will take the trouble of sending me by postal each week the condensed news of their several charges, I will rewrite them each week and send them in for publication. Please allow me to say further, that if you will do this, the circulation of the paper will be doubled in this conference in ninety days if each preacher will do his duty.

I am sure you saw that according to what was stated in the last issue of the SOUTHWESTERN—the Christian Advocate had 50,000 subscribers; the Western, 31,000, and the other Church papers having not less than 10,000; but ours only 5,000. I, for one, believe we can have the 10,000 for our paper by April first. Let every preacher do his best, and we will have them.

I have said enough, but I must speak of the great storm that passed through Dallas last week and terminated at the parsonage. When the storm had ceased we found that our table was laden with all sorts of eatables. Of course we invited them to call again. D. C. LACY.

The Washington Conference Epworth League.

On the 16th of January a very interesting mass meeting of the Washington District Epworth League was held at Ebenezer M. E. Church. Rev. William Bell presided, with Miss Estella Coats as secretary. The roll call of the district officers was first in order, and then reports from the various chapters by the presidents of each—Brothers J. T. Beason, president of Mt. Zion; G. W. Halter, of Asbury; Rev. William Bell, of Ebenezer, etc.

The manifest interest of the league work in all chapters shows an increase since our last monthly meeting.

Reports were also received from some of the rural districts, supplemented by remarks by Presiding Elder W. H. Brooks, who had recently returned from the country districts. What peculiar names of some of the places as they were mentioned! but some of the best people in all the world live in and around those towns with Indian names.

The district secretary was instructed to open correspondence with the various chapters in the back regions of the district, in order that they may be brought into closer touch with the district league.

After the business part of the meeting was disposed of, the program as previously arranged, was taken up. The first to appear was Miss Jennie Thompson, of Asbury, with a paper entitled "An appeal to young men and women," which was followed by others. Her paper certainly impressed the audience with the fact that she had given careful thought in its preparation, as it contained a strong appeal for the salvation of the youth of our city and country. A vote of thanks was tendered her. Presiding Elder Brooks was requested to conduct the devotional part of the service, in which a large number gave strong, intelligent testimonies for Christ.

At the close, Brother Julius J. Chilcoat came forward and spoke of the importance of every Epworthian taking the SOUTHWESTERN, and when he called for the hands of all who now subscribe, the number was not as large as we wished. Presiding Elder Brooks also urged the people to rally round this great organ, which, week after week, so earnestly labors to place us correctly before the world, and oft times she comes to us almost dripping in blood, for her quarters are near the scene of battle. May she ever maintain her well-earned place among the best journals of the land and never consent to sink beneath the turbulent waves of the journalistic sea, but steer on to victory and achievement.

The next mass meeting will be held at Mount Zion M. E. Church, Georgetown, on February 20 next.

Benediction by Dr. D. W. Hays, of Asbury, closed one of the best Epworth League conventions ever yet held in our district. JULIUS.

LESSON HYMN. C. M.

The choosen three, on mountain height,
While Jesus bowed in prayer,
Beheld his vesture glow with light,
His face shine wondrous fair.

And lo! with the transfigured Lord,
Leader and seer they saw;
With Carmel's hoary prophet stood
The giver of the law.

Lord, lead us to the mountain height:
To prayer's transfiguring glow:
And clothe us with the Spirit's might
For grander work below.

The Transfiguration.

Luke 9. 28-36.

Rev. G. N. Jolly, Kentucky Conference.

[Written for the SOUTHWESTERN.]

GOLDEN TEXT.—"This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him. (Matt. 17. 5.)

There is no recorded event in our Savior's life between this and our last lesson. It is likely He passed the week in the neighborhood of Cesarea Phillippi.

1. The time. About an eight days after." Matthew and Mark say "after six days." All of them date from the discourse of the Great Confession.

2. The witnesses—"Peter, John and James." From the multitude Jesus selected seventy and sent them forth to preach His gospel; from the seventy He chose twelve and ordained them apostles; from the twelve He took three to be with Him when He raised to life the daughter of Jairus, when He was transfigured, and during His agony in the garden; and among the three there was one Jesus loved above the rest. These were to be pillars in the church; therefore, they should be with Him when there were mighty manifestations of His divine nature, that their faith might be made strong. This matter must be kept secret for a season. Three could keep it better than twelve. Yet there must be witnesses enough to remove doubt when it is published. Two were sufficient, but He chose three, that every word might be established.

3. The place—"An high mountain apart." This was likely Mount Hermon. It was apart. We should occasionally come aside from the crowded thoroughfares of life, enter into a solitary place, and hold communion with God.

4. The stated object of this visit was "to pray," that the disciples might see His glory and thus have their faith strengthened. This prayer was likely for Himself, the disciples, the Jews, and the world. Our prayers should embrace adoration, confession, intercession, supplication and thanksgiving. We should pray in secret, in the family and in the great congregation.

5. The transfiguration. To transfigure is to change. Jesus was not changed in substance, but in appearance. This change was seen in His face, which "did shine as the sun," and in His raiment, which "was white as the light." There is nothing passingly strange in this. "God is light, and in Him is no darkness at all." (1 John 1. 5.) "God dwells in light." (1 Tim. 6. 16.) Deity is over robbed in the brightness of His glory. The true nature of Jesus is light. (John 1. 9.) When Jesus shall come again He will be in His glorified state, and "we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is." (1 John 3. 2.)

6. The visitors. The persons were Moses and Elijah—the writer of the law and the leader of the prophets. One had "died, "according to the word of the Law," (Dent. 34. 5) about fourteen centuries before this, and the other had been taken up to heaven in a chariot of fire about nine hundred years previous to this event. (2 Kings 2. 11.) But now they reappear and talk with Jesus. Does not this teach immortality, heavenly knowledge of earthly things, and future recognition? The place where Jesus received them was "in glory." May we not dwell in heaven while we live on earth? Jesus did. (John 3. 13.) The object of this visit was to talk about the "decease which He would accomplish at Jerusalem." The word decease means passing out of. It is here applied to our Savior's death. It teaches that death is not annihilation, but is only passing out of one state into another The soul dwells in it. Death is the agent that unlocks the doors and sends the soul out into another state of existence.

7. The apostles. They were heavy with sleep. They were sleepy. I infer from this that the transfiguration took place in the night. Jesus was likely in communion with God. They were worn out with the labors of the day. They did not know what was before them. They were soon wrapped in slumber. But what a surprise awaited these apostles when the light caused them to awake. A bright light about them, the Master shrouded in glory, and saints from heaven talking with Him. So the sinner, when he is awakened out of the sleep of sin, may see the glory of God. And the saint closing his eyes in sleep of death, may open them on the splendors of God in heaven. They heard these saints talk with Jesus. They were unspeakably happy. As they departed, Peter cried out, "Master, it is good for us to be here. Let us make three tabernacles—one for Thee, one for Moses, and one for Elias." It is no wonder Peter wished to abide there. The company of saints is glorious. Thank the Lord, "The tabernacle of God is with men" (Rev. 21:3) and He lives with him.

8. The Father, Jehovah, appeared to them in a cloud. So He came to the children of Israel in the wilderness, in the tabernacle, and in the temple. The cloud overshadowed them. "They feared as they entered into the cloud." They fell with their faces to the ground. A death-like stillness reigned. The Father spoke: "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. Hear ye Him."

PAINT cracks.—It often costs more to prepare a house for repainting that has been painted in the first place with cheap ready-mixed paints, than it would to have painted it twice with strictly pure white lead, ground in pure linseed oil, forms a permanent base for repainting and never has to be burned or scraped off on account of scaling or cracking. It is always smooth and clean. To be sure of getting strictly pure white lead, purchase any of the following brands:

Strictly Pure White Lead

"Southern," "Red Seal," "Collier."

FOR COLORS.—National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, a one-pound can to a 25-pound keg of Lead, and mix your own paints. Saves time and annoyance in matching shades, and insures the best paint that it is possible to put on wood.

Mississippi Conference.

The Mississippi Conference, which closed its session at Handsboro, Miss., on the 21st, made a most excellent impression. It was pronounced one of the best sessions ever held by this body.

Bishop Thomas Bowman, D. D., LL. D., senior bishop, presided.

Rev. A. D. Payne, with J. C. Hibbler and H. L. Kennedy assistants, were at the secretary's table.

Presiding Elders Pratt, Shumpert, Cowan and Houston presented able reports.

The anniversaries were held with able and instructive addresses by Dr. J. W. Hamilton, of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society, and W. A. Spencer, of the Board of Church Extension.

Other distinguished members also made addresses.

There are many promising young men in this conference who are destined to play a conspicuous part in the uplifting of the race.

Conference took a high stand in favor of the higher education of its ministry.

The SOUTHWESTERN was unanimously endorsed and strong resolutions passed.

The closing scenes were very affecting. Marching orders were given by the good bishop and loyally received by the good men who go forth to do another year's work for God and humanity.

The conference has been a pleasant and profitable one. At least 500 persons were present as delegates or visitors, and the meeting house could not hold the crowds. The colored people provided homes and board for this large crowd free.

Rev. A. M. Trotter is advocating and pushing a plan for a teachers' institute, to be held in his district, which is to be modeled after the system of institutes for the State public schools.

The bishop delivered a lecture to the preachers relative to their labors for the coming year.

Mississippi Conference and the "Southwestern."

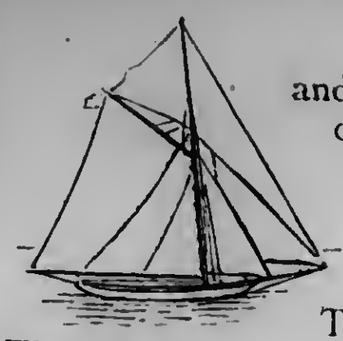
Resolution Adopted.

WHEREAS, the General Conference has established the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE as the Official Organ of the M. E. Church in the Southwest; and, whereas, it is a great lever in the education and elevation of our people, and a great assistant to the pastors; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the Mississippi Annual Conference, do hereby pledge ourselves to do our utmost to secure at least one cash subscriber from each family belonging to our Church within our charge.

Resolved, further, That we have confidence in Dr. Hammond as editor, and that we assure him our hearty support in his earnest efforts to increase the circulation of the paper to reach the 10,000.

Signed: A. B. Logan, R. N. Jones, N. Cannon, C. H. Brown and I. C. Rucker, committee.



Our Houston, Tex., Letter.

The address on the Holyland by Mrs. Col. Springer, of Iowa, Jan. 14, in Trinity M. E. Church, Houston, Tex., was a rare treat to all present. So graphic were the descriptions that we seemed to be walking by the Sea of Galilee, sitting down with the multitude on Mt. Hattin, bathing in the River Jordan, resting at Jacob's well, or weeping with the Jews at the "Wailing place."

Aside from the thrilling subject matter given, the delivery without manuscript in the most charming manner was a delight and instruction to her most appreciative audience. Mrs Springer is in the State by request of the Texas Conference in the interest of the M. E. W. H. M. S., and is giving invaluable aid "without money or price," but is winning hosts of friends wherever she goes, and is organizing societies of earnest workers for God and humanity. The music, under the direction of Mrs. N. F. Jones, was exceedingly beautiful and appropriate and both of them for pleasure,—with the chances for safety in favor of the washboard. In fact, there isn't much chance for safety until it's gone. If you want to keep your clothes, if you don't want them rubbed to pieces—throw it away. Then use Pearline.

That washes clothes without harming them. The washboard wears them out while it's getting them clean. It's rub, rub, rub, and wear, wear, wear, without Pearline. It's work, work, work, too. Pearline takes away the rubbing and takes away the work. There's no use for either, because, easily, quickly, safely, and cheaply, Pearline takes away the dirt.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled. If your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 380 JAMES PYLE, New York.

Starkville District—

Dear Brethren—The Lord has blessed the Starkville District. If we do our part he will continue his blessings. Get the SOUTHWESTERN into the hands of every family on your charge; it will help in your work. Why, don't you know that the SOUTHWESTERN is a pre cher in itself! Take your benevolence. Send Dr. Libby the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education money as fast as you collect it, for he needs the money to carry on the work. He will send you a receipt for the amount you send. Yours in the work,

P. O. JAMISON, P. E.

Meridian District—

Dear Brethren—Begin at once to visit from house to house for the SOUTHWESTERN. You promised the annual conference to get at least one subscriber from each home. Now is the time to plan for and raise your benevolent collections. Pastors who attend to these first always succeed. A. M. TROTTER, P. E.

Huntsville District—

Dear Brethren—In view of the destitute condition of the widow and family of Rev. H. W. Booker, lately deceased, you will be doing God service by taking a collection in all your appointments in their behalf. Forward to me or to Sister Booker direct. Yours in the gospel,

A. C. CULBREATH, P. E.

Navasota District—

Dear Brethren—Let me remind you of our Easter programs. Send for them in time. Let us make the best possible use of the time given us. We cannot afford to let the interest of the church fall, so let us do our best on all lines. Yours for success, W. L. DUNCAN, P. E.

Tennessee River District—

Let all the leaders be ready with written reports. No leader is worthy of the office who does not take our Church paper (if he can) and meet the quarterly. Brethren, please be ready and report all benevolent money collected to the quarterly conference. Let us do our best for our paper—the SOUTHWESTERN.

IN MEMORIAM.

Rev. Reese Thompson.

Died in New Orleans, January 20, 1895, at 1:30 a. m.

Departed! O, sad hearts,
From trials, sickness, pain;
Departed into realms of light,
With Jesus to reign.
We watched with care each passing breath,
In the silence of the night;
We saw the change, the "beauteous change,"
As Heaven in sight,
Fewer, shorter grew his breaths;
Steadfast, steadfast became his gaze,
Resting on His winged messengers,
Faintly hearing "Song of Praise."
Home was his earthly paradise—
Those loved ones and friends so dear;
True as steel to flint was he—
A model life of Christian purity.
A something entered our being,
And thrilled our souls with mystery;
Without a murmur, without a quiver,
His spirit fled from life's sad history.

A loving, faithful husband; a true, devoted father; a staunch, unflinching friend; a Christian gentleman; exact in all his dealings; a loving, sympathetic character; the "Son of Consolation," engendered by a deep insight into the holy mysteries of God's Word—I mourn his loss and await the glorious meeting just beyond.

BY ONE WHO LOVED HIM.

A Bright Star.

A SKETCH OF THE MAN WHO LED MARY ANDERSON TO FAME.

Played leading roles with Booth, Barrett and Thorn—Now the proprietor of Two Theatres and a leader in many theatrical ventures.

(From the St. Louis Chronicle.)

One of the most conspicuous figures in the Stageland of America to-day is John W. Norton. Born in the seventh ward of New York City forty-six years ago, the friends of his youth were Thomas W. Keene and Frank Chanfrau. Frank or Shanty, as he was known, was ten years the senior of Norton and Keene. This trio of Gotham boys destined to cut so prominent a figure in theatredom were born within a block of each other.

We find Keene a star at the age of twenty five and Norton in the flower of early manhood, the leading man for Edwin Booth at the famous Winter Garden Theatre.

He was starred with Lawrence Barrett early in the 70s, and alternated the leading roles with Charles Thorn at the Variety Theatre in New Orleans. Early in the Centennial year, in Louisville, Norton met our Mary Anderson, then a fair young girl who aspired for stage fame. So well did she plead her cause that Norton took her under his guidance, and as everybody knows led her to fame.

Salina Fetter, Walter Matthews and Virginia Dreher, formerly of Augustin Daly's Stock Company are also the pupils of this gifted player. Mr. Norton is now the proprietor of the Grand Opera House in St. Louis, the Du Queuse Theatre, Pittsburg, and one of the stockholders in the American Extravaganza Company.

During the past eight years Mr. Norton has been afflicted with periodical attacks of rheumatism, which unfitted him for his many duties. He consulted the most famous physicians in New York, Boston and Philadelphia without obtaining relief. He was pale, emaciated and sick almost unto death.

One afternoon early in June he hobbled into his New York Office on Broadway and encountered his business manager, George McManus, who had also been a rheumatic sufferer for two years. Norton was surprised that McManus was as straight and erect as a branch of brier and had discarded his cane. Who cured you? he asked. "I cured myself," replied McManus, "with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

"I was encouraged by Mr. McManus' cure, and as a last resort tried the Pink Pills myself," said Mr. Norton to a Chronicle reporter. "You have known me for five years, and know how I have suffered. Why, during the summer of 1893 I was on my back at the Mullanphy Hospital, in this city, four weeks. I was put on the old system of dieting, with a view to clearing those acidulous properties in my blood that medical theorists say is the cause of my rheumatism. I left the Hospital feeling stronger, but the first damp weather brought with it those excruciating pains in the legs and back. It was the same old trouble. After sitting down for a stretch of five minutes, the pains screwed my legs into a knot when I arose, and I hobbled as painfully as ever. After I had taken my first box of Pink Pills, it struck me that the pains were less troublesome. I tried another box, and I began almost unconsciously to have faith in the Pink Pills. I improved so rapidly that I could rise after sitting at my desk for an hour, and the twinges of rheumatism that accompanied my rising were so mild that I scarcely noticed them. I adhered to the Pink Pills, but I dreaded the damp weather, as I thought it would bring back the awful disease in its usual vile form.

"During the past two weeks we have had some downpours of rain in St. Louis. But the dampness which had coached my rheumatism for so many years had no influence. This I consider a sufficient and reliable test of the efficacy of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The most remarkable feature of my cure is this: while I was taking the Pink Pills I did not confine myself to any fixed diet, but ate and drank moderately. I may also say that the Pink Pills have acted as a tonic on my stomach, which I thought was well nigh destroyed by the thousand and one alleged remedies I consumed in the past five years."

These Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and are never sold in bulk, or by the dozen or hundred. They may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

IN HIS NAME.

Come Holy Ghost! blest comforter divine!
We wait on theo! through all this darkness shine,
On our poor hearts; dear Savior, Lord and Friend.
Grant now the gift of power! thy message send!
With holy unotion, may thy watchmen crowned,
Go forth; till love shall in all hearts abound.

DR. J. W. HAMILTON, at the quarterly meeting of the board of managers, turned over to the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society the school property at Norristown, Tenn., worth $13,000, which he bought on his own account for $4,000 collected in special gifts.

BROTHER, let us have a revival of the old-fnt wholesome practice of fasting, or abstinence and prayer. It will be found a most excellent panacea for many of the evils which beset us. Besides, there is a certain kind of evil spirit which "goeth not out except by fasting and prayer."

JUST now Methodist people are passing congratulations that in a little more than a century their great organization has taken the lead among all other Protestant denominations. It is not a boast, but a thorough old-time Methodist shout of victory from the "amen corner" to the doors. To be a good Methodist means to be a good Christian.

PENTECOSTAL blessings are possible only to those who are entirely consecrated. The disciples were of one accord; were waiting, watching, praying for the power from on high. They expected the comforter to lead them into all truth; to give the spirit of wisdom and of courage, the tongue of fire and the heart of flame. Nor did they wait in vain. It came with overwhelming power, and thousands of perishing sinners were saved. Fellow ministers, behold your opportunity!

THAT Methodism has "won its membership not from other churches, but from the unconcerned and unconverted," is the best possible evidence that it has strictly adhered to the "old landmarks." Let her ministry of to day, as in the past, preach a whole gospel; let her pulpits give no uncertain sound on the great doctrines of repentance, justification by faith, adoption, growth in grace, and sanctification, and this great aggregation, which has been christened "Christianity in earnest," will give a new inspiration to all Protestant Christendom in conquering this world for Christ.

THE Polyglot petition, signed by about fifty nationalities and in forty different languages, including with names and attestations not fewer than four million adherents, is to be presented by the officers of the World's W. C. T. U. and other leading women Feb. 15. Among the speakers will be Lady Henry Somerset, Miss Willard, Mrs. Stevens, of Maine; Mrs. Stevenson, Mrs. Barker, Mrs. Fessendon, Mrs. Hoffman and Miss Belle Kearney, of Mississippi. The petition will be presented to representatives of the United States Government. It is also proposed to present the petition to the British Government. The petition calls for the separation of all governments from the protection of the alcohol trade, the opium trade and the legalising of social vice.

THE COMING EXPOSITION.

There is hardly a doubt that the colored people of the South will be able to make an excellent showing at Atlanta, Ga., during the Cotton States and International Exposition, which is to be held Sept. 18 to Dec. 31, 1895. Our people have been granted very liberal privileges, and they should not hesitate to avail themselves of them. The colored men appointed commissioners, as a rule, are among our representative citizens, and they ought to, and we believe they will, command the respect of all their fellow men. We are especially glad to notice the appointment of Prof. I. Garland Penn, of Virginia, as the chief of the Negro exhibit. It was a capital selection, and we bespeak for him the heartiest co operation of his race everywhere Some objection is made on account of the great inconveniences to our people incident to the odious and unjust discrimination which is practiced against them in several of our Southern States. We regret that this is true. At the same time, we believe that if our people will co operate with the commissioners in making such exhibits of their skill and progress, as is possible for them to do, it will do more to melt away the existing prejudice, and break down the odious discrimination, than anything that has ever happened. The Rubicon has been crossed. Let our people in the great South stand by these men and make the Negro exhibition a grand and a glorious success. At a recent meeting of the chief commissioners for the colored exhibit, held at Atlanta, Ga., the following were present: Booker T. Washington, Tuskegee, Ala.; W. O. Emory, Little Rock, Ark.; M. W. Lewey, Pensacola, Fla.; W. H. Crogman, Atlanta; J. W. Whittaker, New Orleans, La.; Isaiah T. Montgomery, Mound Bayou, La.; W. C. Colemau, Concord, N. C.; Rev. J. B. Middleton, Camden, S. C.; G. V. Clark, Memphis. Tenn; N. W. Cuney, Galveston, Tex.; I. Garland Penn, Lynchburg, Va. All the States represented have full committees appointed of the best representative men, who now have an opportunity of demonstrating the capabilities and possibilities of the race as perhaps at no other time in its history. The names of these commissioners are a guarantee of success, and should have the united co-operation of the whole people.

MORE APPRECIATIVE WORDS.

"With the issue of Jan. 10, the SOUTHWESTERN changes to the form now almost universal with religious journals in this country. It has somewhat less space than before the change, but is as full of energy and as thoroughly devoted to the interests of its wide field as ever. Dr. E. W. S. Hammond is a wide-awake editor."—California Christian Advocate.

"The SOUTHWESTERN is decidedly improved in mechanical make-up. That excellent paper deserves a more generous patronage—5,000 new subscribers at least"—Epworth Herald.

"O wad som power the giftie gie us,
To see oursel's as others see us."

Our esteemed confreres and personal friends, Drs. Crary and Berry, representing our glorious and progressive Methodism on the Pacific coast, as well as at the center of our great American population, know how to say good things. Commendatory words from such distinguished journalists is a benediction.

"The SOUTHWESTERN comes to us greatly improved in appearance. Any of our subscribers wishing a weekly Church paper could not do better than subscribe. The material is fresh and interesting, and Dr. Hammond is proving himself a model editor."—New Orleans University Crescent.

Our brilliant contemporary places us under renewed obligations for its kindly words.

THE SUPPRESSION OF COLORED SCHOOLS IN THE SOUTH.

We are not of the opinion entertained by our esteemed contemporary, the New Orleans Monitor, that the Negro in the South will be deprived of his right to acquire an education by the passage of additional discriminating laws by the miserable excuses of so called State legislatures. Mark you, Brother Monitor, the better class of white people North and South will in the future, as in the past, contribute liberally of their means toward the moral, social, intellectual and industrial advancement of the Negro. The infamous "Mississippi plan," like other disreputable relics of ante bellum times, will be wiped out. The old fossils who always did, always will oppose the uplifting of the Negro, may succeed in poisoning the minds of the newer generations with the prejudices which once made them great; but as sure as heaven there is a mighty revolution abroad. The people who fought, and bled, and made sacrifices to blot out the foul curse of slavery are not all dead; nor will their children forget their duty to the people who thirty years ago were brought out from under the most appalling system of bondage in all the world's history. Poor, ignorant, despised, with almost every virtue crushed out of them, they have in a short thirty years demonstrated their capacity to make as good citizens, and more loyal at least, than many of their former masters. The proposition to continue the colored public schools of the South only with that part of the school tax paid by Negroes is a monstrous absurdity. It is the refinement of cruelty. It is a terrible affliction to the New South, that there are some editors, and a few of the "unterrified," who are determined not only to retard its progress, but to make this otherwise beautiful and historic Southland a stench in the nostrils of all liberty-loving people.

THE NEW BUILDING AT ROME, ITALY.

The following letter has been received at the Mission Rooms:

"NEW YORK, Jan 29, 1895.—Dear Chaplain McCabe: Your appeal for the new building in Rome ought to have a cordial instant response. Has our Church ever attempted a more important enterprise? In addition to the $500 previously given, I enclose my check for $2,000. I give this with the hope that others will quickly do the like. Let the good work go forward. I understand you have assumed the responsibility of raising the balance of the money necessary to complete this building; it ought never to have a mortgage on it. May the Lord move the hearts of the people to come to your help. Very sincerely yours, ————————."

For the present we must withhold the name of the lady who writes this letter. We print it in full, hoping that many others will second her suggestion: "Let no mortgage be placed upon that building."

No man is more ready to shoulder and to meet great responsibilities than our own Chaplain McCabe. His heart is big enough to take in all humanity. To this great enterprise he has devoted his best energies. We should have a great building in the "Eternal City." We will have it. Chaplain McCabe, with hundreds of others, are interested; and so the songs of our glorious Methodism will be sung under the very shadows of the Vatican. The letter of the good lady, with her generous donation, is an inspiration. Let the funds be [illegible]
Let no mortgage be [illegible]
Help at once and [illegible].

The Influence of the Home in the Uplifting of our People.

SIXTH LETTER—BY T. E. W.

Extravagance in Food.

Their name is legion who think the art of housekeeping depends solely upon the superabundance of every thing, in the line of food. But my dear readers, this is a great mistake. We find this especially so among those who can least afford it. Live within your means. Some are not satisfied unless they can buy the finest meats in market. In the first place, this shows the deficiency in the art of cooking, for an experienced cook will buy a splendid article, but cheap, and when prepared you would think it cost twice as much. The inexperienced cook buys the finely flavored meats because she does not know how to flavor them properly. Here I am reminded of the excessive quantities of food. This is the other mistake we make. Study the amount eaten daily, and thus you will be able to make a proper calculation. For when there is plenty of food no one is hungry. Again, there are some who are totally indifferent about what they eat during the week provided they can have a big dinner on Sunday which often degenerates into a feast of gourmandizing, rendering them unfit for anything but stupidity and sleep. Many a preacher knows, from sad experience, what it is to preach to this class of people. Sunday dinners should consist of the simplest selection of viands prepared the day previous so that all concerned may rightfully and righteously enjoy the Sabbath day. When we are all able to see these things in the same light, home will be as pictured by Paine—

'Mid pleasures and palaces tho' we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place h' e home.

Miss Hattie Merritt, who has been employed as directory clerk in the postoffice of Jersey City, N. J., for three years, has resigned her position. Miss Merritt is a graduate from the high school of Jersey City, and is the only colored woman ever appointed to an official post in that city.

How the Orange Blossom Came

Like all familiar customs whose origin is lost in antiquity, the wearing of orange blossoms at a wedding is accounted for in various ways. Among other stories is the following pretty legend from Spain:

An African prince presented a Spanish king with a magnificent orange tree, whose creamy, waxy blossoms and wonderful fragrance excited the admiration of the whole court. Many begged in vain for a branch of the plant, but a foreign ambassador was tormented by the desire to introduce so great a curiosity to his native land. He used every possible means, fair or foul, to accomplish his purpose, but all efforts coming to naught, he gave up in despair. The fair daughter of the court gardener was loved by a young artisan, but lacked the dot which the family considered necessary in a bride. One day, chancing to break off a spray of orange blossoms, the gardener thoughtlessly gave it to his daughter.

Seeing the coveted prize in the girl's hair, the wily ambassador promptly offered her a sum sufficient for the desired dowry, provided she gave him the branch and said nothing about it. Her marriage was soon celebrated, and on the way to the altar, in grateful remembrance of the source of all her happiness, she secretly broke off another piece of the lucky tree to adorn her hair. Whether the poor gardener lost his head in consequence of the daughter's treachery the legend does not state, but many lands now know the wonderful tree, and ever since that wedding day orange blossoms have been considered a fitting adornment for a bride.—Ex.

The only time a man of experience takes his wife into his confidence is to tell her he is not making any money.—Atchison Globe.

Rules for Letter Writing.

Have you any unkind thoughts?
  Do not write them down.
Write no word that giveth pain:
Written words may long remain.
Have you heard some idle tale?
  Do not write it down.
Gossips may repeat it o'er,
Adding to its bitter store.
Have you any careless jest?
Bury it, and let it rest;
It may wound some loving breast.
Words of love and tenderness,
Words of truth and kindliness,
Words of comfort for the sad,
Words of gladness for the glad,
Words of counsel for the bad—
  Wisely write them down.
Words, though small, are mighty things,
  Pause before you write them;
Little words may grow and bloom
With bitter breath or sweet perfume.
  Pray before you write them.

—Pansy.

RACE SAYINGS AND DOINGS.

Rev. O. Summers, a colored man, has been elected chaplain of the Assembly of the California Legislature.

The Christian Recorder says: "If some of our "D. Ds." and other high-titled contributors do not take more pains with the articles they send for publication, the Recorder will be induced to give the public a sample of their ability and merit by publishing their articles just as they are sent. We don't mind, once in awhile, straightening out the crippled grammar, crooked spelling and punctuating points of those who pretend to know but little, but all "professors" "doctors" and young men must take heed to those points themselves."

Chaplain H. V Plummer, colored, attached to the Ninth Cavalry, at Fort Robinson, Neb., was recently tried by court martial, convicted of drunkenness on duty and sentenced to dismissal. The proceedings have been before the President for several weeks, and counsel for the colored man have made strong efforts in the War Department and with the President to secure an abatement of the severity of the sentence, but the papers were finally returned to the War Department with the President's indorsement, approving the sentence and ordering its execution.

The Asbury Mite Book.

Bishop Asbury, during the closing years of his life, carried with him a little pocket "Mite Book." This he produced in every home he visited and solicited a subscription in aid of his needy brethren, as a part of the family worship. No one was allowed to contribute over one dollar. When the bishop was dying, a service of prayer was held around his half-unconscious form. During a lull in the devotions, the dying bishop lifted his head and faintly asked: "Has the Mite Book been passed?" The original Mite Book is in the Drew Theological Library. A new edition of the Asbury Mite Book has been prepared in the interest of the Chartered Fund. It contains the original form of subscription devised by Bishop Asbury in 1815; the appeal of the Trustees of the Chartered Fund for ten cent subscriptions issued in 1824; a description of the Chartered Fund, its object and method of distribution; quotations from the letters of the bishops in behalf of the Fund; three pages of blank subscription lists; a statement of the purpose of the book by the corresponding secretary. The engraved title-page has the portrait and autograph of Bishop Asbury as its center-piece. A copy will be sent to any address upon receipt of a two-cent stamp. Address the corresponding secretary, Rev. Jay Benson Hamilton, Hackettstown, N. J.

Personal Liberty.

By Miss LENNIE B. COX, Dublin, Va.

The word slavery brings a thrill of horror, a feeling of servitude when we think of losing our freedom and our liberty. We shudder to-day when our minds are carried backward about thirty years ago, when the iron chain of slavery could be felt through all this Southland. When we beheld this land beautified with all the loveliness that nature could afford, with all its natural resources for wealth—the beautiful mountain sceneries, the brooks and rivulets, the sweet scented flowers with all their fragrance, and even the cattle upon thousands of hills could show forth their praise and adoration to the great Giver in their own natural way—turn aside, friends, and behold that dark-faced race, the Negro, and pity, ah, pity, their sad condition. Think of the freedom attributed to all God's creation except this benighted race. Imagine their feelings when they could see everything around them showing forth its praise to the great God for its existence. But the poor Negro was not allowed to serve Him who made him in the image of the Father. He had nothing he could call his own—not even the body which enveloped the soul which shall never die. Think of their toil under hard task masters; think, for the slightest offense, they were called to test, and the most cruel and brutish punishment was inflicted upon them.

But to-day, the bands of that wretched thraldom have been burst asunder and that benighted race, through God's wise providence, has been emancipated. When we look around and see the thousands of graves of the soldiers who fought in the Civil War, we have thought of the war as being over; we have thought of the emancipation as being accomplished, and yet to-day the struggle against ignorance, intemperace and sin in all its varied forms is still going on and the emancipation has not yet been wrought out—the emancipation from ignorance, from superstition, from intemperance, from indolence, from dishonesty and from all sin. It is this warfare against us to-day for which we hear the call just as real as was that to the Apostles on the shore of the Mediterranean. It is a Macedonian cry, "Come over and help us." Our appeal to day is against slavery; and what is it to-day that keeps thousands in bondage and in poverty? Intemperance. The brewer, the distiller, the saloon-keeper and the tobacco-seller are the slaveholders in this warfare. They are the opposite side to keep us from retaining our personal liberties.

The Hon. Mr. Gladstone truly declared in regard to intoxicating drink: "It is more than war, pestilence and famine combined." Look at the sad and fearful effects which have resulted all around us from the use of poison—drunkenness, crime, insanity, diseases of the brain, lungs, heart, stomach and kindred evils.

In the New York State prison in Auburn, out of 600 prisoners confined there for crimes committed while under the influence of strong drink, 500 of them testified that they began their intemperance by the use of tobacco. More than twelve hundred million dollars are paid for the above poison in our country annually, mostly by the laboring population. No wonder the saloonists get rich as nabobs while their patrons are kept poor.

Let us awake to the necessity of temperance; let us advocate this great cause by every example, by acting this great virtue. I appeal to my brothers and sisters of the Epworth League; to our presiding elders, pastors in charge and to each and all, to see to it that the slavery of intemperance be abolished. Let us bind ourselves together in one united and solid phalanx to tread down intemperance and to build up our young girls and boys. Let us send up our prayers in this behalf to Him who has promised to deliver His people.

Blood Poison

THE BANE OF HUMAN LIFE,

Driven Out of the System by the Use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For five years, I was a great sufferer from a most persistent blood disease, none of the various medicines I took being of any help whatever. Hoping that change of climate would benefit me, I went to Cuba, to Florida, and then to Saratoga Springs, where I remained some time drinking the waters. But all was no use. At last, being advised by several friends to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I began taking it, and very soon favorable results were manifest. To-day I consider myself a perfectly healthy man, with a good appetite and not the least trace of my former complaint. To all my friends, and especially young men like myself, I recommend Ayer's Sarsaparilla, if in need of a perfectly reliable blood-purifier." — JOSE A. ESCOBAR, proprietor Hotel Victoria, Key West, Fla.; residence, 352 W. 16th St., New York.

WITHOUT GOD IN THE WORLD.

God is in this and every place;
But O, how dark and void
To me!—'tis one great wilderness,
This earth without my God.

Empty of him who all things fills,
Till he his light impart,
Till he his glorious self reveals,
The veil is on my heart.

O Thou who seest and know'st my grief,
Thyself unseen, unknown,
Pity my helpless unbelief,
And break my heart of stone.

Regard me with a gracious eye;
The long-sought blessing give;
And bid me, at the point to die,
Behold thy face and live.

—Charles Wesley.

DAILY THOUGHTS.

[From Phillips Brooks.]

FEBRUARY 7.—But what, then, is the Christian religion? It is the simple following of the divine person, Jesus Christ, who, entering into our humanity, has made evident two things—the love of God for that humanity, and the power of that humanity to answer to the love of God. The one thing that the eye of the Christian sees and never can lose is that majestic, simple figure, great in its simplicity, in its innocence, in its purity and in its unworldliness, that walked once on this earth and that walks forever through the lives of men, showing Himself to human kind, manifest in human kind. The power to receive it, the divine life wakened in every child of man by the divine life manifested in Jesus Christ. That is the great Christian faith, and the man becomes a Christian in his belief when he assures himself that that manifestation of the divine life has been made and is perpetually being made, and he answers to that appeal of the Christ.

FEBRUARY 8.—This truth comes to us more and more the longer that we live, that on what field or in what uniform, or with what aims we do our duty, matters very little, or even what our duty is, great or small, splendid or obscure. Only to find our duty certainly and somewhere, somehow do it faithfully, makes us good, strong, happy, and useful men, and tunes our lives into some feeble echo of the life of God.

FEBRUARY 9.—Of the essential life of the Church, of the truly living Church, what can we say but this? That it is that which most completely feels that it was made for men, not men for it; which, therefore, lives only as it lives in them; which strives for nothing but to open more and more the channels of life from Christ to them?

FEBRUARY 10.—I say that only when a man puts himself where he can feel the power of Christ, where it is possible for him, if there be a Christ, if Christ be all that the Christian religion claims that He is, only when a man puts himself where he needs and must have and must certainly feel that Christ, if there be a Christ, only then has he a right to disbelieve if the Christ be not there, only then has he a right to believe if the Christ find him there. And where is that? When a man takes up the highest duties, when he accepts the noblest life, when he lays open his soul to the great exactions and obligations which belong to him in his spiritual nature, when he tries to be a pure man, a devoted man, a noble man, only then has he a chance to know that force which only then comes into its activity.

FEBRUARY 11.—Hear the words that Jesus said, words that our age must take to itself until it shall be wiser than it is to-day: "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." "If any man will do His will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God." Ponder those words, my friends. See how reasonable they are. See how important they are. See how they have the secret of your own life, of what it is to do, forever and ever sealed up in them. These two things, I am sure, are true with regard to the method of belief—that no man can ever go forward to a higher belief until he is true to the faith which he already holds. Be the noblest man that your present faith, poor and weak and imperfect as it is, can make you to be. Live up to your present growth, your present faith. So, and so only, as you take the next straight step forward, as you stand strong where you are now, so only can you think the curtain will draw back and there will be revealed to you what lies beyond.

Mississippi Conference.

The twenty-seventh session of the Mississippi Annual Conference met at Handsboro, Miss., January 16, with Bishop Thomas Bowman, D. D., presiding. The administration of the Lord's Supper by the bishop, assisted by Dr. W. A. Spencer and the presiding elders, brought a great spiritual feast with which to introduce the conference.

By request of the bishop, A. D. Payne, secretary of the last session, called the roll, and sixty-two members and probations answered the call.

A. D. Payne was elected secretary, with J. C. Hibbler and H. L. Kennedy assistants. R. P. Threlkeld was made statistical secretary and G. W. Smith, A. J. McNair and N. Toole were chosen to assist him. William McMorris was elected treasurer and L. J. S. Bell and H. R. S. Erby were elected to assist him.

The conference was favored by the presence of some of the general officers of the Church, in the personage of the distingnished Dr. J. W. Hamilton, secretary of the F. A. and S. E. Society, and the no less distinguished Dr. W. A. Spencer, of the Board of Church Extension, as well as our own beloved Dr. E. W. S. Hammond of the SOUTHWESTERN, and Dr. Carroll of the Cincinnati Book Concern, also, Mr. C. C. Morse, business manager of the SOUTHWESTERN.

Dr. J. W. Hamilton, by the force of his matchless logic and historic reasoning in his great speech in the anniversary of the Freedmen's Aid Society, captivated all hearts and left an impression that is indelible.

Dr. W. A. Spencer, though often heard before to the great satisfaction of all, was on this visit at his very best, and made such an address to the conference which, if possible, will place him deeper in our affections.

The editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, on a flying visit of a few hours, presented the claims of his paper in a speech of much power; the ultimate result of which will be a great increase of subscribers in the conference.

Reports of presiding elders and pastors were very gratifying, showing general prosperity on all lines, and notwithstanding the great financial pressure of the year, the benevolent collections were $200 in advance of last year.

The presidency of Bishop Bowman was easy, painstaking and fatherly. The hand of God was readily seen in all he did. Sunday at 11 o'clock, with one-third of his congregation out of doors for want of standing room in the church, the bishop, from the parable of the treasure hid in the field, preached a sermon of great spiritual depth.

Monday morning was the time of the greatest interest interest to the preachers. Therefore, all gathered early, and the unfinished business was soon dispatched. About 11 a. m., the bishop made an appropriate address and then read the appointments.

Thus ended one of the most pleasant and profitable sessions of the Mississippi Conference. A. D. PAYNE, Sec'y.

General Conference Expenses.

To the presiding elders and pastors of the Twelfth General Conference District—Central Missouri, Arkansas, Little Rock, Mississippi, Upper Mississippi, Tennessee, Central Alabama, Louisiana, Texas, West Texas, Austin:

Dear Brethren—The Book Committee makes it my duty to urge the importance of an early collection of the amount of General Conference expenses apportioned to your charges, etc.

The basis for apportionment is one-fourth of the amount apportioned for ministerial support, for example: Where the pastor's apportionment is $100, the General Conference apportionment should be $1. As you know, the the body of the General Conference is much larger than ever, hence expenses will be increased accordingly. The total expenses for the twelve districts in 1892: At Omaha, Neb., was $1695.95; collection from conferences, etc., was $453.25; the apportionment was $1045. If the district had collected the whole amount it would have been a deficiency of $650.95. The actual collection from the district was $453.25, hence a deficiency of $1,242.70.

Now, brethren, who should meet this great need if not its members? We have no other method than a general collection to meet this very great expense.

Now let me suggest that all those charges not having as yet raised the amount, make a special effort within the next quarter to raise any deficiency that may be found under the basis above given, and remit immediately to Messrs. Hunt & Eaton, New York.

I kindly ask correspondence with every presiding elder of the district within the conferences mentioned in this appeal.

Dear brethren, let me have a hearing at once, as I would like very much to report the same to the next meeting of the Book Committee. Remember, the time is short—February 13, at New York.

Address me, 2008 State Street, Little Rock, and oblige yours,

W. R. R. DUNCAN.

Wilberforce University—Special.

Among the registration of the week just closing, the name of Thomas Chalmers Katiya of the Tember Tribe, Africa, is entered; also a young Mexican from Monterey, Mexico, by the name of Aldrige Thompson. Pennsylvania joins Ohio in sending others.

The gift of a first boy to Prof. and Mrs. Hervey, and another to Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Bell, are events at Wilberforce.

The lecture of Madame F. Sheldon, F. R. G. S., the African explorer, Friday evening, was the great event of the week. Honored with a reception by the first ladies of Cleveland, Mrs. Sheldon came on a day earlier from Chicago to give the faculty and students of Wilberforce University a rich treat from her treasure of information through travel and research. She told of the greed of European nations for the territory and wealth of that vast continent. Spoke of African industry and the religion of commerce; of the courtesy and modesty that abounds in native beauty. In all her travel had never received an affront or an insult at the hands of an African. She showed the scars by which the brotherhood of blood was established, and exhibited curiosities and jewelry which proved the wonderful skill of native artisans. After the address a general reception was tendered her, and the eager questions of the five African students present made the occasion one of extraordinary interest. S. AND H.

MEETING OF CHAUTAUQUA TRUSTEES.

The twenty-third annual meeting of the trustees of the National Chautauqua Assembly was held at Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 23, with sixteen trustees present. President Lewis Miller, of Akron, Ohio, presided. Among those present were Bishop J. H. Vincent, chancellor; President W. R Harper, Chicago University; W. A. Duncan, Syracuse, N. Y., secretary. The following officers were elected: President, Lewis Miller, Akron, Ohio; first vice president, Clem Studebaker, South Bend, Ind.; second vice president. R. A. Miller, Canton, Ohio; third vice president, E. S. Dusenberry, Parksville, N. Y.; secretary and superintendent, William A. Duncan, Syracuse, N. Y.; secretary and treasurer, Ed. A. Skinner, Westfield, N. Y.; chancellor, Bishop J. H. Vincent, Topeka, Kan.; executive committee, J. C. Gifford, J. T. Edwards, William Thomas, W. H. Shott, R. A. Miller and F. W. Hyde.

Chicago was selected as the place for the next meeting, on the fourth Wednesday in January, 1896. The topic for study this year is, "American History in Various Phases." Among the lecturers selected are Messrs. John Fiske, Carroll D. Wright, Professor C. L. Gould, General J. B. Gordon, A. W. Lamar, F. G. Carpenter and President W. R. Harper, of Chicago University. Professor H. R. Palmer, of Chicago, will be musical director. Dr. W. S. Anderson, of Yale, will be director of athletic and physical culture.

Chautauqua is a household word among the American people. It stands for broad Christian culture, the diffusion of that class of Christian literature which is giving increased momentum to the manifold energies of American Protestantism, and for that Christian confraternity whose great influence is already recognized as an important factor in the diffusion of the Truth.

A GREAT BEREAVEMENT.

News comes to us that on Friday, Jan. 25, the Rev. Henry Liebhart, D. D., was thrown from a railway car and instantly killed. The place of the fatal accident was near Detroit, Michigan. We are pained beyond expression at the sad termination of the life of this eminent servant of the Church. How inscrutable are the ways of providence! Only a few days ago, in looking at his portrait, which occupies a place of honor in our home, we called the attention of a brother minister to the character of the man as expressed in the picture. The writer of these lines loved him, because of his sturdy manliness. He was genial, generous, cultured, courtly and courageous. He possessed a great, broad heart—as broad as humanity. We felt honored and exalted in possessing a share of his confidence and esteem. In him the colored man had a staunch uncompromising friend. His interest in the welfare of the race was not characterized by periodical and spasmodic outbursts; and, loving God the Father as he did, he could not do otherwise than love humanity. We pour out our tears with our German brethren in this great bereavement, while we tender to the bereaved family our most profound sympathy.

Dr. Liebhart was born Sept. 5, 1832, at Carlsruhe, Germany, and came to America in 1854, and was converted and joined the Church at Sangerties, N. Y., the same year. Serving faithfully as a local preacher for several years, he entered the New York Conference in 1858, and was eminently successful in his charges. From 1865 to 1872 he acted as assistant editor of the Christliche Apologete. In 1872 he was elected editor of the German Sunday School and Tract Department. He translated Stevens' History of Methodism, and the literature of German Methodism has been brought to its present high standard largely by his efforts. He was secretary of his conference, and has been elected four times as delegate to the General Conference and twice as reserve. In 1881 he served as a delegate to the Ecumenical Conference at London. He has made extensive missionary tours. In 1884 he was elected German assistant secretary of the Sunday School Union, and was appointed on the committee of revision of the German Hymn Book, acting as chairman. He was president of the Board of Trustees of German Wallace College, and has been fully identified with all movements of the evangelization of our German fellow-citizens. Truly, a great man has fallen, and the whole church sustains a great loss.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Mrs. Lizzie Bice, of Tazewell, Tenn, writes: "Our conference was a grand one. The church is prospering and the Sunday school is looking up."

—Bishop Thomas Bowman, D. D., LL. D., accompanied by Dr. L. G. Adkinson, president of New Orleans University, paid us a friendly visit last week.

—A little girl writes us from Pittsburg, Tex., but we cannot decipher the name. If she will write again and write plainly, we will try and publish her letter.

—Rev. J. D. Hammond, D. D., manager of the California Christian Advocate, San Francisco, Cal., and Justus Greely, Esq., of San Francisco, graced our humble sanctum last week, en route to New York.

—A wealthy gentleman of New York City offers to thoroughly equip and place at the disposal of Chaplain McCabe a building for worship, besides a guarantee of $5,000 per year as a salary. But we cannot spare the chaplain.

—Rev. F. Caruthers, of Fredericksburg, Tex., writes: "Our pastor, Rev. G. N. Townsend is on hand and doing noble work for the Master. We have already had seven conversions, and the whole circuit is ablaze with hallowed fire."

—Bishop Joyce opened the Mexico Conference on Wednesday of last week. On Monday the following telegram from Dr. Butler, of Mexico, was received at the missionary office: "Revival conference; Bishop Joyce happy; altar crowded with seekers."

—Rev. A. C. Nimrod, of Mt. Sterling Circuit, Choctaw county, Ala., writes: "Our church is spiritually alive. In our revival we were blessed with thirty-two accessions to the church. We are financially embarrassed, but we expect to anchor safely."

—We have been honored with an invitation to the 19th anniversary of the Meharry Medical College, the 9th anniversary of the dental, and the 6th anniversary of the pharmaceutical departments of Central Tennessee College, to be held Feb. 5, 1895.

—From Winchester, Ky., we have received the following cheering note from Rev. W. S. Rollins, pastor: "Clark Chapel is united and progressive on all lines. All departments are thoroughly organized. Presiding Elder Courtney is held in high esteem here."

—M. C. Weary, of Lower Little River, Miss., writes concerning Columbia Charge: "Under the leadership of our honored pastor, Rev. H. Roundtree, we have succeeded in completing the rough work of a fine new church building, which, when completed, will be worth about $500."

—Mrs. R. O. Speers, of McMinnville, Tenn., writes: "Our second quarterly conference was a grand affair. Rev. H. W. White, presiding elder, presided and preached during the meeting. We had a glorious time. The Holy Spirit was poured out upon all. The presiding elder lectured also during his visit. Rev. H. Prim, the pastor, is moving on nicely. Collection during the quarter, $70.85.

—Mrs. T. C. Jackson, Texarkana, Texas, writes: "The first quarterly conference of St. Paul M. E. Church was held Jan. 19 20, Rev. C. C. Minnegan presiding. Collection for the quarter, $38.25. Rev. W. H. Jackson, the pastor, is well liked and the congregation is greatly increased. Two joined the church. The new parsonage is nearly completed. The dear old SOUTHWESTERN is never forgotten by Rev. Jackson."

—The Cross Bearers' Missionary Reading Circle was established in 1890. It proposes a course of study including three years, and written examinations at the end of each year. It has gathered into its membership devout students and helpers in the cause of missions from many States and countries. Those who desire to become members of this society or to learn more fully its work, will address Rev. Marcus L. Gray, president C. M. R. C., St. Louis, Mo.

—W. H. Smith, of Ashboro, N. C, writes: "We have a good church at Randleman and a fine people. The most of them own their homes. At Ashboro we have a building that is worth $1,800, with a debt of $200. Redhouse is our next appointment. We have no church built there as yet, but we hold meetings in a school building. We have another appointment at Mitchell, seven miles east of Ashboro, where we have a good church. We have four good schools on the circuit."

—Rev. Marcus and Mrs F. J. McCoomer celebrated the 40th anniversary of their marriage on Jan. 3 last. The interesting event took place at their old home in Louisville, Ky. A large number of friends, with members of the family, were present, and very greatly enjoyed the pleasant occassion. Brother McCoomer is one of the pioneers of the Lexington Conference, and is reckoned yet among the strongest of its membership. Sister McCoomer has been a faithful helpmeet indeed; cheerfully sharing in the arduous labors of her husband, besides looking after the training of a family of ten children, all of whom except two remain to bless their parents in their declining years. The SOUTHWESTERN congratulates the happy pair on their successful passage of the 40th milestone of wedded life, and wishes them many more happy anniversaries.

GOOD WORDS.

Rev. W. H. Logan, P. E., Marshall District, Texas Conference: "I am glad to see and know of your success in securing the 10,000. Count on my aid."

Mrs. Elizabeth Woolfolk, Greenwood, Miss.: "I am deeply interested in the success of the Southwestern, and am working to secure a large list of subscribers."

Bishop W. F. Mallalieu, D. D., LL. D.: "You are making an excellent paper, and have my sincere prayers and earnest wishes for 10,000 subscribers at a very early date."

Rev. H. W. White, P. E., Tennessee Conference: "We propose to give you more subscribers than any other conference. My district will license no man to preach who does not subscribe for the Southwestern."

Rev. Manly S. Hard, D. D, assistant corresponding secretary Board of Church Extension, M. E. Church: "I am more and more convinced that you are in the right place. I read your paper every week with profit and interest."

Rev. C. K. Wright, P. E., Atlanta District, Savannah Conference: "I take occasion to urge every pastor of the Atlanta District to do his utmost to put the Southwestern into every family for 1895. For us to have loyal and intelligent members, they must read our own papers."

Rev. J. C. Hartzell, D. D., corresponding secretary Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society: "I sincerely hope that the pastors and presiding elders throughout the South will rally to the support of the paper. I have an abiding interest in the Southwestern.

Wm. Lewis Bulkley, Ph. D., professor of Latin and German, Claflin University: "The success of the Advocate is assured. It deserves to be supported. It must be supported. I am exceedingly busy this year, but if I can aid you in making the paper a howling success, call on me."

Rev. J. W. Jackson, P. E., Little Rock Conference: "You may count on me as a strong ally for the 10,000. It must be reached. The Southwestern is my able assistant in performing the arduous duties of presiding elder, and in spreading scripture holiness throughout my district."

Rev. W. H. Brooks, A. M., P. E., Washington District, Washington Conference: "The Southwestern cannot be otherwise than healthful in its influence upon the home life of the people. I carry the Bible, Discipline and Southwestern into all my conferences, and urge the claims of each upon my brethren. We have made the subscription to the Southwestern a condition of the renewal of licenses for local preachers and exhorters."

NEW ORLEANS ITEMS.

The New Orleans Times-Democrat had a very appreciative notice of the visit of our senior bishop, Thomas Bowman, D. D., LL. D., who found it convenient to spend several days in the city to the great delight of our people. His sermon on Sunday morning at St. Charles M. E. Church, his lecture on India at the University, and his other informal talks have been very helpful to our cause here. He left the city on Monday for the Louisiana Conference, over which he presides this week.

We very greatly enjoyed the services at Mount Zion M. E. Church on Sunday morning. It was a real pleasure to find such a large number of the Sunday school children present at the morning service. Brother Montgomery is rounding up the year nicely.

At Simpson we had the pleasure of taking part in the monthly communion in the evening. It was a very impressive service, and was greatly enjoyed; 215 partook of the sacrament. Brother Taylor is closing up this year with satisfaction to all.

Rev. W. R. Butler of First Street M. E. Church was the recipient of a handsome suit of clothes by the stewardesses of the church. He has closed up the year successfully. The quarterly conference has requested that the next annual conference be held in their new church.

Lexington Conference.

Brethren—I have made arrangements with the Louisville and Nashville, Chesapeake and Ohio, Kentucky Central, Newport News and Mississippi Valley railroads for reduced rates to our conference on the usual certificate plan. Purchase tickets to Maysville and get certificate from your agent. This certificate, being signed by me, will entitle you to return at one-third rate. In order to save ourselves from the humiliation of riding in the "Jim Crow Cars," I have arranged with the Louisville and Nashville Company for special coaches for our private use, from Louisville via Lexington to Maysville and return. These coaches will be attached to train leaving First Street Depot, Louisville, Tuesday morning at 7:35 o'clock and reaching Lexington at 11:30 a. m. We will stop over in Lexington until 4:30 p. m. and arrive in Maysville 7:35 Tuesday evening. These special coaches will be in my charge while laying over in Lexington, so the brethren may leave their baggage in them with perfect safety. I would respectfully urge as many of the brethren and friends to make it a point to go on this train, as we will have first-class accommodation in every respect and no "Jim Crow Car." Remember when train leaves.

No arrangement could be made with railroads in Ohio and Indiana, except the C. and O. from Cincinnati, Covington and intermediate points. Purchase tickets, pay full fare and get certificates from the agents on this road. Respectfully,
EDWARD L. GILLIAM, Secretary.

Notice.

To the ministers of the Mississippi Annual Conference:

Dear Brethren—The minutes are now ready. Call at your express office for them, and please send the money at once to me and do not wait until you sell the minutes. Please send at once and oblige your dear brother, A. D. PAYNE, Sec'y.

Lexington Conference.

To Presiding Elders and Candidates—The examination for admission on trial will take place in our church at Maysville, Ky., Tuesday, March 12, beginning at 3 p. m. Candidates will come prepared for a written examination. Send an essay on "Books to be Read" and a written sermon to the undersigned any time before March 1—not later. Examination on Discipline of 1892. Also report whether you take one of our church papers. Respectfully, Resolutions on the Death of G. W. Drake, M. D., of Jefferson, Tex.

WHEREAS, The angel of death has again visited our ranks, and on January 1, 1895, took from among us Dr. G. W. Drake, therefore, be it

Resolved, 1, That his friends have lost an acquaintance and associate, whose affable manners and genial countenance always shed a ray of light across the pathway of those with whom he came in contact, and linked himself to them by some of the most beautiful traits of human character to which man is heir.

2. That his mother has lost an affectionate and dutiful son, and his relatives a devoted kinsman, whose vacancy can never be filled.

3. That the country and community in which he resided have lost a model citizen, law-abiding and patriotic, whose voice was ever heard in behalf of right and justice.

4. That the medical profession and the race at large have lost a useful member, a Christian gentleman and an ornament to the profession; one whose ability, energy and force of character were fast lifting him above the heads of many who commenced the race of life prior to him, and with greater opportunities spread out before them; one whose short practice as a doctor pointed to him as containing in his make up the true material of the born physician.

5. That while we deprecate his untimely taking off, his loss to his relatives, his mother, his friends, his country, his profession and to the race generally, yet not being able to fathom the depth and wisdom of the inscrutable providence of God, we extend our heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved relatives, but bow with becoming reverence to Him who will enable us to meet our beloved brother on the other shore.

Signed by the following committee:
J. F. Dawkins, T. E. Speed, Jefferson, Texas; C. A. Grimes, Bastrop, Texas; S. M. Lyons, Paris, Texas; J. D. English, Jefferson, Texas.

Mr. Editor—I desire to inquire for my brother, Jimmie Moody, who I left in the State of Georgia, near Louiston, Upson County, five miles northwest. There were three children of us, the eldest, Abraham, was named for our father—Jimmie and Sallie. Our father's name was Abraham McCoy, and mother's name, Minerva. We all first belonged to Joel Moody, but given away as follows: Jimmie was left at the old homestead in Upson County, Georgia, with Greene Moody; brother Abraham was carried to Arkansas, by Riley Moody, and I was brought to Texas by John Moody. The last I heard of my father, he belonged to Sam Collier, and a Mr. Helm owned my mother at last account. Any information leading to the above named persons will be thankfully received by me; MRS. SALLIE RODGERS, Care of Rev. W. H Jackson, Texarkana, Texas, B. x 122.

I am in search of my sister, Jane Paine; her husband's name is Bedford Paine. The last I heard of them they were in Memphis, Tenn. Mother's name is Millie Cropard, and father's is Squire Cropard. We are all living in Pine Bluff, Arkansas. Address, LEM CRAWFORD.

LESSON HYMN. 7, a.

I love to hear the story
Which angel voices tell,
How once the King of glory
Came down on earth to dwell.
I am both weak and sinful,
But this I surely know,
The Lord came down to save me,
Because he loved me so.

I'm glad my blessed Savior
Was once a child like me,
To show how pure and holy
His little ones may be;
And if I try to follow
His footsteps here below,
He never will forget me,
Because he loves me so.

Time.—The summer of A. D. 29.

Place.—Capernaum: in a house, possibly Peter's.

Rulers.—Herod in Galilee; Pilate in Judea.

Parallel Passages.—Compare verses 1-5 of this lesson with Mark 9. 33-37, and Luke 9. 46-48.

Connecting Links.—After they had come down from the mountain Jesus and his disciples lingered a while in the neighborhood of Cæsarea Philippi. The miracle that healed the lunatic boy astonished the crowds. Jesus still sought solitude, but resumed his journeyings in Galilee. He gave no public teaching, but taught his disciples the principles on which his kingdom was to be founded. Our lesson brings one of them prominently forward.

Matt. 18. 1 14.

Rev. G. N. Jolly, Kentucky Conference.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"It is not the will of your father which is in heaven that one of the little ones should perish." (Matt. 18:14.)

On the following day, as they came down from the mount of Transfiguration, Jesus requested the disciples to tell the vision to no man, "until the Son of man be risen again from the dead." They asked about the second coming of Elijah. The Jews believed this prophet would come again "before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord." (Mal. 4:5.) They thought the resurrection was that "great and dreadful day." Jesus let them know Elijah had come in the person of John the Baptist, and they had done with him as they pleased. They would treat the Son of man the same way. At the foot of the mountain a multitude had gathered. The disciples had endeavored to cast out an evil spirit. They failed. A man ran and fell at Jesus' feet and besought Him to heal his son. Jesus did so. The disciples wished to know why they could not cast it out. Jesus let them know "this kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting." Again He told them of His death and resurrection. When they came to Capernaum a tax collector asked Peter if his Master did not pay tribute. Peter, without a second thought, told Him he did. As they entered the house Jesus, by a kind of parable, let him know it was not morally right for Him to pay tribute, but lest they should offend, He sent him to the lake, had him cast in a hook, to look into the mouth of the first fish he should catch, and he would there find money to pay their tax. The chapter, of which our lesson is a part, "is a perfect program for a peaceful church." We have in this lesson, the emblem of humility, receiving and offending believers, occasions for stumbling, and the value of weak disciples.

I. The emblem of humanity. (1-4) This discourse was delivered in or near Capernaum. In the way they had reasoned among themselves who should be greatest in the kingdom of heaven. The kingdom of heaven includes the Church on earth. This kingdom has degrees. Some in it will be greater than others. The apostles supposed the great ones would be among themselves. Peter had just received the keys, therefore he would be greatest. Judas had the bag and kept the money for that reason he would be greatest. Simon and Jude were near relatives to Jesus, therefore they would be greatest. Andrew had been first called, for that reason he would be first chosen. John was the beloved disciple, therefore he would stand highest. They likely talked in this way as they went from the mount of Transfiguration to Capernaum. When in the house Jesus asked what it was they disputed about by the way. They were ashamed, and for awhile said nothing. Then one of them asked the question, "Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?" Settle this dispute. This question does not refer to character, but to office. There was among them a greater desire for worldly honor than for purity of heart. I fear there are many ministers in the Church to day who have the same spirit.

Jesus answered this question I. By an Illustration. "He called a little child unto Him and set it in the midst of them." This child was large enough to hear, understand and obey, and small enough to be taken up into the arms of Jesus. Some say this was Peter's house, and this child was one of his children. Others suppose it was Ignatius, one of the church fathers, and bishop of the church at Antioch. Jesus and the apostles took great interest in the children. The Church is constantly looking after the little ones. It has made for them many kind fathers and mothers, erected many orphans' homes, and brought the Sabbath school into existence.

2. By an argument. He shows them that three things are necessary in order to become great in the kingdom of heaven. (1) Conversion—"Except ye be converted." These apostles were good, but not yet perfect, men. There were some erroneous ideas they should give up. Conversion in a full sense means a change of head, a change of heart and a change of life. Faith, repentance, prayer and self-denial go before conversion. Pardon, cleansing, adoption and the witness of the Spirit go with conversion. The fruits of the Spirit and the use of the means of grace follow conversion. (2) The Child-like spirit—"Become as little children." After we are saved we should "go on to perfection." In order to do this we must like the child be affectionate, confidential, obedient and teachable. (3) Humility—He should "humble himself as this little child." These disciples were seeking worldly honor. This was their besetting sin. Children are comparatively free from such a spirit. They will enjoy themselves with those of their age regardless of color, rank or wealth. He who is holy in heart, humble in spirit and just in life, will be great in the kingdom of heaven.

II. Receiving and offending those that believe in Jesus. (5 6) I. Receiving. Here our Savior passes from those that are young in years to those that are young in the faith. To receive young disciples in Jesus' name means that we should bear with their infirmities, bear their burdens, aid them in every way possible, and love them with pure hearts fervently. When we help those who believe in Jesus, we do an act of kindness to Him.

2. Offending. We may cause those who believe in Jesus to offend by not loving them, by ridiculing their efforts to serve God, by discouraging them in the use of the means of Grace, by placing temptations before them, and by inviting them to do what God condemns. The punishment of such is awful. It is better to die than to offend God.

III. Occasions to stumble. (7-9) 1. Outward temptations—"Woe unto the world because of offenses." The world is so full of sin that all temptations cannot be avoided. Yet we are commanded to "abstain from all appearance of evil." The world's pride and ambition; its love for money, honor and pleasure are so great that it is constantly spreading temptations before the children of God. It must needs be that occasions to stumble will be laid before the saint, but woe to the man who places them there. It is a fearful thing to lead one who believes in Christ astray.

2. Inward temptations—"If thy hand or thy foot offend thee." Man is depraved. There is a bend of the mind toward evil. By nature he loves darkness rather than light. An outward temptation amounts to but little if it strikes no vibrating cord in the heart. The inward desire and the outward temptation harmonize. The will is weak. We yield, we fall, we perish. It is far better to give up bosom sins—here spoken of as the hand, the foot and the eye—than to perish with them.

IV. The value of the little ones of Jesus' flock. (10-14) We must not despise them, not even hate or dislike them. God holds them in high esteem. We should do likewise.

1. They are guarded by angels. It may be too much to teach that every saint, strong and weak, has his guardian angel. Yet it seems clear from the word of God that they do watch over His children. "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear Him, and delivereth them" (Psa. 34-7). "For He shall give His angels charge over thee to keep thee in all thy ways" (Psa. 91-11). "Are they not all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister to them who shall be heirs of salvation (Heb. 1-14)?" God keeps His children, but not independent of themselves. "We are laborers together with God."

DO not be deceived.—The following brands of White Lead are still made by the "Old Dutch" process of slow corrosion. They are standard, and always

The Place of Sacred Song in the Church.

By N. J. JOHNSON, B. L., Gammon Theological Seminary.

Among the many arts that have chorished the hearts of humanity, stirred the feelings of nations and moved to actions millions, nothing is so adapted to the religious, moral and social progress of mankind as song.

From the time when that heavenly choir made tremulous the mid-night hills of Palestine with the song of incarnation and peace, sacred music has had its power to charm and draw out the better natures of the human soul and inspire it to higher and holier action—yea much farther up the dim stream of the past has this God-given art wielded its benign influence over mankind. During the days of old, in which Abraham prayed, Jacob sojourned and Moses legislated, this species of composition with her twin sister, poetry, was used for gladdening the hearts of God's people, nerving the heart of the warrior for battle and writing prophetic victory in his soul with her fingers of vibration.

In the early ages Old Testament hymns were the essential part of the public worship. Of various species of religious poetry, the hymn is the oldest and best. "A hymn is a lyrical discourse to the feeling, it should either excite or express feelings." The hymn from the first to the half of the seventh century was in a state of formation. It had its various shapes, both in the Greek and Latin tongues. From the seventh century it began its transformation through different hymnologists until through the Gregorian charts, and afterwards through the Ambrosian melodies during the tenth and eleventh centuries, it finally attained to its present state of beauty and sublimity. The hymns of the early Church were not didactic, yet they aided in teaching sound doctrine. The important and effective place of sacred music in the primitive Church was shown by Arius, who, when desirous of spreading and indoctrinating the people with his dogmas wrote them in verse and set them to music. During the infancy of the Church, hymns were held in a very high and holy regard; they attended the Christian in all his journeys, even through "the valley and shadow of death." "The Veni Sancte Spiritus," sang by the early Christian, was to him the gleaming of a better day—the millennium in miniature—heaven on earth. The hymn was the greatest supporter of the life and spirit of the primitive church. Each spiritual revival of the mediseval church was accompanied by a diligent cultivation of sacred music.

All great moral and religious reforms of the past were accompanied with song. The reform under Gregory was accompanied by a revival of sacred music. Having noticed the place of music in the ancient and mediaeval churches, and noted its vital importance, it is none the less important in the modern church. It is growing into high repute. It will never grow old and useless, for it has both word and intonation; the former will feed the intellect, the latter the feelings.

The hymn has charms that the sermon can never have. A sermon often repeated will become monotonus, but such songs as "Rock of Ages," "Come Holy Spirit," "There is a Fountain Filled With Blood," are so adapted to the expression of our religious emotions that they will always be new and interesting, and will be joyously sang by millions yet unborn. The hymn should not be made subservient to the sermon, because the former has a distinct mission. The song has saved many poor drunkards from the cup. It has sent thrills of conviction to the heart of many a poor sinner whom the sermon could not save. Certainly, the hymn should be used preparatory to the sermon; but this is not its whole mission.

Not only has sacred song a place in the church militant, but it has a place in the church triumphant. "Yes we shall sing in heaven." "The redeemed of the Lord shall return and come with singing unto Zion." While the banished apostle, John, was on the Isle of Patmos, being carried to heaven in the spirit, he heard not so many sermons there, but heard "harping with harps," "a new song," and a host who sang the song of Moses and the Lamb. Therefore, sacred song will never cease with the Christian, even when the stars will lose their places in the stellary vault and fall and boil in the last ebbing tide—the dying ocean. The Christian Church will be arrayed in white, in heaven, and when she remembers the good and aggressive force of sacred song, an angel who stands near the throne of God, will touch a golden cymbal, and all heaven will break forth in the song of "Moses and the Lamb."

Prize Examinations.

Offered by the American Institute of Sacred Literature.

PURPOSE.

The purpose of the institute in offering examinations is five-fold:

1. To induce college students who contemplate entering the ministry to obtain a working knowledge of Hebrew, New Testament Greek, thereby saving much time for purely exegetical work in the seminary.

2. To induce colleges to add courses in Hebrew and New Testament Greek to their curricula by creating a demand for such work from the students.

3. To provide for all college students a special incentive for the study of the English Bible, (a) as a unique literature, (b) as the record of a unique history, (c) as text book of religious principles, (d) in relation to the influence which it has exerted in the history of the world.

4. To test the work now being done in these lines in the colleges of the United States and Canada, and if possible to gain facts with which to refute the current impression concerning the ignorance of the college student on Biblical subjects.

5. If possible to secure data which will help to convince the vast number of colleges in which no adequate Biblical instruction is offered, that it is important to add to their intellectual equipment the facilities for the best work in these lines.

If the results of these examinations warrant their continuance, those prizes will be offered annually. For further information apply to

Waynesboro District—

Dear Brethren—This is the beginning of a new year's work. Let us begin with new zeal. The district stewards and preachers' meeting will be held at Millen, February 27. I hope each pastor and district steward will be present. Let us start together to do our best on all lines, God being our helper. Yours in Christ,
R. R. O'NEAL, P. E.

Gainesville District—

Dear Brethren—The best part of plenty of time is the first part, and understanding as you do the relation that each pastor sustains to the great connectional benevolences and moral tone of your work. Let us enter prayerfully and earnestly into this, our post of honor, and prove ourselves equal to the task committed to our care. April 14 is Easter. By concentration of efforts on the part of pastors and officials, the greater part of your benevolence can be raised. An Auxiliary to the various benevolent causes is the SOUTHWESTERN. Place it, if possible, in every home. The district stewards will meet me in Gainesville February 27.
Yours fraternally,
C. R. BUFFINGTON, P. E.

Rome District—

Dear Brethren—Let us begin at once to push our work. We must not fail—we are put on our merit, the measure of our success. This seems to the determination of our bishops. April 14 is Easter. Strive to raise every dollar of your benevolent collections. Urge our people to take the SOUTHWESTERN; we must sustain our church paper. Let each man do his duty by it. I shall give a pen picture of each of the pastors on the district, with the work that he is doing and his Easter collections. Let each brother urge to the front. District stewards meet at Rome, first Rome charge, February 19; let each charge be represented. Yours faithfully,
H. R. ALLEN, P. E.

Aberdeen District—

Dear Brethren—We are starting on a new year; let us pray the Head of the Church to start with us and enable us to to do more for God and humanity than ever before. I advise that you give your first attention to the claims of the F. A. and S. E. Society. Our conference is assessed $1000 for this cause this year, and if that amount is raised, the completing of Rust Hall is assured. Then let us bestir ourselves and raise our part of that $210 as soon as we possibly can.
H. R. REVELS, P. E.

Shubuta District—

Dear Brethren—Congratulations most heartily upon your work of last year. Allow me, however, to exhort you to strive to make this year's work the best in the history of the Shubuta District. Let Easter, the 14th of April, be the great rally day for missions. Do not forget our pledge made at conference to try to secure at least one cash subscriber to the SOUTHWESTERN from each family in our charges. Fraternally yours,
J. M. SHUMPERT, P. E.

Navasota District—

I am very anxious to see each of you succeed in your work as a Methodist preacher, and I know no better way than in urging upon you to put, as far as possible, the SOUTHWESTERN in every family in your charge. See to it, my brethren, that each local preacher and exhorter takes the paper and pays for it. Remember, that no license of local preacher or exhorter will be renewed who fails to take the paper according to our good rule, which is right. These words to you are kindly and lovingly written, and trust that you will take them as such. This paper helps us in our revivals. Some Methodist preachers won't speak of it, thinking that it will cut their bread off—this is a good way to get it. The more you do for the grand old Church, the more you get out. Do you believe this? If you do, go in to win souls for the Master and other good results will follow. Our district must not fall one bit behind last year. What a man does, is the test of what he is. Yours, for the good of the work. W. L. DUNCAN, P. E.

Meridian District—

The first Meridian District Conference will convene at Scooba, Miss., April 11 Every member will be expected, there. Plan for preachers' institute will be published at an early day. Let all begin their studies at once.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE POWER.

Lord of the harvest hear our cry,
Send now "the power from on high;
Nor cease to give the "tongue of fire,"
And kindle with intense desire.
The "heart of flame" e'en now begin,
To cleanse and save from every sin;
Thy servants ever more shall we
The witness have, and happy be.

How glorious the experience: "But now being made free from sin," the most precious boon that can be conferred upon a creature. Deliverance from the bondage that crushes, depresses, enslaves. Lifted to the dignity of "servants of God." And, bearing that fruit of the Spirit, which is in "all goodness, and righteousness, and truth." Growing and developing unto and in all holiness, and entering even now upon the enjoyment of the promise even of everlasting life. Surely such bliss is worth the struggle.

MIGHT as well expect blood out of a turnip as to expect Christian activity and interest and zeal out of those professors who habitually neglect the means of grace. Spiritually dead, they are stumbling blocks in the way of the progress of the Church. However, many of these spiritual icebergs could be thawed out by a vigorous, persistent and continuous system of pastoral visitations to the homes and places of business of those indifferent members. Love will conquer. "Let your speech be always with grace, seasoned with salt."

THE great Apostle Paul had no little difficulty in reconciling his erratic Galatian disciples to the plain and simple teachings of the Gospel. Indeed, they were like unto many of the disciples of to day, who "run well for a season," but are too frequently so "bewitched" by the glare and glamor of the world that the truth appears false in their eyes, and they regard those who tell them the truth as their enemies. This type of professors need to be continually reminded of the dangor of again being entangled "with the yoke of bondage."

THE Louisiana Conference was specially honored during its late session at Monroe, La. The mayor of the city, Dr. Aby, delivered an address of welcome, and by invitation of pastor and officials, several of the sessions of the conference were held in the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Many of the best white citizens of the city attended the various meetings, and paid a high compliment to the general appearance of the brethren, and satisfaction with the intelligent manner in which the business was transacted. Except for the unexpected visit of "Boreas" the reception was warm, genial and kind.

KYOSEIYEN.—The Morning Star Orphan Asylum, near Tokio, Japan, is a most worthy undertaking, and deserves the sympathy and help of every lover of humanity. Founded in 1889 by Mr. S. Hongo, who, feeling impelled to do something for the waifs at Tokio, assumed the care of a number of them believing that God would bless and bring to his assistance the help of other Christian people. The distracted condition of the country occasioned by the war which is now being waged between Japan and China renders the existence of the institution somewhat precarious, and appeal is now made to the Christian people everywhere to help this providential undertaking. For further information apply to Mr. Fred. M. Yamagoobi, of Depauw University, Greencastle, Ind.

"SOUTHERN EDUCATION."

We are of the opinion that all really fair-minded people are of the opinion that it is not possible to do too much toward the education of the colored people in the South. And it will also be admitted by the same class of people that the colored man does not have his fair share of the public school privileges in this section of our land.

It is hardly necessary to enter into a discussion on this question. Argument is unnecessary. Notwithstanding, there has been a generous expenditure of money by the Southern people to furnish schools for the education of the Negro, it is nevertheless true, that much more ought to be done by them, since they owe the Negro a debt which they will never be able to pay. It is as disgusting as it is amusing, to hear the talk about the noble and self-sacrificing work that is being done in behalf of Negro education, etc.

Dr. Edwards, of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, hits the nail squarely on the head when he remarks:

"The South would owe twice as much to the children of the colored man if the latter paid only half as much as he now does, or if he paid nothing."

* * * * * * *

"If the South were to do more for the Negro child, it would still sin against the State in separating the races in its public schools. It is the colored child's right to be with his white brother in school, and the deprivation of the corresponding right is a like wrong to the white boy. The corresponding separation in our own church schools in the South is not to our liking, but that separation is accounted for by the difficulty of persuading our own white people with Southern education to study by the side of his colored brother. The compulsory segregation of the colored child in all the Southern schools is among the lost rights of which we speak. It is entirely possible that 'all in all, the South is doing nobly for the education of the Negroes,' for doing something is measurably noble, in which we rejoice for the South's sake. That the noble something is done in a way to induce high self-respect in the Negro we doubt exceedingly."

THE simple announcement of the time for the administration of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper is hardly sufficient. Attention should be called to this important ceremony often during the month, or the quarter. The people should be tenderly and lovingly exhorted to hold a season of fasting and prayer preparatory to the eucharistic feast. It would be, in our opinion, far more beneficial to some of the churches if this sacrament could be celebrated in connection with the quarterly meeting. We have observed a growing disposition in some churches to minify the importance of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, partly because of the frequency of its occurrence, and partly because it is made the occasion of a "big money rally," and partly because undue stress is placed upon the number of communicants rather than upon the presence of the Holy Spirit. Brother pastors should look into this matter carefully, and as far as possible eliminate all objectionable features.

—Dr. J. W. E. Bowen, professor in Gammon Theological Seminary, arrived in this city on Saturday last to the great delight of a host of friends. He preached grandly at Wesley M. E. and First Street Churches on Sunday, favoring this office with a kind and welcome visit on Monday, accompanied by our own President Atkinson of the New Orleans [illegible], whose guest he is.

ABLE AND HELPFUL WORDS.

THE friends of the colored people, and their cause itself will be very greatly helped by such strong, able and helpful words as the following editorial from our highly esteemed contemporary, the St. Louis Christian Advocate, which, on account of its great importance, we publish entire:

"It is said that the colored population of Georgia pay taxes on about $40,000,000 worth of real property. The amount of mortgage on the lands of the Georgia Negroes is not stated, but even if it should be one half of the value of the real estate, the result would be the possession by those people of $20,000,000 worth of land, which they have accumulated since the war. It is quite likely, though statistics on the subject are not available, that a similar, if not better, result would be shown in the other Southern States, and the probability is that the Negroes of the South own, free of all encumbrance, perhaps, $250,000,000 to $300,000,000 worth of real estate. Such a result as this is probably unprecedented in the history of our civilization. It should be remembered that less than thirty years ago these people started with less than nothing, for, as slaves, they acquired habits of thriftlessness, of wastefulness, that almost unfitted them for the accumulation of property. In one generation they have managed to pile up an aggregate of wealth that is simply enormous. It is true that a very considerable percentage of the race still retain the habits of idleness that characterized them as slaves. It is also true that no large percentage exhibit talent for accumulation, but are content to eat from day to day the wages of the day before, trusting to chance for the future of the morrow. But after these deductions have been made, there still remains a large number of these people who have exhibited decided financial ability. Starting in the most humble way, with limited intelligence and exceedingly circumscribed knowledge of the manner in which economy is to be practiced, they have nevertheless gone on from year to year accumulating a little until their savings, as represented by their property, are princely in their proportions. They are deserving of great credit. In addition to accumulating their own property, they have built churches, they erected school houses, they employ and pay preachers and teachers; and all out of the humble earnings of day laborers. Such results as these deserve honorable mention. When contemplating the race as a mass, it is usual to judge its members by its worst representatives, a method both unjust and untrue. The colored people of the South as a class should not be judged by the criminals among them who become conspicuous in the newspapers from the evil deeds that are often visited with swift and terrible justice; they should rather be judged from the honest, hard-working men and women who, beginning with nothing, have in the course of one generation accumulated an amount of property that, even of our magnificent national wealth, forms no inconspicuous portion."

"AND the poor have the Gospel preached into them." This was the underlying principle in the establishment of Christ's kingdom on earth. "The poor ye have with you always," said the Master. So it is one of the [illegible] and most [illegible] duties of the Christian ministry to [illegible] gathering of [illegible] the word of the [illegible] be made to [illegible] Christ [illegible] which [illegible]

OUR : WOMEN'S : ROUND : TABLE

The Influence of the Home in the Uplifting of our People.

EIGHTH LETTER—BY T. E. W.

I have been thinking a great deal recently about some abuses which are tolerated by what is called polite society. It is amusing to hear people talk of society people and society etiquette, the "Four Hundred," etc. Just as though the summum bonum of all earthly happiness lay in a rigid and blind compliance with the rules of this most fickle goddess popularly called "society."

By society I mean any number of persons united together by common consent to act conjointly for some purpose or object; an association formed to promote mutual profit, pleasure or usefulness. No compact is beneficial which does not look toward the moral and social and intellectual advancement of its members. Society so-called presumes to establish a standard; it may be of dress, of giddy pleasures, of profitless amusements. It too often is merely the organized permission for self-indulgence, and utter neglect of those duties which make people really great. Too often the votaries of this so called society neglect the poor and needy, while they look upon the church and church-going people as slow coaches.

I have become thoroughly disgusted on reading accounts of the doings of the "Four Hundred," from the largest cities of the Union down to the most diminutive village or country cross road, just as though the highest aim in life was to be gay and foolish, and "English, you know." By all means let us have society; but—ah, "there is the rub." An association of the really good, and virtuous, and noble, banded together in a great mission of helpfulness. Society that spurns the poor, that sneers at those who by unfavorable environments have not acquired so-called "style," or admits into its charmed circle only those who possess expensive apparel, or which puts more stress upon outward appearances than it does upon sterling integrity and true character, is of doubtful propriety, to say the least of it.

Such society may serve well its purpose to gratify the personal vanity of a few giddy pleasure-seekers, but it can never lay the foundation for true moral greatness.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Emigrate.

By L. J. N. BLUE, Meridian, Miss.

Years ago wise men prophesied and believed that when every man could govern himself, when every human being would be equal before the law, that pauperism, crime, murder and want would exist only in the history of the past. They accounted for sufferings and misery then by the rapacity of rulers and because every man was not equal in the eyes of the law.

Here, in these United States, to-day all men are equal in the eyes of the law. Men can govern themselves, yet crime, pauperism and want continues. Why is it that men of a weak race are shot down by men of an opposite race? Why is it that they are taken out in the dead hours of the night, when there is no eye to pity, no hand of mercy to extend, and their souls ushered into eternity by bullets from assassins' guns? Philosophy teaches us that no two pieces of matter can occupy the same space at the same time. So it is with the human races. No two races can occupy the same territory at the same time and live peaceably. So the Indians found out, when too late, that this was a true law, and I am afraid that the Negroes of these United States will find out the same when it is too late.

Is it not time that the Negro was receiving recognition? Is it not time that he be counted as an American citizen? He gave his labor to this country and is continuing to do so; he fought and died for this country; he assisted in making this country what it is—yet he is not recognized; he is not given the rights which is due every American citizen!

I may be wrong, but it is my earnest belief that just as long as the Negroes remain in America, just so long will they be murdered and their murderers go free—just so long will their wives and daughters be outraged—just so long will they be huddled in "Jim Crow" cars, and just so long will they be scullions.

Do not the signs of the times point that way? This American government has the power to enforce every American citizen into the army during war; yet, during the times of peace it will stand idly by and see her innocent citizens slaughtered and not raise her hands in their defense! A few months ago Turkish soldiers murdered some Armenians. The American newspapers, in startling headlines, denounced the outrage and wanted the United States to send an agent to investigate. Yet, here, in these United States, innocent men have been burned at the stake, shot down before their wives and children, and nothing done nor said. Is this the kind of country to live in? The most vile and dangerous class of people can come to America and be welcome; they can ride in the finest of railway coaches; stop at the best hotels and receive the best of treatment. Yet the Negro, the one who made America what she is, is denied these privileges. The question naturally arises: Will the Negro ever receive that treatment which is due him? I have carefully studied the relative positions of the two races, and it is my firm belief that the Negro will never receive just treatment as long as he remains in the United States. Then, should we not emigrate? God will provide a way whereby we may reach the promise land—Africa.

"Quærita"—Special.

There are several whose names appeared on the Roll of Honor who have not sent for the present I promised. Now, young folks, this is the last call. If you do not send now, you must forever hold your peace. I think there are four of you who do not want your presents, or else you do not see the SOUTHWESTERN; both are bad. If you do not send for the presents, I will wear them myself—all four of them; and if you do not see the SOUTHWESTERN, you are behind the times. Fare thee well.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore bodily health for many years.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

The Living Issue.

By W. H. PLEASANTS, P. E., E. Tenn. Con.

The duty of a pastor to his people, the duty of the people to their pastor and the duty of ministers to each other is one of the great problems to be solved by the pastor and people of to-day. The pastor often finds himself asking this question: "What is my whole duty to my people?" and the people often find themselves asking the same question: "What is my whole duty to my pastor?" and we, as ministers, should ask the Lord to teach us by his Holy Spirit our duty to our preaching brethren.

We notice in the first place the duty a pastor owes to the people he is sent to serve and humanity generally. We are to be kind, loving and tender hearted, both to old and young, and most especially to the children. Speak to them often about their Heavenly Father, and tell them of Jesus who died for their redemption. One writer has wisely said, if we can win the affections of the children, we have gained the sympathy of the parent. We are commanded to watch over each other in love. This indeed, is a great work, but it appears that we as ministers are handling the world with our feeble left hand, instead of our strong right hand. Our duty is to visit from house to house, both rich and poor—have no pets in our congregations, and talk with them freely concerning their duty to God and man; inquire of them if they observe family prayers, if they attend upon all the means of grace, and if they contribute of their earthly substance to the support of the Gospel, that our in heathen lands may enjoy this glorious Gospel that we now enjoy. Africa stands with outstretched hands, inviting us to come and impart the Gospel to her. Another writer has beautifully said, "That a house-going pastor makes a church-going people." We are to show to the people that we care for them both in sickness and health.

Notice the duty of the people to their pastor. The congregation that has in their midst a pastor that does his duty as we have stated, I ask how can they refrain from doing their duty to their pastor and the support of the church generally? The great question that confronts the people at this time is, what is their duty to their pastor? They should appreciate him as a servant of God, sent among them for the upbuilding of God's kingdom; they should see that he is well cared for and take as much of the cares of the world off his mind as they possibly can, so that he may give himself wholly to the work of the Lord, that his heart and mind may be absorbed in the salvation of souls. It is true and reasonable to suppose when a minister is placed among a cold-hearted people who do not show themselves interested in his welfare, but expect him to preach, and labor, and be the instrument in the hands of God to save souls and live on the wind, as it were. It is impossible for him to accomplish, under such conditions, the great good he was sent to do. The workman is worthy of his hire.

Consider our duty as ministers to each other. We should feel each other's care and do all we can to build each other up; when one has a revival going on, we should feel it our indispensable duty to go and lend a helping hand. We should not go to see who can preach the most eloquent sermon, or try to influence the people to think more of us than they do of their pastor. This is not pleasing in the sight of God—but we are to go with our hearts full of the love of God. Be earnest in what we are doing for our Lord and Master. Preach Christ; hold Him up to the people. It is better than all the attempts at rhetoric and science; it is the look of Jesus that meets a sinner's heart and saves his soul. May God help preachers and people to do their whole duty to each other, that the world may see perched upon our banner, in letters of gold, "The World for Christ, and Christ for the World." But this glorious triumph of the Gospel will never be effectively accomplished until we, as ministers in this Southland, shall be able to place the dear old SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE in the homes of every family. Our watch word is ten thousand subscribers this conference year, and we ministers on the Wytheville District pledge ourselves to do our whole duty in bringing about this glorious achievement.

And Perfect in Their Action,

AYER'S PILLS

Never fail to relieve Dyspepsia, Constipation, and Headache.

"I have proved the value of Ayer's Pills in relieving dyspepsia and headache, with which complaints I was so long troubled that neither the doctor nor myself supposed I should ever be well again. Through the use of the above medicine I am better than I have been for years."—A. GASKILL, Versailles, Ill.

"I have used Ayer's Pills for 35 years as a cathartic in liver complaint, and always with extremely beneficial effect, never having had need of other medicine. I also give Ayer's Pills to my children, when they require an aperient, and the result is always most satisfactory."—A. A. EATON, Centre Conway, N. H.

"Having been severely afflicted with costiveness, I was induced to try Ayer's Pills. Their use has effected a complete cure, and I can confidently recommend them to all similarly afflicted."—C. A. WHITMAN, Nipomo, Cal.

THE GREAT PHYSICIAN.

Deep are the wounds which sin has made;
Where shall the sinner find a cure?
In vain, alas! is nature's aid;
The work exceeds her utmost power.

But can no sovereign balm be found,
And is no kind physician nigh,
To ease the pain and heal the wound,
Ere life and hope forever fly?

There is a great Physician near;
Look up, O fainting soul, and live;
See, in his heavenly smiles, appear,
Such help as nature cannot give.

See, in the Savior's dying blood,
Life, health, and bliss abundant flow;
And in that sacrificial flood
A balm for all thy grief and woe.

DAILY THOUGHTS.

[From Phillips Brooks.]

FEBRUARY 21.—God is everywhere giving Himself to us, the opening of the windows is a signal that we want Him and an invitation that He will be glad enough to answer, to come. Into every window that is open to Him and turned His way, Christ comes, God comes.

FEBRUARY 22.—There is no soul so black in its sinfulness, so determined in its defiant obstinacy, that God has abandoned His throne room at the centre of the sinner's life; and every movement is the God movement and every effort is the God force, with which man tries to break forth from his sin and come forth into the full sunlight of a life with God. Do you not think how full of hope it is? Do you not see that when this great conception of the universe, which is Christ's conception, which beamed in every look that He shed upon the world, which was told in every word that He spoke and which was in every movement of His hand—do you not see how, when this great conception of the universe takes possession of a man, then all his struggle with his sin is changed, it becomes a strong struggle, a glorious struggle. He hears perpetually the voice of Christ, "Be of good cheer. I have overcome the world. You shall overcome it by the same strength which overcame with Me."

FEBRUARY 23.—When man is bidden to look back into his humanity and see what it means to be a man, that humanity means purity, truthfulness, earnestness, and faithfulness to that God of which humanity is a part, that God which manifested that humanity was a part of it, when the incarnation showed how close the divine and human belonged together—when man hears that voice, I do not know how he can resist, why he shall not lift himself up and say, "Now I can be a man, and I can be man only as I share in and give my obedience to and enter into communion with the life of God," and say to Christ, to Christ the revealer of all this, "Here I am, fulfill my manhood."

FEBRUARY 24.—God gives Himself to every soul that wants Him and declares its wants by the open readiness of the signal which He knows.

FEBRUARY 25.—What shall be our universal law of life? Can we give it as we draw toward our last moment? I think we can. I want to live, I want to live, if God will give me help, such a life that, if all men in the world were living it, this world would be regenerated and saved. I want to live such a life that, if that life changed into new personal peculiarities as it went to different men, but the same life still, if every man were living it, the millenium would be here; nay, heaven would be here, the universal presence of God. Are you living that life now? Do you want your life multiplied by the thousand million so that all men shall be like you, or don't you shudder at the thought, don't you give hope that other men are better than you are? Keep that fear, but only that it may be the seed of a diviner hope, that all the world may see in you the thing that man was meant to be, that is, the Christ.

WATCH TOWER.

Pound Cake for the Children.

[Conducted by Rev. T. R. Fletcher.]

BY UNCLE THOMAS.

Be tender with a little child,
While youth is bright and gay.
The flowers of spring are sweet and mild,
But soon they'll pass away.
A mother's kiss is always dear,
Imparted with a word of love;
In her embrace you need not fear,
Her prayers are answered from above.
The promises of God are true,
Upon His word we may rely;
Dear children, He will care for you,
Though mother is gone to Him on high.
If father, aunt and kin forsake,
Our God has heard your mother pray:
And if you trust Him He will take
The clouds of sorrow all away.
Pray then for self, for father, kin,
For friends and enemies around;
And God will surely cast out sin,
And in your heart His love'll abound.
Our God will hear your childish prayer,
When from the heart both pure and mild:
Around you are His arms of care,
He's always near a little child.
Then trust Him, children, for His grace,
Remembering how He cares for you;
Our God has one abiding place,
And that is in the heart that's true.
Then to be true, we love, we pray,
Which keeps out anger, strife and pain:
We feel God's presence every day,
And heaven at death our soul shall gain
There we shall see our blessed Lord,
Oh! what a happy time there'll be:
With friends we'll join one accord,
And praise Him through eternity.

"Beloved, let us love one another, for God is love; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God."—1 John iv 7.

These precious words of the Bible should be daily bread for our soul, and assist us in the formation of character.

Dear orphans, you shall hear from me again. T. R. FLETCHER.

A Faithful Sister Departs.

Mrs. Anna M. Prottyman, wife of Rev. Wesley Prettyman, M. D., of the Central Alabama Conference, died suddenly of acute pneumonia December 28, 1894. Her change found her ready. While her sufferings for some hours were very severe, the prospect of the joys of heaven being immediately before her, carried her soul into a state of ecstacy and delight; yea, of "joy unspeakable and full of glory." For more than two hours she praised her Savior with loud voice and unceasing rapture, rejoicing in His wondrous salvation. She was the daughter of Rev. Jos. S. and Mrs. Harriet Brown, of the Ohio Conference, was converted at 13 years of age, joining at once the M. E. Church under her honored father's pastorate; was conscientiously diligent and regular at class meeting, the week-night prayer service and the Sabbath school, so that when the dew of youth was upon her, she was a confirmed and well-established Christian. Her Christian education and that of her brothers and sisters, was the chief worldly interest of the devoted parents. The best schools of leading charges of the conference were fully taken advantage of, and her progress was so marked that for several years she was a competent and successful teacher. Her religious character was so firm and unwavering, and her loving, winsome ways so influential with scholars that her services were much sought after, and she was pronounced and laborious in revivals of that day, and to the end of life zealous in every good work of reformation and of salvation.

In 1850 she married Dr. Prettyman, then actively engaged in the medical profession. To her peculiarly sensitive mind the Methodist itineracy was a weariness and she fondly cherished the hope that with her it was then a past and not a future manner of life, yet her devotion to Christian principle was so abiding that when, soon after, it was clear that to her husband was committed a dispensation of the Gospel, she gladly went forward to duty, and when in a little time he was called to be a medical missionary, she truly rejoiced that in both professions, though with abundant labors, they could be useful in the blessed Master's service. She learned readily and thoroughly the Bulgarian language; was the successful teacher of salvation to a number of Bulgarian women, a chief leader of their meetings, especially those for prayer; enjoyed her work among them intensely, and for six years pushed forward in every possible way the work of instruction and evangelization. But the atmosphere of a walled Oriental city was too close for her weak lungs, and in the eighth year, much as she loved her life work as she deemed it, her failing condition drove her to her native land. Years passed, yet she never regained vigorous health; but hers was a consecrated soul, ever active in works of charity and religion. The goodness of the Divine Father abounded unto her, even unto the glorious close of her useful and devoted life.

What a Wise Preacher Will Do.

(Pro. 11. 30. Dan. XII. 3. Matt. X. 16.)

S. B. DANLEY, P. E., Tenn. River Dis't.

A wise preacher:
Will live the gospel he preaches.
Will preach to save.
Will be loyal to the Church.
Will have a live prayer meeting.
Will attend class meeting.
Will meet his leaders as oft as practical.
Will do his best for the Church paper.
Will raise his benevolent money quarterly.
Will preach live work and pray for a revival.
Will not cover the sins of the people by making weak excuses for them.
Will not content himself as being a conference claimant yearly.
Will try to see himself in the light that others see him in.
Will pastor his people.
Will not hide from the brethern of the conference and smoke before the people.
Will not complain to the people about the editors of the Church papers.
Will have his own children baptized.
Will do his whole duty to the children of his church.
Will organize the Epworth League.
Will have a live Sunday school, well supplied with lesson helps.
Will send the benevolent money off as the bishop asked or advised.
Will not allow people to call him by other names than that which becomes his calling—such as John, Jim, Joe, or the titles of other professions of which he has no relation.
Will be a son in the Gospel and not a ruler in Israel.
Will do the work of an Evangelist—make full profit of the ministry.
Will not send for some other preacher to do his work.
Will say we can do all things through Christ that strengtheneth us.
Will not make light of a holy life. For without it none shall see the Lord.
Will try to put the Bible, Discipline, hymn book and Church paper in each family.
Will observe all the festival days advised by the Discipline.
Will raise his missionary apportionment on Easter Sunday.
Will not let anything take the day from the cause of missions.
Will do a little more than raise his own salary.
Will repair the church or parsonage or, if none, build one.
Will take out some insurance on church and parsonage.

I finally decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking several bottles of the medicine I am glad to say that my limb is now perfectly well, and I am in better health than I have been for some time. "MINISTERIAL FAMILIARITY."

The very able and comprehensive article from the pen of Rev. J. H. Reed, A. M., of Paris, Texas, and which was published in our last week's number, deserves more than a passing notice.

We have observed with painful solicitude the failure of many of our churches to keep step with the onward march of true moral progress. Revivals are held, many accessions reported, signs of great activity are often manifest, which to a casual observer would indicate conditions highly favorable to the highest development. But a careful and critical investigation often reveals a state of affairs which are not only alarming, but absolutely detrimental to the advancement of the Christian religion. How are we to account for this? Like "priest like people" is an old proverb, and may furnish the key to the solution of this question. The minister comes, not only as a pastor, but a leader. He comes in touch with every phase of the moral and social life of his flock. He is to mold them; build them up; make them like unto himself. And this he does to a great extent whether he be a good leader or a bad one.

It is indeed a serious reflection, but it will hardly be doubted that the progress of the race has been very seriously retarded by putting into our pulpits men of doubtful morality. Having once started in the work of inculcating religion without character, and gathering around them, as is often the case, people of like moral weakness, it becomes a difficult matter to fill their places with others better qualified, and more worthy of the assumption of the grave and important responsibilities.

We have known of instances where people of reputed intelligence and occupying responsible positions have either plead for the retention of such unworthy men, in places where they have had the most positive convictions that it would be detrimental to the cause of Christ, or have tacitly consented to their appointment. There is but one interpretation to be put upon such a course.

We join with Brother Reed in the thought that "the masses must be raised from the plane of the vulgar and sensual to that of the refined, intellectual and spiritual; and the pulpit is the mightiest agency now extant, and in operation for the accomplishment of this most desirable and desired end?"

A very grave responsibility rests upon our bishops, presiding elders, and presidents of our theological schools and colleges, to look after the spiritual, intellectual and moral training of our coming ministry that the race may not be retarded in its onward and upward march.

IT IS the unexpected that often happens. Last week we were favored by a copious fall of snow ten inches deep. To many people in this city such a thing was among the world's great wonders. The transition from spring-like weather into that of winter was sudden, and found many people unprepared for the rather rude embraces of "Old Boreas." He came, however, and our usually beautiful Sunny South was transformed for a short period into a land of ice and snow. As we write, "Old Sol" is again asserting himself, while Boreas sullenly, yet surely, disappears. So it is in this life of ours. There are changes sudden and startling. From the glowing sunshine we often plunge suddenly into the darkness. There are chilling blasts which often blight and wither our fondest hopes. Sadly and sorrowfully we look out upon the bleak hills; out upon the snow-clad earth. But the sun rises, the darkness and gloom disappear, and all is again bright and joyous. Even so unto them that fear the name of the blessed Master "Shall the Sun of Righteousness arise with healing in his beams."

—Articles for publication must be written in a legible hand and with good ink, to secure proper attention and prompt insertion.

THE letter, which we print below, is from a gentleman in every way qualified to give an expression to an intelligent opion on the subject of "Industrial Education" for our people. It does not occur to us that there is or will be any serious objection to our editorial on that subject. We have great respect for those who have opinions, even though they may be adverse to ours. But the thought has been growing upon us for several years, that the Negro needs education—higher education, if you please, but above all things, that kind of an education that will teach him how to make a living; how to add to the material wealth of his country. In our judgment, the education of the hand for our people is quite as important as that of the head and the heart. In fact, the trio must in the future enter more largely as factors in the uplifting of the race. Any education which does not point ultimately to a period when the race will be able to help itself, is a waste of money. It is no reflection on any institution of learning to point to Tuskegee, under the presidency of Prof. Booker T. Washington, as a fair sample of the kind of work required:

"Dear Brother Hammond—Your article under the head of 'A Prime Factor' in the issue of the 14th inst., forces me to thank you for even that much on the right line of education for your people. Seventeen years ago I was convinced that the education needed by the colored people was how to make a living, how to build homes, how to become manufacturers of the vast resources all about them. I am obliged to say that our Church has went wide of the mark in driving most all of its energy to craming textbook knowledge into the great mass of colored students. 'Tis a mistake, and mistakes continued become sin. What good is higher education to a person if it does not fit him (or her) to do better in the battle for bread. A thorough mechanical education is what the vast numbers need; and I am confident that if our Church schools in the South put more competent, consecrated industrial teachers in the work, the task of supporting the work would be solved in one year. The great mass of Northern friends who have contributed to this work for years are slacking off, and it is because they have seen the mistakes in our educational system in the colored work, and as soon as this is righted, there are thousands ready to be turned into this field again. I give you an illustration of what I call the difference between the higher education and the right education: We have some young men who have finished the college preparatory course, studied Latin, Greek, algebra, etc., who are to-day working for 75 cents per day at plantation work. I have some who twelve months ago were green plantation boys, who can to-day get $1.50 per day, and if no man doth hire them, they can make work for themselves by manufacturing furniture. They are still pushing their arithmatic and other essential studies, and I am confident they are better fitted than any other students in this academy to cope with the battle of life themselves, and will be an inspiration to others. But the great fear is that our schools will not be in the front rank on this line of education, and like the past thirty years, the opportunity will not be afforded to the army of young men especially, who are anxious to become mechanics and manufacturers. You have struck the key note, Brother Hammond; give her another blast. If it is not believed and accepted by all those in charge of our school work now, we can't afford to keep silent on that account and see these people lose any further time.

'The proof that you believe the thing you teach
Is that you stand firm though all the world pass by;
Better cry truth a thousand years to void air
Than tickle listening millions with one lie.'

"Give her another blast for a better opportunity for a practical education for the masses in the South; and you give another blast for both God and humanity. I am with you, and so are thousands of intelligent mechanics and manufacturers in the North, who are praying for this work and are willing and ready to give to an education that will fit these people to live and to make money to sustain their own institutions in the future. Z. T. SPENCER,

"Supt. Industrial School, Gilbert Academy.
"Winsted, La., February 15, 1895."

—Rev. J. T. Gibbons of Oakland, West Texas Conference, writes encouragingly of his work. All departments organized, and good work promised for the SOUTHWESTERN.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Rev. M. Q. A. Fuller reports our church at Willis, Texas, flourishing. Rev. A. C. Culbreath, P. E., visited the charge recently, and held quarterly meeting and helped.

—We are in receipt of a kind invitation from Dr. Paul H. V. Dejoice, to attend the graduating exercises of the New Orleans University Medical College, in University Chapel, Thursday, Feb. 21, at 7 p. m.

—Rev. A. Jackson sends us a note concerning the death of Rev. J. J. Collins, late of the Texas Conference. The sad event took place on Feb. 5. He was ready when the message came, and laid off his harness to take up the crown.

—Our dearly beloved brother, Dr. Wesley Prettyman of the Central Alabama Conference, though almost heartbroken by the loss of his dearly beloved companion, is nevertheless yet leading on the hosts of our colored brethren to victory.

—Messrs. Hunt and Eaton have in press, and will shortly issue, Vol. 4 of Bishop Foster's Studies in Theology; The Literature of Theology, by Bishop J. F. Hurst, and Essential Christianity, a new volume of sermons by Hugh Price Hughes.

—At Union Grove, Ga., Rev. J. E. Watkins sends the first news from that conference. The outlook is very hopeful, the people willing, and success is in the air. Presiding Elder Buffington's visit was helpful, and much good resulted therefrom.

—At Mason, Tenn., our church prospers under Rev. A. W. Porter. The grand rally netted $155. F. H. Alexander, Sarah Summerville, J. L. Williams, E. Brown, P. H. Ruffin, A. B. Fields, Martha Smith, Mary Wortham, took an active part.

—Mrs. G. P. McCarty, wife of Rev. W. H. McCarty of the Upper Mississippi Conference, passed away in great peace a short time ago. She was in the sixty second year of her age, and had been a member of the M. E. Church twenty-one years. Our sympathies go out for our brother in the midst of his affliction.

—T. Moore, P. C., Mineola, Texas, writes: "Our church is moving on grandly. The Sunday school is doing a good work. Our first quarterly conference was a success. W. H. Logan, P. E., rendered good service. Collection, $16. The presiding elder gave quite an appropriate talk for Wiley and the SOUTHWESTERN.

—Mrs. Bettie Hunter of Bonham, Texas, sends a glowing account of the reception tendered Rev. M. C. Gillespie by the members of our church at that point. Methodists, Baptists, saints and sinners joined in giving the pastor and wife such a welcome as made their hearts rejoice. The affair was managed by Rev. G. W. Babers, J. Lock, Hattie Lock, L. L. English, E. Smith, Hannah Cowell, Charlotte Perry, C. Christian. Many well filled baskets, bundles, packages, etc., were the tokens brought.

—Dr. Moore, editor; Messrs. Cranston and Curts, agents and publishers, and the noble constituency, of the Western Christian Advocate, are to be congratulated on giving such impetus to the work of canvassing, as to put that grand, matchless journal four thousand five hundred subscribers ahead of this time last year. The Western nobly deserves the success achieved and more. O that a double portion of this spirit which gives success to our esteemed confrere and others contributing toward this glorious result, might fall on us and those who are making heroic efforts to keep the SOUTHWESTERN afloat.

—We rejoice to welcome home again President W. P. Thirkield, of Gammon Theological Seminary. After an absence of two months at Oxford University, England, he returns to his native land, and will devote the balance of the year in pursuing a special course of study, which he finds can be prosecuted as successfully in Boston as in London, England. In addition to his purpose to study the organization, methods and work of several of the leading theological schools of the East, he will receive special benefits and an additional inspiration from a sojourn in the old Haven home at Malden, once the home of one of the foremost and most uncompromising friends of the race, to whom his consecrated, zealous and cultured son-in-law has devoted his time, his talent and his life.

The controversy over the Norwegian system of liquor-selling is very hot in Massachusetts and is rapidly spreading to other States. No one in Massachusetts has been a more earnest champion of the system than Rev. D. N. Beach. His interest in the subject is so great that last summer he went to Norway for the express purpose of studying the operation of the system in its home. The results of his observations are given in a paper of unusual interest and importance in the February number of the New England Magazine. The paper will be read with eagerness by the temperance people all over the country. Warren F. Kellogg, publisher, 5 Park Square, Boston.

"A Red Record," a book on lynching, by Miss Ida B. Wells. This very interesting book is a complete record of the lynchings of colored people during the years 1892, 1893 and 1894. It was written to show: First—The awful prevalence of lynch law by which thousands of colored men, women and children have been shot, hanged or burned to death. Second—That the excuse universally given, that colored people are lynched only for crimes against womanhood and home, is as false as it is foul. Every person should read the book and give it thorough study. It is thrillingly interesting; illustrated. Ida B. Wells, 128 Clark street, Chicago. Price, 25 cents.

To be a constant reader of Littell's Living Age, is to keep a mind well stored with the best foreign literature of the day. To have read it all one's life, if one has reached maturity, is to have a knowledge of philosophy, art, science and literature, which is of itself a liberal education. The first number in February shows a delightful table of contents: "A Little Girl's Recollections of Elizabeth Barrett Browning, William Makepeace Thackeray, and the Late Emperor Louis Napoleon," by Henriotte Cockran; "The Queen and Lord Beaconsfield," by Roginald B. Brett; "Treasure Islands in the Polar Sea," with Part III of "The Crimea in 1854 and 1894," by General Sir Evelyn Wood, G. C. B., V. C., etc. Any reader desiring to be in touch with foreign periodical literature cannot do better than subscribe for this invaluable magazine. A prospectus with special offers to new subscribers may be obtained by addressing Littell & Co., Boston.

The Woman's Era.

Within Her Sphere She Reigns Supreme.

Woman claims her own. Her field widens constantly. Every day brightens her prospects. Her progress foreshadows the greater triumph at hand. Emancipation and equality are her positions in the years to come.

Prophetic of final victory were her achievements at the World's Fair. At her shrine there erected the nations bowed. The lesson taught at the "Woman's Building" will last "till time shall be no more." Their enlightening influence will be felt around the globe throughout the dawning century.

Only less memorable were the honors gained at the Fair by

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

The highest award conferred on this peerless preparation, is a fitting accompaniment of the laurels won by the women of America.

LESSON HYMN. L. P. M.

The Lord pours eyesight on the blind;
The Lord supports the fainting mind;
He sends the laboring conscience peace:
He helps the stranger in distress,
The widow and the fatherless,
And grants the prisoner sweet release.

I'll praise him while he lends me breath,
And when my voice is lost in death,
Praise shall employ my nobler powers;
My days of praise shall ne'er be past,
While life, and thought, and being last,
Or immortality endures.

Time.—On a Sabbath day in the early winter of A. D. 29.

Place.—Pool of Siloam, Jerusalem.

Rulers.—Herod in Galilee, Pilate in Jerusalem.

Christ and the Man Born Blind.

John 9. 1-11.

Rev. G. N. Jolly, Kentucky Conference.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"I am the light of the world." (John 9. 5.)

Jesus, while teaching in the temple, told the Jews He was older than Abraham. They took up stones to cast at Him. He passed through their midst and went His way. He came to Bethany and stopped with Martha, Mary and Lazarus. He mildly reproved Martha because she complained about much serving, and sustained Mary for her love. After this He was praying in a certain place, and His disciples asked Him to teach them to pray. This He did. After this the seventy returned. They were filled with joy because devils were subject to them through Jesus' name. He told them not to rejoice at that, but rather rejoice because their names were written in heaven. Some time after this we find Him again in Jerusalem, and on a Sabbath day, while passing through the temple, the event of our lesson occurred. We have before us to-day the thoughts—The Miracle, and the Inquiry.

I. The Miracle. (1-7) 1. The man born blind—"He saw a man which was blind from his birth." It is likely this transpired some time after the events of the preceding chapter. This blind man was a beggar. He frequented the temple. He was well known. To help him was a great blessing to the man, and a relief to the public. His condition very forcibly illustrates the state of those who are blinded by sin. Sinners are blind. They cannot see God, much less know Him. They are unconscious of their blindness (Rev. 3:17). Only the pure in heart see God (Matt. 5:8).

2. The question of the disciples—"Who did sin, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?" Many of the Jews believed that all diseases and afflictions could be traced back to some great sin. They taught that God "visited the iniquities of the fathers on the children." In this they were right. Diseases may be inherited. But it is hard to understand how they could think it possible for a man to sin before he was born. We must exist before we can act. Some Jews believed in the transmigration of souls. Possibly they claimed this man was now afflicted for sins committed in a former body. I do not suppose any of the disciples thus believed. There may have been some of this faith present, and the disciples wished Jesus to remove from their minds this erroneous doctrine. False doctrines are dangerous and hard to get rid of. God may suffer us to believe a lie and be condemned.

3. The answer of Jesus. (1) "Neither this man sinned or his parents." This blindness is a result of sin, but not of actual transgression on the part of this man, or his parents. Adam sinned. This man was not responsible for it, yet he suffered from it. Sin is in the race, it is no fault of ours that it is here, yet we experience the bad effects of it. (2) "But that the works of God should be made manifest." This man was not born blind that the glory of God might be displayed. The Lord never does evil that good may come of it. Because of existing evils the man was born blind. As a result of this blindness the power of God will be clearly seen. Let us never do evil that good may come of it. (3) "I must work the works of Him that sent me, while it is day." With us the works of God are to seek the salvation of the soul, attend the ordinances of God's house, and be charitable to the poor and unfortunate. Working the works of God is discharging every duty we owe to Him and His creatures. The time to work the works of God is "while it is day." That is, during life. This was the opportunity of that man's life. If he had missed it his sight would likely never have been given. Often as we advance through life we meet with opportunities to do good. We must then, or never, speak or act. The occasion passed is gone forever. May we always have the wisdom, desire and skill to improve every golden opportunity. (4) "The night cometh when no man can work." Night here likely refers to death. We know not what our employment may be in heaven, but it is plain that death ends our earthly labors. Every man's work is finished when he departs this life. Yet his words and deeds live after he is gone, and produce their good or bad effects. There is a sense in which we work after we are dead. "Abel being dead yet speaketh."

4. The healing of the blind man. (1) The act of Jesus—He spat on the ground, made clay of the spittle, and anointed the eyes of the blind man. It is not certainly known why Jesus thus acted. He had the power to heal this man just as he restored blind Bartimeus to sight. But Bartimeus gave abundant evidence of faith before he was healed. This man had done nothing. This work may have been to test his faith. There was no virtue in the remedy Jesus used. The miracle was clear. The people so understood it. (2) The command of Jesus—"Go wash in the pool of Siloam." This pool is located at the lower end of the valley of Jehoshaphat. Its sides are walled with stones. It is fifty feet long and eighteen feet wide. It is probably fed by water from the temple mount. (Whedon) In like manner Elisha told Naaman to "go wash in Jordan seven times" (2. Kings 5. 10). When Jesus commands we do well to obey. (3) The obedience of the blind man. He went, he washed, and he came seeing. This clearly showed faith. He believed there would be a miraculous result if he obeyed. Sinners, to be saved, must believe in God and do as He directs.

II. The Inquiry (8-11). 1. "Is not this he that sat and begged?" This question was asked by the neighbors and others that knew the blind beggar. They were undecided as to who he was. They did not think it possible that this could be he. They were divided. Some said this is he, others said it is not. The man was called. He said, "I am he." A noble confession. When Jesus brings us from darkness to light we should tell it anywhere.

2. "How were thine eyes opened? If you are the man that was born blind, how is it that you now see?" Many of the grandest teachings of our Savior were drawn forth by His enemies. The parables of the Prodigal Son, and of the Good Samaritan, might never have been spoken if all men had been friends to Jesus. We may be fairly inquisitive, but we should always show wisdom and heart goodness by our questions. Why were the Pharisees so inquisitive about this man? The answer to this question showed courage and firmness. He never denied Jesus, or give an uncertain sound as to who healed him. His parents showed weakness, even cowardice. He could suffer persecution, even expulsion from the synagogue, better than deny Jesus. These Pharisees were intensely bad. They could lose sight of a noble act that was a great blessing to many, and see only the imaginary fact that their Sabbath had been broken. When Jesus blesses us we should give Him the glory.

Taking

it for granted that you want to get the best results in painting, you will have to use Pure White Lead to obtain them. There are many mixtures branded "White Lead," "Pure White Lead," etc., which contain little, if any, White Lead, but are principally barytes, which is of little value, if not worthless. To be sure, accept only a genuine brand (see list).

If you want any shade of color, tint the White Lead with National Lead Co.'s tinting colors, prepared expressly for this purpose. A feature of these colors is the ease with which they are used and the exactness with which the desired shade is obtained. For particulars send for pamphlet, free.

Epworth Piegan Indian Mission.

A Highly Interesting Letter.

THE INDIAN PROBLEM SOLVED BY THE GOSPEL OF JESUS CHRIST.

Letter from Superintendent W. W. Van Orsdel, of the North Montana Mission:

Rev. C. C. McCabe—Dear Brother: Saturday, December 22, 1894, was a very busy day at the Epworth Piegan Indian Mission, preparing for the Christmas service. It was also the opening of our new church here. This Mission was started by the Brooklyn branch of the Woman's National Indian Association. Rev. E. S. Dutcher and wife were the first Protestant missionaries among this tribe of Indians, which numbers about two thousand. They came here on the 3d day of April, 1893. Soon after their coming Brother Dutcher held a council with the Indians, when with their consent he secured the right to one hundred and sixty acres of land for mission purposes. There was on this tract a log cabin sixteen feet square with a dirt roof. Into this, with his wife and two children, he moved immediately. Brother Dutcher, being a carpenter, soon built an addition to this, so that they had three comfortable rooms. In July, 1894, the Woman's National Indian Association transferred this property, including five hundred dollars for a chapel, to the Methodist Episcopal Church, with the condition that the Church would support and carry forward the work.

Last August Brother Dutcher bought the lumber for the church and had it delivered at the station, three miles and a half from the Mission. The Indians came and with twenty-two teams hauled it to the Mission. Brother Dutcher has built the church, doing nearly all the work himself. In addition to all this he has built an addition to the buggy shed and to the stable, nearly doubling the capacity of each; also, built a storeroom to the house, gathered the crop of vegetables and hay, the value of which is one hundred and fifty dollars, hauled his own winter's wood from the mountains, a distance of eight miles. How, under God, he could accomplish this work in so short a time is marvelous.

The church is a beauty, twenty-six by forty-six feet, modern style, and will seat two hundred comfortably. The first service was held in it Sabbath morning, December 23, the writer preaching from Matthew vi.:10. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered. Oh, how our hearts burned as we gathered around the Lord's Table. The morning congregation was made up of the young Indians who had been to school and understood the English language. In the afternoon the Indians came from far and near, pitching their teepees (tents) prepared to stay. In the evening Brother Dutcher showed the pictures of the birth and life of Christ with a magic lantern and explained them through an interpreter. This was very instructive and of great interest to the Indians.

On Monday more Indians came. The morning service lasted until one o'clock. During this service, which was through an interpreter, many of the Indians were deeply moved. One of them, a chief and an orator, spoke with deep feeling, and said he loved Christ and felt that he was a Christian, and that from that time forword he would use all his influence to bring the Indians to Christ, and he believed when two more Christmases would come all his people, the Piegan Indians, would be Christians.

The two o'clock service lasted until five and was very impressive. During this service four were baptized. In the evening two large trees, well decorated, graced the church. The congregation was large. The principal chiefs and a number of police were present, the police doing good service as ushers. Brother Dutcher again explained the pictures, and explained them through an interpreter, after which presents were given to two hundred and fifty different Indians. These presents were donated to the Mission mostly by friends in the East. Among those who sent was the Epworth League of the Montclair Church, New Jersey, the Bay Ridge branch of the Woman's National Indian Association and others.

Christmas was a day of counsel and work with the Indians. They broke camp and prepared to go to their homes after spending a merry Christmas at the Mission; they were made to feel that they were welcome before going. The leading ones came to the cottage to shake hands with Brother and Sister Dutcher and assure them that they had enjoyed themselves and appreciated the interest they had taken in them and in their children.

Christmas night the children of the Willow Creek school and the employes came to the chapel, together with enough Indians from the outside, some of whom had returned from school (Carlisle, Pa.), to fill the church, there being over two hundred at the service, which was opened with several songs well rendered by the Indian children. Brother Dutcher again showed the pictures, delivering the lecture in English to the delight of the children. In all more than four hundred different Indians were at the Mission during the opening of this new church and the Christmas exercises.

Brother and Sister Dutcher are the right persons for this very important mission, and under God are doing a good work.

The Willow Creek Government Indian Industrial School is located one mile west of the Mission. Rev. W. A. Mattson, a member of the North Montana Mission, is superintendent. There was a Christmas tree, and exercises were held Christmas evening, composed of dialogues, recitations and singing. There are one hundred and twenty-five pupils in this school. The writer never saw children and young people acquit themselves more creditably than these did in every particular. It was very impressive to hear them repeat the Lord's Prayer; so much soul and earnestness.

The Government Industrial School and the work of the Church together are solving the Indian problem very satisfactorily by making good, Christian citizens of these people, who, not many years ago, were on the war path.

FROM PRESIDING ELDERS.

Marion District—

Brethren—Begin the work of the year at once. I wish to meet all the brethren in the first quarterly conference.

H. N. BROWN, P. E.

Beaufort District—

Dear Brethren—As district stewards you are requested to meet in Bamberg on Tuesday, February 25, at 11:30 a. m., to estimate the salary of the presiding elder and to apportion the claim of the bishops and the conference claimants. As pastors you are prayerfully and earnestly urged to do your whole duty touching the preaching of the Gospel, the conversion of souls, the increase of church membership, the administering of the Discipline, the baptism of children, the organizating of children into classes for religious instruction, the faithful presentation of the claims of each benevolent society for one month and take a collection for it in all the churches, in emphasizing the claims of the Missionary Society, the F. A. and S. E. and the Church Extension societies, in raising the apportionment for the delegates to the General Conference and in observing Easter Sunday as missionary day in all our schools. As class leaders you are most earnestly requested to visit all the churches in the charge of which you are a member, and urge each class leader to do his duty in attending the quarterly conference and in raising the finances of the church from each member of his class. As members of committees, please attend each quarterly conference held at our church; if not at your church, send me your reports. As members of the church of God, "Be strong," stand up for God and our beloved Methodism. Yours, in the work. B. F. WITHERSPOON, P.E.

"An Offer of $200 in Gold."

No book is selling so rapidly as "Talks to Children about Jesus." The publishers, R. H. Woodward Company, Baltimore, Md., are making a most liberal offer of $200 in gold to agents who sell within the next three months 200 copies. The book sold very low and is beautifully illustrated. Freight is paid and credit given. Send at once 35 cents for canvassing outfit and full information. They also publish other books.

J. Bellangee, in writing in the February Arena on the progress of higher social purity in the growing condemnation among all intelligent, thinking men and women of the double standard of morals, makes some very good points, but he is one of those who are comforted by the conviction that, however slowly they may emerge, stricter and nobler standards of conduct are growing in the general consciousness and in the relations of social life. The sexual relation is a moral question. Hence a moral standard that condemns one sex and condones the acts of the other is absurd in the light of common sense. The moral standard is not applied. But the author believes that the pathos of our social conditions is awakening the greatest religious crusade the world has ever seen—a renaissance of art and poetry, morals and spirituality in life.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE FIRM FOUNDATION.

"E'en down to old age all my people shall prove
My sovereign, eternal, unchangeable love;
And when hoary hairs shall their temples adorn,
Like lambs they shall still in my bosom be borne.
The soul that on Jesus hath leaned for repose,
I will not, I will not desert to his foes;
That soul, though all hell should endeavor to shake,
I'll never, no never, no never forsake!"

—George Keith.

SOME of the religious journals in the South are disposed to sneer at our Northern editors, who have the courage to speak a word on behalf of the Negro. Indeed, it is considered almost an unpardonable sin for them to regard the Negro other than a burly brute, intent only on outraging white women. Now, if our super-sensitive Southern editors would resolve to do a little missionary work along Gospel lines among these offensive Negroes they would, in a very short time, relieve their Northern brethren from the necessity of saying and writing those things that have so thoroughly stirred them up. We rather enjoy the stirring up because we happen to know that the Negroes in too many instances are criminally neglected in matters pertaining to their moral and intellectual and social development.

ALLEGHENY COLLEGE, Meadville, Pa., is in the midst of a wonderful revival of religion. Dr. Spencer, secretary of our Church Extension Board, visited Allegheny College during week of the Day of Prayer for Colleges. The fire he brought was from heaven and enkindled every soul it touched. Three services of two hours each during the day, with Dr. Spencer's inspired sermons, exhortations and songs, resulted in an old-fashioned revival. A dozen students professed conversion during the day, as many more were seeking and everybody seemed deeply moved. Conviction was manifest in the faces of the most hardened. Revival meetings are continuing in the college every evening with conspicuous results. More than twenty students converted already, and more are seeking an interest in the cleansing blood. President Crawford is greatly lifted up by wonderful spiritual visitation.

TIMELY NOTICE TO THE ESSAY WRITER.

The editor of the Michigan Christian Advocate says:

"We occupied just one hour the other day putting an essay in shape for publication. We were compelled to divide it into several parts, attach new headings, change much of the phraseology, and cut and slash generally. As a rule, a popular essay is never in shape for publication in a newspaper. It is always too long and generally too rhetorical. Let essays be rewritten and condensed before being sent to a newspaper."

Ah! Brother Potts, we have had the same experience with the essay writer, only he has threatened to boycott the SOUTHWESTERN if all his essay was not published. We find it as a rule that those who really say things of importance condense their matter and put it in as few words as possible, while those who do not have much to say often deluge us with manuscript which neither the writers' or the editor can fully comprehend. We are determined, however, to use our best judgment in the premises, so that if a writer finds his matter materially condensed, it is because we must throw overboard all superfluous verbiage. It would be far better if correspondents would attend to this matter before sending their articles to this office. It would save us much trouble, besides give them an opportunity of correcting mistakes, and otherwise getting their matter in a presentable shape.

IS THE CHURCH ADVANCING?

The warning words of the prophet Isaiah—"Awake, awake, put on thy strength, O Zion," ought to be thundered down the line to day as never before. The battle for the supremacy of the Christian religion is on, but how few of the soldiers of the King are prepared for the fray. Sectional strife, vain-glorious emulation, mere denominational pride, colorophobia, and spiritual lassitude and indifference have invaded the camp of Israel; while the enemy, seizing the strategic positions, prepares to prolong the strife, and thus postpone the day of final victory. In an article in one of our leading religious journals we find the following warning words from Bishop Newman:

"The Church is largely to blame for the present disordered condition in the industrial world. She has cathedrals for the rich and conventicles for the poor; aristocratic Sunday schools for the offspring of the millionaire and ragged schools for the children of the workingman; eloquent, high-salaried clergymen for the affluent, and cheap city missionaries for the indigent; she is a sycophant at the altars where the prosperous claim to worship, and the patronizer at the altars where the laborer bows in prayer."

A terrible arraignment indeed, but not at all out of proportion to the real facts in the case. The good bishop has been a careful observer in all lands. He has seen with his own eyes and heard with his own ears, and speaks from that experience which should command the attention of all Christian people.

Not less terrible are the following words from Bishop Foster, whose experience and opportunities of observation in this and in other lands are limited only by the circumference of the globe. Hear him:

"The Church of God is to-day courting the world. Its members are bringing it down to the level of the ungodly. The ball, the theater, nude and lewd arts, social luxuries, with all their loose moralities, are making inroads into the sacred enclosure of the Church. Our great dangers, as we see them, are assimilation to the world, neglect of the poor, substitution of the form for the fact of godliness, abandonment of discipline, a hireling ministry, an impure gospel, which, summed up, is a fashionable church."

Some will say these are pessimistic utterances, but we do not so understand it. The fact is there is far too much worldliness in the Church—too much of a desire to cater to the whims and prejudices of worldly-minded people. The Church must rule the world or be ruled by it. Just now the crisis is upon us. Our only safety is in an entire consecration to God of our time, talents, lives. The Gospel of Christ will win. It ought to have the mastery now. "It is the power of God unto salvation." But its disciples must give it wings, and thought, and the prestige of their highest devotion. Perhaps the picture drawn is dark, yet there are signs of a brighter day. The kingdoms of this world will some day become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ. This thought should accelerate and accentuate Christian zeal and activity, and interest afresh. Let the Church but awake to her grand and glorious opportunity, and the world will be saved in a single decade.

—S. M. Bolden, Conroe, Tex., writes: "We are gliding along nicely with the work committed to our charge, and have made some improvements on our church here by putting in pulpit furniture, painting, and have reseated our church with new benches. Our work is well organized; good Sundays, home mission auxiliaries, Epworth League chapters, and they are doing good work. Our first quarter came on Feb. 10, which resulted in success. Rev. A. C. Culbreath, presiding elder, was on hand with his kind and gentle manner. We are not failing in trying to get our people to take and read the SOUTHWESTERN. Enclosed find money for one subscriber."

BISHOP WALDEN ON AFRICA.

In an eloquent address before the Chicago Methodist Preachers' Meeting a few days ago, Bishop Walden called attention to the work of African evangelization in such a way as to create unusual interest in the "Dark Continent." Among other good things he said:

"The influence of England, France, Germany, Italy, Belgium and the United States is being used for the suspension of the African slave trade, and it is likely the liquor traffic will be entirely inhibited in the neutral belt. I like to recognize Providence not only in the history of the past but in current history like this. Great is Africa's hope from Great Britain. Protestant Great Britain, from whom we get our free institutions, where the rights of man are even more sacred than under our own flag; they have no large disfranchised population as we have—we are not going to have it always. Good it is also to know that the Congo Free State—America's State, if you will—is larger than our own twenty-six States lying east of the Mississippi, that contain three fifths of our population and four fifths of our wealth, and that great African tract of fertility and future greatness will continue, as it now is, in the hands of free institutions and of Protestantism.

"How does it happen that with the colonizing spirit of the great aggressive nations, Africa has never been penetrated till in our own day? I believe she has been held back, as was America herself, for a prepared people; a people who could lay foundations; a people who, in our case, could make the stars and stripes mean what they mean.

"Providence alone has held back Africa for a like purpose. Africa has had a very strange influence upon our history. But for the black man we would have had no rebellion, no division of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Methodism has done much for the preparation of a people to go in and occupy Africa. Our Freedmen's Aid Society has planted educational centers in each of the Southern States except Kentucky. There are now 1,200,000 colored Methodists in this country, 250,000 of them members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and we are doing for them what is being done for no others—we are making them leaders. Our schools have sent out 10,000 teachers to the colored race. In Africa itself there are over twelve hundred missionary stations, and how grand the figure of Bishop William Taylor! May God lay Africa upon our hearts and consciences as never before."

It will thus be seen that our good bishop believes in the redemption of Africa by a "prepared people." By a people ready and qualified to pour into its teeming millions the blessings of highest and best types of Christian civilization. Africa will be redeemed by people who shall go not by force, but voluntarily, to help in the development of its vast commercial and agricultural resources, and to bring its great people under the power of the blessed Gospel of the Son of God.

—Rev. Taylor Moore, of Mineola, Tex., writes: "Mrs. Col. Springer spent Sabbath, Feb. 17, at Mineola, where a full church enjoyed her eloquent address, which was of the most practical nature, and yet richly embellished with literary wit and her own beautiful poetry, urging the claims of the M. E. W. H. M. Society. Thirty-five began an auxiliary, with officers who will make it succeed, since the work is now well understood. At 8 p. m. a rare treat was given on "Jerusalem and Palestine," which was [illegible] stirring, spirit-awakening, powerful [illegible] dered beautiful with Christian truth. [illegible] is wide awake."

OUR : WOMEN'S : ROUND : TABLE

The Influence of the Home in the Uplifting of our People.

NINTH LETTER—BY T. E. W.

Mothers! One of the first steps in the rearing of your children should be to cultivate the habit of neatness. There is no better way to study home-training than in the school-room. I have noted students whose apparel was extremely simple, yet there was so much neatness about them that you could not help being attracted. Again, on the other hand, there are some with whom we come in contact that—well, they make you feel as though you would like to take them in hand. This can only be acquired in the home training. While they are young is your only chance. Begin now to make exemplary men and women.

You say, am I opposed to girls accepting the company of boys? I say emphatically, Yes! There is no better way for a young girl to come to her ruin than by keeping company with "would-be men." Without a doubt, it injures her social standing, for few men will visit ladies who believe in entertaining this class of boys. This is one of the things I have always tried to avoid, and I am sure it has been very helpful.

There is another thing that should be avoided, namely—school-room courtships. Mothers should be very particular in guarding against this very popular folly. We have known of several instances where the future careers of promising boys and girls were blighted by the determined and persistent cultivation of serious relations in the school room. A few giddy, masculine girls and effeminate boys will spoil a whole school. Teachers, as well parents, should be on the watch for those who are in school only for the fun of it.

I give space to the following letter from a correspondent at Pontotoc, Miss.:

WOMAN'S WORK IN THE CHURCH.

"Where does it begin—where does it end? It has been said that woman's work is never done, and it is equally as true in the religious field as in the every-day duties of life. We see it around us; we hear of it; we read of it in our periodicals, of the great good that the women are doing, and the great success with which they are meeting, and too much could not be said upon this great and wonderful subject—for it is woman's work that keeps this world of ours moving on from conquest to victory.

H. W. PAYNE."

TRIFLES—One quart of flour, one cup of sugar, two tablespoonful melted butter, one egg, two teaspoonsful of baking powder sifted with the flour, and enough sweet milk to make stiff as crullers. Roll into thin sheets and cut in pieces about two by four inches. Make as many cuts across the short way as possible. Pass two knitting-needles under every other strip. Spread the needles as far apart as possible and with them hold the trifles in the fat until light brown.

—There are fewer daily papers in the South than in the North, and they have fewer readers. The weekly papers and periodicals have a relatively higher value according to circulation in the South, because when read at all they are more generally and more thoroughly read.—Printers' Ink.

—This miracle, like the most of our Lord's, was a redemptive act.... Want is a fruit of the fall. Christ's work aims at a restoration of the original plenty, and a redemption from all the fruits of the curse in His kingdom.—M. W Jacobus.

Rev. Prof. J. W. E. Bowen, Ph. D., D. D., in New Orleans.

At a meeting of the Preachers' Institute, held at New Orleans University, New Orleans, La., February 18-21, the undersigned were appointed a committee and drafted the following resolutions:

WHEREAS, The lectures in exegical, historical, and practical theology, by Dr. John W. E. Bowen, of Gammon Theological Seminary, Atlanta, Ga., delivered in the Preachers' Room of the New Orleans University, were able, clear, accurate and scholarly; and the sermons and addresses in the city churches, were strong, eloquent, fearless and inspiring to unity and consecration to the great, high and holy interests of the educational and missionary enterprises of the Church in America and other lands beyond the sea. Therefore, be it

1. Resolved, That we record our very high estimate and appreciation of the Theological Institute conducted by Dr. J. E. W. Bowen, as an aid and inspiration, not only to the undergraduates, but also to those who are in the arduous pastoral office.

2. Resolved, That we regard Dr. Bowen, as seen in his work and spirit, as a safe, true, wise and an eminently trustworthy teacher and exemplar of the rising ministry of the Church, such as our enlightened modern day demands.

3. Resolved, That we heard with Christian delight of the large fund established in Gammon by that man of God, Ed. Stewart of Illinois, for the promotion of missionary interests in the young people of the universities and churches of the M. E. Church; and that already a splendid beginning has been made in the collection of a library on Africa, as a missionary field, with boundless natural wealth and resources, and that an earnest effort is being made to induce the young people to write missionary essays, poems and hymns of permanent value, that will pass into the Missionary History of the Church, and thus create a missionary literature, increase missionary intelligence and enthusiasm, deepen missionary conviction, purpose, and consecration, and ensure unity and perpetuity to the Church, and a large and blessed career of eminent usefulness for those who are to be the pride and glory of the family, the State, and the Church in the future.

4. Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the authorities of the New Orleans University and the Gammon Seminary, and that, also, a copy be sent to the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

The Secret of a Successful Nation.

By THOS. L. ROUTT, Berea College, Ky.

The history of civilization shows that in proportion as every nation has recognized the workings of a divine hand in just such proportion has she prospered; and in just such measure as she has failed to observe the commands of the divine statutes, she has waned in power and influence. Antique relics of the once powerful nations tell the story more vividly than the poet can portray with his pen, or the artist with his brush. Israel, in her travels, by her folly saw the wisdom of a divine cognizance. Egypt, mother of civilization, whose love the poet loves to sing; whose art the sculptors feign would mimic, and whose library sages and philosophers sought as the greatest fountain of learning, is almost a forgotten history with a few of its ruins, showing the heights to which it reached and the depths to which it fell. Rome, famed for her art and beauty—"once mistress of the world"—of whose reputed founder Homer sang so sweetly; through whose streets triumphant processions marched with slaves laden with spoils of war has almost disappeared. Only the remains of tombs, aqueducts, arches, baths, and the colosseum with its tiers of seats in which fair ladies witnessed the combats of fierce lions and tigers tell the story of sin and pollution, and point out the fate of every nation which follows her example. Three times within the present century has the capital of France been invaded by foreign armies. She sowed the seed of infidelity and reaped the harvest of the French revolution. She is, by nature, blessed with a genial climate; her soil rich in production; rich clusters of grapes smile from her sunny hills; and she might become the greatest nation of the earth, but for her religious views her moral history is a disgrace to modern civilization.

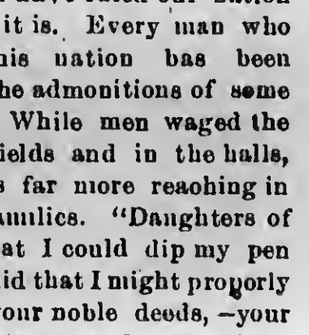
At the beginning the founders of our government sought to lay the foundation of a moral institution by which America should be ruled. No doubt, while Plymouth Rock was the best spot on earth on which to begin the foundation of a government, but the founders trusted not to the solidity of a material stone, but remembered the conditional promise to the house of our father patriot, Jacob: "If ye will obey my voice, indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people." This the nation has endeavored to keep, but human-like, it erred. By worshipping the idol, slavery, heedless of the clouds and the threatening dangers, she found herself about to be rent in twain by the storm of the Civil War; but with Lincoln, a man of God, as our captain at the helm, and a faithful crew of shipmen on deck, by scanning the heavens for a guiding and putting forth double efforts, the old ship, badly tempest-tossed, was landed safe into the haven of eternal freedom. The storm ceased; the clouds disappeared, and the glorious sun shed its effulgent rays no longer upon a division of free men and of slaves, but upon a union of freedom. Engendered strife was soon forgotten. North and South were at once consolidated, and the slave sealed the bond of union.

"Like sentinel and nun, they keep
Their vigils on the green,
One seems to guard and one to weep
The dead that lies between."

The primary object of the nation was restitution. The captives having been set at liberty, next the binding of the broken-hearted. Now more cotton and sugar are raised in the South, more grain in the West, and more manufactured articles are produced in the East. The nation both saw and felt the result of its folly. The working of the constitution began in both spirit and letter.

The secret of every successful government depends upon the purity of its individuals. A corrupt nation can no more prosper than a corrupt individual. Every article of our constitution has a vast significance; each stone, from turret to foundation, bears its label; charity at the bottom, charity in the middle, charity at the top. Not for America only, but for all mankind. The Psalmist said: "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord." This is verified by our untold possessions, grand institutions of learning, magnificent edifices of worship, and the millions of peaceful homes, whose firesides are surrounded by bright and happy faces.

All nations of earth are learning rapidly to care more for their fellow man. This is the spreading of his kingdom among men. When the news of the Johnstown disaster spread throughout Christendom, England's sympathies at once leaped the waters with aid for the unfortunate. At any accident or death of the rulers of any country, messages of condolence from the heads of various nations, with lightning speed across the waters to nation of the bereft, are sent. Philanthropy is our nation's motto.



But while we possess many of the characteristics so essential to a Christian nation, we are not by any means perfect. Many grave moral questions, which threaten the prosperity of a Christian nation, are staring us in the face for solution. "Watchman, what of the night? What are the signs of promise?" Catholicism must cease to spread; the rum power must be pulverized, the Southern problem solved. Railing will not check the growth of Catholicism; nor burning at the stake, or swinging from a limb solve the Southern problem. Nothing short of the Golden Rule will work successfully on this line. The W. C. T. U. has done noble work in the cause of temperance. Not only the W. C. T. U., but the women of our country are the silent forces which have ruled our nation and made it what it is. Every man who has benefitted his nation has been strengthened by the admonitions of some faithful woman. While men waged the warfare on the fields and in the halls, you fought battles far more reaching in results in your families. "Daughters of Liberty," wish that I could dip my pen in inspiration's fluid that I might properly tell the world of your noble deeds,—your virtue, your constancy and your piety. I would paint it fairer than the lilies of the valley, more beautiful than the roses of Sharon, and as enduring as eternity.

If this nation of ours would maintain its dignity and ever have "the horn of abundance" poured out upon us, we must ever cherish the highest respects for morals, seek purity in politics, purity in religion, purity in our homes, God in our hearts.

"My Trade will take anything I give them; they believe what I tell them; and I mean to sell them what I make the most on." That is what one grocer actually gives as a reason for selling washing-powders—imitations—instead of the original and best washing-compound—Pearline. If grocers and customers were all like these, the millions of women who are now blessing Pearline would still be doing useless hard work. But when you come across such a dealer, don't let him put you off with anything except Pearline. 397 JAMES PYLE, New York.

INBRED LEPROSY.

Jesus, a word, a look from thee,
Can turn my heart and make it clean:
Purge out the inbred leprosy,
And save me from my bosom sin

Lord, if thou wilt, I do believe
Thou canst the saving grace impart;
Thou canst this instant now forgive,
And stamp thine image on my heart.

My heart, which now to thee I raise,
I know thou canst this moment cleanse:
The deepest stains of sin efface,
And drive the evil spirit hence.

Be it according to thy word;
Accomplish now thy work in me:
And let my soul, to health restored,
Devote its deathless powers to thee.

DAILY THOUGHTS.

[From Phillips Brooks.]

FEBRUARY 28.—Nothing is completely good that is not infinite.

FEBRUARY 29.—Be your own best self, for the good of your fellow-men.

MARCH 1.—It seems to me, my friends, that all this great picture of the liberty into which Christ sets man, in the first place does one thing which we are longing to see done in the world. It takes away the glamor and the splendor from sin. It breaks that spell by which men think that the evil thing is the glorious thing. If the evil thing be that which Christ has told us that the evil thing is—which I have no time to tell you now—if every sin that you do is not simply a stain upon your soul, but is keeping you out from some great and splendid thing which you might do, then is there any sort of splendor and glory about sin?

MARCH 2.—Never dare to touch any man's life without the most perfect and absolute reverence, because you are touching the most sacred thing that is in this world.

MARCH 3.—Oh! how this world has perverted words and meanings, that the mastery of Jesus Christ should seem to be the imprisonment and not the enfranchisement of the soul! When I bring a flower out of the darkness and set it in the sun, and let the sunlight come streaming down upon it, and the flower knows the sunlight for which it was made and opens its fragrance and beauty; when I take a dark pebble and put it into the stream and let the silver water go coursing down over it and bringing forth the hidden color that was in the bit of stone, opening the nature that is in them, the flower and stone rejoice. I can almost hear them sing in the field and in the stream. What then? Shall not man bring his nature out into the fullest illumination, and surprise himself by the things that he might do? Oh! the littleness of the lives that we are living! Oh! the way in which we fail to comprehend, or when we do comprehend, deny to ourselves the bigness of that thing which it is to be a man, to be a child of God!

MARCH 4.—What is the Christian? Everywhere the man who, so far as he comprehends Jesus Christ, so far as he can get any knowledge of Him, is His servant, the man who makes Christ the teacher of his intelligence and the guide of his soul, the man who obeys Christ as far as he has been able to understand Him. What, you say, the man who imperfectly understands Christ, who don't know anything about His divinity, who denies the great doctrines of the Church in regard to Him, is he a Christian? Certainly he is, my friends. There is no other test than this, the following of Jesus Christ.

MARCH 5.—Let yourselves never think that you grow liberal in faith by believing less; always be sure that the true liberality of faith can only come by believing more.

Meharry Medical College Commencement.

It was indeed a great and an inspiring sight to witness the graduation of thirty-six persons—twenty-nine in medicine, two in dentistry and five in pharmacy.

It was the nineteenth anniversary of the Meharry Medical College, the ninth of the dental department and the sixth of the pharmaceutical department of the Central Tennessee College.

In the audience and on the platform were a number of well-known white citizens, including teachers and professional men. On the platform were seated, besides the visitors, the members of the faculty of Meharry Medical College, the graduating classes and the college choir. The exercises throughout were of general interest and the speakers were rewarded with deserved applause.

Rev. J. Bradon briefly referred to the purpose of the evening, and introduced the first speaker, Joseph Edgar Dibble, of Houston, Tex., who delivered the salutatory in connection with his thesis. His subject was "Anæsthetics." It was graceful, elegantly phrased and well delivered.

Charles Alexander Kelly, A. B., spoke the valedictory on behalf of the pharmaceutical department, choosing as his subject "Progressus Pharmaciæ." After a brief and clear account of the growth of pharmacy as a science, he said the class farewell in most beautiful language, pointing to the heights yet open to the earnest student to be attained by constant effort.

The medical valedictory was delivered by David H. Clay Scott, of Hollywood, Ala., whose thesis was "Eczema." His treatment of this annoying disease showed study and research. The valedictory portion of the address was especially fine, containing a high tribute to the work of the college, an affectionate farewell to the faculty, a cheering hope for the success of his fellow-classmates.

Dr. Braden, president of the Central Tennessee College, then conferred the degrees, the respective classes being presented in turn by Dr. G. W. Hubbard, dean of the medical department. The graduates were applauded by the audience, particularly the woman graduate in pharmacy, Dr. Nannie B. Joyce. The graduates were as follows, their home and the subject of their graduating theses being also given:

Pharmaceutical Department—William Henry Bailey, Clarksville, Tenn., "Glucosides;" Nannie B. Joyce, Pulaski, Tenn., "Pharmaceutical Incompatibility;" I. B. Kigh, Selma, Ala., "Fixed and Essential Oils;" Charles Alexander Kelly, A. B., Carthage, N. C., "Progressus Pharmaciæ;" I. Stavons Watkins, Montgomery, Ala., "Repercolation."

Dental Department—J. Abner Agnew, Guyandotte, W. Va., "Hypercementosis;" B. Frederic Barlow, Town Bluff, Tex., "Oris et Maxillarii Tumores."

Medical Department—C. Livingston Agnew, Guyandotte, W. Va., "Articular Rheumatism;" Napoleon J. Atkinson, Atlanta, Ga., "Follicular Vulvitis;" James Lot Bullock, A. B., Greenshorough, N. C., "Morbus Suffocans Vel Strangulatorius;" Eugene Thomas Butler, Anguilla, Miss., "Pelvi-peritonitis;" Clinton C. Craddock, Marshall, Mo., "Encephalites;" Joseph Edgar Dibbles, Houston, Tex., "Anæsthetics;" Joseph Benton Dickson, A. B., Sparta, Ga., "Medicina Progressa Scientia;" Lewis Edgar Duncan, Plummerville, Ark., "Pulmonary Tuberculosis;" Augustus G. Edwards, Selma, Ala., "Hæmatorrhagia Medullæ Spinallis;" John Walter Fridia, B. P., Marshall, Tex., "Meningo-cerebritis;" Philip William Fort, Eureka, N. C., "Physician's Secrets;" John Berkeley Goins, Tuscaloosa, Ala., "Lymphangiectasis;" Bryson E. Henderson, Anvergne, Ark., "Puerperal Septicæmia;" John W. Hunguley, Columbus, Ga., "Vesico-utero-vaginal fistulæ;" John Angelo Lester, A. B., Brownsville, Tenn., "Typhoid Fever;" William A. J. Moseley, Brunswick, Ga., "Diabetes Mellitus;" Thomas Theodore McKinney, Van Alstyne, Tex., "Pneumohemorrhagia;" Ulysses Grant Mason, Birmingham, Ala., "Filaria Sanguinis Hominis;" Thomas J. Mayo, Chicago, Ill., "Pleuritis;" John Edward Perry, Clarksville, Tex., "Schizomycetes;" Charles H. Pinkston, Sparta, Ga., "Vulvitis;" Francis W. Puryear, Murfreesboro, Tenn., "Hepatic Cirrhosis;" Peter R. Robinson, Galloway, Tenn., "Pericarditis;" David H. Clay Scott, Hollywood, Ala., "Eczema;" William Ratcliff Settle, Madison, N. C., "Pseudo-Membraneus Anglua;" Chas. Taylor Smith, Christianburg, Va., "Oopho-Salpingitis;" Hugh L. Steele, Newport, Ark., Chronic Endometritis;" Isaiah C. Turner, Louisville, Ky., "Laryngismus Stridulus;" John Thos. Wilson, Nashville, Tenn., "Marsh Miasm."

Rev. B. F. Rawlins, D. D., of Cincinnati, assistant editor of the Western Christian Advocate, delivered the address to the graduating class. It was a masterly effort, and elicited generous applause. Among many other good things he said:

"This college and these graduates were helping to answer the question. The Negroes of this country are on probation as are no other people on the planet. How were they going to stand the test? The answer was of infinite importance to the population of the world—black and white. It would affect all the great problems of to-day. We were now in the most intense moments of life the world had ever seen; the intensity pervaded all classes. Christendom was never so bright and strong; heathendom was never so deep and dark. Where Christianity reigned it was better and stronger than ever, since the ascension; where evil prevailed it was broader and more powerful than since the primal fall. Whatever troubles might have beset in the past the Negro race, their simply being in America was a blessing that should make them patient for the future." To the graduating class he would say that this was an important hour. Men of the Negro race had helped the race by helping themselves. This class could do the same. Would it not be a great victory for the race if some day it could be said that the greatest orator, the greatest doctor in America was a Negro? Quit you like men.

During the past year the enrollment at the Meharry Medical College has been 102 in the medical, 12 in the dental and 16 in the pharmaceutical departments. Every Southern State, a number of the Northern States and the Bermuda Islands were represented.

William Sevier, who had previously finished the course prescribed and practiced for two years, was granted a diploma, though not present. He graduated at the Illinois College of Pharmacy last year.

THE PASSING OF THE GREAT LEADER.

At 7 o'clock p. m., on Wednesday, February 20, Frederick Douglass, the matchless orator and the great leader of the Negro race, ceased at once to work and live, after a most remarkable and brilliant career. Born a slave in Tuckahoe, Talbott county, Maryland, Feb. 18, 1817, at a time and place where the accursed institution of slavery had almost a monopoly of public sentiment in its favor, young Douglass began that career that has made his name and fame a household word throughout the entire civilized world. The story of his early struggles for freedom have been told hundreds and thousands of times, and there are but few intelligent people who have not read and studied the various phases in the career of this remarkable man. He was one of the most striking characters of American history, and contributed probably more than any other man toward the overthrow of human slavery in the United States. Few names in American history are as significant and as unique as that of Fred Douglass.

For fifty years he has stood before the American people and the world as the peerless leader of his race. Clean, pure, high-minded, dignified, cultured, well-poised, he was the living exponent of the capacity of the race to attain to the very highest excellency of character. He was well rounded and symmetrical—physically, morally and mentally. But few men have been honored with such a successful career. To be associated with such men as William Lloyd Garrison, Gerritt Smith, Owen Lovejoy, Levi Coffin, John Brown, Charles Sumner, Wendell Phillips, Henry Wilson, and to be the trusted counselor of President Abraham Lincoln during the great crisis through which the nation was passing, were honors that fell to the lot of but few men. He had the good sense and judgment not to abuse the confidence reposed in him, and hence strengthened and intensified the efforts which were being put forth for the betterment of the condition of his people. He has lived above suspicion, having held many offices of public trust and emolument, during which time no suggestion was made that might reflect upon his integrity.

He was a great and good man, and we shall never see his like again. We are thankful that he lived to see his most sanguine hopes realized. He had labored, traveled, spoken, written, and plead for the liberation of his people from bondage; had taken an active part in the enlistment of men of his race to take part of the responsibility in the overthrow of that institution which made him less than a man. He had witnessed the liberation of more than four and a half millions of his people. He had seen them invested with all the privileges of citizenship. He helped to stir up the philanthropic sentiment of the American people in behalf of their education. He had witnessed the growth of the race in intelligence, morality and wealth; and, although seventy-eight years had crowned his noble brow with the silvery tokens of the approach of the end, his heart was as young as a child's, and as loving and tender. How eminently fitting then, at the close of such an illustrious career, that this great father and leader should spend almost his last hours on earth in giving encouragement to the work of the National Council of Women and in the utterance of prophetic words, looking toward their ultimate and complete enfranchisement.

Years ago Mr. Douglass was licensed to preach, we are told, in the M. E. Church; but the stirring events of those days that tried men's souls caused him to take the lecture platform, and coming as he did in sharp contact with the burning questions touching the condition of his enslaved people, it was reasonable at times that he should grow restless and somewhat pessimistic. But it was reserved for that remarkable woman of the race, Sojourner Truth, to strengthen his faith in God as never before. On one occasion, while addressing a large audience in the interest of his people, whose condition seemed to grow more and more hopeless, he for a moment the first and only time in his life felt that Providence had turned away from them. It gave way to evil forebodings; and probably for was then that this strange woman arose, and addressing the orator, said: "Douglass, is God dead?" The effect was electrical, and the scene indescribable; strong men wept and shouted. It was a great but unexpected climax. From that day Fred Douglass never lost faith in God, nor did he cease to devote his time, talent and life to the development of the institutions of Christianity. His memory will be long enshrined in the hearts of his people, while his deeds will make a most brilliant page in the history of his native land.

THE RETURN OF THE WATCHMAN.

We have reference now to the return of the pastors assigned to the churches in New Orleans and vicinity, and to the presiding elders of the districts in which these pastors are to serve their respective congregations during this conference year by the Godly judgment of Bishop Bowman and the presiding elders of the Louisiana Conference. The SOUTHWESTERN extends to these brethren a hearty welcome, and humbly tenders its assistance in the great work of extending the Master's kingdom. It will be our constant prayer that there may be the most faithful and consecrated service on the part of each brother, with that devotion to all the interests of the Church, that will put our beloved Methodism in the very forefront among the agencies instituted for the uplifting of humanity. The conference has already spoken emphatically in favor of putting the SOUTHWESTERN in every family within its bounds. It can be done if each pastor will do his duty. At this writing New Orleans, with nearly one-fourth of the conference membership, gives the feeblest support to the paper. We have enrolled about one subscriber to each twenty-eight members of our city churches. We have at least six hundred families, four hundred of which do not take the ADVOCATE; but we are expecting better things of them this year. We hope each pastor will keep a list of the subscribers in his charge, so that we can publish from time to time the number in each charge. We will thank the presiding elders if they will more frequently call attention to the claims of the SOUTHWESTERN. We respectfully urge the pastors to arrange for a series of mass meetings to be held in their churches in the interest of the SOUTHWESTERN at an early date.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Brother Daniel Taylor, of Kennerville, La., speaks hopefully of his work this year. He was kindly welcomed by the people, and the outlook is good.

—Rev. John W. Thomas, late pastoral supply of Haven's Chapel, Washington, D. C., died in great peace on the morning of February 11. He was a good, true man.

—W. McNeil, Ocean Springs, Miss., writes: "A number of good brothers and sisters came to the parsonage recently and brought many good things. Brother W. M. Johnson and others deserve praise."

—The appreciative and tender obituary of Sister Prettyman, which was published in last week's SOUTHWESTERN, was written by the Rev. H. N. Brown, presiding elder of the Marion District, of the Central Alabama Conference.

—Rev. J. G. Jones writes from Leitchfield, Ky.: "Our five weeks' meeting closed with 58 conversions and the church greatly revived. Rev. R. Acton and Mrs. Lewis, of Indianapolis, Ind., rendered good service. We are spiritually alive"

—The jury in the case of Rev. M. H. Nichols, accused before the criminal court of libeling Rev. Dr. T. B. Ford, presiding elder of the Seattle District, Puget Sound Conference, brought in a verdict of guilty. The many friends of Dr. Ford rejoice in his vindication.

—F. J. Yeargin, pastor at Spring Hill, Tenn., writes: "The winter has been very bad, but I have been successful in holding on. There has been some sickness among our membership, but we are trusting in God. There is light ahead, and all things are hopeful."

—Tullahoma, Tenn., under the pastorate of Rev. W. R. Smith, is having a liberal share of prosperity. Presiding Elder H. W. White's recent visit was helpful and inspiring. The outlook is bright. The new form of the SOUTHWESTERN is greatly appreciated there, and a promise of many new subscribers is cheering.

—J. Beaden, local preacher, McKinney, Tex.: "The SOUTHWESTERN is a great help to us in this part of the vineyard. Our pastor is doing as well as anyone could do under the circumstances. We have been trying to complete our parsonage, but have been stopped by the continued dull season. We are looking upward.

—At Bryan, Tex., the outlook is cheering. The first quarterly meeting was good. Presiding Elder Duncan was there and served faithfully. Rev. L. S. Blakenly is leading the church on to victory. During the quarterly meeting two cash subscribers were secured for the SOUTHWESTERN. So writes Mrs. Mollie L. Watson.

—We congratulate the Michigan Christian Advocate on its acquisition of new and commodious quarters. We are certain that there will be an improvement along all lines, although it is now second to none of our semi officials. We are praying down here for such a deluge of subscribers as will wash us out of our present surroundings into very desirable "new quarters."

—Mrs. Mary E. Wilson writes from Holly Springs, Miss: "A company of sisters and brothers recently took possession of the parsonage and prepared a table of delicious viands. It was an enjoyable affair. Mrs. Mary Reed was the leading spirit of the occasion. This reception, given in honor to the new pastor of Asbury M. E. Church, was highly enjoyed by all."

—Mrs. Cornelia V. Levy writes interestingly concerning the organization of a new church on the Goodman Circuit, Conparlo, Miss., by Rev. A. D. Gerion, pastor. Notwithstanding the severe cold, 27 persons joined the new organization, which starts out favorably. After an inspiring sermon by the pastor, three class leaders were appointed, and the little vessel was launched.

—W. J. Holland, Hawkins, Tex.: "Notwithstanding the threatening storm, a crowded house welcomed Mrs. Col. Springer Monday night, Feb. 18; many teams coming from Center, five miles. Everybody was delighted with the lecture, and twenty began a M. E. W. H. M. S amid great enthusiasm. The collection, $3.15, was more than Mrs. Springer received at twelve good appointments in Texas.

—We congratulate the pastor, Rev. H. W. Tate, and the loyal members and friends of Union Chapel, Cincinnati, Ohio, on their joyful and successful entrance into their own church property. After many years of struggle and toil, and disappointment; bruised and scattered, the loyal few have at last reached a commanding position, and the way is now open for a career of glorious work for the Master.

—Rev. H. W. Conner, a venerable superannuate of the Central Alabama Conference, like many of the brethren of his class, has not been able to accumulate much of this world's goods, and now in his declining years finds it hard to make ends meet. He has been preaching for over forty years, and is now in his seventieth year. He resides at Selma, Ala. We are sure that he needs substantial help.

—Rev. C. D. C. Shallowhorne, late pastor of Mallalieu M. E. Church, this city, goes to Donaldsonville, La., his old home, as pastor for this conference year. He called at the office last week and brought in a subscriber, which adds to the list which he has so diligently helped to increase in Mallalieu. He gives us assurances that he will labor as faithfully in his new field to give the SOUTHWESTERN the recognition which it deserves.

—Rev. Dr. Potts, editor of the Michigan Christian Advocate, his wife and several Methodist friends, are to visit the Southland. We shall gladly peruse his impressions of the land and its people as he "writes them up" for his paper. There are two Southlands, however—one that the visitor will see through the eyes of friends who take him in hand, and the other that may be seen when one travels incognito, with open eyes and ears for the truth only.—Ex.

—Winnie Armstrong writes: "The Portland Mission, Louisville, Ky., is in a hopeful condition. Pastor Chas. Miller is progressive and leads nicely. We have bought a lot, upon which we hope soon to erect a church. Elders S. G. Turner of Cokes Chapel, S. Stone of Lloyd Street, and the presiding elder, G. A. Sissel, have been very helpful to us. In the midst of much trouble and embarrassment we are still looking ahead."

"Yield Not to Misfortune."

I was afflicted with catarrh last autumn. During the month of October I could neither taste or smell and could hear but little. Ely's Cream Balm cured it.—Marcus Geo. Shantz, Rahway, N. J.

I suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since a boy, and I have never hoped for cure, but Ely's Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many acquaintances have used it with excellent results. —Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren Ave., Chicago, Ill. Cream Balm is agreeable.

A Temple of Art.

Not for a Day but for all Time.

Memories of the White City are fading—all but one. Majestic in its beauty the Palace of Art survives to remind man kind of wonders departed. Triumphant over fire and tempest the stately structure stands beside the lake dedicated forever to the service of the people. As a gallery of painting and sculpture it surprised and delighted the nations. As the Field's Columbian Museum it will entertain and instruct multitudes in the ages to come.

A World's Fair in miniature is the museum to-day. While it lasts the public will have before them a vivid reminder of the greater exposition of 1893. It will bring back the vast pamorama of splendid exhibits including the fine showing made by

The analysis of Dr. Price's by government experts demonstrated its immeasurable superiority in leavening strength, purity and general excellence and gained for it the Highest Award at the Fair.

Union Chapel Dedication.

The dedication of Union Chapel, Ninth street, on last Sabbath, was a great event for the cause of the colored Methodist Episcopal congregation of Cincinnati. It was the outcome of many difficulties overcome, and the triumph of the faith and energy of the friends of this good cause, both black and white. The services lasted all day, opening very properly with the Sunday school exercises, presided over by Rev. E. R. Lewis, the superintendent. Rev. M. S. Johnson, of the Lexington Conference, and presiding elder of the Ohio District, next preached a most appropriate sermon The energetic pastor, through whose indefatigable labors this church has been kept together, Rev. H. W. Tate, spoke brief but stirring words. He has saved what seemed a "lost cause."

The dedicatory services proper were in the afternoon by Bishop Walden preaching a most tender, appropriate and moving sermon from the text, 'Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." Mr. Charles Wigley, of Covington, sang the solo with the refrain, "He is just the same to day." An interesting feature of the dedicatory services was the presentation of a warranty deed by Bishop Walden. The building as remodeled will make a handsome place of worship, with large suitable rooms for the varied services. Rev. M. Swadener, superintendent of the Cincinnati Church Extension Society, delivered a brief address on the Mission of the Church of Christ. The Epworth League took charge of the evening service, and finished up in complete style the interest that characterized the whole.

Our Methodist colored people have now a home and sanctuary of their own, and the kingdom of God we trust will rapidly grow in their midst. Among the ministers present were: Rev. R. S. Rust, D. D.; Rev. John Pearson, D. D ; Rev. M. Swadener, D. D.; Rev. M. S. Johnson, P. E.; Rev. H. W. Tate, pastor; Rev. Scott Ward, of Cumminsville; Rev. W. H. Vaughn, Rev. T. L. Wilson, of Madisonville; Rev. H. W. Simmons, of Steubenville, O.; Rev. H. W. Evans, Covington, Ky.; Rev. H. D. Prowd, D. D., of Union Baptist Church, this city; Rev. M. D. Carrell, D. D.; Rev. D. C. Williams, of Allen Temple, A. M. E., of this city. It will be seen that the property is in good hands. Among the trustees are Bishop J. M. Walden, Rev. R. S. Rust, Rev. E. R. Lewis, Rev. John Pearson, D. D.; Rev. J. C. Hartzell, D. D.; Rev. D. H Moore. D. D.; Dr. Jared Carey, Mr. James Augustus, Mr. John Ray.—Western Christian Advocate.

GOOD WORDS.

Rev. E. M. Collett, presiding elder of Greensboro District, North Carolina Conference: "The SOUTHWESTERN ought to be in the homes of all our people, and I give you my promise to do my best to secure all the cash subscribers that I can for our really great paper."

Rev. T. M. Dart, East Ohio Conference, and professor of Greek in N. E. Ohio Normal College, Canfield, Ohio: "Dear Brother Hammond—Let me congratulate you upon the improvement already made in the SOUTHWESTERN. My best wishes for abundant success."

Rev. W. R A. Palmer, A. M., B. D., professor of Greek language and literature, Cladin University, Orangeburg, S. C.: "Must congratulate you on the splendid success you are making with the SOUTHWESTERN."

Thos. I. Keys, Esq., Handsboro, Miss.: "You may expect a number of new subscribers from all over this State in short. I am encouraged with the outlook. Will continue to do all I can for the paper.

Bowling Green District Epworth League.

The Bowling Green District Epworth League Chapter No. 3 convened in the M. E. Church at Eddyville, Ky., February 12, Rev. T. L. Ferguson in the chair, and Prof. W. W. Williams secretary. The choir was composed of the selection of our city ladies and gentlemen, and the music was excellent. Rev. J. E. Warren, pastor, introduced the delegates. Professor Williams delivered the welcome address, which was responded to by Miss Nanie Pettit, of Princeton, Ky. The president explained the object of the organization. Rev. J. E. Warren read a good paper; also, papers were read by Miss Lizzie Henderson, of Ohio, and Rev. R. H. Killgo. The league has done much good in Eddyville, a large number having joined. The spirituality of the church is in a high state.

Rev. J. E. Warren has been appointed assistant chaplain in the State Penitentiary, being the first colored man appointed to that position. So much for the influence of our Methodism and the Epworth League. Brother Warren is deservedly popular here and all would like to see his return. M. & F.

LESSON HYMN. 8, 7, 7.

Jesus wept! those tears are over,
But his heart is still the same;
Kinsman, Friend, and older Brother,
Is his everlasting name.
Savior, who can love like thee,
Gracious One of Bethany!

When the pangs of trial seize us,
When the waves of sorrow roll,
I will lay my head on Jesus,
Pillow of the troubled soul,
Surely, none can feel like thee,
Weeping One of Bethany!

Time—Latter of February or early part of March, A. D. 30.

Place—Bethany.

Rulers—Herod in Galilee and Perea; Pilate in Jerusalem.

Connecting Links—Jesus was in Perea when a sudden summons brought him to the bedside, or rather the grave, of his friend Lazarus.

The Raising of Lazarus.

John 11.30-45.

Written for the Southwestern.

By Rev. G. N. Jolly, Kentucky Conference

GOLDEN TEXT—I am the resurrection, and the life. (John 11 25)

The Pharisees were angry at the man born blind because he had been healed. They called a council, tried him, and expelled him from the synagogue. Jesus soon found him and asked if he believed in the "Son of God." The man replied that he did, and worshiped the Savior. Some of the Pharisees gathered about Jesus and asked if they were blind also. He told them if they were blind, they would have no sin, but now their sin remained. He then let them know He was the door into the sheep-fold, and the good shepherd of the sheep. The Jews did not know who He was. Some said: "He hath a devil;" others said: "These are not the words of Him that hath a devil." "Can a devil open the eyes of the blind?" He is Elijah, or Jeremiah, or one of the old prophets. But Jesus said: "I and My Father are one." They took up stones to stone Him for blasphemy. But "He escaped out of their hands, and went away again beyond Jordan, into the place where John at first baptized." While there many resorted to Him; heard His teaching; saw His miracles, and believed on Him. It is not certainly known how long He remained in that locality; but during His stay there a messenger from Martha and Mary came and told Him that Lazarus was sick. Jesus remained in the same place—Bethabara—two more days, and then set out for Bethany. His disciples endeavored to prevent Him from going. He would not be hindered. Thomas said: "Let us also go, that we may die with Him." They journeyed West. The distance was about twenty-five miles. When He drew near to Bethany Martha heard He was coming and went to meet Him. After a brief conversation she returned to the house.

I. Jesus and Mary (29–33). 1. Jesus called for Mary. He is constantly calling for His own. He calls to the sinner to come away from his sins; to the worldly saint to give up all for Him, and to the pure in heart to walk close by His side. He calls through His Word, His gospel, His Spirit, and His Church. 2. Mary arose quickly and went to Him. When we hear that the Master is calling for us, will we not arise quickly and go to Him? Danger, death and destruction are in our pathway. Will we not be true to ourselves—our soul and body—and hasten to Jesus? He comforts those that mourn. 3. We may, by our example, lead others to Jesus. When the Jews that were in the house saw Mary going to the Master, they arose and followed her. Their motive was sincere if they did not know they were going to the Savior. And they were, by what they saw and heard, led to believe in Him. The influence of example is great. 4. When she came to Jesus she fell at His feet. She worshiped Him. When we approach the Savior we should humble ourselves before Him, and pay homage to Him. We may worship Him in prayer, in song, in listening to His gospel, in conversation, and in meditation. 5. We may never chide the Master for any seeming delay. Mary felt just a little hurt because He did not come when they sent for Him. This unkind feeling was a result of not knowing Him. She believed it was now impossible to bring Lazarus back from the dead. Every unkind feeling toward Jesus is a result of not knowing Him. Oh! that all the world knew His goodness, love and mercy. 6. Lazarus must have been a young man of noble character. He was tenderly loved by his sisters, greatly admired by the Savior, and held in high esteem among the Jews. How important it is for young men to so live, that they will have the love and friendship of all!—They will then be happy in the world to come, and missed and lamented when they depart from this life.

II. Jesus and Lazarus (34-35). 1. Jesus went to Lazarus; the dead man could not come to Him. There are many souls as dead spiritually as was Lazarus literally. They cannot go to Jesus. They have no desire to find Him. Jesus goes to them. He is constantly searching them out. He is ever seeking for the lost. 2. The awful condition of this man touched the Savior's heart. "Jesus wept." The blessed Christ is a real man. He can be touched with a feeling of our infirmities. He has sympathy and love for suffering humanity. He so loved the world that He came to redeem it. 3. The Jews thought that a man who could open the eyes of the blind could have kept this man from dying. But they thought it now impossible to raise him from the dead. So we often say: "This town is too bad; God can do nothing with it, and that man is too desperate; the Lord can never save him." We should take heed how we limit the power of God. "All things are possible to him that believeth." 4. Jesus said: "Take ye away the stone." Lazarus was entombed in a cave, and a great stone was placed over the entrance. Jesus could have removed this stone by His divine power; but He only does for others what they cannot do for themselves. Jesus desires to raise us from the death of sin; but at the door of our heart lays the stone of unbelief, the stone of depraved appetites, the stone of wicked habits, and the stone of vicious passions. These must be removed. To us He says: "Take ye away the stone." 5. But Martha objected—"Lord, he has been dead four days." How often God would bless us, but we prevent or hinder Him. When He would save our soul, or send times of refreshing into our heart, we suffer unbelief to step up and whisper: "It is too late now." We are cheated out of the blessing. Get behind me, ye blue devils of unbelief; you are an offense unto me. 6. Jesus often called upon the Father just before performing some mighty work. He spent the entire night in prayer before choosing the apostles. He remained alone, in devotion with the Father, six or eight hours before. He went to the disciples, walking on the water. And here, before He brought Lazarus back from the dead, He lifted up His eyes and voice to heaven and thanked the Father for hearing Him. How important it is for us to ask Divine guidance and help before entering into any great work. 7. He then commanded in a loud voice—"Lazarus, come forth!" What a voice—so powerful, so penetrating, that even the dead hear and obey. The same voice will, at the end of the world, speak in thunder tones, saying "Time shall be no more. Prepare to meet thy God." Then the earth and sea shall give up their dead, and all nations shall stand before the judgment seat of Christ. Reader, you will hear that voice and come forth. Are you ready to stand before the blessed Christ in judgment? 8. Then "he that was dead came forth, bound hand feet, in grave clothes." His heart began to beat and his blood to flow. The color returned to his cheek and the light to his eyes. Warmth came back to his body, and the odor of decay departed from him. He arose and came forth. At the end of the world our sleeping dust will hear His voice and come forth. This vile body will be changed and fashioned like unto His glorious body. "Oh, death, where is thy sting? Oh, grave, where is thy victory?" 9. It is no wonder that many of the Jews believed on Him. The person who could do such a work was more than man. As man He wept at the grave of Lazarus, as God He raised him from the dead. May we believe in Jesus and live for Him.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

Mr. C. C. Buel contributee a paper to the March Century, in which he shows that the modern customs of levying blackmail have prevailed in New York since the time of the early Dutch governors.

Dr. Parkhurst's first article to women in The Ladies' Home Jonrnal has proved so popular that the entire huge edition of the February issue of the magazine was exhausted within ten days, and a second edition of 45,000 copies has been printed.

The complete novel in the March issue of Lippincott's is "A Tame Surrender," by Captain Charles King. The other stories are all short. Two brief scientific articles are supplied by George J. Varney, "Electric Locomotives on Steam Roads," and "The Story of the Gravels," by Harvey B. Bashore. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

The Season for March will be much sought for. Over one hundred handsome illustrations for ladies' and children's garments are shown in this number, while the art work is of many and varied designs in lace work, crochet, embroidery, knitting, scorch work, herlin and arrangemente for the home decoratione. Yearly subscription, $3.50; single copies 30 cts. The Interoational News Company, 83 and 85 Duane street, New York, N. Y.

The first issue of The Independent for March will contain a symposium treating of the various interests of the South. The following is a partial list of subjects and writers for the number: Agriculture in the South, by Hon. Patrick Walsh, U. S. senator, Georgia; Labor in the South, by Senator Call, of Florida; Southern Newspapers and Literature, by F. H. Richardson, editor Atlanta Journal; The Colored Man in the South, by Rev. E. Lyon, D D.; The Newly Developed Cotton Industry, by Edward Porritt, Farmington, Conn.; Church Life in the South, by A. E. Dicklnson, D.D., Editor Religious Herald, Richmond, Va. Also several articles on the industrial condition of the various Southern States, indicating opportunities for financial investment, by members of Congress from each State in the South. Single copies 10c each. Address, The Independent, 130 Fulton street, New York City.

"Essential Christianity."—A series of explanatory sermons by Rev. Hugh Price Hughee, M. A. Hunt & Eaton, New York. Price, $1 25.

This volume is a most acceptable contribution to the Christian literature of this age; especially so since the battle against the progress of Christianity is being waged with increasing fury. The pure and simple gospel of the humble carpenter's son is the most potential agency in combating the unscientific prejudices of its foes, and in the ultimate establishment of the Christian religion throughout the world. In the twenty sermons, most ably prepared, the learned author carefully and scientifically presents the truth in a most pleasing and convincing manner. We commend this book to the Christian reading public with the belief that it will be exceedingly helpful in establishing them in the faith.

"The Dictionary of Scientific Illustrations and Symbols."—The first sentence of this strikingly attractive book describes aptly its purpose—"Scientific facts arranged so as to be of immediate use to men who require a suggestive topic, a forcible analogy, a cogent symbol, or a suitable illustration." And every one of the four hundred pages is a full illustration of that purpose. While the two very full and careful indexes, one of "General Topics," the other of "Natural Objects," adapt the volume to the readiest use of all for whom it is designed. Then the comprehensive "List of Authorities" at the end, giving the works referred to and explaining the abbreviations used to indicate them, is of manifest advantage to all who want to realize that they are safe in the use of the illustrations they employ in pulpit or on platform, in the mission of the orator, or the twin mission of the author. With such a book as this available, no one need be without such wealth. Here argument can find apt analogies, irony polished shafts, and pathos resistless appeals. 8vo. cloth, 420 pages, $2 postpaid. Wilbur B. Ketcham, publisher, 2 Cooper Union, New York.

—The distribution of the new Holy Land series, "Earthly Footsteps of the Man of Galilee," increases with each weekly issue. It is a superlatively meritorious work. Ten cents and a coupon secures a part post-paid if ordered from us.

—If the best use is made of existing means, they will insensibly multiply.—E. Johnson.

Wilberforce University.

Revs. T. D. Scott and G. W. Prioleau exchanged pulpits last week.

President Mitchel conducted the services on Sabbath morning, using for his theme; "Obedience, the step into liberty." The Society of Christian Endeavor was addressed on Tuesday night by Rev. Dr. McCaulay, of Dayton, State president Y. P. C. E. Introductory remarks by Bishop Arnett. Dr. McCaulay is a ready and forceful talker, and faculty and students were delighted with his address.

Prof. W. S. Scarborough attended the Lincoln banquet at Cincinnati, and responded to the toast, "The Negro and Republicanism."

Dr. J. G. Mitchell is preparing to visit Boston in the near future, in the interest of Payne Seminary.

President Mitchell has just returned Springfield, where he completed arrangements for Mrs. Douglass' lecture in the interest of Douglass Library Hall.

The C. N. and I. Board of Trustees met in its regular annual session Feb. 21, in the Park Hotel, at Columbus, Ohio.

Bishop Arnett delivered an address before the Ohio State Historical Society, at its annual banquet, Feb. 19, at Columbus, Ohio.

The "Payne Literary Society" appeared Thursday evening in its first public meeting of the year, rendering creditably a well selected program. The oration, "Julius Cæsar," by Mr. Horace Graves, Little Rock, Ark., was replete with historic facts expressed in eloquent language. Chicago's representative, Mr. Curtis Chapman's essay, "The March of the 116," was a highly appreciative description of the march of the "Arnett Guards." The Budget, read by Mr. C. Holland, Xenia, O., was calculated to strike all the cords of mirth, and was applauded by continuous laughter Mr. Hanson Games delivered an oration which was a credit to himself and the society. The music was excellent; Mr. J. C. Thomas, New Port, R. I., meriting special mention.

Friday evening, Feb. 22, the Kaffir choir gave a concert in the University Chapel, in the interest of the church and themselves.

Mr. H. Y. Arnett, the private secretary to the president, is spending a few days in Cincinnati, looking after his interests in real estate transfers. S. AND H.

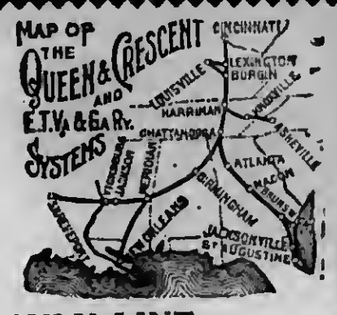
A Pure Baking Powder.

A baking powder that can be depended upon to be free from lime and alum is a desideratum in these days of adulterated food. So far as can be judged from the official reports, the "Royal" seems to be the only one yet found by chemical analyses to be entirely without one or the other of these substances, and absolutely pure. This, it is shown, results from the exclusive use by its manufacturers of cream of tartar specially refined and prepared by patent processes which totally remove the tartrate of lime and other impurities. The cost of this chemically pure cream of tartar is much greater than any other, and it is used in no baking powder except the "Royal," the manufacturers of which control the patents under which it is refined.

Dr. Edward G. Love, formerly analytical chemist for the U. S. Government, who made the analyses for the New York State Board of Health in their investigation of baking powders, and whose intimate knowledge of the ingredients of all those sold in this market enables him to speak authoritatively says of the purity, wholesomeness and superior quality of the "Royal":

"I find the Royal Baking Powder composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substance."



Prof Love's tests, and the recent official tests by both the United States and Canadian Governments, show the Royal Baking Powder to be superior to all others in strength and leavening power. It is not only the most economical in use, but makes the purest, finest flavored and most wholesome food.

Rose Tobacco Cure

Has been on the market for nearly five years and cures 98 out of every 100. Many say it is the Only Absolute Cure. It is harmless. Price, $1 by mail. Order of ROSE DRUG COMPANY, 2105 and 2107 Third Avenue, Birmingham, Alabama.

Our Guarantee—We offer three Tablets for $2 50, and in case of failure to cure money will be refunded. We love fair and prefer your good opinion to your money. All we ask is a fair trial, as out of the thousands who have used it, 98 out of every 100 have been cured. Beware of counterfeits. The better an article the more it will be imitated. There are some feeble and nasty imitations of our CURE on the market now.

100 WANTED The well-known preacher, lecturer and newspaper writer, Scott F. Hershey, Ph. D., of Boston, is at work on a book which deals with the Roman Papacy, as everywhere and always opposed to civil and religious liberty. Doctor Hershey has been a student for years in the history of Romanism, and has made researches in the libraries of this country and Europe. He has spent years in Washington City accumulating a wonderful fund of fact concerning the power of the Roman Church in the affairs of government. Terrible in fact and popular in style, his book will have an immense influence on the Patriotic movement of the day, and will have the largest sale of any book in this generation

Advertising pays: Newspaper advertising pays best of all. Our most successful and prosperous merchants and tradesmen, whose bright record has added imperishable lustre to the history of American commerce, can all testify to this truth from personal experience.

The newspaper is the commercial traveler in city and country home, who tells at the fireside, to its evening circle, the merits of your wares and merchandise, if you are wise enough to employ it to speak for you. It never is neglected, never goes unheeded, never speaks to inattentive or unwilling ears It never bores. It never tires. It is always a welcome visitor and meets a cordial reception. It speaks when the day is done, when cares vanish, when the mind at peace and at rest is in its most receptive mood. Then it is that its story is told and all who read treasure what it says, and are influenced to go where it directs for the thing of which it speaks.

What other influences can be so potent to help trade as this quiet but powerful advocate?

Let it become a salesman in every home for your wares. Let it make its mighty plea for your benefit. And we assure you it will do more than all influences to promote your business and put money in your purse.

In our long experience we know whereof we speak. Try it.

I wish to make some inquiry for my relatives. I was born in Tuscumba, Franklin county, Alabama, July 4, 1813. Manda Boney was mother's name. She moved back to Alabama three years before the civil war. I am her oldest son. I have not heard from her but once since she left Texas. If living, she is about 80 years of age. She was the mother of ten children. Address Thomas Winston, Montgomery, Texas.

I would like to find my people. I was born near Louisa C. H., Va., and belonged to Dr. L. Burrus. I had brothers named Jim, Carter and Dave. The name of my mother was Rachel, and belonged to the same man that owned me. I had sisters named Louisa and Mary Jane. Father's name was Martin. Sister Louisa had children named Bell and Charlotte. I had two uncles named Henry and Charles, the last named had a son named Mark. I saw brother Dave in 1893, in Richmond. When the estate was divided I went to Hanover county and Lucy Burrows sold me to a Negro named Smith in Richmond. Smith sold me to Judge Perkins. I was called Susan Burrus in Virginia.

Frankford's Miracle.

SAMUEL HART, A PARALYTIC, AS TONISHES PEOPLE BY WALKING.

The Story of a Man Whom Physicians Had Given Up—Once a Cripple and a Paralytic, Now as Spry as a Boy—His Recovery a Remarkable One.

(From the Philadelphia Record.)

The wonderful experience of Samuel J. Hart, of Frankford, has set the whole twenty-third ward talking.

Mr. Hart and his wife conduct a dry goods store at 4661 Frankford avenue. He is about seventy years of age, is a pioneer in the Frankford district. He fought for the Union bravely throughout the war with Colonel Gray's gallant regiment, the Twenty-Eighth Pennsylvania Volunteers, and is a leading member of Phil. J. Kearney Post No. 55, G. A. R. He also belongs to Shackamaxon Tribe No. 116, of the Improved Order of Red Men, the Knights of Pythias, and numerous other organizations. Here is the story he told a reporter of his wonderful cure which has startled Frankford.

"Six years ago while I was working at my trade as a carpenter, I fell down stairs and fractured my skull, sprained my spine in two places and sustained other serious injuries. I was picked up for dead, carried home and laid for thirteen months utterly unconscious of my surroundings, in fact I was out of my mind. Then I had my skull trephined at the Hahnemann hospital," here Mr. Hart exhibited a small portion of his own skull bone which he carries as a pocket piece, "and I began to improve, but my spine gave me a great deal of trouble and eventually resulted in locomotor ataxia. First I found that I could not walk without two canes, I became so bent that I felt like a living interrogation point. Although I was under treatment by a skilled physician I grew rapidly worse.

"On February 14th last," continued Mr. Hart, "I was suddenly seized with locomotor ataxia. Both my legs below the knees were numb and completely paralyzed, and I had a painful sensation about the hips. I fell and was confined for about five months in an invalid chair. Besides the paralysis of my lower limbs I suffered excruciating pains in my back and legs, could not sleep soundly, my nerves were completely upset and my appetite went back on me; I would frequently go several days without eating a mouthful of food. Once I tried to raise myself in the crutches, but I fell helpless forward and would have struck the floor had not the doctor seized me. He told me never to try and walk again. Then I was seized with frightful convulsions which came on at intervals.

"One day last June I happened to read in a newspaper of a remarkable cure, effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, of a man up in Maine suffering from locomotor ataxia. I told my wife about it, we both agreed that it would do no harm to try the pills, and we got a supply. Before I had finished the first box I was able to leave my invalid chair. The life blood again coursed through my once dead legs, and I put the chair up in the garret. It has been there ever since. I have steadily improved ever since and my legs are now as sound as a dollar. My form is more erect and I walk with the same springy motion that I had when I was twenty-five years old. Let me give you an instance of my activity."

He picked up a cane, held it with both hands a slight distance apart, and hopped through it and back again with the agility of a schoolboy. That is something very few young men can do, he said, with a touch of pride in his tone.

"I suffer no more pain in my limb," he resumed, "but my fractured skull gives me some trouble. I have severe pains in the head, beyond these I am a well man, and I ascribe my recovery entirely to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Again I repeat, beyond the pain in my head I feel like a young man."

I, Samuel J. Hart, of Frankford, Philadelphia County, Penna., do certify that the above statement is correct and true in every particular.

X SAMUEL J. HART.

Certified to before me this 21st day of August, 1894. GEORGE L. BATTERSBY, [SEAL.] Notary Public.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are now manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold in boxes (never in loose form by the dozen or hundred, and the public are cautioned against numerous imitations sold in this shape) at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2 50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

BOUNDLESS MERCY.

"There's a wideness in God's mercy,
Like the wideness of the sea;
There's a kindness in His Justice,
Which is more than liberty.
For the love of God is broader
Than the measure of man's mind;
And the heart of the eternal,
Is most wonderfully kind." —FABER.

THE general book committee passed resolutions of sympathy for Rev. Dr. B. F. Crary, editor of the California Christian Advocate, who has been ill for a long time. He was relieved from responsibility in the management of the paper, and control extended to his associate, Rev. Dr. W. S. Matthews.

AS TO UNOFFICIAL PAPERS.—We call especial attention to the deliverance of the General Book Committee on this subject. There is so much that involves the standing of our respective annual conferences in their relation to the distribution of the dividends to each of them, that we feel it a duty to ask a calm and dispassionate consideration of the same.

THE Apostle Paul warns his Hebrew brethren against the dangers of unbelief. The promise that they should enter into the rest which came as the result of their faith, would be operative only so far as they were watchful and faithful. So to us to-day are these warnings helpful, in that they remind us of our duty, and point to the Rock of our safety; even Jesus Christ, the Lord.

BROTHER, be faithful in the little things, and you will soon learn the happy art of faithfulness in graver matters. In all of your great duties let it be remembered that you are to be a faithful steward, carefully guarding the interests of your Lord, so that when you are called to account you may do so without fear or trembling, knowing that you have done the best that you could. And then having been faithful over a few things, he will make you "ruler over many things."

THE Lord "Who comforteth us in all our afflictions" has given us his written guarantee that every part of the great contract shall be fully and perfectly carried out in all our afflictions. Nothing is omitted. There is only one condition—"While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen." Glorious thought! Simple, unquestioning faith in the comforter, places his children in that condition where "our afflictions are not only light, but temporary; and, where they work withal a "far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory."

HON. HENRY WATTERSON, editor of the Louisville Courier Journal, in his great oration in Chicago, on Lincoln's birthday, speaking of the terms of peace the South could have had at the Hampton Roads Conference, said: "And why were they not accepted? God again. It was the will of God that there should be, as God's own prophet had promised, 'a new birth of freedom,' and this could only be reached by the complete obliteration and extinction of the very idea of slavery. God struck Lincoln down in the moment of his triumph to attain it. God blighted the South to attain it. But he did attain it. And here we are this night to attest it. God's will be done on earth as it is in heaven!"

THE WASHINGTON AND LEXINGTON CONFERENCES.

The Washington will convene at Richmond, Va., March 6, with Bishop Mallalieu presiding. At this writing we are rushing business preparatory to a trip to old Richmond, and our mother conference. The SOUTHWESTERN has some strong friends within the bounds of this historic conference, and they are pledged to give additional impetus to the work of circulating the SOUTHWESTERN. We greet the Washingtonians, and will expect a most cordial endorsement, with a goodly number of new subscribers.

The Lexington, in which we have the honor of membership, will convene in Maysville, Ky., March 13, with Bishop Hurst presiding. From the Washington we were transferred to this conference when it was yet in its infancy. It has grown to manhood, having celebrated its quarto-centennial at its last session. It is a grand conference, and is doing valuable service on the border line of "Dixie," and pushing its work even north into the States of Indiana, Ohio and Illinois. The conference, on the whole, is among the most progressive of our colored conferences, and loses nothing by comparison with the best of them. The SOUTHWESTERN goes into the homes of nearly all the brethren, and the increasing list of subscribers from within its bounds is sufficient evidence of its popularity.

VOTE ON THE CONSTITUTIONAL QUESTIONS.

From the very excellent tables published in the Western Christian Advocate, we get the following suggestive statistics:

	Total Vote.	For.	Against.	Majority For.	Majority Against
To have as many lay as clerical delegates....	8,917	2,900	6,017	....	3,117
To reduce number clerical delegates.....	7,497	2,971	4,525	....	1,518
To reduce clerical delegates (better form)..	8,004	4,167	3,837	210	....
To meet A. D. 1900, and thereafter first Wednesday in May.....	8,573	8,401	172	8,229	....

As three-fourths of those voting are necessary, only the the change of date is carried.

The entire vote is quite small in proportion to the number of those who are entitled to a vote. It will hardly be doubted that there has been no little indifference manifested by those charged with guarding the interests of our great Methodism. Whether the proposed amendments were carried or not, a full vote would have been much more significant of the sentiment of the Church than the meagre vote polled. But the rapid increase in our membership, necessitating a corresponding increase in conference membership, will increase the number of delegates to the General Conference from time to time. Hence, it may be found necessary to adopt some measure to prevent this body from becoming unwieldy, and at the same time secure all the benefits of its legislation.

"FORMERLY Methodists attended class, and gave testimony of experimental religion. Now, the class meeting is attended by very few, and in many churches it is abandoned. Seldom the stewards, trustees and leaders of the Church attend class. Formerly nearly every Methodist prayed, testified, or exhorted in prayer meeting. Now but very few are heard. Formerly, shouts and praises were heard; now, such demonstrations of holy enthusiasm and joy are regarded as fanaticism. Worldly socials, fairs, festivals, concerts, and such like have taken the place of the religious gathering, revival meetings, class and prayer meetings of earlier days."—Bishop Foster.

ENTERTAINING THE BISHOP.

Our Methodist press has very generously mentioned the fact that at the late session of the South Carolina Conference, Bishop and Mrs. Fowler were entertained in the home of Rev. Joshua E. Wilson, D. D., one of the leading colored preachers of the conference. Instances of this sort are numerous, as nearly all of our bishops can testify. Somehow, we believe that where the bishops are to preside over colored conferences, that they prefer being the guests of the conference; that is to say, to be entertained in the homes of the colored people. We are glad to know that there are but few churches which are able to entertain a conference whose membership cannot furnish one or more families where a bishop could be entertained royally. We believe in encouraging our people in just that sort of business. Let the pastors and presiding elders find a good home; neat, commodious, accessible, and invite the presiding bishop to occupy it. We are certain that the bishop will appreciate the arrangement, as well as be a benediction to the family having the honor of entertaining him. There are but few places in which the local ministry, regardless of denomination or even color, would not consider it an honor to give appropriate entree to the dignitaries of our Church, where pastors and others, having the arrangements in hand, will put themselves in touch with them. We are profoundly thankful that our work is improving quite rapidly, and feel free to say that the visits into the homes of our people by our bishops and their wives, our General Conference officers, and others having business with our conferences and educational work, is exerting a mighty influence in the improvement of the homes of our people, at least. No better missionary work can be done for the colored people of the South than that which will revolutionize their home life—having better homes, we shall have better children, and the coming generations will improve as they build upon the stable foundations thus laid.

A MODEL WOMAN'S CLUB.

The Woman's Club of Chicago, one of the largest of its kind, one of the most exclusive, and composed of some of the best white ladies in the land, covered itself with glory in the admission of Mrs. Fanny Barrier Williams, a cultured and refined lady, a short time ago. There was, of course, a discussion as to the admission of a lady of color, and there were mild threats probably of a withdrawal of some of its members; but a large majority voted for her admission, and the colored lady becomes a member of this important organization. We are especially gratified that this much vexed question has been practically settled by these eminent white ladies. This is an event of unusual significance, since the great question of the social status of the colored woman was brought before this great body of sentiment makers and settled in an intelligent and a righteous way. When a company of refined, cultured white women, representing the very highest stations of social and literary life, vote to admit to their ranks the daughter of a once despised race, looking not at the color of her skin, but recognizing only the salient traits of character and culture in the woman, they place themselves in the very forefront of the world's great agencies in the uplifting of humanity. This great question once settled by the women of the Nation and the Church, the way is clear for the greatest moral victories in all the ages. We make our best bow to these noble ladies, with the hope that nothing whatever shall remain to prevent their fullest usefulness in any and every [illegible] which they shall select as [illegible] future activities and [illegible]

The Influence of the Home in the Uplifting of our People.

TENTH LETTER—BY T. E. W.

The election of Mrs. Fannie Barrier Williams to membership in the Women's Club of Chicago was a splendid tribute to the intelligence, high character and purity of her life—none others would be admitted to membership of this great body. The action shows also that it is possible for the cultured American lady to rise above the unholy prejudice against color. Truly, there is a bright future before the women of our race. Let them keep clean and pure, and noble and high-minded and not be content with a mere superficial smattering of culture, but by reading and study let them get ready for the work that is before them.

A correspondent says:

"Your article on society, in a recent number, has stirred up some of the so-called society people, who believe that the end and aim of life is to dance, play cards, and indulge in all manner of senseless and frivolous amusements. I have been an observer of society here for a long time and feel free to say that it consists very largely in frills, bangs, tinsel, loud dress, with a little smattering of manhood and womanhood here and there. There are innumerable little clubs and circles, organized often only to boost some ambitious man or woman into office. I have often said to friends that there is a splendid opportunity for real missionary work. If our young ladies and gentlemen, and some of the older ones, want to be useful let them go around among the homes of the poor people, and urge them to send their children to the various Sunday schools. They could solicit clothing and funds; also, to help those poor people get their children ready. Our ladies could also render splendid service to God and humanity by attending these schools and assisting in the work of teaching. There are a great many ways of being useful besides giving select parties, playing progressive euchre, and drinking wine. But I must close. Yours, N."

A poor, crippled woman, living in a tiny room on the ground floor of a dingy house, could only move on her hands and knees, and had not stood upright for fifteen years. A lady visiting the sufferer was pitying her for her inability to do anything in the world. While she spoke two merry little children clattered into the room and seated themselves by the scrap of fire. "Do these children belong to you?" asked the lady. "No, ma'am," was the reply, "they are my neighbor's children; she's just a poor washerwoman, and I look after her little ones to set her free to get a job of work. I can do just that, you see, thank the Lord."—Ex.

A Suggestion.

W. B. RANKIN, District Superintendent.

The remark was made lately, "How little is known, thought or said of the great fundamental and wonderful work of the Bible Society in publishing the Holy Scriptures, translating them into the languages of the world, and in reducing spoken language into a written form for heathen nations, so low as to have not even an alphabet, thus opening them to the Church and civilization?"

The suggestion is made, that a little time be given at religious meetings to the consideration of such events as are related to the spread of the Bible, and of its influence in the world. Why not introduce this as a new feature in missionary meetings, prayer meetings, Epworth Leagues, young people's meetings, etc. A few moments devoted to this fundamental work need not interfere with the regular subject, but might prove a spice of variety to improve the tone of the meeting.

The Women's Home Missionary Society.

The first quarterly meeting of the general executive board of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church was held at the Book Concern, Cincinnati, Jan. 23-24. The treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Men[illegible]nball, reported receipts for the quar[illegible]r as $15,683.13; disbursements, $15,565. 0; balance on hand, $117.63. Mrs. W. M. Ampt reported the distribution of 3,942 mite boxes.

Information of a bequest of $2,000 from the late Mrs. Lucinda J. Button of Evanston, Ill., was gratefully received.

The president, Mrs. Clinton B. Fisk, appointed a special committee, of which Mrs. G. H. Thompson, of Cincinnati, is chairman, to decide upon a place of meeting.

Mrs. E. L. Albright was commissioned to visit the homes located in the bureau for East Central States. King Home, Marshall, Texas, has 27 girls, and is self-supporting. The New Jersey Home, Morristown, Tenn., has a larger number of girls than ever before, and the school at Clarkson, Miss., has 20 girls.

"Bishops' Work and Bishops' Pay."

An article under the above title appearing in the Christian Advocate of Feb. 14 is misleading, and requires me to make the following statement:

First. The writer of the article estimates that the amount apportioned to be raised for the Episcopal Fund annually must be over $200,000. The amount actually apportioned for 1894 was $126 079.

Second. The total amount raised for salaries and traveling expenses of the bishops for 1894 was $88,422 65.

Third. The total amount paid for bishops' salaries in 1894, including house rent, was $82,328.75. Of this amount $3000 was paid to the widows of deceased bishops.

Fourth. The total amount paid for bishops' traveling expenses during the year 1894, not including their expenses to foreign missions, was $5,287.96.

A Scene and Some Reflections.

By Rev. C. BRADFORD, St. Louis, Mo.

To my eyes it was an unusual scene, though, doubtless, to most of those who will read these lines it will appear tame and common.

It was in a restaurant in a Celeraulo town, one pleasant Sunday in the summer of 1893. While my wife and myself, also a few other people, sat at dinner, there entered two gentlemen who took seats together at a table where no one else was seated. Yes, they were indeed gentlemen; neat, well dressed and well behaved. Everything about them under their control was up to the strictest standards of gentility and propriety. But there happened to be one fact about them that was entirely beyond their control, and that was the color of their skin. For this they were made to suffer humiliation. A waiter came and took their orders for dinner. As he came in from the kitchen with the bill of fare ordered he received a sign from the proprietor of the restaurant who was standing at the cash drawer. In obedience to this sign the waiter took the supplies to the lunch counter and said to the two gentlemen of dark color, "Here is your dinner." The two arose and went over to the counter before they seemed to recognize the discrimination that was being made against them. But they were scarcely seated till they did recognize this humiliating fact, whereupon one of them appealed to the proprietor with the question, "Can't we eat at the table?" "No; our tables are not for colored folks," was the reply. Without so much as touching knife or fork the two insulted men arose, got their hats and canes, and quietly walked out without a word. While they were passing out, my impulses were very strong to do something that would have been perhaps an unwarranted affront to the proprietor.

I first felt like inviting them to have a seat at our table, for there was plenty of room. After they got out I felt like following them to commend them for respecting their own manhood. Hoping to see them after I had finished dinner I held my peace. I afterward searched for them, but could not find them. For one reason I was glad, for it was some indication that they had speedily left the town and shaken its dust from their feet. More than once since that time while I have mused the fire has burned, and yet, as said before, I know this was but tame compared with other episodes along the same line. In some places, I am aware, these men would not even have been seated at the lunch counter. But the comparative tameness of the affair affords no palliation from the standpoint of principle. In that very restaurant I had seen men enter whose faces might have been white had they been washed, whose linen was subject to the same contingency, sometimes without any coat on; such I had seen seated at a table where refined ladies and gentlemen were eating. The restaurant was conveniently situated, and many came in for meals, just as we did, because no other place was so accessible. This absence of regulations in the interests of decency emphasized all the more the insult in the discrimination against men merely because of their color. "O consistency, thou art a jewel" seldom seen.

I write, not to make the fire burn in other bosoms, but to counsel calmness and patience on the part of those who suffer thus unjustly. A better day is sure to come. The human race is one. "God hath made of one blood—not of one color—all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth." The unification of mankind calls for neither amalgamation nor miscegenation of the three principal races. A triune race on earth will some day answer perfectly to a triune God in heaven. God speed that day; but speedy or slow, it will come, and all can afford to wait and possess their souls in patience.

Pray for Mexico.

Protestant missions, now about twenty years old in Mexico, are represented by twelve Evangelical denominations and have established a network of congregations, numbering over six hundred, throughout the country.

Important strategic points have been occupied, substantial and conveniently arranged headquarters have been built up. Schools, including some for higher training, have been planted on every hand and now have over eight hundred under daily instruction. Sabbath schools gather some twelve thousand every week for the study of the Word. Medical missionaries, doing immense good, are found at several centres; printing presses are circulating broadcast not less than ten millions pages of religious literature annually. The American Bible Society, with its colporteurs in every State of the Republic, reports an increased circulation of over twenty thousands volumes during the past year. Churches are being built and some eight hundred men and women are going up and down the land "Sowing the seed of the Kingdom."

Revivals have been occasionally reported, and our last conference, under the wise and spiritual guidance of Bishop Joyce, was the best of all. But the past twenty years have been largely years of preparation and our magnificent equipment needs more of the life and power that comes from above. To this end a conference of representative missionaries from the various churches has been arranged to take place in Toluca, capital of the State of Mexico, on the 3d, 4th and 5th of April next. Short papers, on the "Person and Work of the Holy Spirit," will be read and much time spent in consultation and prayer. All hearts will be united in seeking an outpouring of the Divine Spirit upon the entire Protestant work in Mexico. This conference will be followed by a series of union meetings in the City of Mexico, under the direction of the well-known evangelists, Moody and Sankey, who are also expected to be present in Toluca.

Will not all Christians at home unite with us and agree to spend at least five minutes each day on the above dates, praying that this conference may be a truly Pentecostal time?

IN TRESPASSES AND SIN.

My former hopes are fled;
My terror now begins:
I feel, alas! that I am dead
In trespasses and sins.

When I review my ways,
I dread impending doom:
But hark! a friendly whisper says,
"Flee from the wrath to come."

With trembling hope I see
A glimmering from afar;
A beam of day that shines for me,
To save me from despair.

Forerunner of the sun,
It marks the pilgrim's way:
I'll gaze upon it while I run,
And watch the rising day.

DAILY THOUGHTS.

[From Phillips Brooks.]

MARCH 7.—Ask yourself of any habit that belongs to your own personal life, and bring it face to face with Jesus Christ and see if it is not judged. A judgment day that is far away, that is off in the dim distance when this world is done—it shall come, no doubt. I know none of us can know much with regard to it, except that it is sure. But the judgment day that is here now is Christ; the judgment day that is right close to your life and rebukes you, if you will let Him rebuke you every time you sin, the judgment day that is here and praises you and bids you be of good courage, when you do a thing that men disown and despise, is Christ.

MARCH 8.—Have you ever thought of how the world has stood in glory and honor before the sinless humanity of Jesus Christ? If any life could prove, if any argument could show on investigation to-day that Jesus did one sin in all his life, that the perfect liberty which was His perfect purity was not absolutely perfect, do you realize what a horror would seem to fall down from the heavens, what a constraint and burden would be laid upon the lives of men, how the gates of men's possibilities would seem to close in upon them? It is because there has been that one life which, because absolutely pure from sin, was absolutely free; it is because man may look up and see in that life the revelation and possibility of his own; it is because that life echoing the great cry throughout the world that man everywhere is the son of God, offers the same purity—and so the same freedom—to all mankind, it is for that reason that a man rejoices to cling to, to believe in, however impure his life is, the perfect purity, the sinlessness of the life of Jesus.

MARCH 9.—The Christian faith is not a dogma, it is not primarily a law, but is a personal presence and an immediate life that is right here and now.

MARCH 10.—Jesus Christ, the comforter of sorrow. He is the comforter of sorrow, for he knew and he knows what sorrow is. In his own crucifixion, in that which came before His crucifixion, He know the suffering of this earthly life. There is no human being who ever has known the misery of man as Jesus knows it, and so He comes to all sorrows with tender consolation. God grant, God grant He may come to any of you who have come into these doors to-day with a sorrow, with a fear, with a dread upon your hearts, with souls that are wrung, with bodies that are suffering!. God grant that the Christ may comfort you, may comfort you.

MARCH 11.—The old legend was that the clothes of the Israelites, which the Bible said waxed not old upon them in the desert during those forty years, not merely waxed not old those forty years, but grew with their growth, so that the little Hebrew who crossed the Red Sea in his boy's clothes wore the same clothes when he entered into the Promised Land. It is the parable of that which comes to the man who has a true Christian faith, a faith which comes in the personal friendship of Christ, a faith which comes not in the belief of certain things about Him, not in the doing slavishly of certain things which it seemed as if it had been said by Him that we must do, but in the personal entrance into His nature in a life for Him, in which He is able to send His life down into us.

Sprinkling.

W. M. LANGFORD, Washington, Ky.

"Then will I Sprinkle Clean Water Upon You."

[Ezekiel chapter 36, verse 25.]

This act was done to designate the people of God from the wicked, or the glorious promise that follows is fulfilled to the Church from age to age. If sprinkling water upon the people in the days of Ezekiel fitted the people for the kingdom of God upon earth, why not now? Sprinkling water upon the people rendered them acceptable in this age of the world for the Church of God. The prophet plainly said, "I will sprinkle clean water upon you"—not you in the water! No man ought to do a thing without having the right to do it. Our English Bible does not give any man the right to immersion, but it does give any man the right to sprinkle. (Isaiah, 52 15.) "So shall he sprinkle many nations."

Let us turn to the New Testament mode of baptism. (Matt. 3:11) "I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance." First, let us consider the language. Second, the verb: The writer says "indeed baptize you with water," not you into the water, but apply the water to you, the object, and not you to the water. If I should say, "I indeed whip my child with the switch," which do I mean—applying the switch to the child, or the child to the switch? And, if I should take an ax and go to the woods and cut down a tree, what have I done? I have cut the tree down with the ax—I have applied the ax to the tree, and not the tree to the ax. So in this verse, the water is applied to the person, and not the person to the water. If John had said, "I indeed baptize you into the water," then I would say this gives me the right to immerse; but that he did not say. John also said, "But he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear; he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire." If coming of the Holy Ghost upon the people is baptizing them with the Holy Ghost, then sprinkling water upon the people is baptizing them with water. The 16th verse says, "When Christ was baptized, he went up straight way, out of the water." Rather, from the bed or banks of the Jordan. The mode of baptism was evidently such as to symbolize that of the Spirit, for the Spirit came upon him. John was baptizing with water when Christ came to him. Christ did not tell John to change his mode of baptizing to immersion—neither does this passage teach that Christ was baptized in the river Jordan, and there is no proof of his having been into or under the water. It is said "he went up straightway out of the water," as to say Christ walked, or went, or came staight out of the water upon the banks of the Jordan, as a man would go out of a house to be out of doors, not in the house, but came out of it. I truly believe when John applied the water to Christ and the Spirit came upon him, He walked up out of the banks of Jordan, not into the water, but at or beyond Jordan. It is said in the 19th chapter, 4th verse, of Luke that "Zaccheus climbed up into a sycamore tree to see him." If Zacheus was into the tree, the tree must have been hollow from the ground up, if he was into the tree—but he was not into the tree, but on the outside. So Christ was not in the Jordan, but at or beyond. (Luke 9:28.) "Christ took Peter and John and James and went up into a mountain to pray." If Christ was into the mountain, he was on the inside of the hill, and not on the outside. But he certainly was on the outside and not into the mountain. So Christ was not into the water, but at or beyond. The 10th verse says, "He went up straightway out of the water." This proves from the past tense that Christ had been already baptized and the Spirit had come upon him while standing at or near the water and had passed away; then he walked up out of the banks, for when he was baptised is in the past tense. "I will come back to baptizing with water." (Mark 1:8.) "I indeed have baptized you with water, but he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost;" not into, but with. (Luke 3:16.) "John answered, saying unto them all, "I indeed baptize you with water and with the Holy Ghost," not into it, but with it. (John 1:26, 31, 33, 26.) "John answered them, saying, I baptize with water." (31.) "Therefore am I come baptizing with water," (33) "and I knew him not, but he that sent me to baptize with water." These verses do not say into, but with water. (Acts 1:5), "For John truly baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence." This shows that the water must be put upon the person, and not the person into it. (Acts 2:41.) "Then they that gladly received his word were baptized and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls." The question is how were these baptized? (1) Peter began to preach at 9 a. m.; it took him some time to finish his discourse; it took some time to take in this number; Jordan was 28 miles distant; the brook Kidron was small and dry; the pool Siloam was a mile distant and used for family purposes, and it is not likely they used this pool; the pool Bethesda held water enough, but not in condition, it being used for washing the animals offered in sacrifice, and the priest who controlled it was not much on this new religion and not likely to accommodate them; the people did not go there prepared for that purpose—there was no cleansing of clothes made; no person could handle that number; undoubtedly Peter did not begin the baptizing until some time after 12 o'clock. So I see no other way to baptize this number except by sprinkling. (Heb. 9:19.) "For when Moses had spoken every precept to all the people according to the law, he took the blood of calves and of goats with water and scarlet wool and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book and all the people." (Heb. 10:22) "Let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience and our bodies washed with pure water." Undoubtedly these and other passages give us the right to sprinkle water upon the people as the correct mode of baptism.

RACE PRIDE, ENTERPRISE AND UNITY.

That some of our people are liable to the charge of a failure to appreciate the efforts of their race to take a more active part in those great business and professional enterprises which add to the material wealth of our country, goes almost without saying. It is to be seriously regretted that there are among us those whose training has been inimical to the development of race pride, race enterprise and race unity; qualifications which are so essential to the progress of any race of people.

Our cause is retarded not a little by this class of "howlers" and "agitators," who are continually complaining and protesting against the treatment they are receiving at the hands of the white people; and yet there is scarcely any disposition on their part to rise to those conditions where their conduct would compel the respect and confidence of friends, not to say anything of their enemies. Just so long as the Negro fails to appreciate the fact that there are elements of strength and character among his own people, which, if encouraged and cultivated, will place them upon an equal footing with all other progressive people, just so long will there be a continuance of the present strained relations between the races. The fact is, the Negro is among his own greatest enemies. This is due partly to the centuries of bondage through which his ancestors have passed; during which their training degenerated into racial distrust, cupidity, loss of self-respect, and, in fact, the obliteration of almost every element essential to their social and moral development; and, partly, to the masses of the race who, notwithstanding their touch with the institutions of freedom, determinedly and persistently refuse to recognize, even in the more meritorious of their brethren, those qualities which they should by all means foster, respect and encourage. For the former condition no right-thinking person will hold the Negro responsible. But for the opportunities he has had since the obliteration of slavery, and for the expenditure of millions of consecrated wealth for the betterment of his condition socially, morally, intellectually and industrially, public opinion at least will and does hold him to a strict accountability. Marvelous as the progress of the Negro has been, we are of the opinion that the record might have been even surpassed had there been more of a disposition on his part to the cultivation of that racial interdependence which has laid the foundation of our American liberties.

But there is a bright side to this dark picture. There are great signs of promise. Christian education is solving the problem. Our great industrial schools are sending out by the score the pioneers who will lay the foundations not only for its homes, but for the character of the race. Our great theological seminaries are preparing consecrated, devoted young men, who will give a new inspiration to the manifest activities of the race in sound morality, and the religion of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. The next decade will witness such a forward movement in the uplifting of the Negro as has never been witnessed before. It is safe to say that in this work the Negro himself will play a most conspicuous part. Let us thank God and take courage.

AN IMPORTANT MOVEMENT.

"There has been a recognized need and a strong demand for able workers to supervise the growing interests of the Sunday school in the Negro population of the South. The Sunday School Union of our Church has greatly desired to establish agencies in a number of the Southern States, but has been unable to do so for lack of funds. A friend of the union, who has manifested his liberality on former occasions, recently presented to the treasury of the union a large donation for the purpose of promoting Sunday school work in the South. The Sunday School Union being thus supplied with the necessary means, has, therefore, requested from the bishops in charge of the Texas and South Carolina Conferences the appointment of Rev. O. I. Jones, of Houston, Tex., and of Rev. C. C. Jacobs, of Charleston, S. C., as agents of the Sunday School Union, each for the present to work in his own State, under the direction of the union, in the organization and improvement of the Sunday school work in the Methodist Episcopal Church. JESSE L. HURLBUT."

We are profoundly happy to know that the great Church is recognizing more and more the vast spiritual needs of our people, and that her consecrated sons and daughters are contributing their wealth to meet these vast wants. Our Sunday school work in the South is in need of just such work as is contemplated by the society, and we feel safe in saying that the right men have been selected to inaugurate what we believe will become the most important work of our future Church in the South.

THE MEETING OF THE BOOK COMMITTEE.

The committee met at the Book Concern, New York City, Feb. 13. There was a large attendance and much important business transacted. R. T. Miller of Covington, Ky., was elected to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of R. A. W. Bruehl, and Rev. F. L. Nagler, D. D., was elected editor of the Haus and Herd, to fill the place of the late Dr. Liebhart. J. W. Shank, D. D, was approved as editor of the Omaha Christian Advocate. A committee, to which was referred a resolution relative to the distribution of the Superannuate Fund to Conferences conducting unofficial papers, presented the following report, which was adopted:

"The multiplication of unofficial papers in a number of our conferences, the consequent decrease of the circulation and profits of official papers, the peril to our Superannuate Fund, which arises in part from our periodical literature, the increased difficulty and expense of finding a market for our books where unofficial papers displace the official, and the dissatisfaction among our ministers and people not conducting conference or local organs, are facts which give us serious concern. It is conceded by all that the unity and connectional interests of Methodism should everywhere be emphasized and promoted. It is also clear that special patronage should be given by our conferences to the enterprises of the church which return to them the profits, and that any real or seeming lack of equity in building up and applying a local or conference fund affecting the size of the Superannuate Fund coming from our Book Concerns should challenge the most careful consideration and the fullest conference of those directly responsible. While we do not desire to interfere with any personal or corporate rights, we do ask our brethen conducting unofficial papers to take into consideration the questions of equity involved, and that as a basis of adjustment we ask attention to the course pursued for years by the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate in the disposition of its profits. In view of all parties and interests concerned, we recommend that Dr. L. C. Queal be requested to visit the boards of control conducting the leading unofficial papers, to confer with them fully on our mutual interests, presenting the moral advantage arising to the entire Church in a satisfactory adjustment, and that he report to this body at its next annual session."

Much important routine business was carefully attended to, and the committee adjourned Friday afternoon.

THE Louisiana Conference was greatly lifted up by the visit of our Senior Bishop, Thomas Bowman, D. D., LL. D., and we have reasons to believe by an interesting article from his pen to the Central Christian Advocate that he was equally pleased with his sojourn among us. Writing of New Orleans, he says:

"We have in this city a fine institution for our colored people, the New Orleans University, which is under the care of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society. Dr. Adkinson, from Indiana, is the president, and by the aid of his very helpful wife, he is doing grand work. This year about 550 students have been enrolled, of whom 450 are in regular attendance. Nearly half of them are in advanced studies, and many of them in the college course. They look bright and promising. The university has a medical college in which over 30 are now preparing for practical work. For this college Bishop Mallalieu secured a good location and a respectable building. The literary department is also well located and has an excellent building. It is furnished with a good chapel, all necessary recitation rooms and a dormitory that will accommodate about 180 pupils and teachers. Near the university proper is the "Peck Memorial Home," a good building and well situated. The ground was purchased by the large-hearted Mrs. Bennet, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and the building has been erected by money furnished by the Northern New York Conference and Mrs. Bishop Peck. It is designed for industrial purposes, and now contains 18 or 20 young women who are being trained in such occupations as are needed in home work. It also aids them in ther literary pursuits. The faculty and Christian students of the university constitute a Church, and they have preaching every Sabbath. Quite a number have been recently converted. Take it all through, we think this one of the best schools among the colored people of the South. Our colored schools here, and the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, under the able management of Dr. Hammond, are doing fine work for the city and the State."

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Rev. S. H. Gary, A. B, secretary of the Texas Conference, has our thanks for a copy of the minutes of the late session, which are neat in appearance and creditably edited.

—Prof. J. H. Binkley, for many years principal of Alleyton (Tex.) public school, died Feb. 22, after a short illness. He was a faithful and consistent Christian, and died in great peace.

—On Wednesday, Feb. 20, a bouncing girl came to the home of J. O. Williams, who is pastor of Mallalien Chapel, Marshall, Tex. Mother and daughter are doing nicely. Congratulations.

—At Roanoke, Ala., Rev. B. Jackson, pastor, is progressive in all departments of church work. Brother Jackson thinks that the presiding elders in the distribution of missionary funds should appropriate more to the country and less to that in the cities.

—Rev. J. W. Smith, until recently a faithful and acceptable local preacher of Simpson M. E. Church, New Orleans, La., has been appointed to Beattieville, La. Quite a number of friends tendered him a reception on the eve of his departure for his new field of labor.

—Rev. N. A. Axle writes from Kendleton, Tex., concerning the death of Mrs. Mendia Burnett, a prominent Christian lady of that place. The sad event occurred Feb. 3. Her last moments were full of joy, and she passed away rejoicing in the hope of the glory of God.

—Paris and Springville Circuit, Tennessee Conference, is holding its own grandly. Pastor H. Robinson is leading on nicely. Rev. S. B. Danley, presiding elder, rendered helpful and efficient services during his late visit, and especially was he helpful in his earnest work for the SOUTHWESTERN.

—Rev. S. C. Gooseley, pastor of Barnes Chapel, North Indianapolis, Ind., writes hopefully concerning his work. The corner stone of the church was laid Feb. 24 with sermons by Revs. M. H. Appleby, of North Indianapolis M. E. Church, and L. M. Hagood, D. D., of Simpson Chapel, Indianapolis.

—Brother J. W. Parks of Durant, Miss., reports a happy condition of affairs. The quarterly meeting was a season of great spiritual profit. Rev. W. E. Mask, the presiding elder, rendered good service. Rev. W. Mitchell, presiding elder of the Durant District M. E. Church South, congratulated the conference and gave an encouraging talk. Two annual cash subscribers were secured for the SOUTHWESTERN.

—Harrisonburg, Va., with Rev. S. H. Brown in charge, is succeeding grandly. Notwithstanding the great split in the church some time ago, the membership is now united, progressive and loyal. A blessed revival, resulting in the conversion of 28 souls, is a matter of profound rejoicing. Revs. M. W. Clair and A. C. Steptoe rendered splendid help. Finances are very greatly improved and the outlook is grand.

NEW ORLEANS AND VICINITY.

Wedding Bells.

On Thursday, February 28, 1895, at the residence of C. C. Morse, Esq., business manager of the SOUTHWESTERN, father of the bride, by Rev. Geo. S. Easton, pastor of Hammond M. E. Church, father of the groom, John H. Easton and Miss Belle M. Morse, all of this city, were happily united in marriage. We wish the young and happy pair an abundance of the blessings of life, with a long career of usefulness.

An impressive memorial service of the late Hon. Frederick Douglass was held at Simpson M. E. Church on Sunday evening, February 24. Mr. Dejoie presided, and the editor of the SOUTHWESTERN delivered the oration.

During the visit of Dr. J. W. E. Bowen to the city, a short time ago, he was tendered a delightful reception at the beautiful home of Rev. S. T. Clanton, D. D., and lady, on Arabella street, New Orleans. The other guests were: I. E. Mullon, M. D., and lady; James E. Porter, Esq., and lady, and the editor of the SOUTHWESTERN. Rev. Dr. Bowen, Doctor Mullen, Mr. Porter and Rev. Dr. Clanton, the host, were members of the first graduating class of New Orleans University, and this, their first reunion, was very greatly enjoyed. Rev. Dr. Clanton and his most excellent wife made the occasion unusually pleasant for their guests, who evidently highly appreciated the honor.

By invitation the editor of the SOUTHWESTERN preached at Union Bethel A. M. E. Church last Sunday night, the pastor, Rev. Brother Willard, being sick. The congregation filled the large audience room, and the services were impressive. Among the pleasing features was the promptness with which the collections were taken. There was no noise or confusion, and nearly every one present contributed. The pastor is alive, energetic, cultured and progressive, and richly deserves the success which crowns his efforts. Another attractive feature is the singing of the choir, which is far above the average, and is in itself one of the helpful agencies in building up the church.

At Mount Zion M. E. Church, Rev. T. G. Montgomery, pastor, the services were unusually impressive and helpful. There was one accession. The collections were above the average and the day very profitably engaged. The Sunday school and other departments of the church are in good shape.

GOOD WORDS.

Rev. Wellington R. Smith, of Tulla homa, Tenn., writes: "Accept commends on the new form of our grand old SOUTHWESTERN. She looks first rate in her new dress. We will strive to increase her pages."

"The Peninsula Methodist," unofficial, published at Wilmington, Delaware, was among the first of our Methodist press to adopt the quarto form, giving its readers a convenient and ably edited sixteen-page paper, congratulates our official and unofficial press on their approved appearance, kindly includes the SOUTHWESTERN.

A Favorite of Our Young People.

Miss Ara C. Phillips, of Cotton Gin, Tex., writes us the following:

"I have been thinking for some time I would write the dear old SOUTHWESTERN. I consider it almost a member of our family, and without it our home would become quite lonely. Through its bright pages we learn of the glorious work that is being carried on in the different parts of the world, especially among those who are united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. Once a week it is a welcome visitor, beaming with good news and glad tidings. It cheers my heart wonderfully and I dare say its visits cannot be too frequent. I love to ask to ask the question of friends, school-mates, class-mates, etc.: 'Do you read the SOUTHWESTERN; if not, why?' It is as cool water to the thirsty soul, and good news from far countries. Oh, for the day to dawn when the dear old SOUTHWESTERN will be placed in every community and all our homes, and when its readers will be as sands on the sea shore.

"Oh! dear SOUTHWESTERN,
May your subscribers reap,
And for our son's still keep,
Sweet heavenly news."

OUR BOOK TABLE.

"Christ in Myth and Legend, with an Historical Sketch of the False Christs of All Ages." By John W. Wright. Cincinnati: Cranston & Curts. New York: Hunt & Eaton.

Biblical students and others who desire additional information of the "curious facts, myths, legends and superstitions concerning Jesus of Nazareth," will find this book especially helpful. The author has carefully selected from many sources that information which cannot fail to afford entertainment and instruction. Especially is this true in the "Legend of the Cross" and the "Wandering Jew." The book will assuredly find public favor, which it richly deserves.

Abraham Lincoln, the First American. By D. D. Thompson. Cincinnati: Cranston & Curts. New York: Hunt & Eaton.

In a very brief preface, the author says: "This volume is designed to entertain and inform those who desire to read about Abraham Lincoln, his words and deeds." And this it does in a very satisfactory manner. Here we have a volume of the most interesting and instructive incidents in the life of "The First American," one of the most remarkable characters of the nineteenth century. The book has been especially prepared for young people, and the patriotic lessons it contains will be very helpful in forming their character. It is a great book, and should be liberally patronized.

"The Little Book Man" By Mrs. Jennie Fowler Willing. Cincinnati: Cranston & Curts New York: Hunt & Eaton.

This charming story is written in the author's best vein, and will not fail to inspire and instruct the reader. The Little Book Man, John Eely, is the hero of the deftly-woven plot, and although an odd bundle of incongruities, and belonging to the commonest people, had so completely mastered the art of appropriate and timely quotations from his constant companion, the little book, that the mightiest intellects, as well as the most astute servants of the so-called "Society of Jesus," were compelled to pay tribute to his genius. The book is a most effective weapon against the intolerance of Romanism.

Those who have secured the numbers thus far issued of that splendid Holy Land art portfolio series, "Earthly Footsteps of the Man of Galilee," are most enthusiastic regarding the religious, educational and art value of the work. The entire set of 24 parts only costs $2.40 and one coupon.

Our Gammon Letter.

The Lyceum is improving beyond our expectations this term. The members are taking a livelier interest in the meetings. The literary productions are a shade better than last term. Filibustering continues as usual.

On Jan. 25 we had a very interesting meeting. Among the features worthy of mention were C. A. Leftwich's impersonation of Fritz Emmett, the singing of Gammon Quartette and Leftwich's Imperial Quartette.

The general discussion—Resolved, "That the Mexican Colonization Scheme be Discouraged"—was very warmly discussed both pro and con. F. H. Rodgers, L. W. Price, P. T. Gorham, W. H. Lacey and others, taking the negative; P. J. Cook, D. W. Boatner, S. C. Moore and J. O. McFarlane, et al., the affirmative. We had an unusually interesting meeting and a large attendance.

Brother B. A. Bianchi gave a select reading, viz: "Mary had a Little Lamb," or "The Lark is Up to Meet the Sun." He only gave one verse of it, and that so rapidly we could not tell which of the two selections. After the usual amount of parliamentary sparring we settled down to the general discussion. The subject was a very interesting one, viz:

Resolved, "That the refusal of the General Conference to elect a Negro to the Episcopacy at the next Episcopal election would justify separation."

The discussion was led by Brother S. A. Stripling, who would not ally himself with either side. He made several very good points both pro and con. Brother Stripling plainly showed that he sided with the negative. Only one speech was made in the affirmitive, and that by S. C. Moore. Among the best speeches made in the negative were those of Brothers L. W. Price, L. K. Gowen, B. F. Witherspoon, P. F. Gorham, S. A. Peeler and B. M. Hubbard.

Brother Peeler thought the idea of separation originated with his Satanic Majesty, and could hut end in the deep sea.

Brother Hubbard said the M. E. Church started with one Negro, and so long as he lived there would still be one Negro in it.

The Rich Young Ruler.

Mark 10. 17-27.

Written for the Southwestern.

By Rev. G. N. Jolly, Kentucky Conference

GOLDEN TEXT.—Seek ye first the kingdom of God. (Matt. 6. 33.)

The fame of Jesus, after He raised Lazarus from the dead, was very great. The Jews became jealous of Him. They decided to put Him to death. Jesus walked no more openly among them. He left Bethany and went to Ephraim. This was a town about twenty miles northeast of Jerusalem. Here He likely lived in seclusion for about six weeks. Some think the events of this lesson occurred during His stay here, others put them before the Resurrection of Lazarus, while He was east of the Jordan.

I. The Rich Young Ruler (17-22). 1. Notice some characteristics of this young man. He was bold. He came to Jesus "in the way." He cared not for the crowd. Nicodemus came to Him by night. A moral coward never did much for the Master. Let us approach Him with humble boldness. He was young (Matt.). Early in life is the time to seek and follow Jesus. Young people go to him heart foremost, believing, loving and trusting. Old people go head first, reasoning and inquiring. In early life the heart is tender. No vicious habits have been contracted. Solomon said—"Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth." He was a ruler (Luke). He may have been a ruler in the synagogue, or in the Sanhedrin. Many think He was Lazarus, whom Jesus raised from the dead. Not many rulers came to the Christ seeking eternal life. We should pray for "all that are in authority." He was rich. "He had great possessions." They who have much of the goods of this world feel not their need of anything more. They are satisfied. There is no poverty of spirit. No hunger and thirst for righteousness. Hence they are not comforted. Not filled with spiritual food.

2. The way he approached Jesus. He came running. The Savior was near. He was in the way, and passing by. There was no time to be lost. All must be done quickly. Life is short. Youth is soon passed. This opportunity will soon close. Act to-day. Now is the accepted time. He kneeled at Jesus' feet. This showed reverence. He held Jesus in high esteem. It taught humility. He did not seem to put a high estimate on himself. It expressed worship. He, by the act, paid homage to the Master. Worship is worthship. He saw principles of great value in Christ. Hence his adoration. He said—Good Master. Superior teacher. There may have been just a little deceit in this address. Yet Jesus accepted him as sincere, let us do likewise. Jesus was an excellent teacher. He knew the way of eternal life, and could impart the same to others. His Sermon on the Mount is the greatest moral production on earth.

3. The question he asked—"What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" This question was asked Peter on the day of Pentecost, and Paul by the jailor at Philippi. Eternal life is salvation. By nature we are sinful. We soon make ourselves sinners. We are in danger of perishing. We are awakened. We seek the Lord, and are saved. Eternal life is not inherited. Knowledge, morality and piety are not gifts from our parents. We may inherit the foundation for them, or the principles that lead to them, but the objects themselves are only secured by hard labor. Neither is eternal life obtained by works. We cannot do ourselves into the kingdom of God. This was a very grave error among the Jews. With them it was do and live. With us it is believe and be saved. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." "Therefore being justified by faith we have peace with God." "By grace are you saved through faith." That the sinner is saved by faith alone is a wholesome doctrine and full of comfort.

4. The reply to this question. Jesus first removed an error. The young man believed Him to be only a teacher like other Rabbis. But a teacher with moral qualities greater than they. Hence he called Him "Good Master." Jesus let him know that no teacher, or man, is by nature good. It is likely this ruler thought himself to be an excellent young man. A man that the grace of God could improve but little. The assertion, "There is none good; no, not one," has no reference to the Divine nature of Christ. Let us have an exalted opinion of Jesus, but not "think of himself more highly than he ought to think." In the second place Jesus taught duty. He directed the young man to the second table of the commandments. To kill is to take life. To steal is to take the property of another without their consent, and without or with their knowledge. To bear false witness is to lie in court or conversation. To defraud is to cheat. To honor parents is to obey them if under age, to respect their views and habits as we advance in life, and to provide for them when they are old or disabled. If we love God His commandments are not grievous.

5. The broad assertion—"All these have I kept from my youth." The young man, no doubt, thought what he said was true. Folks are often better in their own eyes than in the eyes of others. It is only possible that he had kept the letter of these commandments. The spirit of them he had, no doubt, often broken. No man that "lacketh one thing," and that the all-important thing—the salvation of his soul—can keep the spirit of the commandments. If he hates his brother he is, in his heart, a murderer. If he looks on a woman to lust after her he is, in his heart, an adulterer. If he covets his neighbors goods he is, in his heart, a thief. If he desires to deceive his neighbor he is, in his heart, a liar. It is not strange that Jesus said—"There is none good; no, not one."

6. The command of Jesus. (1) "If thou wouldst be perfect." If you would be pure in heart and faultless in life, you must do one thing. Then it is possible to be perfect in this world. (2) "Sell what thou hast?" Part with thy goods. The first disciples sold all they had and laid the price at the apostles' feet. Zacchaus gave the half of his goods to the poor. The ancient Jew gave a tenth part to the Lord. Paul commanded the church at Corinth to give as the Lord had prospered them. (3) "Give to the poor." When you part with your goods do not hoard your wealth. Show a spirit of charity. Help suffering humanity. (4) "And thou shalt have treasures in heaven." There is a heaven. Man is immortal. He may gain heaven. He will there be rewarded for his charity here. (5) "Take up the cross and follow Me." Start and continue in the divine life. The cross is used to express the Gospel, to teach suffering, and to show duty. To take up the cross is to begin the duties of the Church, and to follow Jesus is to continue in the same.

7. The result of this command. He was sad and went away grieved. He desired salvation and he wished to keep his riches. But now the one or the other must be given up. Which shall it be? He let heaven go and clung to his riches. Esau sold his birthright for a mess of pottage. Many sinners sell their hopes of heaven for a few fleeting pleasures.

II. The danger of riches (23-27). The kingdom of heaven here means the spiritual reign of Christ on earth. Entering the kingdom of heaven is passing out of the state of sin into the state of grace. God has laid down the conditions of entering His kingdom. None can be saved who do not comply with them. Some can yield to them much easier than others. It is very hard for those who have riches to enter the kingdom of heaven. Riches produce pride, selfishness, lying, idleness and vice. These are just opposite to what God requires. It is hard to get rid of them and fill their places with humility and love. It is impossible for those who trust in riches to enter the kingdom of heaven. "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle" than for those who trust in riches to be saved. That assertion is likely literal. Jesus wished to express an impossibility. Those who trust in riches, or anything else but Jesus, cannot be saved. "There is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved."

WATCH TOWER.

Pound Cake for the Children.

[Conducted by Rev. T. R. Fletcher.]

BY UNCLE THOMAS.

This narrative is a dream; during the night of December 11, 1884, after having spent a pleasant evening with the family around the fireside. While I was sleeping so pleasantly I dreamed that I had gone from home, a distance of about a mile to the city, with a view of taking a short journey. But having arrived in town before train time, I stepped into a school room just as the children were entering for the morning session. It was a very large school, and in five minutes all the scholars had entered and taken their seats; and silence prevailed.

I sat in the rear of the room near the door, in order that I might take my departure when the train whistled, without interrupting the school. There were three lady teachers who sat on the platform. Now, as everything had become very quiet, one lady, whom I supposed was the principal teacher, arose and read a chapter from the Bible, at the conclusion of which the second lady from her prayed, and the lady who sat in the middle said let us sing "We will run the little chickens out." At this announcement every scholar arose, picked up a card from their desk, and commenced singing. I was completely charmed. I thought I had never heard a sweeter piece of music. One big boy who sung bass, his voice fairly rang through my soul so that it woke me, and when I roused up I was singing with them. I looked around with regret to find that there was no school. So I thought that I would not lose the song, I got up, looked at my watch, and it was 3 o'clock. I sat down and wrote the song in my little book, so here it is with the chorus:

"We Will Run the Little Chickens Out."

Gentle thoughts shall come, kind words be spoken,
Te playmates here upon the floor, on the floor;
And when we meet upon the street,
Or highway we shall all adore.

CHORUS.

We will run the little chickens out,
We will run the little chickens out.
We will run them out from round the deer, round the door,
We will run the little chickens out,
We'll run the little chickens out,
And keep them out for ever more.

My brother here and sister there and friends around should all agree, all agree,
And when we meet no angry words nor thoughts should interrupt our glee.
Chorus—
Good thoughts and deeds and words and smiles,
Will make us happy while we're here, while we're here;
But a bitter word, a frown of strife,
Will numb the heart that once was dear.
Chorus—
Just what we need is honest hearts,
And wisdom, virtue, truth and love, truth and love;
And when our life shall end below,
Our soul shall enter heaven above.
Chorus—

There is a moral connected with this song which is related as follows.

T. R. FLETCHER.

Dear Watch Tower—I want to ask my young friends a question: If a hen and a half lays an egg and a half in a day and a half, how many eggs will that hen lay in forty-two days.

Any boy or girl desiring to answer this question can do so by sending their answer to the editor of this paper at any time. Your little friend,

ANNIE SHELBY.

The Washington Conference Epworth League.

On the evening of Feb. 20, an enthusiastic Epworth League mass meeting of the Washington District was held in Mt. Zion M. E. Church, Georgetown; Rev. Wm. Bell, president, with Miss Laura Hawkins, secretary. Meeting was opened by singing "Ho! every one that thirsts." Prayer by Rev. H. A. Carroll. The choir and congregation then sang a favorite hymn. A brief business session was then held, in which many of the chapters gave encouraging reports of their work since last meeting. The chapters of the district are doing creditable work in almost all of the departments, many of which are well organized. The next thing was the program as prepared for the evening, and the first to appear was Miss Lubelle Gibson, of Asbury, with a paper entitled, "Patience, diligence and perseverance," which showed much care in preparation and received marked attention throughout its delivery, and hearty applause at the close, with a vote of thanks; after which Miss Laura Hawkins, of Ebenezer, sang a very sweet solo, "Memories of the Past," which pleased all. The paper by Mr. Walter Abrams, of Mt. Zion, "Welfare of Young Men," deserves and did receive credit.

Our Epworth Leagues are intelligent, and know how and when to manifest appreciation for merit, worth and character. Rev. Dr. D. W. Hays, of Asbury, was requested by the president to lead the testimonials of thirty minutes, in which a great number offered intelligent testimonies for the many blessings God, for Christ's sake, has done for us. The presiding elder, Rev. W. H. Brooks, A. B., at the close of testimonials, was also requested by the president to conduct the collection, which he did, the audience responding quite liberally.

Copies of the SOUTHWESTERN were distributed at the beginning of the service, and now Brother Julius J. Chilcoat was ready to receive the names and amounts of any wishing to subscribe for our paper. Your correspondent hereby sends for all who gave their names. We hope to do more. At this point news reached us of the sudden death of that great man, Hon. Frederick Douglass. The announcement of the death of Mr. Douglass caused a sensation. It was so sudden and unexpected. All hearts were touched. Asbury M. E. Church appointed the writer to accompany the remains of the distinguished statesman to Rochester, N. Y., where it will rest in the beautiful Mount Hope Cemetery.

100 WANTED The well-known preacher, lecturer and newspaper writer, Scott F. Hershey, Ph. D., of Boston, is at work on a book which deals with the Roman Papacy, as everywhere and always opposed to civil and religious liberty. Doctor Hershey has been a student for years in the history of Romanism, and has made researches in the libraries of this country and Europe. He has spent years in Washington City accumulating a wonderful fund of fact concerning the power of the Roman Church in the affairs of government. Terrible in fact and popular in style, his book will have an immense influence on the Patriotic movement of the day, and will have the largest sale of any book in this generation

FROM PRESIDING ELDERS.

Baton Rouge District—

Dear Brethren—Please take notice from the plan of appointments and prepare for a good spiritual time at each quarterly meeting. Make a great effort on Easter Sunday, both in Sunday school and church, for missions. You are to raise the apportionment for F. A. and S. E. during the month of May. Dr. Hartzell will send statement. Look after the collections for ministerial support before the meeting of the quarterly conference. Yours faithfully, J. F. MARSHALL, P. E.

North New Orleans District—

Dear Brothers—In accordance with the action of the district conference, every member is hereby assessed 25 cents per quarter to meet the presiding elder's claims. District and other stewards, class leaders and pastors are affectionately requested to see to it that the same is collected before the end of each quarter. The Church expects us to become entirely self-supporting. The apportionments for benevolent causes for the current year have been sent you. They have been on the basis of ability, heart and willingness. No doubt you will accept them cheerfully. See that they go upon the records properly, and that the full amounts asked be raised. Load yourself with the great facts concerning the spirit, aim, needs and triumphs of these causes. Fire these facts at the people; become enthusiastic yourself and you will kindle enthusiasm in others; begin early; put your committees, Sunday schools and Epworth Leagues to work; enlist all; push the work. Give attention to details, gather up fragments. 1—Giving is a Christian grace. 2—Giving up to the full measure of ability is a Christian duty. 3—Giving up to the full extent of opportunity is a Christian privilege. 4—Giving cheerfully is a Christian delight. 5—Giving doth not impoverish, but enricheth. We cannot afford to lose our place at the head of the column, where we belong. Let us maintain our position by early, united and consecrated efforts. Let every charge be prepared to report every apportionment collected to the district conference, which meets at St. Matthew Church, Algiers, August 7-11, 1895. Push the SOUTHWESTERN into every family. Push out for a rich harvest of precious souls. Put the SOUTHWESTERN, a discipline, in the hands of every young convert, officer and family. Look after the young people, the organization of the Epworth League and the revival of Sunday school work. Begin the raising of benevolences with the beginning of the year, March 1, 1895. Push forward every interest of the Church. Your yoke-fellow,

A. E. P. ALBERT, P. E.,
1656 St. Charles Ave., New Orleans.

Our Virginia Letter.

Things are on the forward move on this charge; we have just closed a revival of religion, which resulted in 27 conversions, with 30 accessions to the church. Rev. W. H. Pleasant, P. E., was with us on a recent Sabbath, and presented the cause of the SOUTHWESTERN by saying he wanted one hundred subscribers on the district this conference year. The pastor with officiary pledged twenty-five of the number. Pulaski Station has raised and paid more this conference year for all purposes than in any of the previous years of our pastorate. Our Sabbath school and classes are thoroughly organized and at work.

Our motto is: "Souls for Christ, full benevolent collections and twenty-five subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN, or more."

The district convention of the Epworth League, for the Mytheville District, convenes at Pulaski, April 12.

The much circulated rumor that our church was sold is untrue. And those who are seeking to do the old church harm, though calling themselves Methodists, and loudly prating about Negro independence, are meeting with sad failure. The old Church is best after all. The M. E. Church in Pulaski is solid, With the SOUTHWESTERN at our back and with such a loyal membership as we have, we mean to stay.

R. J. BUCKNER, Pulaski Station, Va.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

THE SUN-BRIGHT CLIME.

Some of our readers will remember this grand old hymn of the fathers. We repnblish it that it may again revive, and cheer, and inspire:

Have you heard, have yon heard of that sun-bright olimo,
Undimmod hy sorrow, unhurt hy time,
Where age hath no power o'er the fadeless frame,
Where the eye is fire and the heart is flame—
Have you heard of that sun-bright elime?

A river of water gnshes there,
'Mid flowers of heanty strangely fair,
And a thousand wings are hovering o'er
The dazzling wave and the golden shore,
That are seen in that sun-bright olime.

Millions of forms, all olothed in white,
In garments of beanty, clear aud bright,
There dwell in their own immortal bowers,
'Mid fadeless hues of countless flowers
That bloom in that sun-bright olime.

Ear hath uot heard and eye hath not seen
Their swelling songs and their changoless sheon;
Their ensigns are waving, their banners unfurl
O'er the jasper wall and gates of pearl,
That fixed in that snn-bright clime.

But far, far away in that sinless clime,
Undimmed hy sorrow and unhurt by time,
Where, amid all things bright and fair is given
The home of the just, and its name is heaven—
The name of that sun-bright elime.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

ARE you waiting for the picnic, excursion and pleasnre seasons to pass before yon begin to order the battle? If so, you are indnlging in a dangerons experiment. Those traps of the devil, inclnding the Snnday excnrsion, will assnredly resnlt in the death of some one. Yon may prevent this, save a sonl from death, and hide a mnltitnde of sins. Brother, remember "the King's business reqnireth haste."

BRETHREN, don't fail to read the appeal to the patronizing conferences on the third page. It was written by Rev. W. R. R. Dnncan, presiding elder of Little Rock Conference and member of the General Book Committee. Brother Dnncan is in perfect tonch with ns, with reference to onr great organ, and practices what he preaches. Snch representative men in all onr conferences would give the SOUTHWESTERN 40,000 snbscribers.

OH! BRETHREN, go in for the conversion of souls. Brnsh np, brighten np, and get ready for the harvest. Souls are perishing all around yon. They are waiting for yonr tonch. Don't wait for the crowd. Behold, now is the day of salvation—"To day if ye will hear his voice." Yon are the Lord's chief agents; you are called to the most important work on earth. Remember, yonr bread shall be given and your water sure, only get at the Master's work at once.

LETTERS that come in from different parts of the field bearing tidings of the salvation of souls, bnilding of churches and paying for them, are always welcome and get the first place in onr colnmns. We want the news of the progress of Zion; we want to know what our watchmen are doing throughout onr vast territory. But we are thirsting for that class of news which tells ns of the salvation of precions sonls. The whole Church wants to hear it.

FELLOW-MINISTERS, we would humbly suggest that "greased pig" contests, "cake walks," "raffles," "mock marriages" contests to decide as to the most popnlar lady or gentlemen or preacher, "ugly shows," etc., are very mnch out of place in the Chnrch or nnder its sanction. Money is often collected with which to pay church debts, pastors' salaries and to make np benevolent apportionments; but we are certain that no substantial progress is made in the making of good people and in the increase of sound morality where such practices are followed. Brethren, don't do it.

THE COMMERCE OF A GREAT CITY IN THE HANDS OF "HOODLUMS."

Civilized people are wondering what sort of people we have in the Crescent City. We answer all sorts of people. The most important people at the present time seem to be the white hoodlnms. For the past three months or more they have assumed the entire dictatorship as to the question of labor on the levees. The presence of Negro laborers has been especially objectionable to the white knights of the cotton hook. Nor do they hesitate to resort to the most qnestionable methods to carry out their purposes. A few months ago they boarded an English ship where colored men were working, threw their tools overboard, shot at and killed one or more of the Negro workmen, and defied the authorities to arrest them. Later on some of them fired a cotton yard, which resnlted in the destruction of hnndreds and thonsands of dollars' worth of property. Later on a gang of these hoodlums, armed with Winchesters, marched to the dock where an English vessel was being loaded by Negro laborers, ordered them off, and against the protest of the captain of the vessel, fired a volley at the fleeing Negroes. Of conrse, no arrests were made; but the English flag has donbtless been insnlted by these ignorant hoodlnms, and there will donbtless be a searching investigation. Snch an investigation, if it does nothing more, will reveal and expose the weakness, imbecility and criminal indifference of onr city civil anthorities. Dnring the several ontbreaks, these benevolent (?) hoodlnms have shot, maimed, driven the terrified Negroes from their work, and not a single snccessful case has been made against the perpetrators of these outrages. It is said that the poor Negroes were "easily scared off," and that they "ran like sheep," or "trembled with fear," on approach of the white beligerents. Why should they not fear and tremble when the police and citizens were afraid to rebnke these chivalric knights? Certainly, the Negro rnns away, or is terrified, when all the odds are against him. The sitnation is not at all encouraging to those who condnct our great commercial interests. With a city government charged again and again with corruption; with indictments against several of our city conncilmen for malfeasance, bribery, etc.; with a small and inefficient police force already charged with failure to protect the city's interests, and with the hoodlnmistic element enthroned, it is hardly likely that our vast commercial interests will be advanced. Our sympathies are always with the laboring men. We believe that the payment of reasonable wages for faithful labor will be helpfnl alike to the employer and the employe. Bnt when laboring men undertake to discriminate against their fellow-laborers for the sole reason that they are colored, they pnt themselves beyond the pale of pnblic sympathy, and shonld be dealt with as all other lawbreakers.

—The Donaldsonville (La.) Chief has the following appreciative notice of Revs. Pierre Landry, presiding elder of the Sonth New Orleans District, and C. D. Shallowhorne, recently appointed to Donaldsonville: "Rev. Pierre Landry was continned in the position of presiding elder of the Sonth New Orleans District, which he has so efficiently filled heretofore. Rev. C. D. Shallowhorne was assigned to St. Peter Church, this city. Rev. Shallowhorne, the new pastor of St. Peter, comes back to his former home welcomed by the congregation and a host of well wishes among both white and colored people."

A CHARACTER SKETCH.

"Let not his hoar head go down to the grave in peace." These words were spoken of one of the most consnmmate schemers of ancient times. Ambitions, selfish, unscrnpnlons, vindictive, he was jnst the sort of character to foment sedition, that he might more fnlly intrench himself in the hearts of a vacillating people. Joab, the wily, crafty diplomat, for a long time the most brilliant personage in David's kingdom, he contribnted, perhaps more than any other, toward its overthrow. He was a good soldier, an able and skillful general, bnt a man of schemes. Inordinately ambitions, he wonld brook no rival. He regarded every rising man in the kingdom as an obstacle in the way of his own personal ambition, and did not hesitate to resort to the most desperate measnres to get rid of him. A distingnished writer gives this pictnre of the man: "Joab is the personification of worldly policy and secular expediency, and temporal ambition, eager for its own personal aggrandizement, and especially for the maintenance of its own political ascendancy, and practicing on the weakness of princes for its own self-interest; bnt at last the victim of its own Machiavelian shrewdness." Those who have read the history of this schemer have noticed how, throngh his bland, genial manners, he gained power over King David; not becanse he wonld be a loyal and faithfnl officer of the realm, bnt to gratify his love of rule. He was an evil genins to the king who had unfortnnately gotten into the trap set by this wily diplomat. In vain he tried to shake off this power, bnt alas it was of no avail. "And he had to pay the price, as every person does who is nnfortnnate enongh to bid for the help of bad men." Both are slaves, and both will sooner or later snffer the consequences of an nnholy alliance. Bnt Joab wanted power, and he got it. He made men his tools. He professed to be in sympathy with them; pitied, patted and petted them. He had great patronage to bestow. He impressed them of his great loyalty to the weak king, while at the same time he was nndermining the throne. He would be a reformer, and had a wonderfnl facnlty of turning affairs to his own acconnt. He was ontwardly pions, bnt carried in his breast a vindictive spirit and in his hand at all times the sword with which to deprive a rival of his life. Witness the coolness with which he took the life of Abner, of whom he was jealons, and the well laid scheme which nltimately resnlted in the death of Absalom. But "the man of schemes is sure to overscheme." Mark yon, "He that diggeth a pit for his brother, shall fall into it." So this restless, impetuons, cold-hearted schemer came at last to grief. He rnshed to the altar, seized the horns and claimed immnnity, hypocrite that he was, but too late. The sword which he had nsed so often to punish others let ont his own life blood, and the once great and mighty Joab, with towering ambition, with inordinate love of power, the royal mischief maker, the pretended friend who lnred unsuspecting friends to rnin; he whose plansible godly cant gained him a strong place in the hearts of the simple and unsuspecting people, at last pays the penalty of his perfidity. Bnt his evil example yet lives to cnrse society with its baleful influence. Prototypes of Joab are everywhere. Watch the schemer; keep your eye on Joab.

OUR : WOMEN'S : ROUND : TABLE

The Influence of the Home in the Uplifting of our People.

ELEVENTH LETTER—BY T. K. W.

I have been very deeply impressed by reading an account of the action taken by several State legislatures with reference to the age at which a young girl may be permitted to consent to her ruin. I am in hearty sympathy with those women who are urging the virtuous lawmakers to place the limit at mature womanhood. But isn't it a terrible thing to contemplate, that there should be even the barest possibility that in this Christian land there should be even a suggestion on the part of a gentleman which would result in the ruin of a young girl. I am not so much surprised at the laxness of our so called morality when I consider the prevalence of such a spirit of licentiousness, as is appaling to contemplate. Pity it is, but pity 'tis true, that so many of the sterner sex are ready to take advantage of the weaker sex, who are too often made weaker by those environments which are not conducive to either their moral or social development. I have also heard of instances where these libertines have boasted of the number of their victims. I cannot help thinking sometimes, that the law-makers incline to the stronger side as against the weaker, and hence the many safeguards which are thrown around those masculine offenders.

While I am discussing this theme, I feel it my duty to say that our homes should be kept more sacred so that our girls could feel that in the home at least they are measurably safe. But how often are these sacred places invaded by men of doubtful morality? How often is it true that we feast, and toast, and entertain the erring man, while we curl the lip and shrug the shoulders against his victim. If Mr. so and so, from such and such a place, comes to town, some people are all on tiptoe to get up a party or entertainment of some sort that our girls may become acquainted with the new comer. It matters not whether he is the king of the gambling fraternity, or the most convivial spirit at the court of the Bacchanal. He may have charged against him the wreck of some fair young life. It matters not to some of our giddy people. He is a good dresser and such a pleasant talker, "you know;" or, if he has recklessly thrown away several thousands of dollars, so much the better, his entree into some homes is thereby assured. And oh, those parties! they are just too "utterly utter" for anything. The newspapers come out with a full account of the dilletanto high toned affair "don't you know." And then it is just too nice to have an elaborate description of the rich (?) costumes, etc., not forgetting the "booby." But somehow the newspapers invariably fail to tell how completely the same "old fox" manages to catch the geese. See!

* * *

A Western man, having lost his wife, was accosted by a sympathizing friend, who remarked upon his woebegone appearance. "Well, I guess you would look thin, too," was the melancholy rejoinder, "if you had to get up before daylight, make the fires, draw water, split wood, and feed the cattle, all before breakfast. I just tell you what it is, if I don't get somebody to fill poor, dear, sainted Maria's place, I will be resting by her side before many weeks are past."

Paris and the French People.

President W. P. THIRKIELD, D. D., Gammon Theological Seminary.

Paris is a city of remarkable bri liance and splendor. It is a fitting capital for the dashing, showy, artistic French people. It is very bright and beautiful to the eye. Within it is full of wickedness and dead men's bones. Its manifold forms of vice and sin are sources of inevitable weakness and decay. But on the surface all is gayety and splendor. The people do not seem to think of the to morrow. The avenues are broad and handsome. Many of them lined with palaces. There are miles and miles of boulevards with bright, rich shops on either side. Cafes are a marked feature of Parisian life. There are thousands of them. Tens of thousands of people, at the close of day, crowd these places for eating and drinking. The broad sidewalks are lined with chairs and tables. The gay Parisians laugh and chat, eat and drink as if life were one long holiday. Yet, these French people in provinces and in the capital are noted for their industry, economy and general thrift. These qualities account for their marvelous powers of recovery after disasters that would have crushed a people less dauntless and strong. As one looks over this remarkable city, it is hard to realize that less than a quarter of a century ago it was besieged by the Germans; that it was reduced to the point of starvation; that it was ravaged by the mad commune, and that large portions of it were desolated by war and torch and famine. Long ago France would have been stranded by debt and poverty, because of wars and the wild extravagance of rulers, had it not been for the industry and thrift of her people. Paris is a city of artisans. The people have much of the intellectual power and idealism of the ancient Greeks. They use their brains to profit. Merchants of the world come to Paris for fine art fabrics. Thus the other nations pay tribute to the genius of the French.

This power of recovery is also due to the economy of the people. It is said that many a French family could live off of the food that is thrown away from the table of a well-to-do American family. They put their brains into their cooking. They serve the commonest foods in forms that are palatable. They are a lesson, in this respect, to the people of the South who are especially inclined to wastefulness and extravagance in the kitchen and at the table. A family may be hospitable and generous without being extravagant.

The peasantry of France, in addition to their frugality, reveal a wisdom worthy of imitation in their methods of farming. France is noted for its large number of small farms. From a holding of several acres the French peasant will gather harvests that will support his family and enable him to lay by something. The plantation idea is the curse of the South. We need to learn the wisdom of "A little farm well tilled." A system of intensive farming, supplemented by knowledge of right agricultural methods in the farmer, would soon bring wealth to the South. More brain and less guano is what is needed. But let us return to Paris.

Paris is rich in treasures of art. The nation has been fruitful in painters and sculptors. Art students from all nations of the earth gather by the thousands in her schools of art. The Louvre is one of the greatest repositories of art in the world. One may walk there for miles amid the art works of all nations and all times. A brief description of even the rare and most valuable treasures would fill volumes. The gardens and parks are full of statues and monuments of art. The Parisians show artistic genius in everything they touch.

Paris has many churches. Without, most of them present few attractions. Within, they are often rich and beautiful. The Church of the Madeleine is one of the most impressive. It is built in the form of a Greek temple. It is surrounded by rows of lofty and noble columns. It is noted for fine music and rather splendid services. On the altar of this church are statues of Mary Magdaline and four angels. Each carved angel is said to have cost $30,000. During the service that I attended there I was impressed with the heartless and entirely formal character of the exercises. There was much po mp and little piety. About the splendid altar the priests and acolytes gesticulated and bowed in their gorgeous vestments. The ritual was given in such mumbling tones that, whether it was in Latin or French, it mattered little. The people had an attitude indicating curiosity, rather than devotion. No sentiment of reverence was awakened. The Spirit of the Highest did not seem to be present. The element of genuine worship was lacking. It is sad to see the people seeking the help they so much need, and, apparently, all in vain. So it seemed in the vast and splendid Cathedral of Notre Dame and in the other churches that I visited. It was my first sight of the vain pomp and empty forms of the Romish Church on the Continent. It was sad enough here, but in Italy, and the nearer one got to Rome, the worse it seemed.

During my second Sunday in Paris I witnessed an exhibition of superstition for which I was hardly prepared. I knew what evidences of mediæval superstition I was to find in Italy, with her thousands of relics. But in Paris—intellectual and progressive Paris—how unexpected the sight! We were standing before the gorgeously wrought tomb of St. Genevieve—the patron saint of Paris. About the tomb several women were bowing, on their knees. Some bought candles from the priest in attendance and these were lighted for them and left to burn in their behalf in the candlesticks about the tomb. Then a woman arose, went to the desk of the priest and bought one of the numerous metal articles that he had on sale. The priest then took the little cross that she had purchased, opened a small door in the elaborate screen that covered the slab and rubbed the article over the tomb, mumbling a prayer as he did so. The woman then gratefully received her little cross. Doubtless she left feeling that in wearing this charm about her neck she had secured the protecting care of the miracle-working Genevieve, the patron saint and defender of Paris. While I stood there by the tomb another woman, clad in deep mourning, came and paid her silver to secure a specified number of prayers for the repose of the soul of her dead husband. In more than one of the churches printed notices were placed, promising, on the authority of the Pope, indulgences in return for prayers or other services of devotion.

Thus superstition survives, especially among the women who most frequent the churches. Scepticism and infidelity have stronghold on the people. There is revolt against the Church of Rome. The Protestant movement is weak, though the missions of Mrs. McCall are reaching many people. The revolt against Romanism, under the leadership of Father Hyacinthe, that once promised large things, has not realized expectations. When he boldly renounced the doctrine of Papal Infallibility, if he had followed his new teachings to their logical conclusion and had come out on the Protestant platform of justification by faith, he might, with his marvelous power as a preacher and his large following, have wrought a mighty work for the redemption of the French people.

Readers are keenly alive to the high art value of the photo-engravings in the new Holy Land series, "Earthly Footsteps of the Man of Galilee." Outside their religious and educational worth they will be widely treasured as photographic gems. Ten cents and a coupon secures a part, postpaid, if ordered from us.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Without the Sword.

By Rev. E. J. Cox, East Tennessee Conf.

We are taught in the Bible that the word of God is the sword. This being true, then, no Church is prepared for battle unless it is well grounded in the doctrines and teachings of this great and wonderful book. There are a great many of our people who are unmethodistic because they are not able to comprehend the doctrines of our Church, as they are in the Bible. In fact, they are without the sword. Ministers are responsible for this. They are to keep the people informed on all subjects of doctrine. A great many of our people don't believe in infant baptism.

So we, as ministers of the Gospel, must be able to present these great teachings in a way that the people can easily comprehend them. The sources, whereby we can get information, are inexhaustible. Baptism, by sprinkling, is considered as not baptism by a great many; but as our people are becoming more intelligent, these subjects, discussed in an intelligent manner, will soon kill ignorance and superstition, and our great Church will "look forth as the morning fair, as the moon clear, as the sun terrible, and as an army with banners." A great many times our people are attacked by immersionists, and are completely undone because they can't unravel the sophistry of their argument and vindicate the doctrine of the Church. An educated ministry, men with backbone to preach the whole Gospel and keep the Church informed, will insure permanent and lasting success.

Important Change of Date.

The Stewart Missionary Foundation for Africa.

The limit of time within which the prize productions which are successful in the local contest in schools or churches, are to be received by the faculty of Gammon Theological Seminary, has been extended to April 20. The local contest can be held whenever desired so that the successful productions reach Atlanta by April 20. With this extension of time, any school or church can yet begin and and successfully complete the prize productions for this spring. But no time should be lost. Full circulars of information and a limited number of bulletins with several valuable articles on Africa, will be sent to any pastor desiring to use them for this work. Address

DEPENDENCE ON THE SPIRIT.

How helpless nature lies,
Unconscious of her load!
The heart unchanged can never rise
To happiness and God.

Can aught but power divine
The stubborn will subdue?
'Tis thine eternal Spirit, thine
To form the heart anew.

The passions to recall,
And upward bid them rise;
To make the scales of error fall
From reasons darkened eyes.

O change these hearts of ours,
And give them life divine;
Then shall our passions and our powers,
Almighty Lord, be thine.

DAILY THOUGHTS.

[From Phillips Brooks.]

MARCH 14.—Pray. Yes, go to the God whom you but dimly see and pray to Him in the darkness, where He seems to sit. Ask Him, as if He were, that He will give you that which, if He is, must come from Him, can come from him alone. Pray anxiously. Pray passionately, in the simplest of all words, with the simplest of all thoughts. Pray, the manliest thing that a man can do, the fastening of his life to the eternal, the drinking of his thirsty soul out of the great fountain of life. And pray distinctly. Pray upon your knees. One grows tired sometimes of the free thought, which is yet perfectly true, that a man can pray anywhere and anyhow. But men have found it good to make the whole system pray. Kneel down, and the very bending of these obstinate and unused knees of yours will make the soul kneel down in the humility in which it can be exalted in the sight of God.

MARCH 15.—Christ is the very embodiment of human liberty. In His own personal life and in everything that He did and said, He was forever uttering the great gospel that man, in order to become his completest, must become his freest, that what a man did when he entered into a new life was to open a new region in which new powers were to find their exercise, in which he was to be able to be and do things which he could not be and do in more restricted life. It is the acceptance of that idea, it seems to me, that makes us true disciples of Christ and of that great gospel, and that transfigures everything.

MARCH 16.—"As many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God."

Just think of it!—the sons of God! The power to become that to as many as will receive the present Christ.

MARCH 17.—Do not let yourselves say, that the man who gives himself to Jesus Christ and earnestly tr ss to enter in deeper and deeper into his life and tries to do his will, that he may know the Christ and know himself in the Christ more and more—dare not call that brother a fool, as you have sometimes called your Christian man who watched scrupulously over his life and prayed. When a man for the first time bows down upon his knees and prays, "Oh! Christ, come unto me, reveal Thyself to me, make me to know Thee, that I may receive Thee, make me to be obedient that I may take Thee into my life," then that man has claimed his manhood. I beg you, I implore you, I adjure you that, if you be not ready to be Christian, you at least will know that the Christian life is the only true human life, and that the man who becomes thoroughly a Christian sets his face toward the fulfillment of his humanity, and so for the first time truly is a man.

MARCH 18.—When a man turns away from his sins and enters into energetic holiness, when a man sacrifices his own self-indulgence and goes forth a pure servant of his God and his fellow-men, there is only one cry in the whole gospel of that man, and that is the cry of freedom

An Appeal.

To the Patronizing Conferences of the Southwestern Christian Advocate.

Dear Dr. Hammond, Editor of the Southwestern Christian Advocate:

I wish to appeal to the colored ministry and membership of our patronizing territory on behalf of the SOUTHWESTERN. In my humble judgment we should proceed immediately to circulate the paper so that a copy should be in the hands of at least one-fifth of our colored membership. The former action of the agents with reference to the shape and size of the paper, signifies a forward movement that will stimulate us to a greater effort than ever before. Further, the paper has already taken upon itself the likeness of the other Advocates of our great Methodism, which also implies that we are in the line of progress. As the business and subscriptions increase there will of course be a corresponding increase in the size of the paper; a fact that which should be steadily kept in mind. Our agents will most assuredly keep and perform their promise, and it is possible for our brethren within the patronizing territory to increase the present list of subscribers to twice its number and thus secure the enlargement of the SOUTHWESTERN. We sound the rallying cry all along the line of our conference borders. The urgency of the case is one that calls for reflection and immediate action. We have a working force of 82 presiding elders, 1373 pastors and a loyal constituency of 250,000. What cannot this mighty force do when all are turned to this one cause? This action is due the Church, because this is the only General Conference organ circulating directly among us, and it ought to be our highest ambition to show to the Church that we appreciate the confidence thus reposed in us. Shall we let the paper pass the limit and continue year after year with a large subsidy? I answer no! We are too high-minded to allow the great Methodist Episcopal Church to do this. Hence we are going to show the Church that there are men enough amongst us to make the SOUTHWESTERN entirely self supporting. Let it be remembered, that every colored pastor in our patronizing territory, who withholds his support from the paper—if not disloyal, he is culpably indifferent. We feel sure that the subscribers are among the leading ministers of our denomination. It may be set down as a fact, that ministers who will not support their own church papers are of but little service to the Church. We are beginning the fiscal year with our paper, showing vast improvement in all its departments. For this reason, if for no other, its subscription list ought to take an upward leap far above the 10,000 asked by the editor and publishers

Finally I feel constrained to say, that if we, as colored Methodists, cannot successfully manage the SOUTHWESTERN and make it not only one of the best of the Advocate family but one of the best religious papers in the land, it will be about time for us to cease talking about our race pride and manhood, and love of the Methodist Episcopal Church. But we can and will succeed. We have the leaders, and the people, and the money, and are determined to put them all on the altar in a mighty effort for success. As a presiding elder I appeal to my colleagues and fellow-pastors. Let each presiding elder secure 100—this will give us 8200 from the presiding elders. Let each pastor secure 10 or more subscribers, which will make a total of 13,730 from the pastors, showing a grand total of over 21,000, enough to put the SOUTHWESTERN in the very front rank of paying enterprises. This can be done in a single year. We believe it can be done—it surely ought to be done for our much-beloved SOUTHWESTERN. Yours for the race,

W. R. R. DUNCAN,
(Member of Book Committee and Presiding Elder in Little Rock Conference.)

The Christian Ministry.

By Rev. W. L. DUNCAN, P. E., Texas Conference.

The great obligation of the ministry of Christ at once impresses me with its importance. Each day I live, read and meditate upon His word, I am more and more impressed of my duty and responsibility toward God and my fellow man It may be appropriate and profitable for us to take an outlook over the scene in which we live and labor, and notice what it presents for guidance and warning. It will not be questioned that the ministry sustains a relation to the world that no other profession does.

The minister has a special vocation which is determined by all that constitutes the peculiar characteristics of the people. He is called, ordained and commissioned of God as an ambassador of Jesus Christ. All Christian nations recognize the ministry as above and distinct from all other professions. It is right and highly proper that we give due credit to philosophers, physicians, lawyers and statesmen for the great service they have been and are to the people in the way of their mental improvements, relief of bodily disorders, protection of their property, and a free, united and peaceable government. Yet, when we speak of the ministry as a profession, the Bible places it first among them all, because its work is principally with the higher nature of man—his soul. It is of the greatest importance that a Christian minister, in order to be a successful and effective preacher, should by all means be a man of piety. He should have but one main object in his ministry, and that should be to exalt Christ, and preach the Gospel with the greatest simplicity; he should himself be a living example of his ministry. The people cannot be much benefited by his expositions in the pulpit, unless he practices the duties he inculcates by his daily life. The success of the ministry of the past has ever depended largely upon their piety, and it is as true of ministers to-day. Piety should be cultivated by every minister, because it is indispensable to his success. As the minister's position is so important, how desirable it is for him to seek such qualifications as shall properly fit him to honor his Lord and be of the greatest benefit to humanity. The minister must be a public teacher. As a public teacher the minister has a duty to see to the mental discipline of his people. It is indispensable, therefore, that he be mentally trained in order that he may be able properly to instruct the people and assist them in the various forms of education. When we think of the intelligence of God and the capability of man's mind, how necessary it is for him to be able to show the people to whom he preaches the importance of having a degree of mental training. God can only be worshiped orderly and properly where the people have a degree of intelligence. The Christian Church should ever be greatly concerned with the importance of having an educated ministry—a ministry whose influence will be powerfully felt in shaping and directing the mental, physical, moral and spiritual condition of the people. The duties of the Christian minister as a pastor bring him into more intimate personal relations with his flock than do any of the other professions. It is especially requisite that the minister of Christ should understand the spirit and life of the people among whom he lives and labors. Hence, pastoral visiting is the most effective part of a true minister's work. In this way he can talk to men face to face about Christ and their duties in life. The people may forget the faithful pastor's sermons, but they will not forget his instructions and good advice in their homes and in their place of business. God bless the true and faithful ministers. "Be thou faithful until death and I shall give thee a crown of life."

Our Bowling Green (Ky.) Letter.

Our fourth quarterly conference convened in College Street M. E. Church, on February 26, with Presiding Elder T. L. Ferguson in the chair. Sunday, the 24th, was a high day in Zion, the Lord having blessed us by answering our prayers. We prayed, "Lord, send us some untried means;" so he sent us Sister D. Lewis, of Indianapolis, and the Lord attended her words with power and the people flocked to hear her night and day. The house was crowded every service and many were turned away for want of room. We had thirty-seven converts and thirty-one accession. Many searched the Scriptures to see if God called a woman to preach, and to see if those things were true which she spoke; whilst gamblers and libertines were pricked to the heart and said, "Never man spoke like this woman;" and others said, "She preached, if God didn't call her, and came like a jailer of old and cried, 'What shall I do to be saved?'" Sister Lewis is held in high esteem here, both among the Methodist and Baptist, and when she comes back in July we will build a tabernacle so the people can hear her. Bless the Lord, every Sunday school scholar is converted, every child that is old enough to attend Sunday school is baptized and in the church, and all our children are saved, and are placed under proper leaders. W. H. POPE, Pastor.

AS TO WHITE BLOOD, ETC.

The death of the great Frederick Douglass has brought out many splendid testimonials as to the excellency of the character of the great Negro. Many have placed considerable emphasis upon the fact that his father was a white man. By some, the mother was an "African," by others a "Negress," and by not a few an Indian, so that while there is a very generous disposition on the part of the writers to magnify the greatness of the man, it is clearly evident that they derive much comfort from the reflection that there was a very visible admixture of Anglo-Saxon blood in his veins, and, to carry the syllogism still farther, we might add, a very visible improvement as the result of this admixture. Mr. Douglass was always credited with being a Negro, whatever proportion of other blood coursed through his veins. He was the one great man of his race who did more than any other man to remove the odium which had been placed upon his brethren of darker hue. It is quite probable that many of his white fellow-citizens wished that they might be like Douglass, color and all.

We have heard the story of an Irishman who, hearing the great Negro speak, and witnessing the enthusiasm with which it was received, asked who he was, etc. He was told that he was called a Negro, but that he was only half Negro, having had a white father. The Irishman replied, "Sure, and faith, if a half Negro can do so well, what would a whole Negro do?" Pat had the logic on his side after all. But Douglass lost nothing by comparison with the great men of the age in which he lived; but there seems to be no way of ascertaining, to an absolute certainty, as to the more prominent part or otherwise, which the blood played in the great life of the great man. From a very excellent editorial in the Northwestern Christian Advocate we take the following:

"Frederick Douglass is accounted for by some not over-amiable reasoners and critics by the fact that he was a son of his white master, and therefore half a white. They say that the Anglo Saxon half prevailed over the Negro fraction. If so, it is all the more remarkable that no others in the master's family are known to fame, except that they owned him, and are recalled as his masters. It is singular that so many who are unmitigated Anglo-Saxons are as low as the dog which competed with 'the subject and inferior' boy for that stolen dinner of crumbs. It is moreover singular that some colored men of undiluted blood have done so well, after their education in our freedmen schools, that Douglass himself has said that they are his equals in mind and force. We doubt not that the parity would have been more clearly demonstrated in many instances if the pathetic competitors had the moral refinement and mental discipline that come of sufferings like those once endured by this now dead Negro statesman."

RACE LITERATURE.

With the marvelous progress which the Negro is making, his coutribution to the literature of the age must not be forgotten. There have been constant discussions of the various phases of the race problem, while the Negro's religion or denominational predillections have developed numerous authors. Reminiscenses of slavery and of freedom, Church polity, poetry, social and domestic economy, with matters of a purely literary and scientific trend, have their ardent and able advocates. While biographical, philosophical and theological questions have been ably handled, it is safe to say that every phase in the development of the character of the race has brought to the surface the men and women for the hour, and their reflections and impressions have gone into the literature of the race. It is important now, and will become of more importance in the future, as we study the various important epochs in the history of the race, and of the conspicuous part which these and other publications are playing in the great work of its uplifting. We give a list of the publications which have exerted more or less of a healthy influence in the building of race character. Of course, the list is not full, but we give the best of those which have come within our reach:

History of the Negro Race in America, Williams. History of the A. M. E. Church, Payne. Afro-American Press, Penn. Negro Troops in the Rebellion, Williams. An Apology for African Methodism, Tanner. Outlines of History, Tanner. Genesis Reread, Steward. Not a Man and Yet a Man, Whitman. Digest of Christian Theology, Embry. Freedom and Citizenship, Langston. Methodist Polity, Turner. Domestic Education, Payne. Relation of Baptized Children to the Church, Coppin. Divine Logos, Johnson. Prize Essays, Smith. Official Sermons, Payne. What Communion Hath Light With Darkness, Armstrong. Methodist Luminary, Mixon. The Negro in Sacred History, Hayne. Colored Man in the M. E. Church, Hagood. Doctrines of Christ and the Church, Brown. Payne; A Monograph, Smith. Budget — 1885 6, Arnett. African Letters, Turner. Our Father's House and Family, Embry. The Onshite, Perry. Men of Mark, Simmons.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Question.—Is it lawful for a preacher to go beyond the bounds of his own conference to solemnize marriages in a place where there is a regular pastor of the same denomination, who is fully prepared to perform the ceremony?

Answer.—Yes. There is no law prohibiting a regularly ordained minister from solemnizing the marriage ceremony in any place, provided he complies with the law of the county, parish or State in all such cases. It should be understood, however, that the high contracting parties, or their immediate relatives and friends, may prefer others than their own pastors to perform the rite. This is their right, and it can be done without any disparagement to the resident pastors or preachers. But preachers who deliberately go about soliciting this business are guilty of a breach of ministerial courtesy, to say the least.

Question.—Is it right for a presiding elder to recommend a preacher for an appointment where he would not go himself if appointed?

Answer.—The presiding elder is supposed to know something about the qualifications of the men to be appointed, as well as the demands of the people where an appointment is to be made. As a presiding elder, he is not expected to take a pastoral charge, but is appointed to a district where, if he be a good, conscientious Christian gentleman, he will carefully guard the interests of both preachers and people. As a pastor, subject to appointment to a charge, he will go cheerfully to any appointment assigned him.

Question.—Is it right for a presiding elder to withhold the missionary money from a preacher whose charge fails to collect the presiding elder's quarterly salary?

Answer.—Of course not. The money is due the pastor for services rendered, and not in any way related to the presiding elder's quarterage. The missionary appropriations to the districts are adjusted by the presiding elders at the annual conferences with the concurrence of the bishops presiding, and the annual conference by vote adopts the report. The missionary drafts are forwarded to the presiding elders quarterly, who should forward to each brother who is entitled to it his part of the money at once, provided the pastor is performing his pastoral duties in a satisfactory manner. A presiding elder has no right to withhold the quarterly pay of a brother, or to deduct the same from the estimate made by the stewards for his support. We have heard several of our bishops instruct the presiding elders to forward the missionary money to the respective brethren on mission work at once by postoffice money order, draft, registered letter or express, and we believe it to be the safest and best plan.

Question.—Who is responsible for the collection of the amount necessary for the support of the presiding elder?

Answer.—The stewards. See Paragraph 282 of the Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The friction usually comes in here where pastors take this responsibility out of the hands of the regularly constituted officers—the stewards. Hence, presiding elders frequently hold the pastors responsible, which is the cause of no little mischief. Pastors should nominate always the best persons to be found for this important office, and then thoroughly drill them for service. If this is done there will be no occasion for the confusion which often arises.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Rev. A. Reid, of Union Church, Miss., cheered us with a club of three cash subscribers last week.

—Rev. O. H. Flowers, of Pass Christian, Miss., in passing through the city last week, gave us a pleasant call. He reports his work as prosperous.

—Presiding Elder W. R. R. Duncan, of the Little Rock Conference, sent us in a list of seven cash yearly subscribers last week. Who'll be the next to duplicate this splendid work?

—Mrs. Susan Dumas, a very prominent and highly respected member of our Church at Jefferson, Tex., passed away in the quiet sleep of death on Feb. 22. Her death occurred at Texarkana, Tex.

—Rev. G. Norman, of Waco, Tex., reports the death of Sister Bell McKenzey, wife of Rev. D. McKenzey of the West Texas Conference, on Feb. 18. She was greatly beloved by a large circle of friends, who mourn her loss. Her end was peace.

—Brother Fred. Wright, an old and highly respected member of the M. E. Church at Pontotoc, Miss., died Feb. 21; aged 71 years. His life was thoroughly consecrated to God, and his end was peace. Rev. J. M. Walton, his pastor, officiated at his funeral.

—Rev. R. L. Thomas, of Gloster, Miss., sends the sad news of the death of an amiable and faithful elect lady, Sister Amanda McGee. After a long period of illness, she passed away in great peace on Feb. 27. Many friends mourn.

—Brother B. G. Goff, of Fort Worth, Tex., wishes to remind the brethren who promised to assist in paying for the Church, that but few of them have responded. He desires immediate fulfillment of the pledges made. Pay up, brethren, and help this good brother out.

—Heidelberg, Miss., with Rev. R. M. Jones in charge, is one of our progressive churches. Reports at the last quarterly conference showed a healthy state of the church and Sunday school. Presiding Elder Shumpert was present with his usual good cheer, and faithfully represented the SOUTHWESTERN.

—Haven Chapel Epworth League Chapter, Meridian, Miss., held interesting memorial services on the death of the late Frederick Douglass on Feb. 28. Addresses were made by Revs. E. Boyd, A. J. McNair and Mr. Jos. Legrove. Miss Susie Campbell presided at the organ. The services were very impressive.

—A note from Rev. H. J. Wright, presiding elder of the Natchitoches District, informs us that Sister Dyer, wife of our esteemed brother, Rev. M. J. Dyer, of Natchitoches, La., is lying very ill, and but little hopes are entertained for her recovery. Let the prayers of the Church ascend in behalf of our afflicted sister. Since writing the above, we learn that Sister Dyer has passed over the Jordan.

—Rev. W. H. Hundley, pastor of our church at Pickens, Miss., gives glorious reports of various departments of his church. The outlook is hopeful, and things are moving forward grandly. Presiding Elder W. E. Mask visited the charge recently, held quarterly conference, assisted in the meeting, and spoke hopeful and helpful words in the interest of the SOUTHWESTERN. [He always does this.—ED.] The Sunday services were grand; 117 partook of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

NEW ORLEANS AND VICINITY.

John Parker, 1321 Lafayette street, and Jake Fischer, both of this city, were brutally and probably fatally shot while walking on the levee Monday morning, by a mob of 100 white men. Fischer was shot in the right side of the back. Parker was shot in right breast, right arm, besides cut in the head with a cotton hook. Both were taken to the hospital and are still living. Some apparent efforts are being made to arrest the guilty parties.

Douglass memorial services were held by Wesley M. E. Church Sunday School on March 3. A. R. Armstead, the superintendent, was master of ceremonies. The following program was rendered: Poem, Miss C. Ross; essay, "The work of Douglass," Miss L. V. Reddy; solo, L. Johnson; recitation, Mary Mason; "Death of Douglass," Nannie Wilson; "Works of Douglass," M. F. Anderson; resolutions, by the school. Benediction by pastor.

The pastor of Pleasant Plain M. E. Church is thankful to the members of Class No. 1, led by Sister Mary J. Nickerson, for an agreeable surprise on March 4, which consisted of about two hundred pounds of choice groceries. Among those present were Brothers Jos. Dutch, A. Ready, Sisters E. Ross, H. Dutch, W. A. Kenner, Downing, Bryar, Annie Bryar, L. Richardson, Cook, Valse, F. Webster, and others. May the blessings of God follow them and help them to call again.

Mrs. Rev. F. T. Chinn desires to meet all the preachers' wives at Wesley Chapel on Wednesday, Feb. 20, at 4 p m.; an organization of such is contemplated.

Dear Dr. Hammond—Please announce that A. E. P. Albert, Jr., is now on deck. The governor proclaimed his presence and authority this morning at 5:30 o'clock. Mother doing well. Fraternally,

OUR BOOK TABLE.

"The Kindergarten Sunday School," by Frederica Beard. Published by the Kindergarten Literature Co., Chicago.

It would be difficult to find a more interesting selection of subjects than are found in this highly entertaining book. The author has made the kindergarten a study, and gives her readers the benefit of her very mature thought. The first of the lessons are reprinted in the Kindergarten Magazine. The other series can be used with profit through the whole year.

The March-April number of the Methodist Review, Dr. W. Y. Kelly editor, comes to our table laden with good things. The leading articles: The credibility of the resurrection of Jesus; Scope and methods of Christian dogmatics; Our attitude toward Roman Catholics; The religious belief of John G. Whittier; The redemption of the slums, and Josephus and Jesus, are ably and elaborately discussed by such distinguished writers as Prof. W. N. Rice, Ph. D; Prof. M. S. Terry, D. D.; Prof. R. W. Rogers, D. D.; Chancellor Isaac Crook, D. D; H. C. Carroll, D. D., editor Independent; C. M. Coburn, Ph. D.; Prof. H. G. Mitchell, Ph. D., S. T. D, and S. L. Bowman, S. T. D. The editorial departments are up to the very highest mark of literary ability, fully meeting the great demand of the Church for that class of literature so generously furnished in this magnified number. New York: Hunt & Eaton; Cincinnati: Crauston & Curts. Subscription price postage included, $2.50.

The Methodist Episcopal Church South takes special pride in her "Bimonthly Review," the March-April number of which is on our table. One of its best papers is the late Bishop Joshua Soule's strictures on "Dr. Elliott's History of the Great Secession." The other articles are interesting and instructive. Its various departments are bristling with information upon live topics, making this number one of the best of the series. Rev. John J. Tigert. D. D., L. L. D., editor. Published by Barbee & Smith, Nashville, Tenn. Price, $2 per annum; 35c single number.

The two chief characteristics of science—the thoroughgoing quality of its research and the wonderful progress that it gives to the arts—are both prominent in The Popular Science Monthly for March. The Mother as a Power for Woman's Advancement is a wholesome and feeling view of the woman question, by Mrs. Burton Smith, an earnest Southern woman. In the Editor's Table the teaching of sociology in the universities is discussed, and some additional facts about diphtheria antitoxine are given. New York: D. Appleton & Company. Fifty cents a number, $5 a year.

"The Preacher's Magazine" for March furnishes a most excellent variety of matter. The "Homiletics" is full of Easter subjects and thoughts, and may well be secured to furnish suggestions for that approaching day. Fifteen cents per copy; $1 50 per year. Wilbur B Ketcham, publisher, 2 Cooper Union, New York.

For spring wear, the Norfolk jacket will again be the favorite, being used as a distinct garment, or as a component of tailor costumes. The McDowell Fashion Journals at hand contain many novelties of the season and moreover in order to furnish further assistance to their readers they offer special patterns of the latest and most practical styles. Catalogues may be secured by applying directly to Messrs. A. McDowell & Co., 4 W. 14th St., N. Y., enclosing 25 cents.

Among all the features announced for early publication in the magazines, none is awaited with a livelier curiosity than the Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc, of which the first instalment will appear in the April number of Harper's. The only story of a noble life which comes to us under oath, the only one which comes to us from the witness-stand, Jeanne's biography is not to be regarded as fiction. These particulars are from the hand of "the most popular of living American magazine writers," whoever he or she may be. During March a series of articles, that are destined to arouse interest throughout the country, will be published in Harper's Weekly. A series of the first importance, the publication of which has just commenced, will contain the instructive results of a tour of the world, undertaken by the Transportation Commission of the Field Columbian Museum, for the purpose of collecting information, and, as far as possible, exhibits. In the immediate future Harper's Bazar will publish papers on house furnishing, from standpoints both artistic and economical, and a short series on charities in general. A few very practical talks on laundry-work may be expected, and one or two articles on gardening. Harper & Brothers, New York.

A matter of great literary interest is introduced in The Monthly Illustrator for March in "Jean Valjean," a condensation, fully illustrated, of Victor Hugo's work. Its continuance through future numbers will be followed with deep interest. The Illustrator, in pursuance of its policy, is including articles of more general interest than heretofore. The March number contains several of these. Harry C. Jones, editor and publisher, 92 Fifth avenue, New York.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

The Churches and the Stewart Missionary Foundation For Africa.

By Edward L. Parks, D. D.

An advance movement of great importance to all our churches is being made by the Stewart Missionary Foundation for Africa in Gammon Theological Seminary. At the suggestion of Mr. Stewart, the work and prizes of this year have been extended from our schools to include all our churches. The plan has been fully set forth in a supplement to the Quarterly Bulletin of the Seminary, which has been sent to every presiding elder and pastor. It provides for an Auxiliary Missionary Band for Africa, in every church, either by the Epworth League or some existing societies organizing itself into a band for this work at stated meetings, or by the new organization, when necessary, of a Missionary Band for Africa. While these Bands are especially for the young men and women, the pastor and all the members of the church are urged to join them and participate in all their work, including the presentation of prize productions. It is the purpose that these Missionary Bands for Africa shall be permanent, and shall hold a vital connection to the Stewart Missionary Foundation for Africa. The latter will furnish from time to time, through circulars, periodicals, etc., valuable information and suggestions, and will offer various helps and incentives for the work.

For this year thirty prizes, consisting of handsomely bound bibles and hymnals with the name of the recipient and the Foundation printed upon each in gold, are offered for the fifteen best orations or essays on Africa as a mission field and the fifteen best missionary hymns from all the churches, the best essay or oration and the best hymn only from each Missionary Band for Africa competing.

A free public contest is to be held in March by each Band, and other public meetings are to be held regularly. The three best hymns and the three best essays or orations from all the Missionary Bands for Africa are to be presented by their authors or others in the Union Missionary Anniversary to be held in Atlanta early in May. This anniversary will include also productions from the students of the Seminary, and the universities, colleges and academies. If practicable, there will be held a general missionary convention of representatives of the Missionary Bands for Africa, and of the faculty and students of the Seminary and all the universities, colleges and academies.

The object of all these Bands for Africa, public meetings and discussions, and of these prize productions, is to set just as many of the people as possible thinking, investigating and praying concerning Africa as a missionary field. It is believed that the interest that will thus be awakened will be used by the Holy Spirit to impress upon some of our most gifted young people the call of God to consecrate themselves to missionary work in Africa. Others will be led to consecrate their business and income. It is not the purpose of this movement to raise any special fund or in any other way to interfere with the regular missionary work of the Church, but rather by increasing missionary thought, intelligence and zeal, to stimulate activity through all the appointed channels of the Church.

Every vigorous city and town church, and the best of the country churches should take up this work at once. It will give new spiritual power to the local church, broaden and deepen its religious life, and bring it into touch with one of the greatest, doubtless the greatest movement of Christ among this generation of American Negroes. Let every pastor who has received one of the supplements to The Bulletin, immediately give it his thoughtful and prayerful consideration, and take up the work at once. If the work has not already been begun, no time should be lost. If any pastor has not received a circular, or wants others, let him drop a card with a request for one, without delay, to Rev. J. C. Murray, D. D., S. Atlanta, Ga.

The Foundation inaugurates a permanent and continuous effort among the American Negroes for the evangelization of Africa. Rev. Wm. F. Stewart, A. M., a cultured and largely experienced minister of the Rock River Conference, is making it the crowning and great work of his life. He has endowed it with about $50,000 worth of property so as to make it perpetual and united with the Seminary, so as to give it largest efficiency. The form of the work of the Foundation is to be determined from time to time by the providential indications of the needs. The whole church should promptly and enthusiastically co-operate with the Christ-like plan of this man of God.

This Foundation is likely to be greatest force for the redemption of Africa. Some of the wisest students of the age have already so prophesied. It is seeking to collect one of the largest and best libraries and museums on Africa in this country; it will wield an ever-increasing and untold influence upon the American Negroes, moving their deep religious nature to the redemption of their fatherland.

When this Foundation shall have taken its place in history as inaugurating one of the greatest movements of the age, it will be seen that the pastor and church who promptly took up its work, entered upon one of their greatest achievements. Let all presiding elders and intelligent laymen urge the pastors to induce their churches to engage heartily in this work.

The call of this Foundation is from God; it is in line with some of the most marvelous providences of the age. Bishop Walden has truly shown that God, during the last fifty years, on the one hand, has been opening up Africa, and, on the other hand, has been emancipating, Christianizing and educating the colored people of America to become the great missionaries of the Dark Continent. The movement in the Northern churches for the evangelization and education of freedmen and their children, is one of the most marvelous in the history of Christendom. The modern opening up and peaceful distribution of Africa, work heretofore in history done by war, mark one of the greatest eras of the triumph of Christ in history. The great Head of the Church, the rightful and real ruler of the world, by providences as marked as those which accompanied the emancipation exodus of Israel from Egypt, is calling to the American Negroes to vindicate their emancipation and win their place in Christian history by taking a large part in the redemption of their fatherland. The individual and the church who promptly responds, become united in their life and work with Christ's great plan.

Notice.

Dear Brethren—The minutes of the Savannah Conference are ready, and have been for several days. I cannot get them out unless you send me the money. I have urged this matter from the beginning, and especially upon the presiding elders. Great complaint is made that you don't get the minutes in time. We have endeavored to get ready. The secretary was prompt with the manuscript. The minutes are ready and you are behind with the money. Please send it at once. Forward to me, No. 1306 Broad street, Rome, Ga. Yours, H. R. Allen.

LESSON HYMN. L. M.

Come, sinners, to the gospel feast;
Let every soul be Jesus' guest:
Ye need not one be left behind,
For God hath bidden all mankind.

Sent by my Lord, on you I call;
The invitation is to all:
Come all the world! come, sinner, thou!
All things in Christ are ready now.

My message as from God receive:
Ye all may come to Christ and live;
O let his love your hearts constrain,
Nor suffer him to die in vain.

Time.—A. D. 30.
Place.—The confines of Jericho.
Rulers.—Same as before.

GOLDEN TEXT.—The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost. (Luke 19. 10.)

Our Savior's ministery east of the Jordan has closed. Jesus for the third time told His disciples He must go to Jerusalem, suffer many things, be crucified, and on the third day He would arise from the dead. He crossed the Jordan for the last time. The mother of Zebedees' children came and besought Him to grant that her two sons, James and John, might sit the one on His right hand and the other on His left when He came into His kingdom. The other disciples were displeased at this. Jesus called them to Him and let them know, if any one would be great in His kingdom he must become "servant of all." As they drew near to Jericho two blind men cried after them, and as they departed from the city, Jesus healed them. Or, as He departed out of the old Jericho and entered the new—the Herodian-Jericho. He healed the two blind men. The news of this miracle spread rapidly. The people desire to see Jesus. The place of this lesson is in or near Jericho. We have before us the sinner, the Savior and the salvation.

I. The Sinner (1-4). 1. Negatively. There were many obstacles in this man's way when he sought Jesus. 1. His occupation. He "was the chief among the publicans." There were likely many tax collectors at Jericho. Zaccheus was the head man among them. They were hated among the Jews. Their work offered many opportunities to defraud others. A man may be honest in a mean occupation. 2. His wealth. "He was rich." Riches produce pride, but only the humble are saved. They beget selfishness, but only those who love others enter the kingdom. They create idleness, but only those who do the will of God enter into rest. They produce luxury, but only those who lead lives of self-denial are saved. They breed vice, but only the pure in heart see God. Riches are now, and ever have been, a great stumbling block in seeking Jesus. 3. The crowd. "He could not for the press." Others are often in our way in coming to Jesus. Worldly church members keep many out of the fold. Wicked associates prevent others from entering the kingdom. A godless companion frequently hinders the work of the Master. If we would be saved we must overcome all obstacles. 4. Himself. "He was a sinner." He had, no doubt, transgressed the law, omitted duty, and presumed on the goodness of God. Self is often more in the way than any one else in seeking Jesus. We love our sins and do not desire to give them up. We cast about for excuses to justify us in continuing in the old way. We find them and are satisfied. But this man overcame every hindering cause. We should do likewise.

2. Positively. 1. Conviction. He had been awakened. He felt in his soul the need of salvation. How he had been aroused we know not. Likely by the strange stories he heard about the life, teaching and miracles of Jesus. The unsaved to day are awakened by the Written Word, the gospel and the Holy Spirit. 2. Desire. "He sought to see Jesus." This desire was likely composed of curiosity and anxiety. He had heard so much about the Savior, he no doubt had some curiosity to see Him. But from the words and conduct of Jesus we infer there was something more than curiosity prompted his desire to see Him. His soul yearned for salvation, It is better to go where Jesus is through curiosity than not to enter his presence. 3. Work. He labored to carry his desire into effect. He made inquiry and learned the way Jesus was going. We should ask about the Christ. "He ran before." He felt he must get there ere the Savior passed. The sinner should feel that he must be saved now. That the present, and no other, is his time. "He climbed up into a sycamore (Fig-Mulberry) tree." There was child like simplicity in this. It was not dignified to run, much less so to climb a tree, and sit perched among the branches, while the crowd passed by. But what did Zaccheus care for this. His soul was at stake. When we seek Jesus we should cast away our pride and search for Him with humble heart.

II. The Savior (5-7). 1. The Guest. 1. "Jesus came to the place." He was on His final journey to Jerusalem. He was passing that way for the last time. This was the opportunity of Zacchens' life. Jesus is constantly passing by in the revival meetings, and in the preaching service. With some of us He may be going this way for the last time. Will we not see Him to-day? 2. "He looked up and saw him." Jesus was Omnicient. He knew the heart, name and location of Zaccheus. He knows our heart. Our thoughts, desires and motives are not hid from Him. He is acquainted with our name, whether or not it be written in the Lamb-book of life. He is familiar with our whereabouts. He knows when we are in the house of God, in the saloon, or in the gambling den. 3. He said to him, "To-day I must abide at thy house." Jesus was a self-invited guest. He knew how He would be received. I do not know that in this He is an example for us. Yet we may sometimes invite ourselves where we know we will be welcomed.

2. The reception. Zacchens "made haste, came down, and received Him joyfully." Jericho was a city of Scribes and priests. Yet Jesus passed them by and went into the home of a hated Publican to spend the night. We should, as a rule, go where we are welcome, and can do the most good. But sometimes a welcome is only on the surface. We meet a neighbor at the door with a bright smile, a pleasant good morning, a hearty hand-shake, and an affectionate kiss. Invite them into the best room, and inquire diligently after their health. Chat pleasantly with them while they stay. Express regret when they speak of leaving. Go with them to the door, and invite them to call again. We return to our room. What follows? But let us be charitable and hope there is nothing counterfeit in society. Zacchens was a true man, and received his guest with heartfelt gladness. We should do likewise.

3. The people. 1. The class who complained—"They all murmured." Priests, Scribes, Pharisees and common people. To-day the class of grumblers is large. Their name is Legion. They are long-lived. Every one reaches his three score and ten. They are very productive. Each one raises a very large family. They are migratory. They have covered the face of the earth. They are in every home. They have a contagious disease. If we do not pray without cessing we may catch it and become one of them. 2. The cause of their complaint—"He has gone to be guest with a man that is a sinner." What we take to be one of the noblest features in our Savior's character, the Pharisees condemned. If we are disposed to complain we can find something about which to murmur. We may mingle with sinners to make them better, but not to let them make us worse.

II. The Salvation (8-10). God and man work together in the salvation of man's soul. This is seen here. 1. The work of Zaccheus. 1. His position—"He stood before the Lord." Not humble enough to kneel, and too unworthy to remain seated. We should approach Jesus with a due sense of our unworthiness. 2. His conduct—"The half of my goods I give to the poor." The half of his income he gave to charitable purposes. This was much more than the law required. 3. His confession—If I have taken anything by false accusation, I restore him four-fold." We may infer from this that he had wronged others. His occupation subjected him to many temptations. He had no doubt been unjust. But he is now willing to make restitution. When any one who has wronged another seeks salvation he must, if it is in his power, right that wrong before God will save him (Matt. 5. 23-24).

2. The work of Jesus. 1. He saved the man—"This day is salvation come to this house." When God saves a soul He rescues it from a course of sin which ends in eternal death, and leads it into the way of holiness which ends in everlasting life. 2. He had many reasons for saving him. He was a son of Abraham. He was a lost sinner, who repented of his sins, and earnestly desired salvation. Jesus came "to seek and to save that which was lost." He will save any one who comes to Him as did Zaccheus.

The well-known preacher, lecturer and newspaper writer, Scott F. Hershey, Ph. D., of Boston, is at work on a book which deals with the Roman Papacy, as everywhere and always opposed to civil and religious liberty. Doctor Hershey has been a student for years in the history of Romanism, and has made researches in the libraries of this country and Europe. He has spent years in Washington City accumulating a wonderful fund of fact concerning the power of the Roman Church in the affairs of government. Terrible in fact and popular in style, his book will have an immense influence on the Patriotic movement of the day, and will have the largest sale of any book in this generation

FROM PRESIDING ELDERS.

Columbus District—

Dear Brethren—I hope you will be able to report at least half of your benevolent money. Let each pastor make Easter Sunday a great day in raising your money. Send at once for the programs.

B. F. Smith, P. E.

Natchitoches District—

Dear Brethren—Our benevolent apportionment will be the same as last year, with an addition of the General Conference expense and the minutes money. You will please guard every interest of your charge; look out for the revivals; the spiritual and the financial matters. Do not forget any of the causes which are committed to your hand.

"Arise, let us go hence."

Yours, fraternally,

H. J. Wright, P. E.

West Tennessee District—

This cold and hard winter has caused great suffering among the preachers on this district; 19 appointments paid the preachers during this quarter $351—average to the preachers for that time $17 8-19. Highest amount paid to any one during the quarter, $90; lowest, $6. So you see brethren, how the battle goes with us. I feel grateful to the Almighty Father that I have been able to hold all of my conferences in person with two exceptions. To get away from an appointment I had to walk twelve miles through the snow.

H. W. Key, P. E.

Navasota District—

Mrs. Col. Springer, of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, has done grand work in the Texas Conference. She is a sister of extraordinary ability; nothing seems to check her in the great work which she came to do. During the middle of February it was intensely cold, but she went through the Navasota District as though one had a message. She did—the message of the Woman's Home Missionary Society. God bless the dear sister; she has put new life into the work wherever she has gone. The weather indeed was quite bad, but wherever her appointment the preacher and the people would come in crowds to hear her—not only Methodists but Baptists. The preachers on the district will profit by her work, for she has surely done them good in gathering the sisters and putting them to work—for they are the life of any church.

W. L. Duncan, P. E.

Notice.

To Pastors of the Paris District, Texas Conference:

All members of the district conference, at its last session, was assessed fifty cents for publishing the minutes. Several pastors and members have not paid said assessment Pastors, please collect and forward at once. W. H. Jackson, Soc'y.

Don't Put It Off.

The necessity of a spring medicine is universally admitted. This is the best time of year in which to purify the blood, to restore the lost appetite, and to build up the entire system, as the body is now peculiarly susceptible to benefit from medicine. The great popularity attained by Hood's Sarsaparilla, owing to its real merit and its remarkable success, has established it as the very best medicine to take in the spring. It cures scrofula, salt rheum and all humors, biliousness, dyspepsia, headache, kidney and liver complaints, catarrh and all affections caused or promoted by low state of the system or impure blood. Don't put it off, but take Hood's Sarsaparilla now. It will do you good.

Served in Two Wars.

THE GRIP ALMOST WON WHERE THE BULLET FAILED.

Our Sympathies Always Enlisted in the Infirmities of the Veteran.

[From Shenandoah Herald, Woodstock, Va.]

The many friends of Mr. Levi McInturff, an old citizen of Woodstock will be glad to hear of his improved condition, and of his remarkable recovery, after years of prostration and suffering.

Mr. McInturff always led a very active life, and served as a soldier in the Mexican war and also in the late war on the Confederate side. About four years ago he was attacked twice with grip. The second attack left him in a condition of prostration and great nervousness. He was not able to grasp the handle of an axe, and could do no labor of any kind. He was unable to use knife and fork in eating. He could not close either hand. In endeavoring to walk, the least stumble would cause him to fall, and he was unable to walk to his place, a distance of one mile.

He was a great sufferer from pains in his hands, arms and feet. His condition was really pitiable and he was almost entirely confined to his home.

He consulted three efficient physicians, but they were not able to afford him relief. The old and reliable remedies to be found at our drug stores were tried, but there seemed to be no relief from his sufferings.

For four long years he suffered, and had he not been a man of remarkable will power and determination, the probability is that he would have yielded to the disease and have given up in despair.

Several months ago he noticed in a paper, which accidentally fell into his hands, an account of a remarkable cure which had been effected by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He immediately ordered a box and commenced taking them. He says he was greatly relieved within three days time. The blood found its way to his fingers and his hands which had been palsied assumed a natural color, and he was soon enabled to use his knife and fork at the table. He has recovered his strength to such an extent that he is able to chop wood, shock corn and do his regular work about his home. He now says he can not only walk to Woodstock, but can walk across the mountains. He is able to lift up a fifty-two pound weight with one hand and says he does not know what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for others, but knows that they have done a great work for him.

He was in town last Monday, court day, and was loud in his praises of the medicine that had given him so great relief. He purchased another box and took it home with him. Mr. McInturff is willing to make affidavit to these facts.

The foregoing is but one of many wonderful cures that have been credited to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Diseases which heretofore have been supposed to be incurable, such as locomotor ataxia and paralysis succumb to this wonderful medicine as readily as the most trifling ailments.

Dr Williams' Pink Pills are now manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Scheneotady, N. Y., a firm of unquestioned reliability. Pink Pills are not looked upon as a patent medicine but rather as a prescription. They have been used as such in general practice for many years, and their success in curing various afflictions without any other medicines was so great that they were prepared in quantities and placed within the reach of every one. An analysis of their properties shows that they contain, in condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and the tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration, all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularies, and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature.

Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose form by the dozen or hundred, and the public are cautioned against numerous imitations sold in this shape) at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2 50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

IT is a wholesome reflection that the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth. Let the hearts, therefore, that are bowed down rejoice—yea, with exceeding joy. Since the all-powerful arm is thrown aronnd us, why should we fear. He snrely—He that holdeth in the hollow of His hand the destiny of men and of angels, will snffer no harm to befall those whom He loves.

THE Spring Conferences are about over, and thonsands of preachers have received their appointments to labor for the salvation of perishing souls. No time shonld be lost. The fields are all "white for the harvest," and priceless opportunities are at this moment present themselves in which every trne minister of the gospel may add stars to his crown of rejoicing. Up, brethren; charge the enemy's strongholds! Lay on vigoronsly, earnestly, faithfully; nor cease the strife nntil sinners are forced to cry, "I yield, I yield; I can hold ont no more; I sink by dying love compelled, and own Thee conqnerer,"

THE Lexington Annual Conference of the M. E. Church, which is composed of the States of Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois, met at Maysville, Ky., Wednesday, March 13, Bishop John F. Hnrst presiding. After the nsnal preliminaries, the sacrament was administered. Rev. E. A. White of Cleveland, O., was nnanimonsly elected conference secretary. Chaplain McCabe of New York City, secretary of the Missionary Society, addressed the conference. Connty Jndge M. C. Hntchins welcomed the members in an address that was enthnsiastically received. Dr. Hammond made an address. The annual sermon was preached by George W. Thomas of Flemingsburg.

AN IMMEDIATE and pressing need in our Sonthern work is a large increase in the nnmber of intelligent and efficient pastors. This is trne among both white and colored people. Here is where the work of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Edncation Society is yielding some of its best frnits. Among the colored people, Gammon School of Theology is doing a most excellent work. Scores of yonng men have already been sent out, and a large proportion of them thoroughly equipped for their work. Besides in all schools of collegiate grade, there are theological classes where many more receive daily instrnctions.

AMONG the white people, the theological seminary at Chattanooga, Tenn., a part of U. S. Grant University, is already making itself felt with excellent resnlts in onr Sonthern Conferences. Bishop Vincent expressed himself as greatly snrprised and delighted with the intellectnal equipment of the class of seven yonng men which entered the Alabama Conference, most of them from Chattanooga. The same results are seen in the Georgia and other of onr weaker white conferences in the Sonth. It is a false idea that well equipped ministers are not needed among ignorant and poorer people. Not all of our white people are of this class in the South, but a great proportion have never been touched by really efficient ministry.

AN INVASION OF THE NORTH.

To every thing there is a season, and a time, to every purpose nnder the heaven." So said the wise man, and so the executive committee of the Cincinnati Methodist Preachers' Meeting, when the editor received a most cordial invitation to address this important gathering of representative ministers on the morning of March 11. To a large audience in Wiley Hall we spoke of the "Old, the new, and the better Sonth."

We were almost overwhelmed by the contrast. In this case, the "down Sonth" and the "up North" were unusnally significant. Leaving "Dixie" jnst abont the time when a band of lawless, armed mnrderers were marching np and down the levees of unhappy New Orleans, driving away commerce from the city and sending to their death several defenseless Negro laborers, it was a happy relief to stand once more upon the soil of a State whose officials have never surrendered to the assassins of defenseless Negroes. Scanning the reports of the Associated Press a few honrs later, we could hardly believe what we read; yet, ever and anon there came the reflection, "God isn't dead." There will be a better Sonth. The Old South clings to its old-time prejudicies, and its progress is impeded by cnmbersome and nseless traditions. The New Sonth—with its boasted spirit of progress, its broadness and liberal spirit, and its oft-asserted love of jnstice and fair play—finds itself powerless to shake off the the hideons coils of the lawless and disorderly elements, thns retarding to some extent its progress toward social, political and commercial prosperiety. But the better Sonth—better, because it will tnrn its face toward the rising snn; better, because of its ability to rise above its traditions and passions, and its prejudices; better, because of its cnltnre, and broad and liberal ideas; better, because of its touch with a higher and better civilization—will be a great nnion of heart, and of sympathy and interest, and purpose, in which men will rise above all sectional and mere racial preiudices into the loftier and better realm of loyalty and patriotism.

Bishop J. F. Hurst, D. D., LL. D., was accorded a most cordial reception, and spoke grandly on the snbject so dear to his heart, the National University. Among the notables present were: Drs. Rnst, father and son; and Dr. Pearson. Among other nobtables present were: Bishop Walden, D. D., resident bishop; Dr. D. H. Moore, editor of the Western Christian Advocate, and Dr. W. F. Rawlins, assistant; Drs. John Pearson, F. S. McChesney, S. Weeks, Earl Cranston, agent Western M. E. Book Concern; Dr. Carel, of the Book Concern; and fully two score of others representing the city and snbnrban churches. The greetings were royal, cordial, fervent and helpfnl.

But few people can form any conception of the writer's reflections as he gazed upon the massive strnctnre that represents the great publishing interests of the Methodist Episcopal Chnrch. Every department of this magnificent bnilding is an object lesson, and happy indeed is he who is permitted to stndy them. Of course we visited the rooms of the editors, where we found the genial Dr. Carel at his ardnous work of reviewing the books of the catalogne, and the big-hearted Dr. Rawlins, assistant editor of the Western, at work as nsnal, preparing the great jonrnal for the press. The rooms of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Edncation Society were visited, bnt the secretaries were "on the wing," ont and off, laboring diligently to stir up the Chnrch in favor of onr great educational work. Bishop Walden was at his desk in the Bishops' Room, which is a veritable workshop and where the distinguished resident bishop, when in the city, looks after his immense correspondence, receives visitors, gives counsel in various matters and discharges the duties of his office with consnmmate skill and ability. Of course we fonnd in the Agents' Department, the counting room, salesroom, etc., evidences of that correct bnsiness ability which has enabled the department to reach its magnificent financial success. Everything abont us was clean, neat, healthy; well-ventilated, splendidly furnished rooms; everything bore npon its face the impress of order, system, and wise and able management. The Preachers' Meeting Room, Wiley Hall, is jnst snch a place as such a Methodism as the Queen City needs. The agents deserve great praise for placing at the disposal of the ministers of the city this beantiful room, which serves not only as a meeting place, bnt also to bring them more and more in touch with onr great Methodism.

Recrossing the Ohio river, we are again in "Dixie." Poor, unfortnnate land—prejudice-cnrsed even at this late hour of the nineteenth centnry, and Issachar-like, crouching down between two bnrdens. Whether dnty or policy shall be the dominant force in its futnre development, remains to be seen. But we will not despair.

The managers of that magnificent and jnstly popular railway system, the Chesapeake and Ohio, are humane enongh to furnish its passengers with respectable accommodations, whether they be white or black.

The evening of March 12 fonnd us on the platform of Clark M. E Chnrch, Maysville, Ky., addressing the members of the Lexington Conference in the interests of the SOUTHWESTERN.

More anon.

THE RIOT IN NEW ORLEANS

Names of Dead and Wounded.

On Tuesday following the riot reported last week, when two peaceful colored men were terribly wounded, a mob of nearly a thousand union screwmen attacked the laborers loading one of the British ships belonging to the Harrison Line, killing six and wounding six—one of the wounded being the purser of the ship—which will probably cause international complications.

The mob evidently determined that they could only scare the Negroes from competing with them by a general massacre, and it was arranged that the attack should be made simultaneously at a number of places along the river front at 7 o'clock.

For a distance of four miles for a time the levee was at the mercy of armed mobs of several hundred men, who marched up and down killing Negroes wherever they found them, whether the blacks were among the class who were competing with them or not. Here is a list of the dead and wounded:

The Dead.—William Campbell, colored screwman; Frederick Lopez, colored, Henry James, colored; Henry Ferguson; colored; Jules Calico Carrabe, shoemaker, shot in front of Lyon's clothing store.

Leonard Mallard, colored, scaleman, shot over right eye.

The Injured.—James A. Bane, white, purser steamship Engineer, shot in the head twice, arm once, dangerous; Henry Brown, Negro screwman, shot five times, both arms and both legs; Tim Persten, Negro coal wheeler, shot seven times, both legs and thigh and head; Tunis Cast, Negro, employe sugar refinery, shot in hip; Billy Williams, Negro screwman, shot in leg; Frank Lighthall, Negro, driver for cement firm, shot in leg; Robert Brooks, white, longshoreman, shot with Winchester in right leg below knee.

The men were given no quarter, and were shot down like dogs.

Only a handful of police were at each place, and they were told to stand aside or they would be killed with the Negroes. They obeyed the summons, and did not attempt to arrest the mob. When the reserves came up from the different stations, the mob had scattered in the lower portion of the city. In the upper portion, however, mobs of several hundred men paraded up and down for several hours, Negroes were shot wherever seen, whether there was any grievance against them or not.

Deputy U. S. marshals were on several of the ships, and ordered the mob away from the Negroes they were protecting. No attention was paid to them.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles, of the United States army, who was here inspecting the United States Barracks, said of the trouble: If the United States was a weak power the strong European governments, whose ships were affected by such disturbances as are prevailing here, would very soon send warships to afford protection, or that if one of our merchant vessels was placed in a like situation in a foreign port, some action looking to redress would be promptly taken by our own Government. The general thought that a United States warship should be sent up the river.

The trouble which culminated in the riot has seen three such bloody exhibitions since it started, a few months ago, and three incendiary fires, in which over a million and a half dollars of cotton and property have been destroyed.

The governor arrived that night, and on Wednesday called out several companies of the State militia, and stationed them on the levee to guard the laborers. Work is now going on under such protection, and all is quiet; but no one knows when peace will be established or what the final outcome will be. Several arrests have been made and parties placed under bonds for appearance.

The wounded are doing well and may recover.

The New Building at Rome.

Another $1,000 for It—$15,000 More Will Prevent a Mortgage—$37,000 More Will Complete It Without Debt.

An "elect lady" sends a check for $500 for the new building at Rome, saying in her letter: "Later on I will send you $500 more." We are forbidden to mention the name of this lady. So the work goes on—$2,000 last week, $1,200 this week. We must not have a mortgage. When $15,000 more is pledged, all danger of one will pass.

In the March number of World Wide Missions a picture of the unfinished, roofless building will appear. A copy of that paper will be sent to every Methodist preacher and to many of the laity. When the roof is on we will print another picture, and we will print still another after the edifice is completed. Better preserve all three of them.

It will take $37,000 more to build and dedicate without debt. Let us divide that amount into $10 shares. Take from one to a hundred shares, as you feel able, and as your heart prompts. Subscribe upon condition that we get the whole sum pledged for which we ask. Write to us and say you will take the very last $10 or $100 or $1,000. We will begin at the other end and come this way.

Take a little risk to fulfill the dream of Charles Elliott. When I was a boy in my teens I heard him talking to the Ohio Conference about "preaching the Gospel to them that are at Rome also." Some of the preachers said: "Dr. Elliott is a good man, and he is a very learned man, but he is a little visionary." At that time we could not carry a copy of the Bible into Rome, and now a great hall in our Mission and Publishing House will bear the name of Dr. Charles Elliott, and I hope a splendid portrait of the dear old Irish dreamer will adorn its walls.

Some day we can hold a General Conference of European Methodism in that hall, and have a glorious love feast, in which the Italian, the Frenchman, the German, the Switzer, the Finn, the Swede, the Norwegian, the Dane, the Pole, the Russian, the Bulgarian, the Bohemian, the Hungarian; and, as visitors, the African, the Englishman, and the American, will all sit down as in "a heavenly place in Christ Jesus," and tell to each other the blessed story of redeeming love.

The pope, in his encyclical on Christian unity last year, bewailed the fact that the Protestants have entered Rome. Ah, yes, Leo! and the Methodists at that. We are coming to make you and your successors a long, long visit. The fact is, we never go away. We are coming to give Italy the Gospel—the real Gospel—the Gospel that Paul and Luther and Wesley preached. It will do your own soul good to hear a rousing Methodist hallelujah once in a while. I verily believe you would enjoy it. You ask us to come back to the fold. We thought we were in the Master's fold already, but if you will give up all the dogmas of the Roman Catholic Church which have no warrant in Scripture, and then give your people the Holy Bible to read for themselves, we will form an alliance with you to bring the whole world to Christ in one generation.

A united Church built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ Himself (not Mary, nor Joseph, nor Peter) being the chief corner-stone, could do it. When our new building is dedicated, please preach on that text in St. Peter's, and all the Methodists will come to hear you, and if permitted we will sing with the great organ our Methodist recruiting hymn:

"Blow ye the trumpet, blow,
The gladly solemn sound!
Let all the nations know,
To earth's remotest bound,
The year of jubilee is come!
Return, ye ransomed sinners, home."

Luther the Great.

By SCOTT F. HERSHEY, Ph. D.

When the great Protestant Reformation came, like the inspiring breath of the morning, over Europe, Papal vices and tyrannies had well nigh suspended the last operations of civilization. Political reformers had tried to weaken the power of Rome, and clear her political atmosphere at least. The Austrian ruler had tried it and failed. The House of Hohenstaufen, imperial family of Germany, and heroes, every one of them, sought to deliver the empire from the Papal bondage. Henry IV had thrown all his courage, power and patriotism into the struggle to humiliate Rome and save Germany the humiliation of a vassalage to the profligate Popes. He bent every energy, taxed every resource, exhausted every means, and at last was compelled to bear the most shameful humiliation to which ruler was ever driven by the Papacy. In the trenches of the Italian castle of Canossa, in mid-winter, bare foot, with loose garments about him, upon his knees, he spent three days and nights, imploring the forgiveness of the Pope.

Political reform would not reach the case. It had to be a Religious Reformation. No one man contributed so much to the working forces of the new era as Martin Luther, the honest monk. The sixteenth century was fairly begun, when from the ranks of the common people came this leader, who was to usher in th mightiest moral and political reformation the world had ever known, while he was to become one of the most monumental men of all the centuries. Carlyle's estimate of Luther is no less true to history than it is matchless in eloquence. "I will call Luther a true, great man—great in intellect, in courage, in affection, and integrity; one of our most lovable and precious men. Hero and prophet, a true son of nature and fact, for whom these centuries, and many that are yet to come, will be thankful to Heaven." I must take no time for the highly interesting incidents of his boyhood, home and education. He one day found a Bible, read it, began to think, to see, to feel, and the thunderbolt, which Europe needed, was being forged. Then came a journey to Rome. Some difficulty had arisen in one of the monastic orders, and he was deputized to Rome to settle it. On his way to the Papal capital he lodges in a convent in Lombardy. He is amazed at the magnificence of the apartments, the richness of the dresses, and the delicacy of the viands. Marble, silk and luxury all about him, and his heart sinks.

In Rome he is startled at the profane and heartless way in which the sacraments are celebrated, and at the jokes and buffoonery of the prelates; while he was profoundly shocked at the evident hypocrisy displayed at the mass. He listened to abominations, profanities and blasphemies he had never dreamed possible with any class. He says, "It is incredible what sins and atrocities are committed in Rome." The excessive corruption of the Papal society must have been so general and obtrusive as to convince him of the fundamental evil of the Papacy. "If there be a hell," he writes, "Rome is built above it; it is an abyss, from whence all sins proceed."

One day, while in Rome, he ascends Pilate's stairway on his knees, as was the custom. But his thoughts were on the light he had received out of the Bible. Suddenly a voice seemed to say to him, "The just shall live by faith." He sprang to his feet and fled from the place of such folly.

Luther's heart was right when he went to Rome—now his conscience was aroused. The great idea of Justification by Faith, which flooded his soul with marvelous light, awoke his whole moral being, and is one of the mighty foundation stones of living Christianity.

Then the Pope opened in Germany the great market for the sale of indulgences. This merchandise was simply a traffic in sins. The people believed that as soon as their money was given they were certain of forgiveness, and by the same means they could deliver the souls of their dead friends from the fires of purgatory.

When Luther first heard of the work of the auctioneer of these indulgences in Germany he exclaimed, "God willing, I will make a hole in this drum." He did. One day a number of persons came to him to confess their sins. They confessed to the grossest vices and the most enormous crimes. He rebuked and instructed them. His astonishment increased when they declared that they did not intend to abandon any of their sins, and boldly produced their certificates of pardon, which they had received for money paid.

Luther at once went into the pulpit, and delivered a powerful sermon. It was circulated throughout the empire. It brought on a storm. It was while that storm was brewing that Luther determined upon a bold thing.

He determined to cast himself into the conflict, and stand between the people and the shameful impositions practiced upon them under the sanction of the Pope. He threw the gauge of battle down, when on the memorable evening of October 31, 1517, he went the Cathedral door at Wittemberg, and nailed to the panel, thirty-five arguments against the corruptions and errors of Rome. It was practically an impeachment of the Papal authority.

The most stupendous moral struggle the world ever felt was on. Luther became the great teacher of national independence. The Pope excommunicated Luther. The people burned the bull. Luther addressed an affectionate letter to the Pope, promising such obedience as was right in Scriptural things. But he was the keeper of his own conscience. The whole power of the Papacy was called into play to crush him. The work of the Papal envoy and the story of Augsberg and Worms are familiar to all.

From the whole line of Rome's fortifications persecution poured its galling fire. But persecutions failed, as did all the arguments of Romish doctors and munics. Luther successfully controverted the right of Rome to rule above the conscience in the church and the State in public affairs. He led the church into the light of a spiritual faith and Scriptural doctrine. Martin Luther is the crowning glory of the Reformation. BOSTON.

Historic Chattanooga.

The local committee of arrangements for the Epworth League International Conference, to be held in Chattanooga, June 27-30, have issued a beautiful ten page booklet called "Historic Chattanooga." Besides giving much valuable information about the coming conference, this book contains good historical articles with reference to Chattanooga and its historical surroundings. It is finely illustrated with well executed half tone cuts. The book is now ready for distribution and will be sent to readers of this paper furnishing their address to the 'Headquarters Epworth League International Conference, Chattanooga, Tenn."

The prospects for the coming conference are reported to be excellent. The program is being completed and everything put in readiness for the meeting. A chorus of 500 voices is being trained to lead the conference music. Premier Bowell, of Canada, has accepted the committee's invitation to be present and represent his church.

HELPLESS AND GUILTY.

Ah, how shall fallen man
Be just before his God?
If he contend in righteousness,
We sink beneath his rod.

If he our ways should mark
With strict inquiring eyes,
Could we for one of thousand faults
A just excuse devise?

The mountains, in thy wrath,
Their ancient seats forsake;
The trembling earth deserts her place,
Her rooted pillars shake.

Ah, how shall guilty man
Contend with such a God?
None—none can meet him, and escape,
But through the Savior's blood.

—Isaac Watts.

DAILY THOUGHTS.

[From Phillips Brooks.]

MARCH 21.—Liberty is the fullest opportunity for man to be and do the very best that is possible for him.

MARCH 22.—What is a liberal faith, my friends? It seems to me that by every true meaning of the word, by every true thought of the idea, a liberal faith is a faith that believes much, and not a faith that believes little. The more a man believes, the more liberally he exercises his capacity of faith, the more he sends forth his intelligence into the mysteries of God, the more he understands those things which God chooses to reveal to his creatures, the more liberally he believes.

MARCH 23.—Let us know ourselves children of God, and claim the liberty which God has given to every one of his children who will take it. God bless you and give some of you, help some of us to claim, as we have never claimed before, that freedom with which the Son makes free?

MARCH 24.—I believe in God with all my soul, because this world is inexplicable without Him and explicable with Him, and because Jesus Christ believed in Him; and it was Jesus Christ that showed me that this world demanded God and was inexplicable without Him; that made certain every suspicion and dream that I had had before, and Jesus Christ believed in Him. Shall I go to the expert about chemistry or geology and ask him the truth with regard to the structure of the world and the meaning of its atoms and forces? And shall not I go to the spiritual expert, to Him in whom the spiritual life of man has been clearest, and say, "O Christ, tell me what is the centre and source and end of all?" When he says, "God," shall I not believe Him?

MARCH 25.—The man who lives in God knows no life except the life of God.

MARCH 26.—Can I, can you, have Christ in human history, Christ in the world, and live as if He were not here? Will you not give yourself to that of Him which you know to-day? Will you not at least lay hold of the very skirts of His garment and say, "I see that Thou art good, I see that Thou art true. Lead me into the goodness and truth which by communion and sympathy shall know Thee more. I would enter into Thee, to see whether it has indeed come in Thee, and Thou shalt lead me, Thou shalt teach me. Lord, I believe. I have not grasped Thee. No man has grasped Thee. The man who says that he has grasped Thee proves thereby that he does not know Thee. I know that I have not grasped Thee, but I will follow Thee, by doing righteousness, by serving truth, by knowing and acknowledging Thee until all of that shall become clear to me. I will follow Thee, and Thou shalt lead me into the glory which Thou Thyself abidest in.

Education Extension in a Southern Town.

WILLIAM L. BULKLEY, Professor Latin and German, Claflin College, Orangeburg, S. C.

It might not be uninteresting to readers of The Bulletin, to know of a work, which, while confessedly humble, yet has in view like results as that more scholarly instruction in philosophy, psychology, sociology, etc., given in other parts of the country under the name of University Extension.

For several years I have watched this latter movement with ever-increasing interest, have felt its supreme importance, and have wondered how it could be made to subserve the needs of the laboring classes in this Southern field. I have never ceased to believe that some other than the old methods must operate in this section, "where the harvest truly is great but the laborers are few."

In response to this feeling a course was organized last autumn for that class of men, who, whether by their own fault, or that of others, have but little of even the rudiments of education.

During the month, since its organization, we have enrolled thirty-two of as interested men as one will find anywhere. Their ages range from sixteen to fifty. Every night brings additions to the roster; so that there is a probability that the number will be doubled within a few weeks.

This membership is drawn from a town of less than three thousand inhabitants, of whom perhaps two hundred are the class of persons whom we hope directly to reach.

The work is confined chiefly to "the three r's," readin,' ritin' and 'rithmetic.

Such puerile instruction cannot claim the honor of the name University Extension; but it appeals to one's thoughtful consideration, as I shall attempt to prove.

As I understand it, the motive at the root of this Extension movement is to reach the class of honest "horny-handed sons of toil," who have good brains and the desire to know something of the erudition that was for centuries supposed to be the terra propria of the school and the Church, of the philologue and the priest.

In every community can be found such persons. The most acceptable way to reach them is to adapt the instruction in every case to their need and abilities.

In countries like England and Germany, or like the northern part of this Union, where popular education is well provided for, the laboring classes have a pretty fair knowledge of the common branches; and, moreover, they are continually improving themselves, by daily reading of the papers and the literature that is temptingly offered "for a song" on every street-corner; by the books that are loaned from the free public libraries; by the opportunities generously afforded by the Young Men's Christian Association and other benevolent organizations; by public lectures, by sermons from eminent and cultured divines; and lastly, in liberal measure, by the contact with a world of life and motion, and push and enthusiasm.

But, in this part of the United States, where illiteracy reaches an alarming per cent; where the free schools, except in the cities, run from one and a half months to four during the year; where there are few or none of the opportunities mentioned above, the laboring man is but an abcendarian in the world of letters.

Now we must grant one of the following hypotheses:

1. The most attention ought to be given to the people who have the greatest need; or,

2. The most attention ought to be given to the people who have the least need; or,

3. Both classes should have equal attention.

Under either 1 or 3 the workingmen of the South would come.

There is no need to state that the wide awake, well-schooled laborer of the North and West is a citizen no more and no less than the laborer of the South who cannot read the ballot he casts; or, conversely, that the one ballot of the ignorant voter of the South is as much a power as the one ballot of the literate voter of the North. Further, it is needless to repeat the hackneyed phrase that the ignorant voter is a menace to the public weal.

Looking at the case in this light, it should appear plausible that any energetic move on the line of instructing the classes who earn their bread "by the sweat of their brow" ought to affect every section of the country and the means to be suited to the end.

If this be granted, then must any such effort in the South be in most cases very rudimentary. As well deliver a discourse to them in Coptic, Syriac, or Hebrew, as to discuss before them the deductions of Kant or Schopenhauer, or the difficult problems of political economy.

An active, energetic move in the right direction will soon bring encouraging results; and, in time, will decrease the fearful percentage of illiteracy, which is not being speedily enough reduced by the educational system now obtaining in the Southern States.

The class we have organized may serve as a model for others.

1. The teachers offer their services gratuitously.

2. The cost to each member is reduced to a minimum, the charge being only for light, fuel and janitor work.

If any charge were asked, even fifty cents a month, the very object we have in mind would be defeated, for the class we would reach are absolutely poor, and such is the almost universal rule throughout the South, where wages are small and work is so uncertain.

Each member of the class pays one cent a night. And, again, the cost of books is but little, as most of the instruction is given orally, with blackboard helps. As the class meets in one of the school-rooms, there is no charge for rent.

Finally the object in starting this class was not only to help the two or three scores who may become members, but also, and chiefly, to set an example to the hundreds of students who come to this school every year from every corner of this State and from adjoining States. They can, they ought, they will do a like work where they go. The lesson is one of helpfulness. It is easy; it is practical it is Christian.

Should such a movement receive encouragement in all the colleges of the South, be they State or Church institutions, a decade hence would witness a tremendous improvement in those brawny toilers, whose brain and ambition are vastly larger than their opportunities.

Then could we step into a higher plane of University Extension in re and join hands with our brethren of the North in offering to the workingman treasures from the coffers of philosophical, sociological and classical lore.

A METHODIST NEW SOUTH MAP.

BY REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D., CINCINNATI.

The map giving an exhibit of the Methodist Episcopal Church in territory where, in 1861, slavery existed in the United States, has been prepared from the Church statistics of 1894, and the United States census of 1890. Its purpose is to present at a glance just what this great Church has in the territory named, in Church membership and property, and also to show the location and relative importance of the forty five institutions of learning of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society.

The data is given by States, and, where Conferences have lapped over into different States, great care has been taken to have the figures correct. To emphasize the vast significance of our educational work in the South, as affecting our own Church and the South as a whole, the figures of illiteracy are given for 1890. The information is divided as to races, and by an easy addition the total membership, Church or school property can be had in each State. The summary for the whole South gives figures which are of vast significance as indicating the marvelous results of Church-work in the South in a single generation.

Whole South Included.

The entire slave territory of 1861 is included in this map for obvious reasons. Southern Methodism has since 1844, claimed this whole territory, either absolutely or practically. From 1861 to 1866 the conflicts in the Border States were intense. In the former year the membership in these six States was 122,835, and in 1866 it was 114,204, a decrease of 8,634 members. In Virginia, where the battle raged the hottest, the membership went down from 13,386 to 1,108. West Virginia lost 7,000. Even Maryland lost 3,000, Delaware held its own with a little gain. Missouri went from 7,440 to 15,036. Kentucky went from 3,458 to 7,453.

Another reason for including the whole territory is, that the success of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Border States, since 1861, has been greatly facilitated by the extension of the Church farther South. As the picket-line of advance went toward the Gulf, especially among the white people, the intense antagonisms were necessarily moved southward, and the occupancy of the whole South largely relieved the Border States of conflicts growing out of sectional sentiment and administration.

Besides, the Methodist Episcopal Church can never again consent, even by provisional legislation, to be sectional in territory.

The Border States.

For the purposes of study and comparison, it will be necessary to group the figures of the six Border States, and then of the ten farther South, as follows: In the Border States, in 1861, there was a total membership of 122,835, and a Church property of $2,118,245; in 1894, the white membership was 229,286, colored 63,906, making a total of 293,192, and a total Church and parsonage property of $11,017,372. This was an increase in membership in the Border States in thirty-three years of 170,357, and in Church and parsonage property of $8,909,127!

The close relations of this northern strip of southern territory to the great body of the Church, as to geography, sentiment, and administration, accounts for this phenomenal growth. The greatest growth was in Missouri, where the membership went from 6,440 in 1861, to 66,306 in 1894. Maryland gained 30,000; Delaware about 14,000; the District of Columbia 6,000. Virginia, after losing 12,000 the first five years, regained that and made a still further addition of 5,000 over 1861. West Virginia went from 17,991 to 56,029, after losing about 7,000 the first five years. Kentucky went from 3,458 to 32,034.

Farther and New South.

Take now the ten States farther South, entirely new territory. In 1861 the Church had absolutely nothing in this vast area Thirty-three years later, in 1894, as shown on the map, the following results had been achieved, through the constant blessing of our God upon heroic and devoted ministers and people: Membership—white, 63.180; colored, 161,031; total, 254,211. Church and parsonage property—among whites, $1,541,008; among colored, $2,000,682; total, $3,541,690. To this must be added school property in the same territory—among whites, $551,900; among colored, $1,266,000; total, $1,817,900. Put church and parsonage and school property together and we have the magnificent total of $5,359,590.

Important Questions.

It is as to the permanency of the work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in this farther South section, over which questions are raised. Concerning the colored people, it is asked whether it would not be better for them to go into a great, black Methodist Church, with the other Negro Methodisms. The answer to this is, that outside of an occasional agitator here and there, there is no disposition or desire among them to go. The attempt, even, toward organic unity of two great black Methodisms, is proving a failure. The Church will never ask them to leave.

Most of the questions are raised concerning our white membership in this section; namely, the 63,180 white communicants who are now in the Church, and included in several Annual Conferences. Except in a few centers, the outlook for this work was never as hopeful as now. It would be disloyalty to God, to humanity, and to the great Methodist Episcopal Church, for a moment to consider the question of turning away from these multitudes of loyal children of the Church. Only a sectional or political sentiment could give birth to such a suggestion. Here is an absolute increase of membership in a single generation of 63,180, almost entirely of native white population.

New England and Our Newest White South.

The six New England Conferences in 1861 had a membership, including probationers and ministers, of 88,542. In 1894 the membership was 122,358; that is an increase of 33,816, or just about an average of one thousand a year for a generation. I know the difficulties of that territory; but the difficulties of our farther South territory among the whites are greater; and yet the growth of the white membership in that new Southern soil was 63,180, or twice as great as in the New England section.

Southern Methodism and Our Methodist New South.

A comparison of the above figures for 1894 with the corresponding ones of the Methodist Church South, would be exceedingly interesting, but I have not the data. However, the following from the United States census of 1890, concerning the two Churches in the sixteen Southern States and the District of Columbia, will give food for reflection. Let it be remembered that these figures are made by United States census officers, entirely independent of the Conference statistics of either denomination. Here are the figures:

	Members.	Ch'ches.	Value.	Average.
M. E. Church, South.....	1,185,227	12,295	$17,775,819	$1,445
M. E. Church..	503,225	6,021	12,531,585	2,081

These figures will be a genuine surprise to many. Study them, and rejoice with our sister Meth... and, also pledg... est in the peopl... that Southland.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

LESSON HYMN. L. M.

He wills that I should holy be:
That holiness I long to feel;
That full divine conformity
To all my Savior's righteous will.

On thee, O God, my soul is stayed,
And waits to prove thine utmost will;
The promise by thy mercy made,
Thou canst, thou wilt, in me fulfill.

No more I stagger at thy power,
Or doubt thy truth, which cannot move:
Hasten the long-expected hour,
And bless me with thy perfect love.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Abstain from all appearance of evil. (1. Thess. 5. 22)

When St. Paul wrote this letter Rome was the greatest city on earth. It was the center of knowledge, wealth, culture and power. It is not certainly known who first preached the Gospel and organized there the Church. The Roman Catholic Church claims that St. Peter planted the Church there, and became the first bishop of the same. But the best scholars of this age regard this as mere tradition. It is likely some persons who dwelt at Rome were in Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost, saw the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, heard St. Peter preach, were converted, and carried back with them the Gospel. They, by the blessing of God, soon established a church. This organization was composed of Jews and Gentiles. They were poor. They grew rapidly. In a short time they became the leading church. St. Paul's letter to them is the greatest of all his epistles. It was written from Corinth in the spring of '58. It shows an earnest gushing headlong style. And yet beneath the clothing and flesh we see a frame work of solid bone. It teaches that both Jews and Gentiles need the Gospel, that all are justified through faith, that the state of the saved is one of happiness, and that the saved should be a peculiar people zealous of good works. Law is the leading thought of this lesson

I. The Law of Love (8-10). 1. "Owe no man anything." This does not forbid making debts in legal transactions. It only prohibits going in debt without a probability of paying. The liquor traffic leads to poverty, poverty to debt, debt to slavery, and slavery to ruin. 2. "Love one another." Let us see to it that we have in our heart a deep-seated desire for the comfort, happiness and prosperity of others. Love has shades of strength. It is not expected that we love all in the same degree. We are not obligated to, or associated with all alike, therefore we cannot have the same affection for each one. Yet our love should over-reach political views, sectarian lines, and race prejudices, and constrain us to do good of every possible sort, and as far as possible to all men. 3. "He that loveth another (his neighbor) hath fulfilled the law." Our neighbor is any one to whom we can do an act of kindness. The law here refers to the Decalogue. The apostle speaks only of the second table. He quoted first the seventh command, then the sixth, after that the eighth, ninth and tenth in rotation. He then closed by showing that the substance of all is to "Love thy neighbor as thyself." The commands are negative. They teach what we must not do. They hedge up all but the right way. 4. "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor." He that has a God-like love for others naturally keeps the commandments. Having fun at the expense of another is working ill to our neighbor. Taking the advantage of another in trade is working ill to our neighbor. Engaging in an occupation that does only harm is working ill to our neighbor.

II. The Law of Duty (11-14). The time is night. Not literal, but moral darkness. The moral condition of the heathen world before the Gospel dispensation was fearful. The apostle has made a mild statement of it in the first chapter of this letter. But this "night is far spent." The darkness of these times is almost past. The Gospel day is dawning. "The entrance of Thy words giveth light." May we open our heart and receive it.

1. First Duty—Awaking. "Awake out of sleep." We need not suppose the Church at Rome had apostatized, or was asleep in sin. But it likely did not possess the energy or zeal the apostle wished to see. There are many in the Church to day who have but little or no zeal against the greatest of all evils—the liquor traffic. The reason given for awaking out of sleep is because their salvation is nearer than when they believed. Their salvation refers to their conversion. It was obtained through faith. They were saved when they believed. Their final salvation—their entrance into glory—was nearer than when they were saved. Each day brings us nearer our eternal home. The moments fly. Eternity draws near. "Redeem the time."

2. Second Duty—Arising. 1. "Cast off the works of darkness." When we arise out of sleep we put off our night robes. So when we arise out of the sleep of sin we should cast off the lust of the flesh, renounce the devil and all his work, the vain pomp and glory of the world, and see that every root of bitterness is taken out of our nature. 2. "Put on the armor of light." Clothe the soul with love, joy, peace, truth, faith and temperance. Put on the breast plate of righteousness, the shield of faith, the helmet of salvation, the girdle of truth, have the feet shod with the preparation of the Gospel of peace, and take in thy hand the Word of God which is the sword of the Spirit. Charge on the foe. Scatter the powers of darkness. Keep your armor bright by constant use. "Ye are the light of the world."

3. Third Duty—Walking or Living. 1. Positively. We should live honestly. Lead upright, straightforward lives. Deal honestly with God. He has certain claims on us. He is our Creator, Benefactor and Redeemer. With man He has rights and privileges we must recognize. Never strive to get the advantage of him in trade, so we may get something for nothing or much for a little. With self. We have a soul, mind and body. We should arrange for their greatest happiness here and hereafter. It is foolishness to do an act to-day that will bring sorrow to-morrow; or to spend this life in a manner that will bring suffering through all eternity. 2. Negatively. We should not live in rioting and drunkenness, chambering and wantonness, and in strife and envying. Rioting is banqueting and singing unclean and dissolute songs. Drunkenness here likely refers to drunken festivities, such as were celebrated in honor of their gods, after they had sacrificed to them, they drank to excess, and then committed abominable acts of every sort. Chambering signifies prostitution of every kind. Wantonness refers to all manner of uncleanness and sodomitical practices. Strife means severe contention. Envying is repining at another's prosperity. It is not to be supposed the Church at Rome was guilty of these sins. The heathen world practiced them. There was danger of the Church falling back into their ways.

4 Fourth Duty. 1. "Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ." To put on the Son of God is to hear, believe, receive and obey the Gospel. It is to receive His Spirit of love and peace into our soul, to be baptized in the name of Jesus, and to lead devoted, consecrated Christian lives. 2. "Make no provision for the flesh." The flesh in this place means our fallen depraved nature. It is "the body of sin." "The old man with his deeds" It is right to provide food, raiment, and a comfortable home for this body. "If any provide not for his own house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel." It is making provision or arrangement for the gratification of sinful lusts that God condemns.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Are Our Young Ministers Loyal?

RODT. H. JOHNSON, P. C., Dickson, Tenn.

In the SOUTHWESTERN of Jan. 31 Rev. P. P. Brooks, presiding elder of Chattanooga District, writes a very interesting paper under the above caption. Elder Brooks no doubt speaks from experience, and knows from personal observation that there are "a few who are willing to suffer for the cause of Christ." From this interpretation one would infer that some of our young ministers are not loyal. Granting that "most of them, both local and traveling, want to know before they take a work, how much missionary money there is on it, and if there is not as much as they think should be, they begin to grumble and blame the presiding elder;" and allowing this reference to apply to our young ministers, prompts our reply to the article mentioned.

But there is, fortunately another side to this question: Who is really responsible for the present state of affairs among our ministers? Who are the truly loyal? Elder Brooks says: "Often the presiding elders pay men when it is not actually due them, because they create such a disturbance." If this be true, and it no doubt is, it may be that all the loyal young ministers are crowded out. For when it known that something can be had for nothing—that money can be gotten by simply yelling, then all the "riff-raff," "rag-tag," "bobtail," "scally-wags" in the country will flock to that place; and, "men know of the generousness of the M. E. Church towards helping," not only "its ministers to live," but any fellow who happens to come along and "yell," and have and are coming in—not to work for, but to merely get the loaves and fishes." Yes, sir; and they get them too; no matter whether they deserve them or not. All they have to do is, "keep up a yell" and the presiding elder will shell out them the money "that is not actually due them."

This does look pretty bad, but a presiding elder says "it is nevertheless true"—and, of course, the presiding elders ought to know. But who has taught our young minister how to "yell" for missionary money? Where did they learn that the big-hearted, generous presiding elders could not bear to hear them "yell," and would shell out to them money "that is not actually due them"?

Run with the wolves and you will learn to howl; and Paul said, "evil company corrupt good manners." So our young ministers must have fallen into bad company some where.

Who, ye young ministers—who hath bewitched you that you should not obey the rules of the Church, before whose eyes the works of the ministers of years ago has been evidently set forth among you? This only would I learn of you: Learned you this meanness of yourselves, or did others tell it to thee?

A good way to test the loyalty of ministers, young and old, is to heed Dr. J. Braden's resolution, passed at the last session of the Tennessee Conference. Among other things it says:

Resolved, That the Missionary Committee of this conference is requested to appropriate the missionary money allotted to this conference, more largely to establishing new work, etc."

See resolution in minutes, page 34. If this is done in all the conferences and the old way of doing things is again taken up, as Elder Brooks has stated—that is, pay the minister at the quarterly meeting, "where a report is first made as to what has been done"—then all the disloyal ministers, young and old, will leave the field; and the "few who are willing to suffer for the cause of Christ" will remain on the field—and, peradventure, God will raise up a "few" more to help carry the work on. Young ministers, be loyal.

—Those who have compared our "Easter Morn" program with some others, pronounce it by far the best. It is complete in itself—no supplement is required.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

The Treasury of Religious Thought for March opens with an impressive sermon on the outpouring of the Holy Spirit. This is the leading thought of the number, recognized as such in the editorial, and other matter. Annual subscription, $2 50. Clergymen, $2. Single copies, 25 cents. E. B. Treat, publisher, 5 Cooper Union, New York.

Littell's Living Age, brimful as each number is of the latest productions of the ablest foreign (especially British) writers, on subjects of living interest to every intelligent reader, is the ideal magazine for the busy man and woman of to-day. A prospectus with special offers to new subscribers will be sent, on application, by the publishers. Littell & Co., Boston.

One of the features of the March magazines is Lady Henry Somerset's paper in the March "Arena" on "The Welcome Child"—a study in social purity. Lady Somerset's views are presented with considerable frankness. B. O. Flower, the editor, writes a paper that is likely to provoke considerable discussion on "The Prophetic Faculty as Revealed In Dreams." It is a curious and interesting examination, full of data, some of which has been accumulated from authentic sources, some of which is vouched for as coming within personal knowledge and experience. Arena Publishing Co., Boston, Mass.

"The Humane World," St. Paul, Miss., is now issued in an enlarged and improved form.

WATCH TOWER.

BY UNCLE THOMAS.

Little chickens are such pretty, innocent creatures. They like to stay around the door, and go in the house sometimes. They will pick up all the crumbs, chirp so sweetly and scratch around over the floor. They don't know that they are leaving litter and tracks behind them that will cause trouble and labor for somebody, which might have been avoided. Persons, around whose door, and in whose house they lurk, often allow them to remain and feed them till they grow very large, and then it is hard work to run them out, and keep them out forever more.

The house is your heart. The door is the way by which good and bad thoughts enter it, and the little chickens are the bad thoughts that chirp around your heart. These thoughts appear to be very innocent. They will scratch around and pick up every moment of your time that they can find. There are hundreds of these thoughts (or chickens) that visit a heart in a day; so instead of calling them thoughts we will call them chickens. Now there are two of these chickens that some children feed nearly all the time, and won't let them get very far from the door. The name of one is "anger," and the other is "tease." These two chickens stay together a great deal, but they don't always go in the house at the same time. Sometimes "tease" will enter when a child first wakes in the morning and remains half the day, until he gets very tired and falls over to one side, and then in steps "anger," "as big as you please." Sometimes "anger" scratches around and thinks that nobody knows that he is in there, but they do; for they can see him peeping out of your eyes. He makes your face look ugly. You can keep "tease" quiet sometimes, but you can't keep anger quiet. If you let him in, he keeps scratching around and making so much racket that he wakes up "tease," who has been lying over at one side asleep, and here they will go, round and round, scratch and scratch, until somebody gets hurt. These two chickens are bound to bring punishment; I never saw it fail.

I saw a boy in school one day who had kept "tease" scratching around for an hour or so on the sly (by the way, "sly" is another chicken, but we will not call him in question now), and just before recess was announced "tease" laid over to one side and in stepped "anger;" and as they were passing out this boy struck at another one with his fist and missed him, and struck one of the benches, which caused him a great deal of pain. So you may imagine how he suffered for not running these little chickens out; and this blow was intended to have been given on the "sly" too. So you see!

What to do with Milk Pails!

Clean them with Pearline. You can't get them so thoroughly sweet and pure in any other way. Besides, it's easier for you—quicker, more economical.

"The box and barrel churn are not hard to keep clean. A little hot water and a little Pearline will clean any churn or do away with any bad odor."—The Dairy World, Chicago.

Perhaps you think that some of the imitations of Pearline, that you'd be afraid to use in washing clothes, would do just as well in work like this. They wouldn't hurt tinware, certainly. But they wouldn't clean it, either, half as well as Pearline—besides, "don't play with the fire." If your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 400 JAMES PYLE, New York

Our Oklahoma Letter.

GUTHRIE, O. T., March 12, 1895.

Mr. Editor—I thought it would not be out of place to let the many readers of the SOUTHWESTERN hear from this part of the work—"the land of the fair God." We are moving on to victory in spite of the many obstacles—hard times, etc. The Oklahoma Conference has grown from infancy, in five years, to almost manhood. Five years ago, when the proclamation of the president opened this wide country to settlement, nothing could be seen but barren prairie and a wilderness for wild beasts. Notwithstanding many disadvantages, thousands of people immigtated here. Among the thousands were Christians, and some were Methodists. There were no houses, save a tent or a dug-out to live in, and no churches in which to worship God. But, willing to obey the command of Jesus—"Go"—they came, and did not hesitate to "preach the Word."

God blessed their labor with souls and churches. In 1889 the Indian Mission Conference was organized by Bishop J. M. Walden. Only a few witnessed the organization. God continued to bless the work of his servants, so in 1892 the Oklahoma Annual Conference was organized by Bishop D. A. Goodsell. To-day we have in this conference 70 churches, with a membership of 5,413 full members and 701 probationers. We have 49 full members and 15 probationers in conference. Over 200 conversions on this (Central) district were reported since conference. Rev. J. F. Smith, presiding elder of the district, is a stirring, energetic, Holy Ghost preacher. We are glad to make him feel welcome on our charge. Guthrie is moving on nicely. With a membership of 68 we are determined with holy hands and clean hearts to live and die for the Master, and conquer this city for God. We are doing what we can for the SOUTHWESTERN. Would like to have every family here take it. We have a good Epworth League. Our Sunday school is getting better. By the help of God, we shall see a general awakening here soon. Pray for us. D. G. FRANKLIN.

Lost Friends.

We make no charge for publishing these letters from yearly subscribers. Others will be charged 50 cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

FROM PRESIDING ELDERS.

San Antonio District—

Suppose we turn over a new leaf this year. I think it would be better for you as well as myself. Suppose you go to work and raise all of the quarterly claims and turn the same over on Saturday when your quarter is held; and on Sunday we can have a square pull on your salary. Collecting thirty and thirty-five dollars a quarter, more than you could collect otherwise, for you see members at those quarters you will never see any more for three months. By this you will get twenty-five cents each quarter from members, which will be one dollar a year; otherwise you would get nothing. Can you see the point? if so, work to it and you will be greatly helped. Let us have a strong pull on Easter day throughout the district, on missions. The bishop said at conference, those who had done good work, go back and do better work; and those who had done nothing, go back and do something. So it is hard to get away from a place if we have done nothing. There is a great demand for good pastors. E. HENDERSON, P. E.

E. W. S. HAMMOND, D. D., EDITOR. NEW ORLEANS, MARCH 28, 1895.—Vol. 30. No. 13. HUNT & EATON, PUBLISHERS.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE Methodist "New South" Map, prepared by Dr. Hartzell and which has been published in the Advocates of the Church, we are glad to learn has greatly increased the interest of many people in our educational work in the South. That it may have a still larger circulation, the author of the map has prepared a Sunday Service for the use of pastors in taking the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education collection and included in the service that important map. The service also contains a brief responsive reading for pastor and congregation. These services will be sent to pastors who desire them to aid in increasing the collections for the society.

THE schools of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society have sent out over 12,000 colored teachers and nearly 4000 white teachers in twenty-five years. Nearly all of these teachers are active Christian workers. If the society had accomplished no other work than this, it would be enough to justify every dollar expended, but this important normal work in these schools is only fairly begun. The departments are better organized than ever before, and the number of teachers taking the regular course is increasing. The number of applications for efficient teachers, which come to our presidents, is many times greater than the possible supply. These points present the basis of a strong appeal for our pastors to increase the collections of this society.

NO PHASE of our educational work in the South is giving larger returns for the money expended than are the industrial schools connected with several of the larger institutions. Last year there were 2314 in the different trades in the industrial schools of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society. Nearly all the trades are taught the boys, and the girls are taught domestic economy, dress-making, etc. Many hundreds of young men and women have already learned trades, and gone out to positions of usefulness and success. They give an hour or two each day to the shops, and in many cases where their services are justified, they are paid for their work, which aids them in paying their school bills. A work which takes a poor young man from a plantation cabin and in three or four years gives him a fair education and a trade by which he can at once command from $1.50 to $3 a day, and which grounds him in moral character, and makes him an intelligent money-producing and moral force in a community, must be rejoiced in by all.

OUR Business Manager notes, with heartfelt regret, the demise of Mr. John E. Stevens, the head of the merchandise department of the New York Book Concern, who died Saturday, March 16, at Elizabeth, N.J. For nearly five years we have had dealings and much correspondence with the lamented Brother and have invariably found him to be a man of God as well as a man of great business qualifications. We extract from the New York Christian Advocate this short history of his life: "Mr. Stevens was born in Newbury, Vt., in July, 1831. He entered the Methodist Book Concern as a clerk in the merchandise department in 1854. Covering a period of forty years, he has held uninterruptedly the responsible position of superintendent of the merchandise department. He was formerly one of the managers of the Missionary Society, and at the time of his decease, and for many years previous, was a manager of the Sunday School Union. His character was blameless, his devotion to business constant, his manners ingratiating, and he has left an honorable record to the Church and the business with which he was so long connected."

THE PREACHERS AND THE MASSES.

The problem of "How to reach and save the non-church-going people" is a subject of the most vital importance to our Methodist ministry, and in fact to all evangelical preachers. It is an old discussion upon which we have had theories upon theories, suggestions, plans, ponderous organizations, with more or less of interest, sympathy and zeal. But few intelligent and practical Christian people will deny that progress in this much desired work is alarmingly slow and out of harmony with the amount of energy expended.

The salvation of men is the most practical thing within the scope of our Christian activities. The whole Christian system is predicated upon the one great thought of the salvation of men. "Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners" is the most startling, beautiful and simple statement of the New Testament. It is the keynote of the great plan of salvation. To save sinners is the work which Christ Jesus has committed to the hands of his disciples. And, from Pentecost unto this day, this work has been carried on without a single change in the method as taught by the Master. Beginning with the conversion of three thousand souls, the Holy Ghost has been the prime agency in the conversion of every soul that has been saved until this day. Men may philosophize and publish to the world elaborate essays upon the relation existing between revelation and science; but the pungent, practical preaching of the Gospel of Christ, accompanied by the Holy Ghost, has done more to bring men into perfect and complete harmony with the word and will of God than any other known agency. Nothing but a thoroughly converted and consecrated ministry can succeed in this great work. Let it be understood, therefore, that all plans and enterprises which are put forth for the salvation of the masses, under direction of the blessed Holy Spirit, must and will succeed. God the Father hath promised it, and the ever blessed Son will faithfully execute the terms of the great contract.

The Church of to-day should be intensely earnest in disseminating the truth of God. To do this effectually, it must be endowed with power; that power which will thrill and thrall and inspire every heart; that power which will glow in the pulpit and burn in the heart, until every faculty is brought into subjection to the will of the Master. Then and then only will the Church be a living witness of Christ's power to save even unto the uttermost; while its ministry, upon whom the Holy Ghost has come, will go into the highways and hedges, and slums, to the poor as well as the rich, the white as well as the black. Aye, to all the nations without distinction, and telling the simple story of the Savior's love, compel them to come to the marriage Supper of the Lamb.

—Our schools, which are soon to close, will have many young gentlemen and ladies who ought to become physicians. The field is wide and inviting. The facilities offered by the New Orleans University Medical College for a thorough medical course are not excelled anywhere. Write for particulars to C. F. Dight, M. D., Dean, 302 (old number) Canal street.

—Bishop Thoburn has appointed Rev. Rockwell Clancy, of Allahabad, India, to be the secretary for his Special Fund, in place of Rev. N. L. Rockey, who has returned to America on furlough. All communications relating to this Fund may be addressed to Mr. Clancy.

—We are indebted to Rev. E. M. Jones, secretary and presiding elder, for a copy of the minutes of the Central Alabama Annual Conference.

BRAVE INDIANA.

The triumph of the friends of temperance in the Indiana Legislature is the triumph of its friends everywhere. Looking at the various phases of the heroic struggle of the local optionists, to place the responsibility of the sale of intoxicants upon the people themseves rather than to allow the saloonists to control this matter to the utter disregard of the will of the people, was characterized by the same methods as are used by the enemies of righteousness everywhere. But by the persistent and determined work of the members who favored its passage, together with the splendid work of the women in creating strong, healthy, public sentiment on the outside, the way was made clear to enact this most wholesome and desirable law. Democrats and Republicans have occasion to rejoice, and the brave Governor Matthews is deserving of high praise for appending his signature, which the liquor oligarchy had fondly hoped he would withhold. Surely we can join with our Hoosier brethren and sisters in singing, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

THE Hand Book and Annual Report of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, issued March, 1895, is received. It is attractive in form and filled with the most interesting and valuable information respecting the educational work of Methodism and of the country. From it we learn that the Board disbursed the last school year over $70,000 in 138 different schools, thus aiding 1539 students of twenty-four nationalities. Of this number 1138 were preparing for the ministry and for missionary work; 233 were women. The number aided is increasing every year and is more than twice as large as it was seven years ago. All aid is granted in the form of an easy loan, and it is gratifying to learn that the repayment of loans last year reached $7,940.82, a sum nearly twice as large as in any previous year.

"The Children's Day Echoes" show how popular this festal day is throughout the Church and how highly the program prepared by the board is appreciated. Interesting examples of "Heroic Struggles to Secure an Education" are given that ought to stir the heart of the Church. A chapter entitled "A Great Advance in the Educational Work of Methodism" shows how admirably the new chapter in establishing a "University Senate" and bringing the colleges of Methodism up to a prescribed standard of scholastic attainments, is working, and that our Methodist colleges have heartily fallen into line with this forward movement and adjusted their curricula accordingly. A most interesting table is that showing "The Percentage of College Graduates Entering the Ministry." There is a complete list of the educational institutions of the Methodist Episcopal Church with very full statistics. Much labor and care have evidently been bestowed upon the report, and the materials here presented are so valuable that no minister or intelligent layman can well afford to be without this pamphlet. It is furnished free on application to the Board.

DR. DIGHT, Dean of the N. O. University Medical College, will remain in the South during vacation and will attend as many district conferences as possible, in the interest of the college. He will also receive professional calls while in the city. His wife, who has received the degree of M. D. from two colleges, has opened an office at 814 Canal street for the practice of her profession. We hope our readers who need their services will give them a share of their patronage and thus encourage them in the work they are doing.

Lexington Conference.

[From the Western Christian Advocate.]

The twenty-sixth session of the Lexington Conference assembled in Scott Chapel, Maysville, Ky., Wednesday, March 13, and adjourned Monday the 18th. Bishop John F. Hurst, D. D., presided. This was his first time to meet our conference; but he was warmly received by the brethren. At roll-call 88 members responded. The bishop, assisted by the presiding elders and Dr. E. W. S. Hammond, administered the Supper of the Lord to the conference and congregation. Among his opening remarks, the bishop said this was the first Kentucky Conference he had met. All parts of our work are prospering. Three hundred thousand are converted annually, and there is great prosperity in mission-fields. He regarded two requsites for a Methodist preacher, a good horse and the selection of a good lot for a church. The conference constituted the following as its officers: Secretary, E. A. White; assistant secretaries, W. F. Riley, R. L. Dickerson and C. T. Lewis; statistical secretaries, Geo. E Curry, assistants, J. W. Robinson, T. R. Fletcher, F. T. D. Breckinridge; conference treasurer, W. C. Echols; assistants, R. T. W. James, W. W. Heston.

The conference gladly received the announcement, by the bishop, of the Book Concern dividend of $834, and the Chartered Fund of $25.

Dr. E. W. S. Hammond, editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, the only sable son in our editorial ranks, and the second one of our conference to be honored by the Church to this position, kept the interests of his paper prominently before the conference. Our conference stands fourth of the patronizing conference in support of the SOUTHWESTERN. Dr. Hammond is a member of our conference, of whom we are proud, and he has its unanimous indorsement and support for the success of his paper. Dr. B. F. Rawlins, associate editor of the Western, was a welcome representative.

Three young men of the conference have been transferred from the field of conquest to their heavenly reward; namely, Geo. L. Firman, Isaac B. Hocker, Moses B. Lewis. Each fell on the field of battle in the faith.

Dr. C. C. McCabe, missionary secretary, spent Wednesday with us, infusing missionary zeal in our hearts, showing us that our greatest embarrassment is our great success. To raise $1,500,000 a year means advancement everywhere. We have 600,000 more givers now than when we crossed the million-dollar line in 1887. He wanted ten splendid young men to go to Africa in a body; but none volunteered from our ranks. Long will the chaplain's inspiring and eloquent addresses rest upon our minds, and do more to swell the missionary treasury, and help us in our part of taking the world for Christ. We cannot forget the name of John Steward, of ebony hue, who first suggested the idea of the Missionary Society in 1819. Though he did not realize its full importance, we see its tremendous achievements to-day, and we look for greater still in the future.

The presiding elders' reports were above the average—carefully prepared, characterized with brevity—showing progress in the various departments of the work in their respective districts.

In reference to the benevolent collections, the bishop pressed the conference to have stated times to lift the collections, to take them separately, and abandon the omnibus plan. Said moneys should be paid into the Book Concern as soon as collected. Carry on the church-work by calculation.

Dr. M. S. Hard brought the cause of our Church Extension Society vividly before us, leaving the impression that more should be done for this cause. Our conference has, from its existence, raised $2,856, and received in the same period by donations $16,500, and by loans $17,000.

The marked improvements in the transaction of the business of our conference shows both the power of the Gospel and the press, and that the Negro race is moving toward the greatest attainments of true manhood. The Methodist Episcopal Church is the most certain path to reach it.

Dr. George S. Savage represented the American Bible Society.

Rev. Jos. S. Jenkins was received, on his credentials, as a member from the Protestant Episcopal Church, and was transferred by the bishop to the Indiana Conference.

The bishop's address to the class for admission into full connection was plain and practical and impressive. He advised in preaching the use of decent, respectable English. He would have a preacher commend himself by what he knows, as well as what he is. Carefulness in money matters is a necessity with preachers of all our conferences.

The class received into full connection were James E. Warren, James Allen, Randolph Pugh, J. T. Leggett, B. J. Coleman.

The conference passed suitable resolutions in memory of Hon. Frederick Douglass, recognizing in him one of the greatest productions of the race.

J. H. Ross, Joseph Small, Thomas R. Preutiss and Walter F. Riley were ordained elders; and James E. Warren, James Allen and Randolph Pugh, deacons.

Great interest was manifested about the seat of the next conference. Both Paris and Louisville were prominently presented, and Louisville was unanimously chosen.

Dr. M. C. B. Mason, field agent of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society, addressed us Friday night, and carried the conference by storm. He presented the interests of the society in the plainest and most forcible manner. In reality, he gave us the best address ever delivered at our conference on that cause The conference became electrified from his masterly effort to do greater work than ever.

Edward R. Lewis, Lewis Robinson, John W. White and Joseph S. Webb were admitted into the conference on trial.

Sunday Services.—The conference love feast was held from 9:30 a. m. to 10:30, led by M. McCoemor, Felix Ross and W. L. Muir. It was largely attended, and proved to be a blessed season. At 10:30, Bishop Hurst preached to a crowded audience. The memorial services were held at 2 p. m., presided over by L. M. Hagood, M. D. Dr. E. W. S. Hammond spoke on the life of M. B. Lewis; R. L. Dickerson read his memorial of Geo. L. Firman, and J. H. Stanley spoke of Isaac B. Hocker. At 7:30 p. m., Rev. S. R. Gipson, of the Mississippi Conference, preached from John xii, 32.

The interests of the American University at Washington, D. C., were presented by the bishop, showing the plans of the great enterprise; and he exhibited and read General Washington's letter, dated March 16, 1795, just one century ago the day of its reading—suggestive of such an institution. Subscriptions for this school were taken to the amount of $2,048 from the preachers and laity of the conference. Our subscriptions are ahead of any conference.

Statistics.—Raised for benevolences, $1,041.92. There was raised last year $1,398.96, making a decrease of $357.04. Pastors' receipts, $29,317; presiding elders' receipts, $4,166; current expenses, $4,081. Probationers, 1,115; full members, 8,773; local preachers, 133; deaths, 303; baptized—children, 389; adults, 461; Sunday schools, 158; officers and teachers, 829; scholars, 4,607; churches, 142—value, $165,110; parsonages, 54—value, $21,912; paid for building, $9,396; paid on old indebtedness, $17,328.

It is eighteen years since the conference previously met in Maysville; but the pastor and people made everything very pleasant for the conference and visitors.

The last session of the conference was unusually crowded, to hear the appointments. The business having been completed, the bishop announced Hymn 816

"And let our bodies part,
To different climes repair," followed by prayer by the bishop, after which he made a few remarks, and read the appointments. HENRY W. TATE.

OBDURACY BEMOANED.

O that I could repent!
O that I could believe!
Thou, by thy voice, the marble rend,
The rock in sunder cleave:
Thou, by thou two-edged sword,
My soul and spirit part;
Strike with the hammer of thy word,
And break my stubborn heart.

Savior, and Prince of peace,
The double grace bestow;
Unloose the bands of wickedness,
And let the captive go:
Grant me my sins to feel,
And then the load remove;
Wound, and pour in, my woends to heal,
The balm of pardoning love.

DAILY THOUGHTS.

[From Phillips Brooks.]

MARCH 28.—It belongs to Christ in men first to prove that man may be a Christian and yet do business; and, in the second place, to show how a man, as he becomes a greater Christian, shall purify and lift the business that he does and make it the worthy occupation of the Son of God.

MARCH 29.—You have got to know that religion, the service of Christ, is not something to be taken in in addition to your life; it is your life. It is not a ribbon that you shall tie in your hat, and go down the street declaring yourself that you have accepted something in addition to the life which your fellow-men are living. It is something which, taken in your heart, shall glow in every action, so that your fellow-men shall say, "Lo, how he lives! What new life has come into him? It is that insistance upon the great essentialness of the religious life—it is the insistence that religion is not a lot of things that a man does, but is a new life that a man lives, uttering itself in new actions because it is the new life.

MARCH 30.—Jesus the soul must have, the one yesterday, to-day and forever; He that is and was and is to be.

* * *

MARCH 31.—Men dwell upon what He was, and upon what He is; I rather think to-day of what He is to be. And when I see men looking to the future and not to the past—nay, looking to the future and not to the present, valuing the present only as it is the seed-ground of the future, the foundation upon which the structure is to rise whose pinnacle shall some day pierce the sky—I want to tell them of the Jesus that shall be. In fuller comprehension of Him, with deeper understanding of His life, with a more entire impression of what He is and of what He may be to the soul, so men shall understand Him in the days to be, and yet He shall be the same Christ still. The future belongs to Jesus Christ—yes, the same Christ that I believe in, and that I call upon you to believe in to-day, but a larger, fuller, more completely comprehended Christ—the Christ that is to be, the same Christ that was and suffered.

APRIL 1.—There is one great figure, and it has taken in all Christian consciousness, that again and again this work with Christ has been asserted to be the true service in the army of a great master, of a great captain, who goes before us to his victory, that it is asserted that in that captain, in the entrance into His army, every power is set free.

APRIL 2.—Claim your freedom in service.

APRIL 3.—Come into the Church of Jesus Christ. There is no other body on the face of the earth that represents what she represents—the noble destiny of the human soul, the great capacity of human faith, the inexhaustible and unutterable love of God, the Christ, who stands to manifest them all.

—Those who have compared our "Easter Morn" program with some others, pronounce it by far the best. It is complete in itself—no supplement is required.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

A New Church Edifice Needed in Foochow, China.

In this important city, where our first congregation in China was organized, we have been using for years as our principal church a building erected in the early history of the mission, but is now entirely inadequate to meet the needs of the people. At present it barely accommodates the membership on ordinary occasions, while at quarterly meetings and other special services, many are obliged to stand outside the doors and windows. There is a growing interest in the community in our Christian services, and many more than formerly would gladly attend regularly if they could find seats. Our Christian schools are rapidly gaining favor and the number of students will largely increase from year to year. It is believed they will have a hundred and fifty more next year than this. Besides these, it is expected that an addition of several hundred boys from the promising day schools, established by Brother Miner, will need to be provided for. There is little doubt that a regular congregation of more than a thousand people would gladly listen to the gospel in this place if accommodations were provided for them, and that the number would rapidly increase.

Our cause at this historic centre of our work, imperatively requires a new building with a seating capacity for 1800 or 2000 people and with all the modern appointments for Sunday school and other uses. Like all our mission churches, the local congregation is poor, but on one of the evenings of conference week about $1800, gold value, were raised toward the enterprise; $25,000 more will be needed to secure additional ground and complete the church. We shall then have a building which will answer for years to come and be worthy of our cause in Southern China. It will occupy a fine site on the island, where the edifice of the Anglo-Chinese College and the mission residents are located, directly overlooking the Min, with its "Bridge of Ten Thousand Ages," a conspicuous landmark for all ascending or descending the river.

There is no doubt that a great revival wave is sweeping over Southern China. As never before, the people seem ready to welcome the missionaries and the "doctrine." Now, as never before, there should be a liberal response to China's appeal for help. Any contribution towards the new church in Foochow, may be sent to Rev. J. H. Worley, Foochow, China, or Rev. A. B. Leonard, D. D., 150 Fifth avenue, New York. Rev. J. H. Worley agrees to send a Chinese idol and a photograph to any person giving $25 or more.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

"LAYING UP THE WORD."

We have often thought that our youth were not storing their minds and hearts with as much of the blessed Word of God by the use of the International system of lessons in the Sunday school as they ought, and that more attention should be given to the old custom of committing and reciting it. Bishop Haygood, of the M. E. Church South, has a timely letter on the subject in the last Northern, which is worth reproducing, and we gladly give it place:

"Many of the best and wisest of Christian people are falling into perplexities, doubts and anxieties concerning our children and the holy Scriptures. It would be a joy to be sure that their fears are groundless.

"These good people—fathers and mothers—sound in 'the faith once delivered to the saints,' and finding in the old book the very 'bread of life,' cannot be satisfied with Sunday school statistics, however impossible—even bewildering. Nor are they relieved by the amazing exhibit of our "Sunday school literature," as the phrase is. There are millions—ten or more—of children 'enrolled;' the great publishing houses issue year by year very many millions of "helps" to study the Bible. This has grown to be a very great business now, and it is a trifle risky to ask questions.

"Not a word in this article is aimed with hostile intent at our vast Sunday school system. With many others this writer has a fear that after all our children are not learning what is in the holy Bible more than their parents, may be grandparents, learned; perhaps not as much. This writer may say for himself that he has had much to do with Sunday school work and in nearly all departments of it.

"The question is: With ten millions of American children supposed to be studying the scrappy, patchwork series of 'international lessons' in vogue, are they really learning the Scriptures? Furthermore, can they be taught, can they learn, in this way? Most people will make prompt and emphatic affirmative answer, intimating ignorance and old fogyism at the heart of one asking such questions at all. But no harm can come of thinking a little before making answer.

"One thing is certain, the best possible use of these scrappy lessons cannot substitute the many benefits that come into our lives by memorizing the Scriptures in our childhood and youth.

"Not a few doubt the usefulness of committing the Scriptures to memory, but experience does not justify their views. People in middle life and beyond that period know that most of the passages they can recall or repeat were learned before they were twenty. This writer's mother—daughter of one of Asbury's itinerants a hundred years ago—brought up in a cabin in the North Georgia range of the Blue Ridge—committed the four gospels to memory before she was grown, and in a section where there were no Sunday schools. When she was passed seventy she still remembered so accurately that she could correct, on the instant, a misplaced word in a quotation. And many of the holy Psalms she made her own forever in the same way; also many other portions of the sacred word.

"We cannot begin too soon to help our little ones lay up in memory the words in and through which our heavenly Father has told his will to men. When a child can ask its mother for bread it can repeat after her 'God is love.' And day by day the little one can, if there be such help as God commands us to give our children, add to its precious store of divine and life-enfolding and life-imparting words.

"In the common notion that the children cannot understand the words of the holy Scriptures there is much ignorance and untruth, also unbelief. Two things, as to this matter, are not generally considered. One is—and it is as important as it is wonderful—religious truth is normal to the human mind. It fits the child's mind as the light the eye. Most of the ten commandments, with reasonable help, a child can lay hold of earlier and easier than it can learn the multiplication table. It can gather the greater lessons from the life of Jesus before it can read to profit the life of George Washington, though the style of the writing be simplicity itself. It can feel the truth in the parable of the prodigal before it can study usefully the simplest primary geography. The child's conscience responds to a Bible truth that bears upon its own life, whether in commendation or reproof, before it sees the relation between sowing seed and gathering crops. Let any, who will do it carefully and patiently, make the test.

"Many forget, also, that one of the chiefest and most blessed works of the Holy Ghost is to help all minds—of children as well as adults—to know the inner sense of the word of God. The Bible teaches this; we forget it in sinful unbelief. The promise of our Lord made just before he went into the darkness that gathered about Gethsemane, 'He will bring all things unto your remembrance whatsoever ye have heard of me,' is unto our children in its divine fullness.

"It proves nothing to say 'The child cannot explain these great words.' For few people can; none can put the God-given sense into human speech in such way as to say it all. He, wisest of scholars and holiest of saints though he be, who knows in himself most that the word of God means, is least satisfied with his own words in the exposition of them. It is only ignorance that ever is or ever can be satisfied with our words when we would speak of the deep things of God's word to men. It is a sad thing to find one satisfied with anything that he has done—a song he has sung; a picture he has painted; a statue he has carved; a book he has written; a sermon he has preached; a duty he has performed; a life he has lived. Such satisfaction is the token of decadence and the prelude to death of all that is highest and best in man. * * * Another thought will end this article: We must consider that the seed of the tree of Bible truth 'has life in itself.' The words laid away in memory in earliest years lie dormant, it may be for a long time; but they are not dead. Years come and go without conscious remembrance of holy words 'learned by heart' in childhood. But by-and by the occasion comes and the words come back and fit the case and often save a soul. The great wheat grains found with an Egyptain mummy, as men tell us, had lain there in darkness and dry air for ages. Planted in our times, sun-heat and earth-moisture called them into life and harvests. God will send his life-awakening harvests and water to the minds of our children long after we have passed over to the company of our fathers. Let us obey the divine command: 'And these words which I command thee this day shall be in thy heart, and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children.'"

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Marion, Va., Rev. I. R. Hill, pastor, has just closed a glorious meeting. Twelve conversions and ten additions.

—Casper Chapel, Fonche, La., is doing well under the pastorate of Brother Pharris. Already there have been five accessions.

—Rev. M. C. Gillespie is holding the fort at Bonham, Tex. First quarterly conference, with Rev. C. C. Minnegan presiding, was a success throughout. Collections, $34.

—C. W. Moore, Wallisville, Tex., writes: "The outlook on the Wallisville Circuit is bright for success. We are preparing for Easter, April 14, and expect to raise our assessment in full."

—A note from Rev. Robert Smith, presiding elder of the Western District, North Carolina Conference, contains the sad announcement of the death, from heart failure, of his devoted wife, on February 7.

—Rev. A. James, pastor of the Pleasanton Circuit, Texas Conference, reports progress in all departments of the church. He was agreeably surprised by a goodly number of friends who brought many nice presents.

—Rev. S. D. Troupe, of Elijah, Miss., writes: "We are all happy here. Held first quarterly conference meeting in the new church. Presiding Elder McDonald was present, and preached to the edification of all. Collections, $23.45."

—Emma F. Fox, secretary of the Winona, Miss., Quarterly Conference, writes that the reports gave evidence that the charge is on the forward march under the new pastor, Rev. N. R. Clay. There were 82 communicants at the altar.

—B. J. Reddix, Conrad, La., writes: "A party of my people visited the parsonage recently and unloaded their baskets upon our table, after which we had prayer and songs, and the party retired. Thanks."

—J. Harriford, Valley Mills, Tex., writes: "My first quarterly conference was held on the 9th and 10th. The brethren were all out with reports. Raised for benevolences, $12.50 At night the presiding elder preached to the married people."

—Rev. P. M. McCray, pastor at Key West, Florida, writes: "We have been at work among the Cubans here, and the Lord has wonderfully blessed our work. We organized a Cuban Methodist Episcopal Church, under the control of the Newman charge."

—Mrs. Col. Springer addressed a large audience in St. Paul M. E. Church, Texarkana, Tex., on the 28th of February. The service was in every way helpful. We have just closed a rally, which resulted in the collection of $101.65. So writes Rev. W. H. Jackson.

—Queen City, Tex., in the Marshall District, is enjoying a good measure of prosperity under the pastorate of Rev. J. L. Owens. Rev. W. H. Logan, P. E., was present on the occasion of the first quarterly conference, to the great delight of all. Reports show great progress.

—Hondo City, Tex., with Rev. J. H. Holden in charge, is having commendable prosperity. All departments are organized and great results are expected. Now for about twenty cash subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN, and all will be in line. Presiding Elder Henderson preached grandly at the quarterly meeting.

—H. C. Armston, St. John, La., writes: "The young people of St. John are not crying about hard times, but they are determined to do all that lies in their power to help the church and their pastor. A number of ladies and gentlemen recently gave an entertainment for the pastor and realized $7.50. Two subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN."

—H. Heslup, Morton, Miss., writes: "At our first quarterly conference, which was held March 12, the brethren pledged themselves to do more for the work than heretofore. We have four churches on the work, but only one belongs to us, and all need repair. The people have promised to make this a first-class circuit. This is my first year on this work."

—Rev. Z. Reddin sends good news from McKinney, Tex.: Moved into the parsonage, which is pleasant and cosy; Sunday schools and young people's societies well organized and at work; helping on the cause of temperance by preaching and praying against that, as well as the use of cigars and tobacco, and doing all we can to carry the banner to the front.

—Rev. J. A. Rush, pastor at Greensboro, N. C., writes: "Our church has been greatly revived. Our series of meetings closed last Friday, resulting in twenty-two conversions and eighteen accessions. Every Sunday we say something for the SOUTHWESTERN. We are casting our bread upon the water. Send some papers to be used as sample copies."

—From Ellisville, Miss., comes cheering news. Rev. D. F. Dudley, the pastor, is highly pleased, and so are the people. Presiding Elder Shumpert was present at the recent quarterly conference meeting and rendered acceptable service. Preparations are being made for the erection of three new churches. Collection, $25. The district conference will be held there in June.

—Rev. H. C. Anniston, of St. Johns, La., is among the happy pastors. He was received kindly by the people, who gave many evidences of their pleasure with his appointment. Mesdames M. Wilson, J. Hensley, R. Francois, B. Harris, Misses G. A. Burks, F. Hensley, V. Alexander, A. Harris, I. Wheeler, Messrs. S. Alexander, John Louis and J. B. and J. C. Burks were among those who generously stormed him with many tokens of esteem a short time ago. Preparations are being made to erect a parsonage and get up a big club of subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN.

Those who have secured the numbers thus far issued of that splendid Holy Land art portfolio series, "Earthly Footsteps of the Man of Galilee," are most enthusiastic regarding the religious, educational and art value of the work. The entire set of 24 parts only costs $2.40 and one coupon.

An amateur editor has just made a fortune by his pen. His father died of grief after reading one of his leading articles, and left him £50,000.—Tit-Bits.

—We shall one day forget all about duty, and do everything from the love of the loveliness of it, and the satisfaction of the righteousness of it.—Macdonald.

—Without earnestness no man is ever great, or does really great things. He may be the cleverest of men, he may be brilliant, entertaining, popular; but he will want weight. No soul-moving picture was ever painted that had not in it the depths of shadow.—Peter Bayne, LL. D.

Publishers Southwestern Advocate—We have perfected a portfolio holder with appropriate side stamp in gold, for holding the 24 numbers of the "Earthly Footsteps," when completed. In order to stimulate every one who has procured the original number or numbers to continue to take them throughout the series, we have decided to offer this portfolio holder to your readers who may thus complete the 24 numbers, absolutely free of charge. NEW ORLEANS AND VICINITY.

A memorial service, in honor of Rev. Simon Evans, former pastor of the church, was held at Pleasant Plains, March 24. Among the pastors present were: Revs T. J. Johnson, T. G. Montgomery, S. Priestley, E. Field, and F. T. Chinn presiding elder of the Monroe District. The following sisters also spoke on the life and services of the deceased: Emiline Ross, representing the stewardess' board; Mary J. Nickerson, representing the deaconess' board; H. Dutch, representing the Sunday school. The occasion resulted in the organization of a day known as the Simon Evan's Day, for special rallies. Collection, $20.80.

GOOD WORDS.

A Little Boy's Testimony.

Dear Editor—I am a little boy 11 years of age. My mother has been taking the SOUTHWESTERN for some time. I read it every week and am deeply interested in it. I don't know of any paper more interesting than it.

HENRY BUIE ANDERSON, Oxford, Miss.

Praying for the Paper.

Rev. W. H. Jackson, of Texarkana, Tex., places us under many obligations for the following: "For nineteen years the good SOUTHWESTERN has been coming into my humble home. We appreciate more and more, and around our family altar we offer up prayers for the paper and its editor."

From a School Teacher.

Dear Editor—Our hearty congratulations to the SOUTHWESTERN. I am just through reading your valuable paper and feel as if the dear Father should see fit to call you home, it would indeed be as a light gone out of thousands of homes into which your dear paper goes. I am a country school teacher and a farmer, and every thing I read helps me in my work. I am trying to procure several cash subscribers for your paper. Most cordially yours,

JOE H. MALLORY, Hickory Flat, Miss.

From a Little Girl.

Dear Editor—I am a girl 15 years old; my father is a pastor of the M. E. Church here. We all love the SOUTHWESTERN very much, and you ought to see the struggle every week when the paper comes, to see who will read it first. It is a great paper, and I advise all who do not subscribe for it to do so at once.

Our Work at Bennett College.

Dr. Hartzell's Visit—He Addresses Large Audiences—People Enthusiastic—Large Collections in Subscription and Cash.

The work in Bennett College was never more satisfactory and progressive than now. The number of boarding students is the largest we have ever had. The institution has been laboring hard to clear up old debts, something over $3000, but by sacrifice and hard effort, with the constant aid of Dr. Hartzell, the school can now declare itself free from debt.

Dr. Hartzell spent Sunday, March 10, with us In the morning he preached to the students in the College Chapel, from Matthew 7, 20: "Therefore by their fruits ye shall know them." At the close of the sermon, five young men and one young lady went to the altar, asking our prayers that they might find the Lord Jesus Christ and salvation for their souls. All the rest of our students are on the Lord's side, and we shall not give up till we can take our motto, "Our Whole School for Christ."

In the afternoon Dr. Hartzell preached in St. Matthew's M. E. Church, from Luke 12, 29: "Neither be ye of doubtful mind." In the evening he lectured at the same place on "The Methodist Episcopal Church and the Negro."

Large and appreciative audiences greeted him on both occasions. The people were enthusiastic, proving their interest by contributing, in cash and by subscription, $175. At the close of the collection, the entire congregation joined heartily in singing "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." All felt that it had been a day of days, one that will be long remembered, and we went to our homes thanking God for the "Freedman's Aid and Southern Education Society," which is doing such a grand work in the Southland, and for its worthy representative, Dr Hartzell, who is traveling night and day, pleading our cause and seeking the assistance of the people, that our work may succeed and our influence constantly broaden.

The value of such a visit cannot be estimated by dollars and cents, but by impressions made upon immortal souls, which will mature and ripen in eternity. The prayers of the college and the conference shall follow him. J. D. CHAVIS.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

The Funk & Wagnalls Company Standard Dictionary is now completed, and ready for delivery. The like has never before been achieved in the art of dictionary-making. Says the New York Herald: "We are free to pronounce it the most complete dictionary yet printed." The fact that no less than 247 distinguished editors and specialists, connected with the principal universities and colleges from every quarter of the globe, were engaged as collaborators for nearly five years, and the result being a work that actually required the outlay of over $960,000 before a complete volume was ready for the market, is a statement that commands the thoughtful attention of everyone who in any degree appreciates the significance of such a literary enterprise This dictionary actually contains 349,333 vocabulary terms. This work contains all the other eleven great dictionaries in showing how every word is spelled and pronounced in each of them. So he who possesses the Standard has at the same time all the other great dictionaries in it. The editors, in the matter of spelling, used the simplest form which will preserve the etymological unity of the word. There have been no radical changes made, yet the work is conservatively progressive. This work is sold exclusively by subscription. The price of the dictionary is lower than any other similar bound book in the market.

The second of Dr. C. Hanford Henderson's series of articles on Manual Training will appear in the April Popular Science Monthly. It is a stimulating argument for his specialty because of "the increased intellectual power which is the necessary physiological result of such training." His reasoning is re-enforced by statements of results.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me.

LESSON HYMN. 6, 6, 4.

Savior, who died for me,
I give myself to thee;
Thy love so full, so free,
Claims all my powers.
Be this my purpose high,
To serve thee till I die,
Whether my path shall lie
'Mid thorns or flowers.

But, Lord, the flesh is weak;
Thy gracious aid I seek,
For thou the word must speak,
That makes me strong.
Then let me hear thy voice,
Then art my only choice;
O bid my heart rejoice,
Be thou my song.

I. THE LESSON FRAMEWORK.

[A body or a building requires a frame to insure symmetry and stability. Our lessons must have bone and sinew if they are to be better than a jellyfish or balloon. Commit these Titles and Texts thoroughly; they are the framework of the temple which we seek to build.]

TITLES AND GOLDEN TEXTS.

1. J. B. B...Fear not them which kill—
2. F. F. T...He hath filled the hungry—
3. C. B. L...He gave them bread—
4. T. G. C...Thou art the Christ—
5. T. T...This is my beloved Son—
6. C. and C...It is not the will—
7. T. G. S...Thou shalt love thy—
8. C. M. B. B...I am the light—
9. T. R. L...I am the resurrection—
10. T. R. Y. R...Seek ye first the kingdom—
11. Z. the P...The Son of man is come—
12. P. of L...Abstain from all—

II. FINISHING AND FURNISHING.

[Both body and building need more than framework. Skeletons are not welcome at feasts unless properly clothed. Clothe these lessons with the flesh of fact, that they may abide with you as welcome guests.]

1. Recall a man in prison (who? where? why?); a feast (occasion?); a dance (by whom?); a promise (what?); a ghastly gift (what? to whom? why?).

2. Recall a tired company seeking rest; an eager multitude; a gracious teacher; a hungry people; an unexpected feast; an abundance left over.

3. Recall a command to labor (for what?); what is the work of God; who gives true bread; who is the bread of life; what comes from eating this bread.

4. Recall whom men said Jesus was; what a disciple said; a promise about the Church; a story of suffering; two rebukes.

5. Recall four men on a mountain (who? why?); two strange visitors (who? why?); three drowsy disciples; an eager request; a cloud and a voice (what?); and who then was seen?

6. Recall a question about greatness; a child in the midst; cutting off hands and feet; angels in heaven; a wandering sheep.

7. Recall a lawyer's question; what says the law? a man in trouble; two men neglecting; one man helping; a question and its application.

8. Recall a blind man by the wayside; a question and answer; a strange ointment; a pool and sight; perplexed neighbors; a frank confession.

9. Recall a sorrowful woman; a weeping friend; a tomb opened; thanksgiving; a command; the dead raised; who believed on him?

10. Recall an eager ruler; an earnest question; six commandments obeyed; a new commandment neglected; "how hard to enter;" a camel and a needle; "who then can be saved?"

11. Recall a seeker hindered; hindrance overcome; a call, a response, a complaint; a penitent's promise; a blessed assurance.

12. Recall how we should be in debt; the sum of all the commandments; a definition of love; what we should put off and put on; how we should walk; for what we should not provide.

Common Sense

Should be used in attempting to cure that very disagreeable disease, catarrh. As catarrh originates in impurities in the blood, local applications can do no good. The common sense method of treatment is to purify the blood, and for this purpose there is no preparation superior to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

HOOD'S PILLS cure constipation by restoring peristaltic action to the alimentary canal.

The Historic Christ.

The historic Christ, so derived from the Acts of the Apostles, the Epistles of the New Testament, and contemporaneous history and events, analyzed in the light of the present day, and in the results, presents arguments in favor of Christianity wholly unanswerable.

There is a reality about these occurrences that is unquestionable, and this reality carries with it an admission of the divine and supernatural in Christ.

The fourth chapter of Paul's second epistle to the Church in Corinth, when carfully analyzed, presents a beautiful and forcible argument for any mind troubled with unbelief and doubts in relation to the claims of Christianity upon his heart and life. He writes as one commending the Gospel he preached to every man's conscience in the sight of God. Then, if this is so, why do not all receive Christ as their Lord and Savior?

He immediately adds: "If our Gospel be hid or unbelieved on the part of the perishing, it is those in whom the God of this world hath blinded the mind, lest the light of the knowledge of the glory of God as manifest in Christ should shine into their hearts. See the god of this world on every hand, in wealth, ambition, popularity, gratification of the appetites and passions, blinding the minds of the multitude so that they can see no beauty in Christ to desire him. Yet the historic Christ is no less appealing to every one then and now in all the beauty and glory of the results of Christianity in all our Christian and social endearments and in all the benevolent institutions of the Church of Christ.—Christ'n Guardian.

Abstinence Alphabet.

A modern alphabetical psalm on the virtue of total abstinence is furnished by Dr. Cyrus Edson to a recent North American Review. It is one of the best essays of its kind in print:

A stands for Alcohol; deathlike in its grip.
B for Beginner, who takes just one sip.
C for Companion, who urges him on.
D for the Demon of drink that is born.
E for Endeavor he makes to resist.
F stands for Friends who so loudly insist.
G for the Guilt he afterwards feels.
H for the Horrors that hang at his heels.
I his Intention to drink not at all.
J stands for Jeering that follows his fall.
K for his Knowledge that he is a slave.
L stands for Liquors his appetite craves.
M for convivial Meetings so gay.
N stands for No, that he tries hard to say.
O for the Orgies that then come to pass.
P stands for Pride that he drowns in his glass.
Q for the Quarrels that nightly abound.
R stands for Ruin, that hovers around.
S stands for Sights that his vision hedim.
T stands for Trembling that seizes his limbs.
U for his Usefulness sunk in the slums.
V for the Vagrant he quickly becomes.
W for Waning of life that's soon done.
X for his eXit regretted by none.
Youths of this nation, such weakness is crime.
Zealously turn from the tempter in time!

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Another Suggestion to Colored Americans.

By REV. T. COTTON, Purdy, Tenn.

It cannot be truthfully denied that righteousness and justice in the treatment of the colored race in the South have been strengthened and advanced at least indirectly, by the able and aggressive writings of Judge Tourgee, and the energy and devotion of Ida B. Wells, who has proved to be a veritable crusader, a sort of Joan of Ark to her race—a brave champion of her people.

But I think the time has come to repeat and emphasize what has been so often said concerning the importance of self-reliance on the part of the colored man, and to suggest a source of help which has been (at least in the main) overlooked and untried. As a general fact, the most effective and available remedies for our troubles lie near us, yet we are all liable to make the mistake of looking far away for the help, which may be quite within our reach.

I would respectfully advise the colored people of the South to try what can be accomplished by appealing to the conscience and honor of the strongest and most influential Southern men in public and private life; especially the governors of their respective States; also the judges, the ablest and most popular lawyers, State legislators, justices of the peace, sheriffs, prominent physicians, influential ministers of various denominations, and wealthy influenlial private citizens, with whom they are personally acquainted and on friendly terms.

In the event of any outrage, mob violence or any act of gross injustice, for which colored people cannot obtain the same legal redress as would be accorded to white people, I would suggest that some of the most intelligent and respectable colored men address private letters to such Southern gentlemen as I have indicated. Let them first of all, and above all, be sure of the facts; let the facts be set forth temperately, clearly and briefly in respectful and friendly terms, yet in a firm and manly spirit, with a view to obtain from public officials that recognition and protection which the constitution and laws guarantee to every citizen; and from private citizens such aid as they may be able to furnish.

I would advise that such appeals be made solely on personal responsibility; not as proceeding from or representing any organized body whatever. This will give a confidential tone to the appeal, and I feel sure will not fail of accomplishing, at least in some degree, the desired end.

I am profoundly convinced that Divine Providence is pointing out a new alignment to the great army of political righteousness, the friends of civil and religious liberty. "God moves in a mysterious way." His ways are not as our ways, nor his thoughts as our thoughts. There is need of a closer alliance between the white and colored race on such lines as are practicable, and as a wise Christian expediency may dictate.

The time has come when the best elements of both races must be welded together for the conservation of true Christian civilization and true American patriotism. I have long believed that God's reserve forces are chiefly in the South, preparing unconsciously for that great latter day conflict, which is designated in prophesy as "The battle of that great day of God Almighty." The colored man will share in the conflict and the final victory.

A False Diagnosis.

La Grippe is confounded by many persons with a severe attack of catarrh, which in some respects resembles the former. These individuals suffer severely with pain about the forehead, eyes and ears, with soreness in the throat and stoppage of the nasal passages, and in fact are incapacitated for work of any kind for days at a time. These are catarrhal sufferers. Ely's Cream Balm has been used with the best results in such cases. The remedy will give instant relief.

Lexington District.

Dear Brethren of the Lexington District—We have just returned, as you know, from a very interesting and profitable conference session. You listened attentively to the reports of the presiding elders and of each pastor, and also to very instructive addresses of several secretaries representing important connectional interests of the Church. Are you not inspired with enthusiasm for God and the prosperity of the Church which you have the honor to represent? And, if so, will you not, under that inspiration, enter upon your year's work cheerfully and with a glad heart?

One of the avenues to success is to carry Christian sunshine on your work, into the church, and into the homes of your members; in fact, be a joyous, happy pastor.

Another avenue to success is to let the people see that you are an earnest pastor, having their interest greater at heart than any of your own. Another is to be faithful and true to God, the Church, and yourselves and families.

Now, brethren, you have promised the Church that you would perform the duties which are incumbent upon pastors necessary for the success and prosperity of the whole Church. Will you do it? We are desirous of having no blanks in our reports at next conference. You can obviate that by performing your duty well, as a pastor. Will you see to it that your whole appertionment for benevolences are taken?

Another great avenue to success is to be kind to the people; do not be a constituted fault-finder; do not scold them from your pulpit; it is not for that purpose, but preach to them the gospel of peace and love. If you do that faithfully, they will love you as their pastor. Dear brethren, I stand ready to help you in your work. Consult me at any time. I am your brother for success,

JOSEPH COURTNEY, P. E.

CANCER CURED

—AND A—

LIFE SAVED

By the Persistent Use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"I was troubled for years with a sore on my knee, which several physicians, who treated me, called a cancer, assuring me that nothing could be done to save my life. As a last resort, I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after taking a number of bottles, the sore began to disappear and my general health improve. I persisted in this treatment, until the sore was entirely healed. Since then, I use Ayer's Sarsaparilla occasionally as a tonic and blood-purifier, and, indeed, it seems as though I could not keep house without it."—Mrs. S. A. FIELDS, Bloomfield, Ia.

South New Orleans District.

Brother Landry has issued a comprehensive "pastoral" to his district, giving the various apportionments, which we condense as follows:

To the Pastors and Officers—The battle cry of the Missionary Society this year is "$1,500,000 by collections only." We want our full share of glory and honor in the achievement. Let us, without delay, secure from Hunt & Eaton, 139 (old number) Poydras street, New Orleans, programs of exercises especially prepared for the occasion, and make Easter Sunday the grandest missionary rally known in the history of our district, and raise our apportionment, $655. This conference is asked to raise at least $800 for church extension. This done, we shall be authorized to draw $3,400. Let us accept this business proposition by raising our district appointment $148. The third Sunday of May is set apart to raise our appertionment, $447, for Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education. Your love and friendship for the cause of education justifies the belief that this claim will not suffer at your hands.

Our district watchword, one dollar per member for benevolent purposes on each charge. Will our pastors pass the word down the line? All surplus will remain for local benefit of the Church, paying its full assessment. The most reliable medium of church and other news is the columns of the SOUTHWESTERN. We learn that a choice selection of prizes have been made by its able editor. Let us secure at least 500 subscribers on the district. The presence of the presiding elder, and sessions of the quarterly conference should be seasons of great spiritual blessing to our people and cause. I am yours in the work, PIERRE LANDRY, P. E.

Washington Conference.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 19.

Dear Brother—The last session of the Washington Conference was the best in its history. Bishop Mallalieu captured all hearts the first day and held them throughout the conference. There never was such preaching in Richmond as on conference Sunday—Bishop Mallalieu, Drs. Payne, Upham, Spencer, Wagner, Bowen, Hayes, and others. We are a little tardy in coming, but nevertheless we are coming to the SOUTHWESTERN. Find enclosed a few subscribers.

A Letter from West Texas.

Mr. Editor—I cannot at this time write a very full letter concerning the Austin District. But ever since the adjournment of conference at Columbus, Tex., we have pushed every interest under the inspiration of that session, which will go through the year. The preachers are laboring earnestly and striving to do a full year's work. Plans have been laid for financial success as soon as the depression eases up a little. The people love the SOUTHWESTERN, and a larger list for 1895 will be sent in than in 1894. We finish the first round March 24, and begin the second at once. The editor, Drs. Hamilton and Spencer, have a standing invitation to West Texas Conference when in session, or to visit any of our charges in the interval. Yours fraternally,

MACK HENSON.

Meridian District Conference.

This conference convenes April 11, at Scooba, Miss., and will hold over Sunday, opening at 8:30 a. m. each day; the first half hour to be given each day to devotional service. From 9 a. to 12:30 p. m. conference business. From 2:30 p. m. to 4:30 p. m., discussion. At 8 p. m., preaching. Sabbath Schools and Epworth League Chapters must be represented.

Members and friends need not be uneasy to come, for they will be cared for.

Acute Dyspepsia.

SYMPATHETIC HEART DISEASE OFTEN ATTENDS IT.

The Modern Treatment Consists in Removing the Cause.

[From the Republican, Cedar Rapids, Ia.]

Mrs. V. Curley, who has resided in Clarence, Iowa, for the past twenty-two years, tells an interesting story of what she considers rescue from premature death. At all events, relief from a life of great suffering, which made death seem a happy means of escape from torture. Her narrative is as follows:

"For ten years prior to 1894, I was a constant sufferer from acute stomach trouble. I had all the manifold symptoms of acute dyspepsia, and at times other troubles were present in complication. I did not know what it was to enjoy a meal. No matter how careful I might be as to the quality, quantity and preparation of my food, distress always followed eating. I was despondent and blue; almost to the point of insanity at times, and would have been glad to die. Often and often I could not sleep. Sympathetic heart trouble set in and time and again I was obliged to call a doctor in the night to relieve sudden attacks of suffocation which would come on without a moment's warning. My troubles increased as time wore on and spent large sums in doctor bills, being compelled to have medical attendants almost constantly. During 1892 and 1893, it was impossible for me to retain food, and water brashes plagued me. I was reduced to a skeleton. A consultation of physicians was unable to determine just what did ail me. The doctors gave us as their opinion that the probale trouble was ulceration of the coats of the stomach and held out no hope of recovery. One doctor said, 'All I can do to relieve your suffering is by the use use of opium.'

"About this time a friend of mine, Mrs. Samantha Smith, of Glidden, Iowa, told me about the case of Mrs. Thurston, of Oxford Junction, Iowa. This lady said she had been afflicted much the same as I had. She had consulted local physicians without relief, and had gone to Davenport for treatment without receiving any benefit therefrom. Giving up all hope of recovery, she was ready for any suggestion and was persuaded by a friend to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The result was almost magical.

"In despair, I bought a box of the pills from our druggist, Mr. George Smith. By the time the first box was finished I was able to eat with less distress, but was in no mood to go on with the treatment. I presume I expected too much, but my husband thought I was better, and insisted upon my trying at least one more box. It was fortunate for me that they did not let me give up. I kept on with the pills and before many months I felt better than I had for a dozen years. I am now almost free from trouble, and if through some error or diet I feel badly, this splendid remedy sets me right again. I have regained my strength and am once more in my usual flesh. I sleep well and can eat without distress. I have no doubt that I owe my recovery to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I only wish that I had heard of them years ago thereby saving myself ten years of suffering and much money."

Dr. William's Pink Pills for Pale People are not a patent medicine in the sense in which that term is usually understood, but are a scientific preparation successfully used in general practice for many years before being offered to the public generally. They contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and the tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration, all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature.

These pills are manufactured by the Dr Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and are never sold in bulk, or by the dozen or hundred. They may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company.

E. W. S. HAMMOND, D. D., EDITOR. NEW ORLEANS, APRIL 4, 1895.—Vol. 30. No. 14. HUNT & EATON, PUBLISHERS.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

BISHOP FOSTER was the recipient of the most cordial and marked attention at Fayette, Mo, and the impressions, which his fatherly and tender counsels made, will never be erased from the memory of the Central Missouri brethren, who love him as a father indeed.

IT is a most thankworthy service for a man to have a pnre conscience, void of offense toward God and man. Nothing better qnalifies the Christian for the endurance of grief, privation, temptation, and the many other things which tend to impede his progress. Look after the conscience.

WHEN onr blessed Master was reviled, he reviled not again; nor did he make any threats, or indulge a spirit of revenge, bnt rather "committed himself to him that judgeth righteously." Seeing then that we have such a blessed example, and such a snre means of defense, let us live unto righteonsness for this life alone is acceptable nnto God.

THERE are 7,407,040 Negroes in the United States. Fifty-five per cent of these cannot read or write, and many who are reported as being able to read and write, are also illiterate for all practical pnrposes. The per cent of ignorance among the Negroes has gone down from 70 in 1880 to 55 in 1890. Thank God, the rising tide of illiteracy is checked, but how great is the work yet to be done.

IT will be well for our ministers to preach more frequently upon the great doctrines. There can be no salvation without repentance. All men are sinners. Human nature is depraved. Let there be reasonings of jndgment, temperance, and of the world to come. Make no apologies, enter into no compromises. Remember, "except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God." Aim to show the natnre and extent of the depravity. Enter the heart in the name of the Christ, and while it snrrenders, point to the "Lamb of God which taketh away the sins of the world."

WE are coming nnto better time. The Gospel of Christ is moving forward grandly, and the kingdoms of this world are giving evidence of the acceptance of the teachings of the "Man of Galilee." The nineteenth century has been eminently the Christian century. Christianity has achieved greater triumphs dnring the past one hundred years than in any other period, since the star of Bethlehem arose o'er Jndeas' plain. The closing of this centnry, only five years hence, will mark an epoch of rejoicing, snch as the world has never witnessed since the birth of its great Redeemer. Let us gird up, and take some part in the great jubilee.

FEW will deny bnt that for the amonnt of money contributed in Annnal Conference collections, the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society has accomplished more in material and educational results than any other benevolent organization of the Chnrch. The amount of money expended directly from the benevolent offerings of the Church, does not amount to more than $10 a student in the schools of this society for each year. The rest of the money is raised from tuitions, incidentals, local contributions, personal gifts and income from the industrial departments. Every dollar contributed in conference collections is multiplied two and three times over by receipts from other sources.

IN MEMORIAM
OF THE LATE FREDERICK DOUGLASS.

By Miss CARRIE D. HEFLER, A. B., Teacher of Ancient Languages, Bennett College.

Bright rose the sun to the eastward, and filled all the sky with its splendor;
Darkness had drawn back affrighted, before the great
King of the Orient.
Birds sang the sweetest of anthems and made the air
vocal with music;
Woodland and valley, the mountain and plain wore their greenest of vestments.
Earth, air and sky seemed to vie with each other in making day perfect;
Day that advanced rich in beauty, bedecked with bright garlands, nnconscious that Down in a dell, where a poor hut stood courtesying low for its presence, was Brought into life, into bondage, one destined to influence the nation.
Born into slavery of body, his high soul within him revolted; for
Robbed of a fond mother's blessings when two years of life he had known, there was Planted down deep in his bosom a seed which was fated to germinate,
Blossom and bloom as a rose in behalf of his people in bondage.
Scorning the fetters that bound him, he sprang, like a sword from its scabbard,
Out from the clutches of slavery, and fled for his freedom and life. As a Hare, that, aroused from its covert, is chased from one field to another, now
Crouching 'neath briers and brambles, all quaking and trembling with fear, while its Eyes are suffused with life blood, as it pants for a few moment's rest,—But, hark!
Ere the blest moment can furnish the rest so much needed and sought for, the Keen-scented hounds are close on it,—again it must move on or die So the Douglass, hardpressed by the law that returned fleeing slaves to their masters, was Forced from the brief rest he found among New England's kind sons and daughters. He Fled o'er the dark blue Atlantic, and found in Old England a refuge, and Warm friends who purchased his freedom from those who had no right to claim him.
Burning with just indignation because of the wrongs of his people, with Eloquence, born of deep feeling; his theme based on facts in his life, with a
Pathos experience alone, such as his could engender, he Poured forth a tale of such deep woe as stirred up the great-hearted English.
Crossing again the Atlantic, a free man, he enters the list as a Champion of freedom and justice, the cause of the right against wrong. As a Knight, in the old days of Chivalry, full-armed, appeared in the list, with his Lance in rest, ready for action in honor to conquer or die; so with Garrison, Phillips and others, he waged a fierce war against slavery.
The South raised its voice in sharp protest and vowed to withdraw from the Union; but
Lincoln, the true and the noble, undaunted, with unerring aim, launched a Bolt in the heart of Secession, and laid low its head in the dust. Then when Freedom spread forth her white pinions and gathered his race 'neath its shadows, still Frederick Douglass, its leader, stood boldly for justice and right. With his Pen as a weapon defensive he stood at the head of the column, and Marshalled with wisdom his forces against all opposing opinions. In Private as well as in public, his dealings were upright and just. On the Rostrum he ranked with the highest, and no one who heard him would guess that the Man who could so master language was cradled in bondage and woe.

But the Star, that for long years has led us, is set now to rise here no more, tho' it
Blazes in brilliance and splendor, on shores ever verdant beyond.

Our
Loss is thy gain, noble Douglass, thy course thou hast finished with joy, and thou
Now art transported to glory, thy crown of rich beauty to wear. Still the Work thou hast wrought will live ever, will blossom thro' ages to come, and the Fruitage be garnered in heaven, the harvest of work done in love. Thou our Patriot, Statesman, Philanthropist, Star of thy People, farewell!

THE CENTRAL MISSOURI CONFERENCE AND METHODIST FRATERNITY.

When this splendid yonng conference was called to order at Fayette, Mo., on the 20th of March last, by Bishop R. S. Foster, D. D., LL. D., but few knew what great things the Lord had in store for it. Fayette, Missouri, is one of the strongholds of our brethren of the Methodist Episcopal Chnrch South. Here is one of their greatest edncational centres. Central College is a magnificent institution, over which Rev. J. D. Hammond, D. D., presides. Our Bishop Foster was the guest of this honored educator, by whose unselfish generosity, the nse of the magnificent and imposing chapel of the M. E. Church Sonth, was tendered the conference. It is putting it mildly to say that the conference was taken by surprise. The cabinet sessions were held in the home of the president, and the anniversaries were held in the spacions anditorium, used jointly by the college and congregation. Drs. Spencer, Leonard and Hamilton represented their respective departments, before deeply interested audiences, among whom were many of the most cnltured and refined white people of Fayette. There was no reserve, but otherwise a manifestation of the heartiest good will.

We heard the great address of Dr. J. W. Hamilton on Satnrday night, before an audience which was in perfect sympathy with the orator. It was a fitting climax to a great speech when the doctor paid a glorious tribnte to the onward march of the spirit of trne fraternity on the part of our Sonthern Methodist brethren, the present demonstration being the greatest of the kind that he had ever witnessed. There was no abatement in these hearty and loving offices. The honored and cultured president and facnlty, with a large number of the stndents, were determined that the sable sons of our Methism should be impressed with the splendid progress of Christian interest and sympathy, and fraternity. They were ont in force, and attended all the meetings. They came, they saw, they conquered. Dr. Hamilton preached grandly on Sunday morning, relieving the bishop, who was somewhat fatigued with excessive travel and labor. The ordination services in the afternoon were unusnally impressive. The bishop invited Dr. J. D. Hammond, president of the college, representing also the M. E. Church Sonth; also a minister representing the Congregational Church, who, with the elders, assisted in the beautiful and impressive ceremony of the imposition of hands by which the elders were ordained.

The Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN preached at night before an audience which filled every part of the spacious church. After which there was a renewal of the same good feeling, with the most abnndant evidences that the interest of these truly good people in those who were their temporary gnests, was genuine and profound. It was a wonderfnl nplight to the conference and will, without doubt, furnish the inspiration for a forward movement which will be felt in every charge in the conference. We predict an increase of this good feeling, just as we predict the triumph of the Gospel. There is no good reason why the two great Methodisms should not meet and greet each other—not only in Missouri, but everywhere, in that spirit of co-operation and fraternity which will exert an influence for good, which is absolutely incalculable. Only those who look backward can see insuperable obstacles in the way. But to those who face the future, there is the broadest scope for the exercise of the broadest charity, and who "forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before," "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus," where there is neither Jew nor Greek, [illegible] nor female, but where [illegible]

OUR : WOMEN'S : ROUND : TABLE

The Influence of the Home in the Uplifting of our People.

TWELFTH LETTER—BY T. E. W.

I have been seriously thinking that some improvement should be made in the moral instruction of our children in the public schools. It is a well known fact that while our public school system is a blessing, it is nevertheless weak in a most essential feature, viz: that of inculcating the principles of the Christian religion.

It will not be disputed that the only safety of our American institutions lies in the determination of the people to hold them up to the most perfect models of a true Christianity. One of the chief arguments in favor of sectarian schools is that the State schools do not teach the principles of morality and religion; hence their plea for the division of the school funds that they may provide this class of instruction. It is a very grave question; but I believe that its only true solution will be a provision in the statutes providing for religious instruction. Let the Bible be used as the great text book, and the results will be found helpful and gratifying.

Just now there seems to be a tendency, on the part of parents, to loud and expensive dresses for their girls. I have noticed in some instances that parents seem to have entered a contest as to whose child shall be the more conspicuous for style, dress, etc. To such an extent is this practice carried, that the dear little souls think of little else than dress. Having observed this foolish practice for a long time, I am convinced that but few of these overdressed butterflies ever come to any great prominence in those circles where the test of true womanhood is her moral worth. Neat, but plain and unexpensive dresses do not detract from the real beauty of a child, but rather are an improvement. Certainly, if the girl is to be made a good, strong, useful woman, parents had better not begin their training by making butterflies of them.

Home-keeping is an art, and is acquired only by hard, diligent study. First get a home. The old saying that "anything will do for a home" is a fallacy. There is nothing like a beginning. Somehow, I believe that it is comparatively easy to secure a home of one's own. Renting is a stumbling block sometimes. But if you must rent, be sure and rent a house with sufficient room. A place where human beings, pigs, dogs, cats, live together promiscuously is a hovel, not a home, and everything that is born in such a place must of necessity partake of its environments. The beginning of a home may be humble, but let them be wisely arrayed. Let it be remembered that pure air, good ventilation, ample room, are better than Brussel carpets, and gaudy and expensive furniture. But the home itself will be as its occupants make it. If they are high-minded and pure, they will soon transform their humble surroundings into objects of beauty and attractiveness. People with moderate means and a small income should "cut their coat according to the cloth."

There should never be less than two rooms to even the smallest family. The bedroom can be used for a sleeping apartment, a reception room and a parlor, while the other may be used as a kitchen and a dining room. Plain, but good furniture, with carpet or matting, will add to the coziness of the home as well as an attraction to visitors. Such a home can be secured at a reasonable cost, provided there is a disposition on the part of husband and wife to be frugal and industrious. It may seem somewhat strange, but my observation is that in many instances those who receive only ordinary daily wages are more apt to secure homes than those who receive larger compensation. I don't know why this is, but my attention has often been called to it, and after careful study, I am of the opinion that it is true. Of one thing I am absolutely certain, that lottery players and those who spend much of their time around barrooms, and who are the best patrons of places of public amusement, this class of people will not make any headway in securing homes. They will be renters only—and, that too, of the most miserable excuses for homes, with the usual result.

Friendship Between Girls.

Choose your friends as one chooses a gown, for good wearing qualities. A showy, brilliant girl may have just as good wearing stuff in her as a plain, dowdy girl, there being no special merit in plainness. One's friends must be sincere and kind-hearted, must be loyal to one through everything, and, of course, one must be loyal to one's friend. Never remain silent if an absent friend needs to be defended. Never indulge in criticisms of your friends, nor laugh at their foibles. Never, at any temptation, hurt a friend's feelings. Try to see their, and to show to your friends, your own best side.

There are some beautiful examples of friendship between women, which were begun when the two concerned were children, and which lasted all through a long life. Maria Hare and Lucy Stanley fell in love with one another when they were seven, and were just as much in love when they both were seventy. They wrote long letters to one another all the way from youth to old age, and had gay times and sorrowful times, as people do, but never ceased to be devoted and true through everything.—Harper's Young People.

Three Reasons Why there Should be an Auxiliary in Every M. E. Church.

First—It is one of the efficient means of keeping life in the Church. The human heart might go on pumping until it beat its own walls down, without avail, were there no arteries or veins to carry the life-giving fluid to and from the different parts of the body. So the W. H. M. S. is one of the arteries of the Church, through which the Gospel expounded from the pulpit flows forth a healing stream to bless the members and through them the world.

Second—It teaches women the art of systematic giving, by means of its annual dues for membership, its thank-offerings, etc., and with this comes the virtue of self-denial, as each one lays aside from her allowance or her income the required amount and consecrates it to the cause of humanity. Many never learn the truth of the words: "It is more blessed to give than to receive," until they become members of a benevolent organization—their thoughts never having been turned in the direction of giving.

Third—Through its Bureau of Supplies, women come into touch with the necessities of the poor, their destitution and their suffering, and there comes to them the desire, and the effort is made to meet the demands, thus establishing that beautiful correspondence and harmony which God meant to be everywhere in His universe, and which is expressed in the sentiment, "Let him that hath an abundance give freely to him that lacketh. London Letter on the Death of Hon. Frederick Douglass.

ANTI-LYNCHING COMMITTEE,
London, W. C., Eng., March 4, 1895.

Editor of Southwestern Christian Advocate:

Dear Sir—The news of the sudden death of the "Grand Old Man" of your race, the Hon. Frederick Douglass, has filled us with profound regret. The day following the receipt of the cable announcing the sad event, leading newspapers devoted considerable space to most eulogistic comment on the noble career of him who was such an honor to the country of his birth.

I mailed you the "Daily News" article, as I felt you would appreciate the words of the journal, which of all others was true to the North and the Afro-American all through the terrible years of the war.

Our Anti-Lynching Committee was also summoned at the earliest possible moment and the following resolution was unanimously carried:

"That this committee desire most respectfully to tender to Mrs. Frederick Douglass an expression of their warm sympathy in the irreparable loss she has sustained in the death of her husband, the Hon. Frederick Douglass.

"They would also place on record their sense of profound admiration for the life, character and noble career of the veteran statesman, to whose unflinching courage and determined loyalty to truth and justice the colored race owe so much.

"Most especially they deplore the loss of his valuable counsels, and eloquent aid by speech and pen, in exposing the barbarous crime of lynching practiced in some of the States of the American Union."

I need not add with what deep concern we watched the progress of the anti-lynching crusade in America, and we view with satisfaction the proposed legislative action in both Tennessee and Texas, as angry of a better state of affairs.

Any news which you or your friends can send, will stimulate us to still greater effort. The British press continues most loyal to our movement, and articles a column long, in exposure and denunciation of lynching, are constantly appearing. Thanking you for kind insertion, yours, respectfully,

FLORENCE BALGARNIE,
Hon. Sec'y Anti-Lynching Com'tee.

Some Extracts From Press Comments.

His life was noble and his career great.—Des Moines Register.

Frederick Douglass will go into history as "The Grand Old Man" of the colored race.—Champion Gazette.

He was the Moses of his people. No colored man in a half century will be so widely lamented by both races.—Ohio State Journal.

It was not that Frederick Douglass did remarkably well for a colored man; he did wonderfully well for a man of any color.—Boston Post.

Author, orator, statesman and leader of his race, he achieved a position and wielded an influence to which few men can aspire.—New York World.

His memory should ever be kept by every American citizen of African blood, for his labors aided materially in the mighty work of freedom.—Toledo Blade.

The colored people of the United States may well venerate his memory; not for what he did, but for what he was, the prophecy of a coming race.—Topeka Capitol.

In the death of Frederick Douglass one of the great characters of the century has passed away. His career was one of the most remarkable of history.—Dayton Journal.

The story of his eventful career reads more like the imaginings of a gifted romancer than the actual experiences of a man whose record was made in this practical age.—Detroit Free Press.

Frederick Douglass was the man who compelled a reluctant people to admit that a man of African blood could be an intellectual force. He will hold a place in history among the greatest of Americans.—Indianapolis Journal.

The dominant race in the United States sincerely respected him; and no where was he more highly esteemed than in Rochester, where he fought his early battles and laid the foundation for his well-earned fame as the active pioneer of a noble cause.—Rochester (N.Y.) Herald.

Mr. Douglass' struggles and achievements would have been praiseworthy and admirable in a man of whatever race or color. In the instances of one who began life under the most discouraging circumstances imaginable, they lift him to a high place among the men of the time.—Indianapolis News.

There is no city in the land in which the death of Frederick Douglass will awaken a greater sense of loss, or stir up kindlier memories of historic times in which he was conspicuous than in Philadelphia. His memory will long be cherished by both the white and the colored people of this country.—Philadelphia Record.

"A Word to the Wise is Sufficient."

I suffered terribly from roaring in my head during an attack of catarrh, and because very deaf, used Ely's Cream Balm and in three weeks could hear as well as ever.—A. E. Newman, Graling, Mich.

One of my children had a very bad discharge from the nose. Physicians prescribed without benefit. After using Ely's Cream Balm a short time the disease was cured.—O. A. Cary, Corning, N. Y.

DAILY THOUGHTS.

[From Phillips Brooks.]

APRIL 4.—Are you and I going to be such creatures of our sense that we shall not believe that there are powers that touch us that we cannot see? Am I going to be so bound down to these poor fingers and to these poor eyes that I shall know myself in no larger connection with the great, unseen world? I will not. No great man, no manly man, has ever allowed such a limitation of himself. There is the unseen presence in the midst of our life, and he who will feel it may feel it, and that unseen presence speaks to him continually.

APRIL 5.—When you sin, my friends, it is a man that sins, and a man is a child of God; and for a child of God to sin is an awful thing, not simply for the stain that he brings into the divine nature that is in him, but for the life from which it shuts him out, for the liberty which he abandons, for the enthralment which it lays upon the soul.

APRIL 6.—If there were any stirring in our souls after the deeper and diviner desires, could we, would we, have been satisfied until we had found Jesus, and entered into some sympathy with His life, that He might give to us what revelation of life and what guidance of will it might be possible should come from Him to men who trusted Him, until we had entered into sympathy with Him and the fascinations of His character? That is the Christian life, my friends, the thing we make so vague and mysterious and difficult.

APRIL 7.—The most awful thought that comes to a man sometimes, is the thought of a soul that he injured years and years ago, and that he cannot find and cannot reach and cannot touch and cannot help. His own life is under better influence; his own life is uplifted; but where is the man, where is the woman, to whom he did the harm years and years ago? God save us from that. It would be hopeless if it had not the infinite hope in the endless love of God to fall back upon.

APRIL 8.—Be happy in your faith. Be calm in your faith. Be strong with the great assurance which is in the heart of God, who knows the sorrow of our human life as none of us have ever begun to know it, and yet keeps, in the depths of His divinity, His perfect joy. Dare to be happy, even in this stricken, hardened world, because it is God's world. It is only a little while, it is only a few years, and then comes the increased work that lies beyond. Shall it be our work?

APRIL 9.—Every man may go about his daily task with his hand clasped in the very hand of Jesus. Every man may lift up his eyes every morning and give the day that he is beginning to live to Jesus Christ, who shall fill it all with Himself. Every man may fulfill his own life into a fullness which goes beyond any possible conception that he can form of it in his own heart—different from the life of every other man that ever lived, because it is singular, individual, original and new. Every man may know the Father with the child's true heart.

Membership in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

By J. H. REED, Paris, Texas.

To become a member of any organization one must necessarily be acquainted with the general fundamental principles of that organization. In politics, certain principles are enunciated, the embodiment of which constitutes a platform upon which is built the structure of government, and standing thereon the partizans adhering to such a system of political principles. The same holds true in formulating scientific data, so that we cannot pass through the world as neutrals, but rather as being identified with some creed or sect in religion; some party in politics; some custom in society; and, in fact, some permanent place among the aggregation of individuals that make up human society. One who is everything in general, is nothing in particular. Every individual member of any organization must either contribute something for the perpetuation of its doctrines and principles, or become a discordant element, tending to disorganize church, party or social circle. The most obstinate and bigotted invariably become the nucleus around which gather the masses out of which grow dissatisfactions, anarchy and open rebellions, thereby trampling the rights of the body politic under their feet, and pulling from its lofty summit the banner under which they were sworn to fight. Akin to the unrest that now characterizes citizenship in our national government, is the rampant spirit abroad among the membership of evangelical churches.

As related to that branch of the Church known as Methodism, the present remarks will deal particularly with membership therein. At first sight, it may appear that necessity would not demand the discussion of this subject in such an enlightened age; but the arduous work of the pastorate proves very conclusively that there is a widely mistaken notion on part of the majority of our membership as to individual latitude and personal opinion on the one hand, and requirements of the Church doctrines on the other. It is an indisputable fact that what members call their personal rights, runs diametrically opposite to the general regulations systematized by our General Conference. The Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church is in open defiance to the social customs of the people and vice versa. We are now reaping what was sown years ago, and the harvest calls for earnest laborers. The most difficult problem that now presents itself for solution, so far as the membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church is concerned, is the question of popular amusement. The minstrel, the circus, the theater, the card table in social parties, are all venerated by the masses, despite the denunciations and persuasions of the pulpit, and the explicit statement of our General Rules with reference to such worldliness. The fact of a church trial has become a mock, for fully two-thirds the membership of both local and general church stand culpable before the eyes of the law. Each member in this particular has set up his own standard as an ethical teacher, and outlines a code of morals to suit the conveniences of an unholy life, notwithstanding his obligations to the Church polity and the influences brought to bear on the outside world. There are many practices among men, in which there is no harm, so far as motives prompting such actions may be concerned, and yet the danger lies in the opinion of what my neighbor thinks of my personal actions as not only a member of the Church, but far more as a Christian. If the excursion, the theater, the circus, the wine party, together with many other harmful amusements and associations, are to be indulged in by members of the Church, then the sinner needs no change of heart, but simply an enrollment of his name upon the Church record with no aim of growth in grace, which is all contrary to the Holy Scriptures. Religion is a reality, Christianity is a verity, and if "one shall chase a thousand and two, put ten thousand to flight," then the Church has backslidden—for it is too plain that not one out of ten can impress, to any considerable degree, that amount of spiritual force upon the world that would cause men to observe the difference between truth and error, light and darkness.

Purity of life seems to be an unattainable quality in our membership, and the current opinion is that such a standard is approached and acquired only by angels and not by men.

We are brought face to face with the opposition, and reading our general rules, has become almost as "sounding brass;" for many supposed Christians in the congregation turn a deaf ear to every sentence and utterance that prohibits the broadest worldly pleasures. Logical argument is even resorted to by members in good standing (?) in the Methodist Episcopal Church, to prove from their own premises that there is no defined line between the kingdom of grace and the kingdoms of the world. These persons also seem to be perfectly honest in their erroneous belief and attempt to hide themselves behind such a straw as the statement that the Bible does not prohibit the patronage and attendance of church members to the worldly things above mentioned. This, however, is perfectly natural, for not ten out of one hundred pay any attention whatever to the command of the Savior to "Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life." There is a diligent search for certain disconnected passages that seem to contain the point in controversy, while the personal influence of the Holy Spirit, in reading the Scriptures, is entirely rejected, and these place a sensual interpretation upon the eternal Word. These are the anti-Christs and anti-Christians that have crept into the Church, and are now verily deceiving the very elect. Something must speedily be done to counteract this mighty host of deceivers and hypocrites now standing in the way of sinners.

The mere attempt at an enforcement of the Discipline is not sufficient, for men will not conform to laws and customs antagonistic to their natural inclinations and propensities, unless a sufficient penalty is attached thereto to bring remorse of conscience for their deeds in this world. To expel such hypocrites from the Church does them no good, but simply hardens their conscience, and they join the Church again within a few weeks and enter upon another six months probation with the same old unregenerate heart, and argue that they were wrongly dealt with. What shall we do to save them, if possible? First, let the pastor be a perfect example. The present state of things finds its origin and development in the slackness with which so many leaders in holy things have treated this question of what is right and what is wrong in the Christian life. Local orthodox churches teach the doctrine of no harm, and give the widest range to those things that contribute to human imperfections, while the Methodist Episcopal Church maintains the principles upon which she was established, and still proclaims the doctrine of holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord.

So that in addition to firm persuasion in the judicious enforcement of the law, there must also be an enlightening and uplifting influence that will be most convincing in turning men from the error of their ways.

Religion is a matter of personal choice, and the will is a powerful factor in determining what our religious life shall be. Therefore, it is the sphere of true leadership to work upon men's sense of honor and higher nature, than to impel and compel them by brute force to accept and practice the true principles of Christianity. For when we can once convince the Church that the giddy "nigger minstrel," is a nuisance, that the contemptible side show and circus is deceptive, that the nude stage presents no more the Shakespearean aspect, but is now demoralizing; that the excursion is the channel through which thousands of our daughters lose their virtue, that the card party is the matriculation of young candidates who shall finally graduate in the gambling dens and brothels of wicked cities, that the ballroom is the ante-chamber to the devil's lowest abode, in fact, that all these things contribute to man's lower nature and stand as a barrier to a noble Christian life; then, and not until then, shall we be rescued from the pitfalls of sin, and draw the Church away from the confines of the world, the flesh, and the devil.

A Good Medicine

Wife Cured of Rheumatism

Husband's Health Improved by Hood's Sarsaparilla

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"My wife was suffering severely with rheumatism. I purchased a bottle of Hoood's Sarsaparilla and she was soon better, and after taking several bottles she was perfectly well. She has never been attacked with rheumatism since. She feels confident that Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplished this change, and says she can recommend it as a good medicine. As for myself, I had no appetite but Hood's Sarsaparilla soon made me hungry all the time. I am a sawyer for E. B. Chichester, manager of the Tuscaloosa Lumber Co., whose testimonial, accompanied by his portrait, you have already received in commendation of Hood's Sarsaparilla. There are also several others of my shopmates who

AFRICA FOR CHRIST.

If it be true that "coming events cast their shadows before," we may be justified in the prediction that Africa is destined, in the very near future, to be the theatre of events which will startle the civilized world. This hitherto dark spot upon the pages of history, which has so long been an obstacle in the pathway of the progress of geogpraphical science, has, within a score of years, attracted the attention of almost every civilized nation on earth. Its almost limitless resources of gold, of costly wood, and stone, and other products, has excited the greed of the nations who are putting forth extraordinary efforts for a conquest of spoil. One of the great laws of the progress of civilization is conquest. The demand to enter and occupy is imperative, and there can be no serious objection since this occupancy must inevitably be followed by Christian civilization. The gathering of the nations upon this great battlefield angurs hopefully. We believe, however, that the first duty of civilized nations toward those whose land it is by natnral right, is to pour into this vast continent floods of spiritual light, that its teeming millions may come in for a just share in the enjoyment of the benefits which Christian civilization may bring to them.

Enterprises for discovery, or to wrest from their hidden depths the vast treasures that have lain dormant from time immemorial, have gained great headway, backed as they are by wealthy corporations, as well as by the authority of the respective governments which they represent. It is not too late for the Christian people of all lands to form such an alliance as will bring about an equitable distribution of the responsibility and the profits of such movements as well. Perhaps the most important movement on foot is that which proposes to train the people whose ancestors were stolen from the "Dark Continent" more than two centuries ago, up to that point of appreciation in which they will take a livelier interest, and a more active part in the conquest of that land for Christ. This is proposed in the training school for Africa, which is already established at Nashville, Tenn. God will not commit this work into the hands of irresponsible people.

We are living nnder the glare of the world's best progress, and only the most approved agencies will be nsed. As with individnals, so with nations. God will use only the best. The fittest only will snrvive. Hence, the African Training School offers to furnish religious, literary, industrial and professional training for such of our yonng men and women who have become broad enough to recognize this providential opening. The small number of our young men and women who desire to go to Africa as missionaries, has occasioned no little surprise. But it shonld be understood that there has been comparatively little information diffused among them, snch as would thrill and thrall and inspire. This is pre-eminently the opportunity for Afro-Americans. There never was a more imperative demand upon them than now. They cannot afford to ignore this clear and distinct call. Bnt it must be nnderstood that this movement contemplates thorough training—that complete preparation which will place the Afro-American npon an equal footing with the best representatives of any and all of the nations, which are now or shall be actively engaged there. It seems very strange, yet it is true, that but very few educated Afro-Americans have ever felt disposed to select Africa as the great field in which they would win honor and fame. We believe in Africa as we believe in destiny. We think we can see, in the very near future, every part of the "Dark Continent," bristling with life and activity, and moving forward and upward at the magnetic touch of a glorious Christian civilization. It will be the greatest achievement of the ages, and the American Negro will be guilty of unspeakable ingratitude if he does not take some part in securing these grand results. Race pride, manhood pride, and that pride which a broad and liberal Christianity inculcates, should inspire the whole race as never before to have some representatives, thoronghly qualified and prepared to take the part of factors in the salvation of Africa. In onr jndgment, the greatest and best opportnnity ever afforded this nation is the one which now presents itself. The endowment and thorongh eqnipment of the African Training School at Nashville, Tenn., is one of the clearest and most imperative duties of the American Christian people. And, most espe-especially does it appeal to the American citizens of color. Onr own Bishop J. M. Walden, D. D., LL. D., whose heart is as broad as the hnman race, has made this snbject a study for years, and is now giving the public the resnlt of his observations. His well known business acumen, his keenness of foresight, wisdom in selecting the strategic points for effective work, lifelong interest in the uplifting of the Negro, long and continued service at the head of our Southern edncational work, and the increasing confidence reposed in him by onr "world-wide Methodism," makes his interest in the training school for Africa an inspiration and a prophecy. He has often assnmed great responsibilities, and has as often met them. He is now responsible for the collection of at least $25,000. Twenty-five thousand dollars, with which to plant upon a permanent basis this institntion, which will be a magnificent contribntion toward the spread of our holy Christianity. The Church must not forsake our heroic bishop in this, the great work of his life. More especially shonld it be the duty of the thousands of colored people converted aronnd Methodist altars and educated in Methodist institutions, to rally arouud this enterprise and hold up the hands of this Moses until the endowment is complete.

The writer desires to go npon record as among the most deeply interested friends of the training school for Africa, and hereby heads a list to be known as THE SOUTHWESTERN FUND, in the interest of the training school for Africa. All persons desiring to subscribe in greater or smaller sums, to be paid in one and two years, may forward their names to this office with the cash or snbscription; or to Bishop J. M. Walden, D. D., 186 West Fourth street, Cincinnati, O. The SOUTHWESTERN will take pleasnre in acknowledging all cash receipts or subscriptions.

SOME how the real gennine Christian possesses the happy faculty of attracting to himself persons of like precious faith, whether they be rich or poor, white or black, learned or unlearned. There is a bond which unites the really great heart to all humanity—a nod of the head, a smile, a grasp of the hand, or a kind word involve but little sacrifice on the part of the person, who by birth, inclination or culture, may be called upon to perform this delicate service; yet he is, nevertheless, a benefactor, as opposed to the haughty and imperious autocrat whose scope of vision, already by far too narrow, permits him to recognize only those who either belong to "polite society" or to his particnlar class or color. Christianity is a mighty leveler, and the constant practice of the teachings of the Gospel will give qualifications for the splendid service obtainable in no other way.

THERE are 1,416,302 Negro children in the pnblic schools of the United States, and of these 1,329,613 are in the public schools of the sixteen Southern States. This is an encouraging showing. A generation ago, it was a penitentiary offence in all the South to educate a Negro. Now, public schools are provided for their education. As compared with the past, the amonnt raised by taxes for the pnblic schools in the South is still large, but as compared with the amount given in the North, and especially considering the enormous demands required to make the schools efficient in all the South, the amount is small.

THE editor's table has been deluged with mail containing accounts of memorial services held and resolutions passed in honor of that great American—Frederick Douglass. Indeed, so many that this or any other paper could not make room for them. To insert a few and leave out the others, when all are meritorious, would be invidious, so we must decline them. It is gratifying to know that such meetings were so generally held, and their influence locally must be for good in all cases. Let the benign influence of this great man be ever felt in this land and among all its people.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Brother O. H. Flowers, our pastor at Pass Christian, Miss., says his work starts off well and gives good evidence of it by sending two yearly subscribers. The first qnarterly meeting had sixty-two communicants and showed liberal collections.

—Brother J. H. Everett, pastor at Shelby, Miss., says: "We have succeeded in building a new church; the Epworth League gave us $12 on the church. Rev. W. H. H. Gallion, evangelist, is going to hold a series of meetings on the 28th, 29th and 30th of June."

—Rev. L. J. Hogan, of Cold Spring, Texas, writes: "When I moved to the work on Jan. 31, 1894, I fonnd no church to worship in; bnt, thank God, we were able to hold the qnarterly conference in the new church which we have built. Class reports showed good progress."

—Brother Johnson, our pastor at Starkville, Miss., says that Rev. L. M. Broyles, pastor of the M. E. Chnrch South, stationed at Tibbee, is a Christian gentleman and very helpful to him in his work. On behalf of our people, we thank Brother Broyles and pray that God will richly reward him.

—Brother G. W. Nevils, of Columbus, Texas, writes. "The circuit is in a prosperons condition; Willing Workers organized and gone to work. We are preparing for a financial rally by the fifth Snnday. and we are trying to get a SOUTHWESTERN day, in which I think we will succeed. Onr revival will start soon."

—Brother H. Bright, the pastor in charge at Husley, Ark., says his presiding elder, Rev. W. R. R. Dnncan, preached with greater nnction if possible, at the last qnarterly meeting, because of the completion of the chnrch and the pnrchase of a new bell. Well, such events do fill a presiding elder's soul with joy, and no wonder he gave it expression.

—Brother A. D. Payne, pastor at Yazoo City, Miss., says: "On March 2 a large crowd, too numerous to mention, consisting of members and friends of my chnrch, came to the parsonage in a great 'storm' and left many tokens of their esteem; for which they have the heartiest thanks of the pastor and family. Mrs. P. O. Jamison, always abundant in good work, led the crowd."

—Brother D. M. Seals, pastor at Magnolia M. E. Church, Jackson, La., writes: "We are moving along nicely, and the Lord is blessing ns at this place. Two reclaimed. Notwithstanding the hard times, a host of friends and members visited the parsonage at a late hour on the night of March 27, and left the tables loaded with a lot of groceries and other good things. We are preparing for a day known as SOUTHWESTERN day."

—Brother J. H. Pierce, the pastor at Morgan City, La., writes: "In our new field of labor we are hard at work and in the midst of a grand revival with a good degree of success. Two ponnd parties have been given us and we rejoice and pray God's blessing on the yonng people. We have appointed Miss P. Thomas, Miss C. Lyons and Miss T. Burkes as agents for the SOUTHWESTERN and they are hard at work for it. You will soon hear from ns."

—Mrs. Josie English Wells, of Pineville, La., writes: "On March 15, about 11 p. m., we were much surprised by hearing music on the gallery, followed by a choir of voices—"There's a stranger at the door." Prof. Wells nnlocked the door, and, before he could make his escape, over thirty yonng ladies and gentlemen filed into the room, where they deposited their burdens—burdens that no one grieved over carrying. The concert was good; the instrumental solo by Mr. Raymond Gaines deserves special mention; also, the vocal solo by Messrs. Alex. Jones and John Sands. Thanks."

—Rev. W. H. Brooks, presiding elder of the Washington (D. C.) District, writes us under date of March 22: "Rev. James Thomas, one of the original members who composed the Washington Conference in 1864, died here in great peace on the morning of the 21st. Only five of these original fathers are left to us, and of these only three in the active work. Father Thomas was one of God's best men, respectful to his superiors, brotherly towards his equals, and fatherly towards the young people. His funeral was attended by Dr. E. W. S. Peck, Dr. D. W. Hayes, his pastor; W. H. Brooks, P. E.; N. M. Carroll, P. G. Walker, W. W. Foreman and many others. Our fathers are passing away; may we be as true and faithful as they."

NEW ORLEANS AND VICINITY.

At St. Matthew.

The Woman's Day at St. Matthew last Sunday succeeded grandly, bringing to their assistance the following divines, with their congregations: Revs. Williams, F. James, J. H. Fleming, James Craig, A. Wagner and Ed. Field. Brothers Powell and Lowrox took up collections as follows: Peloponesian—H. Bedford, $15 60; Dickerson—C. Washington, $14 60, Spartan—P. Murray, $18 50; Athenian—C. Ross, $22 05; Phœnician—E. Cannon, $18 75; Collossian—C. Robinson, $35 20; Corinthian—L. Diggs, $25; Jonathan—A. Rozier, $10 60; total, $130, with the above named bands and sisters as contrians. The women did good work and the church was crowded.

Mrs. Kate Marfett says the body found in the gutter on Prytania street, March 18, was her son Eli, aged 30 years. He leaves an aged mother, and a wife and sister to mourn.

Negroes as Landholders.

One of the notable showings of the last census is the low percentage of mortgaged property in the South. In Georgia this percentage is 3.18; in Tennessee, 3.87; in Florida, 3.63; in Alabama, 3.98, and in Louisiana, 3.94. The census of 1890 also gives another evidence, that is more direct, of the improved condition of the Negroes in the South. In 1890 there were 12,690,152 homes and farms in the United States, and of this number 1,186,174 are occupied by pure blacks and 225,595 by mulattoes. Of the Negroes 207,616 own their homes or farms and 978,558 rent them. Of the mulattoes 56,672 own and 167,923 rent. The percentage of mortgaged property owned by Negroes is only 10.71, while the percentage of mortgaged property for the whole country is 38 97. Of the property held by Negroes 88.58 per cent is owned without incumbrance.

In the North Atlantic States there are 5,808 homes and farms owned by Negroes free from mortgage, and 3,921 that are mortgaged; in the South Atlantic States there are 107 084 homes and farms owned by Negroes free from incumbrance and 8,032 that are mortgaged; in the North Central States there are 20,060 homes and farms owned by Negroes free from incumbrance and 9,691 that are mortgaged; in the South Central States there are 100,591 homes and farms owned by Negroes free from incumbrance and 7,608 that are mortgaged; in the Western States there are 1,204 homes and farms owned free by Negroes and 289 that are mortgaged. In the whole country there are 234,747 homes and farms owned by Negroes free from all incumbrance and 29,541 that are mortgaged. In the South the percentage of home-owners is larger than in the North, and the proportion of these owners on farms of their own is larger than that of those who have homes in cities and villages.

With the white race the condition is just the opposite, the larger percentage of owners having homes in cities and villages rather than farms.

Wilberforce University.

Founders' Day Grandly Celebrated.

The week has been one of extraordinary interest. The special meeting of the board of trustees of the Combined Normal and Industrial Department was held in Columbus, Ohio, at the Park Hotel, on the 21st inst. The report of the secretary showed that we had finished the year without exceeding our resources. Plans of needed buildings and estimates were submitted. Committees were appointed to arrange for water supply and power, and to investigate and report upon methods for developing an agricultural branch of industry. Resolutions on the death of Hon. Frederick Douglass were adopted. The board adjourned to meet on call at the university within thirty days.

President Mitchell attended the Ohio Inter Collegiate Oratorical Contest, and was present at the association's business meeting next morning to submit the application of Wilberforce University for membership. The retention of Marietta College on the list filled the constitutional number.

Friday night our six native African students, organized as the "Wilberforce Kaffir Choir," rendered a well selected program—singing in English, then in their native language, giving most interesting and instructive talks upon life in Africa—particularly so was the story of the "African Witch Doctor"—and illustrating the manner in which missionaries must preach to the natives. The Africans have remarkably fine voices; worthy of mention, Miss Manye and Mr. Katiya.

Saturday brought Founders' Day at Wilberforce; Dr. R. S. Rust, of Cincinnati, Ohio, second president of Wilberforce University, set the fires aglow by an address of magnetic power and full of inspiring reminiscences. Dr. John G. Mitchell, the only surviving founder under the second regime and the chief recipient of honor, ably maintained the enthusiasm and interest. Dr. Milk, of Xenia, followed with feeling remarks. At 2:30 the artillery salute shook the campus, aroused patriotism and drew the crowd.

Sabbath morning Dr. Rust preached eloquently from the text, "Ye are my witnesses" At 3 p. m., Bishop Arnett delivered one of those burning addresses which have made him famous. Mrs. Dr. Rust of Cincinnati. Dr. Tolliver of Rendville, Rev. Means of Washington, followed; and lastly Mrs. Susannah Dodds, of St. Louis, greeted friends, old and new, with cheering words.

Bishop Arnett, always observant of coincidences, brought together for entertainment at his home the three presidents, the surviving founder and the senior professor. At 7:30 p. m., Bishop B. F. Lee, ex-president, having come 1200 miles to keep his appointment, held an attentive audience for an hour and a half with a forceful and instructive discourse on the "Character and labors of Bishop D. A. Payne," the great founder.

The attendance upon all exercises was unusually large, and the highest expectation of a grand occasion was more than realized. The work of the University met the fullest endorsement. S. AND H.

The Union Gospel News, weekly, offers a phamplet entitled "Fizzle," "Fools of Fortune," and a handsome picture, for $1 50. "Fools of Fortune," by John P. Quinn, a reformed professional gambler, contains 640 pages, profusely illustrated. It is highly endorsed by Dr. C. H. Parkhurst, Prof David Swing, Dr. Swing, Dr. Lyman Abbott, Miss Frances Willard, Ex-Gov. Chas. P. Johnson and others. The Union Gospel News is an undenominational religious weekly. Send $1 50 to the Gospel News Co., Cleveland, Ohio, and secure the book.

Home and Country, New York, for April, is an Easter number. The table of contents embraces many different subjects. Jos. W. Kay, 53 East 10th street, New York; $1 50 a year.

The Chautauquan for April presents as usual a wide variety of reading. John S. Billings, M. D., contributes a valuable article on "The World's Debt to Modern Sanitary Science," and Martha Young, a charming Southern writer, a delightful story entitled, "Sellin' Ole Master." The Editor's Outlook treats of Sidney Lanier and New Phases of the Temperance Question. There is the usual space devoted to Current History and Opinion, to C. L. S. C. matters, and new books.

The April Century will contain an authoritative article describing the most recent inventions and discoveries of the distinguished electrician, Nikola Tesla. While the magazine was in press, Mr. Tesla's laboratory was completely destroyed by fire, and all of his apparatus, and nearly all his working plans, were burned. The illustrations of this article are now the sole tangible record of the more notable of Mr. Tesla's recent achievements. The inventor is now actively engaged in the reconstruction of his machinery.

The Season for April gives illustrations of spring toilettes, which are new and handsome; the materials are portrayed in the colored plates. The art work is an especial feature of this journal, and each month gives new stitches in embroidery. Yearly subscription, $3.50; single copies, 30 cents. The International News Company, 83 and 85 Duane street, New York, N. Y.

The complete novel in the April issue of Lippincott's is "Alain of Halfdone," by Anna Robesen Brown. It is a stirring tale of the sea in the days when Washington was president. "Woman's Lot in Persia" is described at length by Wolf von Schierbrand. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia, Penn.

LESSON HYMN. 7, 6.

When his salvation bringing,
To Zion Jesus came,
The children all stood singing
Hosanna to his name;
Nor did their zeal offend him,
But as he rode along,
He let them still attend him,
And smiled to hear their song.

And since the Lord retaineth
His love to children still,
Though now as King he reigneth
On Zion's heavenly hill,
We'll flock around his banner,
We'll bow before his throne,
And cry aloud, "Hosanna
To David's royal Son."

Time.—April 2, A. D. 30.

Places.—One—Bethphage (pronounced Beth'fa-jee) and Bethany, villages or neighborhoods near the Mount of Olives. Two—That mount itself, over which the triumphal procession passed. Three—The courts of the temple at Jerusalem.

Rulers.—Tiberius Cæsar, emperor at Rome; Pontius Pilate, procurator of Judea; Herod Antipas, tetrarch of Perea and Galilee; Caiaphas, high priest of the Jews.

Parallel Passages.—Matt. 21. 1-17; Luke 19. 29-46; John 12. 12-19.

The Triumphal Entry.

(Mark 11. 1-11.)

GOLDEN TEXT.—Hosanna: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord. (Mark 11. 9.)

Our last lesson, aside from the temperance lesson, which was not in the regular order, closed with Jesus in Jericho and in the house of Zaccheus. The people gathered about Him. They believed He was going to Jerusalem to set up an earthly kingdom. He, to remove from their minds this erroneous idea, spoke the parable of the Pounds. After this He departed for the holy city. He arrived at Bethany on Friday afternoon. He stopped in the home of Martha, Mary and Lazarus. On the following day, in the evening, after their Sabbath had closed, He attended a feast in the home of Simon, who had been a leper, but who had been healed by Jesus. At this supper Martha served, Lazarus was a guest, and Mary came in with the box of spikenard and anointed Him for His burial. On the following morning, our Sunday, five days before His death, He made this triumphal entry into Jerusalem.

I. The Preparation (1-6). 1. Two disciples are chosen. They were likely Peter and John. (Luke 22:8) Jesus was constantly making choice among His followers. When any work was to be done by them, He always selected the ones most suited to do that work. He has many fields of labor in His vineyard, and from among His followers He selects the persons best suited to work in each field. Jesus makes the appointments.

2. They are instructed. 1. The command—Go into the village, find a colt tied, loose him, and bring him to me. The desire to make this triumphal entry into Jerusalem likely originated among the people. They wished to make Him their king. Jesus submitted Himself to their plans, and helped to carry them into effect. Here He commands like a king. He has no thought of anything but obedience. When He gives to us orders, it is our part to obey. He has the right to govern us, for He is our Creator, Benefactor and Redeemer. He is all wise and never makes a mistake. He is absolutely good and can ask nothing but what is best. He is our Prophet to teach, our Priest to intercede, and our King to govern us. 2. The supposed interference. If the owner or any other person "say unto you, Why do ye this?" The colt is not yours. Jesus is not in this an example for us. He knew all things and could exercise kingly authority without making any mistake. "The Lord hath need of him." Lord here means no more than Master, as used in opposition to servant. It is well to have a reason for what we do, and to give the same to others when necessary. "And straightway He will send him (back) hither." The King of heaven rode a borrowed colt, ate the Passover in a borrowed room, and was entombed in a borrowed sepulchre. We may borrow from others, take special care of what is entrusted to us, and return the same on time and in good order.

3. They went forth and found all things as Jesus had told them. The Savior was omnipresent. He knew the colt would be found, the inquiry was made and the request granted. And if He knew all things then, He knows them now. But knowledge is not influence. Because He knows what will be, that does not influence it to be brought about. He not only possesses all knowledge, but He has all power. He had perfect control over the colt. It had never before been ridden, yet it was perfectly resigned. He also governs the hearts of men. They offered no objection when they knew the Master had need of him. He can make the wrath of man to praise Him. These men had the power but not the disposition to refuse Jesus. Oh! the mystery of free will and free grace. "How unsearchable are God's judgments and His ways past finding out."

II. The Triumphal Entry (7-11). 1. The King mounted. "They brought the colt to Jesus." They likely led the mother of the colt also. It was not a thing of beauty. Going was the important part, the way of going was a secondary matter. "They cast their garments on him." These were likely the outside robes. They were often removed in traveling. They took the room of a saddle. This ride was not for comfort. Jesus was a king, and he was going to take charge of His kingdom. The people had wrong ideas of this kingdom, but their devotions were no less sincere. Jesus will accept our earnest worship, if we have not the true idea of it. "He sat on him." They placed Him on the colt. There was a disposition on their part to exalt the Savior. He suffered them to do as they desired. We should feel that Jesus is very great, and labor to have a disposition that will highly exalt Him.

2. The King moving forward. The way leads over Mt. Olivet, across Kedron, up to Jerusalem. The crowd is immense. They cast their garments, and the boughs of palm trees, in the way. Nothing we have should be too valuable for Jesus. Some went before to open the way, others went with Him to protect Him from danger, and others followed to see that no harm befell Him. What that crowd was to Jesus He is to us. His grace goes before to open the way. He stands on either side to protect from the powers of darkness, and He follows with His Holy Spirit to check when we are disposed to wander from Him. They cried, "Hosanna." Save now we beseech Thee. Lift from our neck the Roman yoke. Exalt us to great national dignity. Bring other nations in subjection to us. May He lift from our heart the yoke of sin, make us "kings and priests unto God," and give us power to lead others to Himself. To come "In the name of the Lord," is to come as His ambassador, and in His strength. It is well to begin any important duty in the name and strength of Israel's God. The "Kingdom of their father David" had fallen. They believed this was the promised Messiah, that He would now set up this kingdom, and reign in it forever. May Christ's Kingdom come and over all hearts prevail.

3. The King entering Jerusalem. 1. "When He was come near, He beheld the city and wept over it" (Luke). It was the city of the prophets, the priesthood and the temple. It was soon to be razed to the foundation stones. How sad when one so high falls so low. Jesus may he touched by our suffering. Oh that we may know our opportunity. 2. "When He was come into Jerusalem all the city was moved" (Matt). Some were no doubt moved with wonder, others with laughter, others with joy, and others with envy. The coming of Jesus often creates a sensation. This is true when we see, in protracted meetings, special manifestations of His spiritual power. 3. Some of the Pharisees said—"Master, rebuke thy disciples" (Luke). There was likely too much noise and discord to suit their refined taste. Let us take heed how we stop a religious work that is not done according to our idea of worship. Jesus let them know if these should hold their peace the stones would cry out. We should never quench the spirit. 4. Jesus entered the temple, looked round about on all things, and returned to Bethany. (Mark) The Savior has now cast off that reserve that was seen in the early part of His ministry. He permits all to praise Him who wish to do so. The end of His life on earth was near. He knew that fact. He did not shrink from duty. May we do well our part, be true to the end of life, and dwell with Him in glory.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore bodily health for many years.

HOOD'S PILLS cure nausea, sickness, indigestion and biliousness. 25c.

100 WANTED

The well-known preacher, lecturer and newspaper writer, Scott F. Horshey, Ph. D., of Boston, is at work on a book which deals with the Roman Papacy, as everywhere and always opposed to civil and religious liberty. Doctor Hershey has been a student for years in the history of Romanism, and has made researches in the libraries of this country and Europe. He has spent years in Washington City accumulating a wonderful fund of fact concerning the power of the Roman Church in the affairs of government. Terrible in fact and popular in style, his book will have an immense influence on the Patriotic movement of the day, and will have the largest sale of any book in this generation

100 Experienced Agents Wanted.

Agents working for other books, at usual commission, should write at once. Special commission to the first 100. Only Patriots need apply.

A SPECIFIC —FOR—
La Grippe, for Colds, Coughs,
AND LUNG TROUBLES,
AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

"Two years ago, I had the grippe, and it left me with a cough which gave me no rest night or day. My family physician prescribed for me, changing the medicine as often as he found the things I had taken were not helping me, but, in spite of his attendance, I got no better. Finally, my husband,—reading one day of a gentleman who had had the grippe and was cured by taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,—procured, for me, a bottle of this medicine, and before I had taken half of it, I was cured. I have used the Pectoral for my children and in my family, whenever we have needed it, and have found it a specific for colds, coughs, and lung troubles."—EMILY WOOD, North St., Elkton, Md. *

Louisville District—

Dear Brethren—In starting out on this year's work, let us plan for the best year of our lives. Gather your benevolent money at once, also your minute money. Push your plans and success will be ours. May the blessings of God rest upon you and your work. Yours,

GEO. A. SISSLE, P. E.

Brookhaven District—

Brethren—As the cold snap is over and "the time of singing of birds has come," put your committees to work at once. Our first district conference will convene June 28-30, at Summit. Please be ready to report one-half at least of collections taken. Put the SOUTHWESTERN in every home; I am sorry to know that a few of the pastors always fail to get any subscribers for their church paper. Brethren, do something for the paper.

Truly, I. L. PRATT, P. E.

Lexington District—

Dear Brethren—We have just closed a great conference session, and are now on our work for another year. Will you endeavor to make this your best in good works? You will take a collection at once for the minutes. You will have the benevolent apportionment in a few days.

Yours, JOSEPH COURTNEY, P. E.

Ohio District—

Dear Brethren—The Lord has blessed us in the past twelve months; we begin anew; let us have success registered on our banner and trust God for future development. A hundred souls for Christ should be our highest ambition. The benevolent assessments will remain as last year. Please call your benevolent committee with your quarterly conference. Let us help each other. Your brother and companion in the great work,

M. S. JOHNSON, P. E.

OUR DEPARTED FRIENDS.

.....Give Name and Place Distinctly.....

New Orleans.—Another of the old veterans of Union Chapel has gone to her reward. Sister Sarah Smith left the smokey field of battle amidst shouts of glory, for the shining shore on March 22d. For many years she had been fighting for heaven. Though unable to attend church for over twelve months, she remained faithful and loyal. A. J. Ford, pastor.

Bowerton.—Brother Fred Mewell died on March 13, in triumph. He was a local preacher and the founder of Methodism in this community and served his time out in the service; aged 63 years. I. C. Rucker, pastor.

Abbeville, Miss.—Ida Petis, aged 28 years, died in full triumph, having been a member of our church for fourteen years. Also, Katie Bemford, aged 5 years. C. W. Butler, pastor.

Jackson, La.—Juda Smith, 25 years, a good and faithful member of our church, died March 15. D. M. Seals, pastor.

Readers are keenly alive to the high art value of the photo-engravings in the new Holy Land series, "Earthly Footsteps of the Man of Galilee." Outside their religious and educational worth they will be widely treasured as photographic gems. Ten cents and a coupon secures a part, postpaid, if ordered from us.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address

"It made me Hands thot Sor

I couldn't slape; an' if it was thot harrd on me hands, how harrd it must be on the durrt!"

This is the way a good old Irish woman praises some washing-powder or other which she prefers to Pearline. As it was proven she had never tried Pearline, the compliment would appear to be in favor of Pearline.

Whoever heard of any one claiming that Pearline hurt the hands? But there's the trouble—Pearline is the original washing compound; its popularity has drawn out thousands of imitations—so popular that to many it indicates any powdered washing material. If you are using Pearline, you are satisfied; if you are dissatisfied, try Pearline. If you are using something with which you are satisfied and it is not Pearline, try Pearline—you will wonder you were satisfied before. Pearline is economical and absolutely harmless. Every grocer sells it. 415 JAMES PYLE, N. Y.

Webster's International Dictionary

Invaluable in Office, School, or Home. New from cover to cover.

It is the Standard of the U. S. Supreme Court, of the U. S. Government Printing Office, and of nearly all of the Schoolbooks. It is warmly commended by every State Superintendent of Schools.

A College President writes: "For ease with which the eye finds the word sought, for accuracy of definition, for effective methods in indicating pronunciation, for terse yet comprehensive statements of facts, and for practical use as a working dictionary, 'Webster's International' excels any other single volume."

"HERE AM I, SEND ME."

"Hark the voice of Jesus calling,
Who will go and work to-day;
Fields are white, and harvests waiting,
Who will bear the sheaves away.
Loud and strong the Master calleth,
Rich reward he offers thee,
Who will answer, gladly saying,
'Here am I, send me; send me.'"

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

AMONG the distinguished visitors at the Lexington Conference during its recent session at Maysville, Ky., was Rev. S. R. Gipson, of the Upper Mississippi Conference, and stationed at Corinth, Miss. The Lexington brethren feel highly honored with his presence, and were very much benefited by his eloquent sermon, which he preached on Sunday evening. Brother Gipson speaks also in glowing terms of his visit, reception by the brethren, etc.

THE Leader and Clipper gives the following appreciative notice of Rev. G. W. W. Jenkins, appointed presiding elder at the late session of the Washington Conference:

* * * "He is the youngest presiding elder of the conference. He is popular with the people, an able scholar, eloquent divine and a thorough Methodist. He has occupied many positions of trust in the Church, and always acquiting himself with honor He was one of the pioneer workers in Western Pennsylvania. We congratulate him on his promotion in Church work."

The SOUTHWESTERN adds its hearty congratulations, and expect that his district will know more of the work of our great Church in the Southland through his proffered support.

THERE is such a thing as helping the poor and needy in a way to deprive them of their self-respect and to make them more and more helpless. The problem in all philanthropic work is to so aid the needy one that he will be inspired to help himself. The Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society in its administration aids only those who are willing and able, intellectually and physically, to help themselves. Its policy is to provide buildings, equipments, dormitories and teachers, so as to reduce the expenses for the students to the minimum. Comparatively few students are aided directly with money. This is a very wise course.

THE ignorant vote of the United States is one of the greatest dangers. This is true in the Northern States, where the number of illiterate voters in many States is sufficient to hold the balance of power between the great parties. Especially is this true throughout the South, where 33 1-10 per cent of the voters cannot read their ballots. Here is a field calling for greatly enlarged effort for the education of the masses. The Methodist Episcopal Church is one of the tremendous factors of that field. Her schools are disabled for lack of money. Let our pastors present this phase of the case to their people, and urge the collections of our Southern Educational work.

THE fourteenth International Christian Endeavor convention which will convene in historic Boston, Mass., in July next, promises to be one of unusual interest to Christian Endeavorers throughout the world. Among the prominent colored persons on the program we find the names of Bishop A. Walters, D. D., of the African M. E. Zion Church, who will speak on "The Responsibility of the African Church in America;" and Bishop B. W. Arnett, D. D., of the African M. E. Church, who is to deliver the principal address on one of the special topics. This recognition of the colored people by this important gathering is a healthy sign of the growth of a better public sentiment, and should be encouraged.

O'FERRALL VERSUS TEAMOH.

The Teamoh incident has attracted no little attention, and much has been said for and against the governor of Virginia for the manner in which he received the colored legislator from the Bay State. It is a mighty hard thing for some of our Southern officials to rise so far above mere petty prejudices as to accord the civilities of their official stations to a colored official. This man O'Ferral has not outlived his prejudices—they evidently master him. Hence, the incident with the animus which prompted the offended official to "draw the line on the Negro at the social circle or anywhere else that suggests even the semblance of social equality," will go down upon the record to excite either the pleasure or disgust of the people who shall in the future be called upon to study the character of the people who are now making up the history of this great republic. But there is a better South, in which there will be a recognition of manhood. Not Anglo-Saxon, or Negro as such, but that manhood which is founded on culture and character. The time is coming when even the governor of Virginia will consider it an honor not only to receive officially but socially representatives of the "despised race."

Meanwhile, let the Negro acquire the very highest and best qualifications attainable—they will be needed a little further along.

THE DOUGLASS MEMORIALS.

It is eminently fitting that our people should do honor to the memory of the great leader of his people, the late Hon. Frederick Douglass. In almost every city, village and hamlet in this land, and in other lands as well, touching references have been made and splendid tributes offered in honor of his life and distinguished services to humanity. Volumes will yet be written which will furnish the incentive to the people whom he so faithfully represented, to rise to higher social and intellectual conditions, and thus, though dead, the great leader and statesman will live through the coming generations. As has been stated before, owing to the crowded conditions of our columns, we are compelled to decline the publication of more than very brief notices of the memorial services held in various parts of our patronizing territory. Memorial services have recently been held in Morgan City, La.; Washington, La.; Covington, Ky.; Mt. Zion Church, La.; Lexington, Va.; at which time eloquent addresses were made and suitable resolutions adopted.

A SPLENDID PROPOSITION,

Rev. W. E. Mask, the able and efficient presiding elder of the Greenwood District in the Upper Mississippi Conference, is giving increasing evidence of his interest in the circulation of the SOUTHWESTERN. He has offered a neat Teacher's Bible to the person on his district who will present the largest number of receipts for cash subscriptions to the SOUTHWESTERN. When our presiding elders take hold in this way, there is surely a great promise of enlargement. We like the Mask proposition and would commend it to all our pastors and presiding elders. We want it to be distinctly understood that we appreciate this sort of interest, and propose to help all we can to push the subscriptions more vigorously. We would like to hear from the other presiding elders at once. What say you, brethren?

REV. Dr. J. C. HARTZELL will prepare a paper on "Methodism and the Negro in the United States," to be read before a convention of the educators of colored youth, to be held in London, Eng., in July.

BENJAMIN F. CRARY, D. D.—1821-1895.

Born in the State of Indiana in 1821; converted while a student at Pleasant Hill Academy near Cincinnati, Ohio, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church when about 16; studied law and was admitted to the bar February 20, 1843; yielding to the divine call, with the advice of his pastor and presiding elder, he joined the Indiana conference, in which he took a prominent part; was made presiding elder of the Bloomington District in 1852; elected to the General Conference in 1856, and to every subsequent one up to and including 1880; received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Iowa Wesleyan University in 1859, and from Indiana University in 1865; was president of Hamline University in Minnesota in 1857; superintendent of public instruction of the same State; pastor of Jackson Street Church, St. Paul, in 1862; enlisted in the Third Regiment, Minnesota Volunteers; subsequently became chaplain and went to the front with his regiment, and on account of impaired health was honorably discharged in 1863; elected editor of the Central Christian Advocate in 1864 and 1868; presiding elder in Colorado from 1872 to 1880; elected editor of the California Christian Advocate in 1880, 1884, 1888 and 1892; filled every position to which he was appointed or elected with signal ability; was one of God's noblemen; great-hearted, with native honor clad; the friend of the oppressed; ready to do and to die for God and humanity. He was an optimist of the optimists. He labored and fought to bring freedom to the slave and consecrated tongue, and pen, and brain, and voice to secure for them justice and equality before God and before the law. He was a typical Methodist, and the polity and policy of the Church found in him a most able champion. Though going up "out of great tribulation," he carried the sunshine of the better life in his heart and in his face. When the summons came he was ready. He met and triumphed over the last enemy, and swept victoriously through the gates "washed in the blood of the Lamb." We loved him as a father. His counsels were helpful and inspiring. We will miss him; but the "crossing" is near, and we'll meet again.

"I WAS A STRANGER, AND YE TOOK ME NOT IN:"

Mrs. Col. Springer, an agent of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, and one of the most estimable white ladies of the land, has been traveling through the South in the interest of the society, furnishes an experience which ought to arouse public sentiment everywhere in favor of more liberal and humane treatment of the colored people in the South, especially by the people who profess to be followers of the meek and lowly Jesus. From the Woman's Home Missions we take the following:

"At Millican I put on my gown and night flannel over my other clothing, then a flannel jacket and long heavy overcoat and the bedding I dared use and never slept a moment all night, I was so chilled through. The physical difficulties of work in Texas and Louisiana are, that if you stop at a home of white people, no colored minister or colored person can come to the home and you fail of the work for which you came. I never suffered much from cold in New England or Iowa, for the wind blows through most of the homes, but how thankful I am for this privilege of going where no one else would go for love or money. But thinking of our dear Lord leaving heaven for us; how poor are our best efforts to serve Him.

It does seem strange that after the lapse of nearly nineteen hundred years since the dawning of the Christian era, so little is known of the mission of the true Christ in some parts of this civilized land. It hardly seems credible, yet it is true, that some professing Christians are so blinded by a cruel prejudice, that they can find excuse to spurn from their door those whom Christ Jesus came to save. It will be an awful retribution; yet the time is coming when it will be said unto all such: "Inasmuch as ye did it, not unto one of the least of these ye did it not to me."

OUR : WOMEN'S : ROUND : TABLE

The Influence of the Home in the Uplifting of our People.

THIRTEENTH LETTER—BY T. E. W.

Flashes of Thought.

In going through the world you come in contact with thousands of children, but how few of them are in possession of the important facter—good manners. But we cannot hold them responsible, for indeed that would be an injustice, but back to the parents; herein lies the fault. There are some mothers who think when they have learned a child to say "please" and "thank you," that the training is complete; but ah, my dear mother, here is your mistake—for there is danger of them using even these terms contrary to your intention. There are so many bad habits which the best of children are apt to acquire by their association with others, and sometimes even without this, you find your child doing something and you wonder how on earth they learn such things; but this is nature. One of the greatest faults I find with mothers is, they cannot see their own children's faults. How do you expect exemplary children when you have such utter confidence in their perfection? Correct your child first and then your correcting others will be more highly appreciated.

At the commencement exercises of one of our colleges last year, a "sweet girl graduate" chose as her subject, "Wash, and Be Clean." I have thought ever since that time that it would be a good thing to keep that subject prominently before the people. I am sorry to say, that in some places and among some of my acquaintances there are but few evidences that cleanliness is the rule. Among the first and most comprehensive laws given by the great lawgiver, Moses, was that referring to bodily cleanliness. In Exodus, 19th chapter, 10th verse, we have the following very significant words: "And the Lord said unto Moses, Go unto the people and sanctify them to-day and to-morrow, and let them wash their clothes." But the cleanliness enjoined by sacred writ not only refers to the cleansing of clothing, but to bodily cleanliness as well. Cleanliness is said to be next to Godliness, and no one is excused from this simple yet potential sanitary injunction. This is a delicate subject, yet I believe the end justifies the means. Water and soap are within reach of all, and make those who use them freely far more acceptable to society and to the home than those who habitually neglect them. Our olfactories are very excellent detectives. I repeat again the subject of our "sweet girl graduate": "Wash and be clean."

Woman's Home Missions.

One and one-half miles from Metarie Ridge Cemetery, in New Orleans, is a settlement of Italians who own their truck gardens or farms. They are ambitious and upright and desire to become as Christian Americans. Though the men are neither Protestant nor Catholic, yet they desire Sabbath services, in order that their children can have the opportunity of hearing God's word and be led in the true way. For two years they have asked for some one to come to their aid and open a Sabbath School, since to bring their families to the city every Sabbath would incur an expense which they are unable to meet. They are English-speaking and prefer Protestantism, as they feel it is the true religion

Miss E. O. Elliott opened the work under the W. H. M. Society and the second Sabbath had fifty in attendance. She is accompaied by Mrs Antonio Palmisanno, the first Italian woman who attend Protestant service under Dr. McLaughlin's regime.

In this settlement there is need of a day school as well as a Sabbath school.

Mr. Angelo Palmisanno (a converted Catholic), at whose home Miss Elliott conducts the Sunday service, has offered give land enough if they can have a chapel erected for their use. He is a zealous Christian and very desirous that good be done among his associates, neighbors and in his family.

Miss Elliott finds it an enjoyable mission, since the people give her a royal welcome, and she feels doubly repaid by their attention and eagerness to understand the Scriptures.

The Southwestern's Pledge Card Roll of Honor.

At the Lexington Conference held at Maysville, Ky., March 13, we received from seventy brethren, including the four presiding elders, 1,746 pledges for new subscribers during the conference year. The presiding elders, Revs. J. Courtney of the Lexington District, G. A. Sissel of the Louisville District, M. S. Johnson of the Ohio District, and E. L. Gilliam, pledged 250 each. The pastors' pledges on the respective districts aggregate 746. Rev. S. R. Gipson, of the Upper Mississippi Conference, pledged 30; making a total of 776.

In the Central Missouri Conference, held at Fayette, Mo., March 20, we received 263 pledges from thirty brethren; making a total of 2,039 pledges. We feel assured that with the 100 agents, who are among the most energetic and progressive members of their respective conferences, and with the presiding elders taking the lead, we will collect 100 per cent of the pledges.

Let the work begin at once. Brethren sending in the cash for subscribers, or their pledges, will please state the fact, so that they may be credited for the same. Sample copies for canvassing will be sent on application to this office. Below will be found the names of the brethren with the number of subscribers pledged, to which will be added from time to time other names, which we are certain will consider it a pleasure to join our new forward movement:

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Frederick Douglass and Robert Ingersoll.

By Rev. C. BRADFORD.

It so happens that the first time I ever saw Fred Douglass was also the first time I ever saw Col. Ingersoll. It was in the great auditorium in Chicago, one night in June, 1888, at the Republican National Convention that nominated Benjamin Harrison for the presidency. The balloting had begun about noon that day, and was to be resumed that night. The building was filled and packed with people. The first demonstration was over the sight of Chauncey M. Depew near the platform. In a few words he formally withdrew his name from the list of candidates before the convention.

After this some one moved that the convention adjourn till next day. The motion was put and several voted in the affirmative. When the negative was put the spectators voted "No" so lond and long that it was necessary to take a poll of the vote of the delegates before it could be determined whether it was their wish to adjourn or not.

While this was going on, a delegate arose and moved that in case the poll resulted in an adjournment, they invite Col. Ingersoll to address the audience. This motion prevailed, and when the poll was completed the convention was declared adjourned till the next day.

Ingersoll was then called for, when he stepped to the platform and began an address upon the record of the Republican party in contrast with that of the Democratic party, praising the one and berating the other. When his eloquence had wrought up the enthusiasm of the crowd to a high pitch, the speaker took advantage of the situation to say a word for his favorite candidate. But he got no further than the name of that favorite. He was stopped both by the cheers of other supporters of his candidate and by the jeers of those in favor of other candidates. The orator stood and waited for the cheers and the jeers to subside. He kept standing and kept waiting. He took on a kind of defiant attitude, and stood firm as one of the pillars of Hercules. Knowing his reputation as an orator, and his command of crowds, I confidently expected that he would subdue the commotion and proceed with his speech. I remembered what I had heard John B. Gough say, and the power he was noted for having to quell a rabble. But the uproar lasted so long that I began to feel sorry for the man on the platform, though he was Mr. Ingersoll.

I watched him for several minutes without taking my eyes off of him. At length, without looking to the right or to the left, he wheeled about, stepped down, and disappeared from my view, while the uproar increased. It was at this point that the tall and portly form of Douglass appeared on the platform. He waved to the wild crowd and quieted the clamor. He spoke but a word or two, and introduced a man who recited "Sheridan's Ride." As it was about the time of the death of that famous "fighting Phil," the attention of the crowd was quickly centered to any mention of his name. The crowd heard the recitation through, cheered it heartily, and retired from the building in an orderly manner.

I have often thought of this occasion, the difference between those two men who had such a different effect on that great crowd, the difference in the appearance of the two, in their history, and, greatest of all, the difference in the ideas for which they stood, respectively, as the exemplar. Ingersoll was the author of a motto which says, "Infidelity is liberty; religion is slavery." Douglass stood as an animated fact which gave the lie to that motto. True, Douglass had some experience which might at one time have made him adopt that motto, yet, after all, it was in Christian America, and not heathen Africa, that he obtained liberty.

MORTON, Miss., March 15, 1895.

Dear Editor—Allow me space to publish a card to the Jackson District, Mississippi Conference.

Dear brethren, when I came to this place I found no parsonage and no church that we might call our own property. As it is, I have made arrangements to purchase a piece of land containing ten acres more or less, lying about 300 yards east of the depot; two acres in cultivation, the rest woody. Elder Houston went out to look at the land. He likes it and thinks we ought to get it by all means. As the parties were not present when Elder J. C. Houston went to see them, he told me to continue his proposed plan; so I closed the bargain by promising to pay the sum of $110 for the whole piece, which was as cheap as I could get it. Now, brethren, I do hereby ask each church belonging to the Jackson District to help us by contributing at least three dollars and as much as each can give. We want to make the first payment in May, which will be $50, and the next payment will be twelve months from date of first payment. Brothers, help me. Dear brethren and pastors, collect all you can and send it to us. The Lord will bless the cheerful giver. Remember too, some of you may some day occupy this same place. We can get good titles that will secure the land as ours forever. Ever yours, H. HESLUP.

Nervous Prostration

Complete Recovery by the Use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"Some years ago, as a result of too close attention to business, my health failed. I became weak, nervous, was unable to look after my interests, and manifested all the symptoms of a decline. I took three bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, began to improve at once, and gradually increased my weight from one hundred and twenty-five to two hundred pounds. Since then, I and my family have used this medicine when needed, and we are all in the best of health, a fact which we attribute to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I believe my children would have been fatherless to-day had it not been for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, of which preparation I cannot say too much."—H. O. HINSON, Postmaster and Planter, Kinard's, S. C.

DAILY THOUGHTS.

[From Phillips Brooks.]

APRIL 11.—The poet pictures to us in his imagination those things which do not appeal to our life, because they find nothing to correspond to their high portraits, to show those transformations of nature into something that is entirely different and foreign to itself. If religion be simply the dream that some men hold it to be, if it simply be the cheating of man's soul with that which has no reality to correspond to it, then it will be no more than this. Is there any assurance that is given to us, that is before the soul of man, of some great new life which it is given for man to seek, without which it is given for no man to be satisfied? I do not know where any man could find that assurance absolutely and entirely, unless there had stood forth before us the person of Him who spoke these words and who manifested them in His life. And therefore it is that, having pictured to you the richness of the life which is open to every man, his own true life, the large freedom into which he may go if, giving up his sins he enters into the fullness of the life of God.

APRIL 12.—How is it in religion? Have you not come to believe, are you not working continually upon the belief, that those great experiences, those lofty communions with God, those enterings into the secret places of His presence, the sense of oneness with His Spirit, which men used to ascribe to special natures, consecrated to a peculiar sainthood, belong to every man, everywhere, simply in virtue of his humanity; and that in some way those things may yet become the possession of every human soul; that not only to saints who sit upon the mountain tops, in rapt psalm-singing, not merely to the souls who plunge into the deepest of overwhelming thoughts and hide themselves in the darkness which lies below the hard tread of man, but to every man may come,—and marvelous it seems when we say it,—to every man may come the daily recognized communion with God.

APRIL 13.—That great thing you and I are called upon to do—the total acceptance by our nature of the will of God, the total acceptance by our nature of the mastery of Jesus Christ.

APRIL 14.—What is the great cry, what is the great aspiration? As the Apostle has lifted up his voice and sung out for us in the wondrous music of his great epistle: "Till we all come, in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God,"—not to some strange, unnatural thing, not to humanity improved and changed into something else, but till we come "to the perfect man." It is good for us, it is right for us, it is true for us, it makes us strong, to know that. I am struggling toward myself, and just so far as the Christ comes and fills me I am the thing I am, the thing I was first of all in the thought of God, before He sent me on the earth—the thing which by His grace I shall be as eternity perfects my life in Him.

For prurigo senilis, the eruptive affliction of old age, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best specific.

Things in China Which Illuminate the Bible.

We see many things here in China which help to bring out passages in the Bible.

The wall around Pekin is twenty-five miles long, forty feet high, forty two feet thick at the top, and fifty feet thick at the bottom, with shoulders every hundred yards which make it twice as thick. Such a wall would be difficult to blow down with a ram's horn. It would need a Joshua.

At the large gates the main wall is straight, but a horseshoe shaped entrance, having one, two or three gates, is built around the gate. It was in such a place that Eli sat waiting for the return of his sons.

Over the gate is a large tower, fifty or sixty feet above the wall, in which the large guns are kept. It was from such a tower that David watched for the runners, and knew the running of Ahimaaz.

The jinrikisha men are able to run for five miles or more and pull a man in their "baby carriages" without perceptible weariness; from them we can understand how Ahimaaz could run as he did.

There is a gate in Tientsin through which all the water is carried into the city. It was in such a street and before such a gate that the people gathered together to listen to Ezra read the Book of the Law.

The streets are full of dogs which never had owners. They live on refuse that is thrown upon the street. Dogs fight over a bone in America. Here they fight over a cabbage leaf. "Without were dogs."

The swine live in the same manner as the dogs—by the refuse that is thrown upon the street. One can easily understand why the Jews, whose pigs were mere scavenger carts, as the Chinese pigs are, should forbid the eating of the flesh of swine. I think if it were a direct Biblical command to eat it, most of us would break the commandment.

A traveler spreads his bed down at night on a warm k'ang, covers himself, and goes to sleep. In the morning he rolls his bed up into a bundle about the size of an ordinary quilt, and starts upon his way; he takes up his bed, and walks, or, as is very often the case, puts it on his donkey, and rides on it.

A few days ago, as I came from the "western hills," I saw a woman playing the part of a donkey, "grinding at the mill." In Biblical pictures two are represented as grinding at the mill, but this woman was alone.

Near the mill at which the woman was grinding there was a flat, hard piece of ground, about the size and shape of a tennis court, which was the threshing floor, a very good representation, no doubt, of Nachon's or Atad's or Ornan's.

But still another thing was noticeable here. As I watched her and her threshing-floor, I was riding on a donkey like the thirty sons of Jair the Gileadite, who rode on thirty ass colts—like Christ entering Jerusalem.

Still farther, I was not going along the large road, but along one of the many by-paths that go diagonally through all the grain fields. These by-paths through the field help us to understand how "some seed fell by the way-side."

From our street to the gate at which we enter and leave the city, I counted five hundred camels on their way to or from the mines, loaded or going for coal. They go in strings of six. A man leads or rides the front one, guiding it not by a bridle, but by a rope tied to a stick, which is thrust through his nose. The other five are tied, each to the one in front of it, by ropes similarly attached. Many of these that I counted were only the tail end of long strings that were going off on side streets. Like the Midianites, "their camels were without number."

Many of these camels and asses and donkeys have a rope muzzle fastened over their mouths and noses to prevent their cropping the herbage, if there be any, as they pass along the road; they are thus muzzled "when treading out the corn."

At one place we saw an ox, an ass and a donkey hitched to a plow, which plow had only one handle, and claimed all the man's attention, giving him no time to look back after he had "put his hand to the plow."

At another place men were drawing water out of a large well and carrying it or letting it run through drains to irrigate their fields, while large troughs were being continually filled by the men and emptied by the passing camels and donkeys. One can never appreciate the use of Jacob's well till he has seen and drunk from a great well in a dry climate like this.

In a melon patch was a platform raised four or five feet above the ground and covered with matting, making a little place in which a man could rest and sleep. They look very much, no doubt, like Isaiah's "cottage in a vineyard, as a lodge in a garden of cucumbers."

As we were about to enter the great gate we saw men with little tables loaded with cash (Chinese money). Country cash is small, city cash large. When one comes from the country to the city, like the people to the feast at Jerusalem, he must change his country cash for city cash. If he knows how much his country cash is worth in city cash, all is well; but if not, he is liable to fall into a "den of thieves," for these money-changers are not wholly unlike those whom Christ cast out of the temple.—Exchange.

Important Notice.

We, the undersigned students and representative members of the respective classes of Gammon Theological Seminary, for the best interest of our people everywhere, and in view of the grave responsibilities that rest upon us, and for the protection of the Christian ministry which we represent, would offer the following serious facts to the public:

We ask our people to beware of one J. C. Western, who was formerly a member of the South Carolina M. E. Conference, but because of his extreme and almost irrational views with regard to sanctification, he became the source of confusion and trouble between people and pastors; finally his notions and ideas ran counter to the itinerant system of the M. E. Church, and he left the Church. Subsequently he forsook his wife and minor children, secures the company of one Miss or Mrs. Brown, and travels as an evangelist in the interest of santification. The Rev. Mr. J. C. Western, accompanied by Miss Flora Brown, came to South Atlanta on or about the last week in February, and began a series of meetings in Rev. McD. Spencer's church. His meetings were not largely attended. A goodly number of people questioned his traveling with a woman who was not his wife. This lead the pastor to inquire into the standing of the evangelist, by writing to Greenville. The sheriff of Greenville, S. C., answered the pastor's letter by saying that he had a warrant for the arrest of Rev. J. C. Western, for not providing for the support of his wife and minor children. We are in possession of the sheriff's letter. We believe in the true doctrine of sanctification, but we denounce in strongest terms and condemn all such sanctification that is so peculiar in its nature, so cruel and erratic in its teaching as to cause one to not provide for his wife and helpless little children, over whom the angels watch. We ask the "Amen" of all the Christian world.

EASTER SUNDAY.

Let there be a rousing missionary rally on this glorious festal day. Let the whole day be devoted to the diffusion of missionary intelligence. Carry out the program. Let the little folks, the old folks, all the folks be drafted into the glorious service. Begin early, and look to the Lord for a great blessing.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

We have received the following letter from a prominent pastor in Texas. We will not give his name, but state the facts as he has given them. We do not know that such a condition exists elsewhere in his conference, but it is just probable that there are other cases of the kind. But read:

"Several years ago our District Conference voted not to allow any local preacher to exercise the functions of his office, and also instructed the presiding elder not to grant a license to any local preacher, who did not subscribe for the SOUTHWESTERN, and yet I find here three local preachers, neither of whom take the paper. And more: Out of 100 members on this circuit there is only one paper taken except my own. We have nine school teachers belonging to our church, and to my knowledge not one of them takes the SOUTHWESTERN. I am told that five of them were educated at —— University, and yet some of them positively refuse to take the paper, saying, 'I don't want it,' 'I don't like it,' etc. Shame on such ungrateful creatures."

We have withheld the name of the writer of the above communication, because, if it is true, the indifferent local preachers and teachers, who are graduates as he states, would be very apt to "make things hot for him," as we sometimes say. People who are indifferent with reference to the literature of the Church, are of but little service to us. But we are slow to believe that any considerable number of the graduates of our schools in Texas would say, after a careful perusal of the SOUTHWESTERN, that they do not like it, and that they could not be induced to take it. Among our subscribers are many, very many, of the graduates of our schools, who not only read the paper with satisfaction, but contribute frequently to its columns articles which have increased its popularity immensely among the better-thinking people of the Church. We believe also, that as a rule, the teachers in our schools frequently call the attention of their people to the superior claims of the SOUTHWESTERN, so that when they go forth into the world to win their bread, they naturally put themselves in touch with the literature of their Church.

As to the refusal of some local preachers and other local church officials to subscribe for the SOUTHWESTERN, we have this to say, that we do not believe a man is worthy of an office in the Methodist Episcopal Church who persistently refuses to keep himself posted with reference to the work of the Church of which he is a member. There are some older men amongst us who have never had the advantages of literary training, and whose sterling piety, and good common sense, renders it often wise to give them leading positions; but these are fast passing away, and giving place to others who can have no excuse whatever, since the advantages for training are so easily within reach. Now, if young men get into these positions, carrying with them the indifference indicated by our brother in the foregoing communication, the fault is either in the churches which recommend them, the pastors who encourage and nominate them, the district conferences, or the presiding elders. Many of our presiding elders actually refuse to license men who refuse to read our papers and study our books, but it is to be feared that some are indifferent. Meanwhile we say with confidence that the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, in the peculiar field in which it more largely circulates, is an educator in the highest and best sense, and as such is an indispensable adjunct to the Church, the home, the library, and the school room.

—A first-class music teacher, also a Doctor of Medicine, educated in our schools and members of our church, desiring positions, will do well to write to Rev. A. M. Mason, Columbus, Texas.

A LAUDABLE APPEAL.

Jackson Street M. E. Church at Lynchburg, Virginia, makes a strong appeal to a benevolent public to help lift a mortgage of $5,000, given in favor of the Virginia Collegiate and Industrial Institute, located in that city. An amount equaling the mortgage was subscribed, but owing to the great stringency of the times but little of said subscription could be collected. The trustees now appeal for help, as the creditors are pushing their claims. The brethren of the Washington Conference and the good people everywhere are earnestly asked to help this noble enterprise at once. Write to Rev. H. A. Carroll, pastor, 907 Jackson St., Lynchburg, Va.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Brother S. M. Bolden, pastor, writes us that his revival at Spencer Chapel, Conroe, Texas, was a success. The members are in earnest.

—Our church at New Iberia, La., in charge of Rev. A. H. Banks, is in the midst of a glorious revival. The altar is crowded with anxious inquirers for the way of salvation.

—Rev. A. M. Mason, the able and cultured pastor of our church at Columbus, Tex., writes hopefully of his work. The outlook is bright and the church generally united and strengthened.

—Lauderdale, Miss., with Rev. A. Butler in charge, held a quarterly meeting recently. All departments of the church alive. Three Epworth Leagues organized. Prospects encouraging.

—Rev. W. H. Jones, of Patterson, La., writes hopefully of the work there, and regrets their failure to carry out the program on SOUTHWESTERN Day. The rain interfered, but another day will be selected.

—Carter McCoy writes that Sylacanga Circuit, Central Alabama Conference, is in the van. Quarterly meeting was a splendid affair. Presiding Elder C. Rogers was present and helped grandly. Six accessions.

—Rev. W. H. Jackson, of St. Paul's M. E. Church, Texarkana, Tex., is among the progressive men of his conference. He and his noble people have just purchased a lot in West Texarkana, where they soon expect to build a fine church.

—Garvinville, Miss., turned out in force recently, and, marching to the parsonage, gave the new pastor, Rev. W. N. J. Lipscomb, and family, a royal surprise. The happy family, with the equally happy donors, rejoiced greatly. So writes G. L. Harris.

—At Pittsburg, Tex., our church is in charge of Rev. T. Young, who looks on the bright side of things and sees a brilliant future for the church and Sunday school. Rev. W. H. Logan, the presiding elder, gave them a visit recently, which cheered them not a little.

—Chas. W. Prim, of Clinton, La.: "We have celebrated the birth of Mr. Geo. Peabody in the public school at this place. The program was carried out nicely. We have a fine school; it is going on nice. We are also connected with the Sabbath school doing our part."

—Rev. H. B. Brown, of McKinney, Tex., reports his church in a good spiritual condition. Congregations are increasing, and there are evidences of a deeper interest in all the departments of church work. Elder Swann's recent visit to this charge was highly beneficial.

—Mrs. Wilson, wife of Rev. H. C. Wilson, pastor of Boynton Church, Hubertville, La., was tendered a splendid reception by the members on her arrival recently. Complimentary remarks were made by representatives of the church and a collation was served.

—Rev. S. G. Turner, of Coke's Chapel, Louisville, Ky., writes: "I have entered the field with God for my leader, and am determined by his grace and help to bring many souls to his dear Son. I pledged you twenty-five subscribers this year, and here is the cash for the first one."

—At China Grove, Miss, everything is moving along lovely. The pastor, Rev. J. C. Cook, is able and efficient and who, with his estimable wife, is making a very favorable impression. Presiding Elder Pratt's visits are helpful, and the work is going forward. So writes J. D. Reeves.

—From Rev. I. A. Hall, of Newport, Ark., we have a note informing us of the death of Sister Mary Robinson, which occurred March 21. She was a faithful member of the M. E. Church for seventeen years. Her end was peaceful; Brother Hall conducted the funeral services.

—Wesley Chapel, Austin, Tex., is in a blaze of glory. A mighty revival wave is sweeping everything before it They had 221 conversions and 50 accessions, and the work goes on with power. Rev. A. Foster, and his heroic band, are asking for 300 souls. The Lord grant their petition.

—Our elect sisters are passing away. A note from Rev. R. T. Thomas, of Liberty, Miss., brings the sad news of the death of that eminent and faithful woman, Sister Elizabeth Robinson. She was for twenty-three years an acceptable member of Liberty Chapel M. E. Church, and died in great peace. Many mourn.

—Brother Chauncey I. Withrow, pastor at Charlotte, N. C., writes: "Since my arrival here on October 14 last, God has blessed our work. We have had nineteen accessions to our church, raised $100 on third Sunday in December and $56 on March 17 on our church debt. This does not include pastor's salary, Bennett College incidentals, nor any other expense."

—Dresden, Tenn., is a new field, but Brother G. C. Clark, the appointee, is giving evidence of good pastoral ability. He has succeeded in purchasing a church lot, which is nearly paid for. The brethren of the conference have subscribed, and are reminded that subscriptions are now due. Rev. H. W. Key, the presiding elder, is looking after this work with much care.

—Christiana Circuit, Tennessee Conference, under the pastoral care of Rev. T. Allen, is reported in good condition by our correspondent, C. A. Todd. Presiding Elder H. W. White was given a grand ovation on the occasion of his last visit. The meeting was grand. Collections, $68. Subscribers were taken for the SOUTHWESTERN, and the outlook is promising.

—Messrs. Albert Harper, prominent cattle shipper, and Theodore Baughman, practical printer, of Victoria, Texas, who have been traveling extensively in the East and North, stopped over a few hours in our city last week and favored our sanctum with a very pleasant visit. Of course, these prominent leaders are among our subscribers.

—Rev. R. T. Smith sends hopeful news concerning our work at Greenville, Tenn. After preaching day and night for several weeks, the work of the Lord seems to have revived and precious souls have been saved. Some thirty members and friends came to the parsonage a few days ago and brought many valuable presents, for which the pastor and family are grateful indeed.

—Rev. J. S. Forgnson, of Buffalo, Tex, writes hopefully of his work. Rev. Wm. Wesley, presiding elder, was present at the late quarterly meeting and expressed himself as pleased with the outlook. One subscriber was secured for the SOUTHWESTERN. There is much sickness on the charge, but the people are faithful and encouraged to go forward. They are preparing to build at Jewett. The outlook is encouraging.

—Rev. S. R. Gipson, of Corinth, Miss., writes: "My visit to the Lexington Conference was an inspiration. The ride over the beautiful Queen and Crescent was grand. Views of Lookout Mountain and about Chattanooga were sublime. The ride through numerous tunnels and around mountain ravines was instructive and interesting. Reaching Lexington, Ky., and passing through the famous "Blue Grass" regions, braced us for the magnificent reception we enjoyed at the hands of the Lexington Conference brethren at Maysville, Ky. Brother McDade cared for us royally. A meeting with such distinguished officials as Bishop Hurst, Chaplain McCabe, Drs. Mason, Hammond, Courtney, Hagood, with the younger progressives as Tate, Sissel, Gilliam, Lemmons, White, Harris and others, makes the trip one which I will never forget. The Lexington is a noble conference, and the cause is in safe hands. I believe it would be well for the presiding elders and pastors immediately concerned to look after the territory between Lexington, Ky., and Somerset, Ky., on the line of the Queen and Crescent. Possibly we may find a splendid opening there for the introduction of Methodism. Well, I am at home again, better prepared than ever to look after every interest of the church. We have pledged thirty new subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN, and propose to keep the pledge."

NEW ORLEANS AND VICINITY.

Last Sunday night we talked to a good congregatsou at Mt. Zion, on "The Lord hath need of him." Pastor Moulgomery and congrogation are happy. The singing of the excellent choir was one of the special features of the servico.

It was a special pleasure to hear Ex-Governor Kellogg at Simpson M. E. Church last week. The governor has lost none of his old-time fire and eloquence. His address was fully up to the standard in all respects. His advice to the colored people was especially pertinent. No one will doubt the sincerity of the ex-governor's interest in the welfare of the colored people of this city and State. His earnest words will not be soon forgotten.

The "Speaking Meeting" at Simpson on Sunday morning was conducted by the venerable and much beloved Rev. Emperor Williams. The meeting was unusually interesting, the testimonies brief and pointed, and all sanctified by the presence of the Holy Ghost. Verily, it was good for us to be there.

Williams' Chapel is holding its own and gaining. The Sunday school is increasing in numbers. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered last Sunday to 104. It was a precious time. Four were at the altar seeking salvation. Rev. C. Monroe, the pastor, brought in one new subscriber.

—The State Immigration Society of Louisiana has issued a comprehensive Hand-Book, setting forth the geographical and agricultural features of the State, together with crops that can be grown, description of each parish, climate, health, education, fish and oysters, railroads and watercourses, besides other valuable information. Copies will be sent on application to the society, 620 Common street, New Orleans.

Publishers Southwestern Advocate—We have perfected a portfolio holder with appropriate side stamp in gold for holding the 24 numbers of the "Earthly Footsteps," when completed. In order to stimulate every one who has procured the original number or numbers to continue to take them throughout the series, we have decided to offer this portfolio holder to your readers who may thus complete the 24 numbers, absolutely free of charge. N. D. THOMPSON Pub. Co.

The splendid portfolio series of the "Man of Galilee" is now about completed, and the entire set ready for delivery. Any subscriber to this paper can secure it for $2.40, or about one-third price, with cover for binding free. Read this testimonial:

Messrs. Hunt & Eaton—I desire to express my high appreciation of the merits of the splendid portfolio of photographic views of the "Earthly Footsteps of the Man of Galilee," by Bishop Vincent, Dr. Lee and Mr. Bain. The work cannot fail to accomplish great good in spreading abroad a knowledge of Bible lands, in making more real and vivid the life and labors of our Lord and his apostles, and in cultivating a taste for the beautiful in art. Your method of distributing them will be a great help to many of your readers. Very truly yours,

J. C. MURRAY.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

The April Arena contains a great variety of good reading matter, and shows the usual keen sense of the shifting current of popular interest in its editorial conduct. Thomas J. Middleton makes "A Southerner's Pleas for Peace." George W. Pepperell writes "An Open Letter to Hon. Thomas B. Reed." Harry C. Vrooman deals with "Crime and the Enforcement of Law." Dr. R. B. Leach, on the question of the Age of Consent, shows the especial physical perils which exist for young girls at the age which is made legal in the most highly protected States. Arena Publishing Co., Boston.

The treatment which should be given the original American has long been a problem to the present inhabitants of the New World, and many are the arguments which have been used against all attempts to civilize the Indian. Captain R. H. Pratt, who served long and faithfully on the frontier during the Indian wars, studied carefully the character of the aborigines, and it is of his work toward civilizing this savage race that O. B. Super writes so interestingly in his "Indian Education at Carlisle," in the April New England Magazine. Fully illustrated. Warren F. Kellogg, 5 Park Square, Boston, Mass.

"Ten Nights in a Barroom," by T. S. Arthur. Reduced from $1.25 to 75 cents. Bound in cloth, with black and silver side, 12mo size, 8 illustrations, 75 cents. This famous book, of which so many thousands have been sold, and probably the most popular work of the kind ever published, is capable, in these days of temperance agitation, of a still greater sale. It is of the deepest interest throughout, carefully written, and will furnish an inspiration to all who love temperance. Porter & Coates, publishers, Philadelphia.

Southern Literature from 1579 to 1895. A comprehensive review with copious extracts and criticisms, for the use of schools and the general reader, containing an appendix with a full list of Southern authors. By Louise Manly; beautifully illustrated; price, cloth, $1.50. Richmond, Va.: B. F. Johnson Publishing Co. The author has added to the literature of the age a most wholesome and instructive volume. Its tone, temper and spirit commends the book to the fair and dispassionate consideration of all people who would study the literature of their country. While the author seeks to restore the literary productions of Southern authors, there is a very happy absence of that spirit which seeks to encourage sectionalism and local prejudice. The earnest and truthful putting of the claims of Southern authors is a satisfactory work for which the author deserves credit.

The Preacher's Magazine for April, edited by William E. Ketcham, D. D., maintains its reputation for luminous and sterling articles of great worth and acceptability. Under Present-day Preaching, it has a full sermon and one by Rev. Hugh Price Hughes upon "Lukewarmness." The late Dr. Deem's Prayer Meeting Talks are sensible outlines. 2 Cooper Union, N. Y. Single copy 15 cents; $1 50 per year.

The March issues of Littell's Living Age give 315 pages of choice periodical literature. These five weekly numbers contain thirty-six articles. The fiction consists of a complete story in each number. Each issue contains the usual page of poetry. Littell & Co., Boston.

The Treasury of Religious Thought for April completes a volume which may compare not unfavorably with any earlier. The different departments are fully maintained, and the number contains a full and valuable index of the sermons, texts, authors and articles of the year 1894-95. Yearly, $2 50; clergymen, $2; single copies 25 cents. E. B. Treat, publisher, 5 Cooper Union, New York.

The study of mind, perhaps the most fascinating branch of science, receives much attention in the April Popular Science Monthly. Prof. M. Allen Starr, M. D., of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, opens the number with an account of Some Curiosities of Thinking. In the Editor's Table the improved relations of science and religion are pointed out, and attention is called to the lack of nervous control that characterizes modern life. New York: D. Appleton and Company. Fifty cents a number, $5 a year.

The exceptional pictorial and descriptive features of the new religio-educational fine art work, "Earthly Footsteps of the Man of Galilee," can be fully appreciated by careful inspection only. Part I of this superb work will, therefore, be sent postpaid to any one sending his address with 10 cents to cover the cost of handling, wrapping, mailing, postage, etc. This part contains two introductions, a beautiful new map in eight colors, which traces in red the journeyings of the Savior and his Apostles, and also contains Dr. Samuel J. Andrews' famous outline harmony of the gospel and chronological index, which is copyrighted and published here only by special permission of the author. There are also shown sixteen magnificent views which are eloquently described.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. GOOD WORDS.

Dear Dr. Hammond—Having been a reader of the dear old SOUTHWESTERN quite awhile, I cannot see why it is not read by all colored people in the United States. To them that cannot read, I think it would be a grand thing for them to take it and have their children or any one that can, do so. I feel safe in saying that a short subscription would so enthuse them, that they would not be without this great paper. Our dear pastor is faithfully working to place it in every home on our charge. The sisters generally seem to be more interested than the brothers. Why this is so I cannot say, yet it is nevertheless true. Yours,

I. A. SLATE, College Hill Circuit,

Dear Dr. Hammond—The good SOUTHWESTERN is growing in the estimation of the people of this thriving city. I like it better and better all the time. Yours fraternally. W. H. JACKSON.

Central Missouri Conference.

Reported by C. M. KEETON, Lexington, Mo.

The ninth session of the Central Missouri Conference convened in Burton's Chapel M. E. Church at Fayette, Mo., March 20, 1895, at 9 a. m. Bishop R. S. Foster, D. D., presided. The opening religious services were conducted by Rev. J. W. Hughes. The Lord's Supper was administered by the bishop, assisted by Dr. Spencer and the presiding elders. The roll was called, and 73 members and probationers answered to their names. J. A. Dorsey was re-elected secretary, with C. M. Keeton and A. H. Higgs assistants. Wm. C. Ellis was re-elected statistical secretary, with J. H. McAllister and W. J. Debor assistants. G. B. Abbott was re-elected conference treasurer, assisted by F. H. Small and B. F. Abbot. Dr. Spencer, of the Church Extension Board, was introduced, and addressed the conference in the interest of the society. The following were introduced to the conference: Revs. W. H. Terrell and A. S. Palmer, of the A. M. E. Church; Brothers W. S. Woodard, G. J. Maple, J. Holland, J. R. A. Vaughn, B. W. Fulder, W. P. Brooks, J. D. Hammond, D. D., president of the Fayette College of M. E. Church South; Dr. C. H. Briggs, of M. E. Church South; Rev. E. W. Pfaffenberger and Dr. J. L. Hulburt, of the S. S. Union. The latter gentlemen made a very interesting address in behalf of the Sunday School Union and Tract Society. Dr. D. Bend, of the American Bible Society, was introduced, and addressed the conference in the interest of that organization, and Mrs. S. A. Abbot represented the Woman's Home Missionary Society. Dr. P. A. Cool, president of George R. Smith College at Sedalia, Mo., presented the claims of the college with a very graphic and impressive talk. Dr. A. B. Leonard, secretary of the Missionary Society, was present, and greeted the conference with a very eloquent speech in the interest of the work of the society. A draft on the Book Concern for $599 was placed in the hands of the stewards.

The class for admission into full connection was called before the altar and listened to a very wholesome address by the bishop. The members of the class are: F. S. Bowles, J. E. Williams and David Mitchell. The conference investigated complaints against A. R. Clariday, F. White and J. W. Zellender, who were suspended for one year. Charges were preferred against M. A. Johnson, and he allowed to withdraw under charges. Emanuel Harrison was expelled from the ministry and Church.

A communication from Dr. T. H. Hagerty, of St. Louis, expressing his great interest in the welfare of the conference, was read, and W. H. H. Brown was appointed to respond to the letter. Drs. J. W. Hamilton and E. W. S. Hammond were introduced. Dr. J. W. Hamilton represented the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society in a very able address, and Dr. E. W. S. Hammond, editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, spoke in glowing terms of the paper's advancement in its circulation. Dr. Hammond's great scholarly ability, with his energy, pluck and push, makes him an editor that the Church looks upon with honor.

A. S. Palmer and I. W. H. Terrell, of the A. M. E. Church, were received on credentials. Dudley Smith, L. E. Hayes, J. W. Jackson, A. H. Henely, J. K. Anderson, M. L. Mallory, J. H. Duncan and J. J. Cabble were admitted on trial. David Bruce, W. H. Wheeler and C. P. Woods were continued on trial. Springfield, Mo., was chosen as the seat of the next conference. Memoirs of Sister Steel, wife of Benjamin Steel, and Sister Pitts, wife of the deceased Edgar Pitts, were read.

Our Greenville (S. C.) Letter.

GREENVILLE, S. C., April 1, 1895.

In accordance with an article written in the SOUTHWESTERN by the Rev. E. L. Parks, D. D., professor of systematic theology in Gammon Theological Seminary, March 14, 1895, concerning the Steward Missionary Foundation for Africa, the Rev. D. M. Minus, A. M., pastor of John Wesley M. E. Church in this city, called the young people together at the close of the morning services on yesterday, and Brother E. R. Holloway read the article referred to above, after which Brother Minus stated the object of the Steward Missionary Foundation, and urged the talented young men and women of our Church to organize a local Missionary Foundation for Africa. Mr. E. B. Holloway endorsed the statement of the pastor with a strong speech, after which Mr. Holloway was elected president; Miss S. F. Cooke, vice president; Miss J. V. Cooke, secretary; Miss Carrie Brown, assistant secretary. Bro. Minus has also urged the claim of the SOUTHWESTERN upon the congregation, and several persons are preparing to take the paper. Yours for Christ,

J. V. COOKE.

A Correction.

The Syracuse ladies desire me to ask you to correct a statement made by Bishop Bowman, in his article in the SOUTHWESTERN of March 7, namely: He said the Peck Industrial Home was erected under the supervision of the Northern New York Conference, while it is the Central New York Conference that has donated so much. This is a case of "Honor to whom honor is due. Respectfully,

H. M. HEGEMAN.

Important Facts.

If you have dull and heavy pain across forehead and about the eyes; if the nostrils are frequently stopped up and followed by a disagreeable discharge; if soreness in the nose and bleeding from the nostrils is often experienced; if you are very sensitive to cold in the head accompanied with headache, then you may be sure you have catarrh, and should (immediately) resort to Ely's Cream Balm for a cure. The remedy will give instant relief.

LESSON HYMN. 10, 11, 12.

Lift your glad voices in triumph on high,
For Jesus hath risen, and man shall not die;
Vain were the terrors that gathered around him,
And short the dominion of death and the grave;
He burst from the fetters of darkness that bound him,
Resplendent in glory, to live and to save:
Loud was the chorus of angels on high,—
The Savior hath risen, and man shall not die.

First Corinthians was written about Easter, A. D. 57, from Ephesus, by Paul the apostle.

The Resurrection of Jesus occurred exactly one week after The Triumphal Entry, of which we studied last Sunday. Both events took place on Sunday.

Read and study this lesson in connection with the accounts of the resurrection given by Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John.

Easter Lesson.

(1 Cor. 15. 3-14.)

Written for the Southwestern.

By Rev. G. N. Jolly, Kentucky Conference

GOLDEN TEXT.—Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept. (1 Cor. 15. 20.)

This first letter of St. Paul to the church at Corinth was written from Ephesus in the year '57. There was strife in that church, the first four chapters was designed to remove it. There were impurities among them, the next two chapters were intended to do away with them. There was among them questions on which they could not agree. They were sent to St. Paul for his decision. They referred to marriage, to heathen sacrifices, to disorders at love feasts and the Lord's Supper, to spiritual gifts, and to the resurrection of the dead. His answers are found from the seventh to the fifteenth chapters inclusive. The sixteenth chapter includes the Epistle. The "subscription" is no part of the letter. It was added by a later hand. It is worthless.

The word Easter occurs but once (Acts 12:4) in the authorized version of the Bible. The Revised Version has put the word Passover in its place there. Easter was the Saxon goddess of love. Among pagans a feast was given in her honor each year in the month of April. It was eight centuries after the death of Christ before this feast became universally associated with His resurrection. But "To the law and to the testimony."

I. The Death, Burial, and Resurrection of Christ (3-8). 1. His death. This is clear from the following facts—(1) It was predicted that He should die. "He made His grave with the wicked, and with the rich in His death." "They shall look upon Me whom they have pierced" "Destroy this temple and in three days I will raise it up." "And He began to teach them that the Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected of the elders, and of the chief priests and scribes, and be killed and after three days rise again." Jesus died "according to the Scriptures." (2) It was the determination of his enemies to put Him to death. They dogged His tracks, laid plans, secured His arrest, drug Him before Annas Caiaphas, and Pilate. They obtained witnesses to testify against Him, took Him through a mock trial, and infuriated the mob against Him. They had but one object in this, that was to secure His death. (3) No one could endure what Jesus suffered and live. He was deserted by His nation, His relatives, His disciples, and His God. In the garden, at the hour of midnight, while He wrestled with God in prayer, His agony was so intense that "His sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground." His scourging was fearful. His back was made bare. He was likely struck with a leather strap split in prongs. In each thong was fastened a bone or metal with sharp angles. Every blow would lift the flesh in many places. Sometimes the eyes and teeth were knocked out. Victims condemned to death were occasionally killed in this way. The crucifixion soon followed. The hands and feet were nailed to the wood. The cross was raised. Jesus hung on same for six hours. The wounds inflamed, a burning fever soon followed, and a parching thirst caused the most intense suffering. Finally a spear was thrust into His side, the point of which pierced the living membrane about the heart, and from the wound flowed both water and blood. Can the rankest infidel doubt for one moment the death of the Christ.

2. His burial. His friends and His enemies took part in His interment. His friends went to Pilate, begged the body, took it down from the cross, wrapped in white linen, laid it in Joseph's new tomb, and rolled a great stone over the entrance. His enemies secured a guard, sealed the tomb, and placed a watch about it. Yet, with all this precaution, the body is missing from the grave. Did His enemies take it away? No; it was their object to keep it there. Did His friends remove it. Surely not. It was given to them. They had no use for it. They laid it to rest, and departed from the grave with sad hearts, feeling that all their hopes were forever blasted.

3. His Resurrection. On the morning of the third day there was an earthquake, and an angel of the Lord descended from heaven, rolled back the stone and sat upon it. "His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow. For fear of him, the keepers did shake and become as dead men." Jesus arose from the dead, removed the winding sheet of death, folded the napkin that was over His face and laid it in another place, and passed out of the tomb in all of His majesty and glory. "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? The sting of death is sin, and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

There are ten recorded appearances of Jesus between His resurrection and ascension. Six are named in this lesson. But one of these occurred after He was taken up to heaven. He was seen of Cephas. "The Lord is risen indeed, and hath appeared unto Simon." We have nothing in particular of this appearance. It seems to have been well known to the apostles. "Then He was seen of the twelve" (John 20:19-29). The doors were shut for fear of the Jews. Jesus stood in their midst and said, "Peace be unto you." He showed them His hands and His side. They were glad. He breathed on them and said, "Receive the Holy Ghost." He sent them forth to remit and to retain sins. That is, to receive into, and to reject from entering, His kingdom. "After that He was seen of above five hundred brethren at once." This appearance likely took place on a mountain in Galilee. It was according to previous appointment. The place had been named and the time given. When the day came many had assembled. Jesus appeared unto them. Some worshipped, others doubted. He gave to them the Great Commission—"Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." His appearance to James is not mentioned elsewhere. After this He was seen "of all the apostles." This likely means more than the twelve. It refers, no doubt, to the time of the Ascension. They met in a room in Jerusalem. He convinced them He was the Christ, and His death and resurrection were according to the Scriptures. He "led them out as far as to Bethany," lifted up His hands and "blessed them," and "was parted from them, and carried up into heaven." Then "last of all He was seen of me also." That is, last of all, down to this time. He likely refers to the time of his conversion, when Ananias came in and laid his hands on his head and said—"The Lord, even Jesus that appeared unto thee in the way." St. Paul saw Jesus a number of times during his ministry. The apostles were slow to believe in the resurrection, but when they became convinced, they were true to their convictions. They had no interest in making good the story, yet they would die rather than give it up.

The existence of the Church, with its ordinances, is positive proof of the resurrection of Christ. Its influence to-day is felt throughout the world. It is moving on, expelling cruelty, freeing the slave, protecting the captive, nursing the sick, sheltering the orphan, elevating woman, honoring poverty, ennobling labor, sanctifying marriage, creating chastity, showing the race to be a brotherhood, and lifting man out of sin and death into a life of holiness and heaven. It is now saving the world at the rate of about two thousand each day. Praise the Lord.

In the Spring

Nearly everybody needs a good medicine. The impurities which have accumulated in the blood during the cold months must be expelled, or when the mild days come, and the effect of bracing air is lost, the body is liable to be overcome by debility or some serious disease. The remarkable success achieved by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the many words of praise it has received, make it worthy your confidence. We ask you to give this medicine a trial. We are sure it will do you good. Read the testimonials published in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla, all from reliable, grateful people. They tell the story.

FROM PRESIDING ELDERS.

Navasota District—

Dear Brethren of the Navasota District, Texas Conference—We have just finished up the first round. We listened very carefully to the reports of each, especially to the pastors'. We want each of you, as pasters, to be inspired with enthusiasm for God and the prosperity of the great Church which you have the honor to represent. Put yourselves not down as failnres, but fall into the work with glad hearts to succeed or die; there is no time for dying now, when we can live (I mean on your work). Success is yours if you will carry Christian sunshine into your work, into your Church, and into the homes of your people. In fact, you can not fail. Be a joyous, happy pastor. Show the people that you mean to assist them. Have them and the great work of the Church at heart. Be faithful and true to God, the Church, yourselves, and your families.

Now, my comrades, you have promised the Church that you would be faithful in all things pertaining to the interest of the Church. Will you see to it, and perform the same? God bless you. We don't want any blanks in our reports when we shall stand before the grand master at conference. See to it, dear brethren, that your full apportionment is raised for benevolences. Let each charge go into first class rank this year. Be kind to your people. Don't scold them from your pulpit or be always fault-finding, but preach to them the Gospel of the Son of God. I shall do what I can to assist you. Don't be afraid, you can approach me at any time. On the 15th after Easter, let me hear from each pastor the result of your success. I am your brother in harmony with the Church,

W. L. DUNCAN, P. E.

Savannah District—

Dear Brethren—Our first round was more encouraging than we expected. We hope that Children's Day will be a grand rally day all over the district. Epworth Leagues are being rapidly organized. The Epworth League Convention, which will convene at Savannah, the date of which has not yet been fixed, will be given later on. The Sunday School Institute will be at the same place and time. The District Conference will be held at Valdosta, Aug. 22, at 9 a. m. JOHN WATTS, P. E.

South New Orleans District—

To Pastors and Sunday School Superintendents: Brethren—Without unnecesary delays thereafter, you will please forward to our Missionary Treasurer, Rev. S. Hunt, D. D., 150 Fifth avenue, New York City, the Easter Sunday collections for missionary purposes, and his receipt therefor will serve as your voucher at the annual conference. Report amount of your collections of that day to me, and oblige yours,

PIERRE LANDRY, P. E.,
Box 95, Donaldsonville, La.

Shubuta District—

Dear Brethren—The first District Conference for this year will convene in Dudley Chapel, Wednesday morning, at 9 o'clock, June 26, at Ellisville, Miss. All members are earnestly requested to be present at the opening. All the Sunday School workers and members of the Epworth League Chapters are especially requested to be there on Wednesday, as a S. S. Institute will be held. Pastor David F. Dudley and his most excellent people are preparing to give the conference a grand reception. Drs. Hammond and Mason are expected to be present.

Fraternally yours,

J. M. SHUMPERT, P. E.

Greenwood District—

Brethren—The first district conference will convene at Vaiden, June 26-30 inclusive. The person presenting receipts for greatest amount of cash sent in for subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN, will be presented with a neat Teacher's Bible. Who will lead? Dear brethren, Drs Hartzell and Hamilton very kindly asks that all the F. A. and S. E. money be sent in within the next thirty days. Let the Greenwood District lead. I have heard from some of the pastors, who promise to get the Bible and at the same time have all their F. A. and S. E. money in by commencement day (April 23) at Rust University. Can we hear every brother say "I will"? Amen! Yours, very humbly,

W. E. MASK, P. E.

Michigan's Benefactor.

AN OFT REPEATED STORY OF TRUE PHILANTHROPY.

What Chas. H. Hackley has Done for Western Michigan—How the only Cloud in the Life of an Honored Man was Brushed Away by Science.

[From Grand Rapids, Mich., Evening Press.]

The most beautiful spot in Muskegon is inseparably associated with the name of Hackley, and in all Western Michigan there is not a name better known, and among the studious and those most interested in deeds of philanthropy, this name is known and admired. Chas. H. Hackley has been in the lumber business continuously since 1856 and in that time has amassed a fortune which gives him a rating among the wealthy men of the nation. But with wealth there did not come that tightening of the purse strings which is generally a marked characteristic of wealthy men.

There is no prettier spot in the state than Hackley Place in a square surrounded and pierced by stone walks emphasized with their whiteness the green of faultless kept lawns, its crowning pride a towering soldier's monument on the top of which stands a bronze figure pointing ever in remembrance of the heroes who died that the nation might live. Surrounding this park are the magnificent Hackley Public Library—a poem in granite—with its 60,000 volumes, and the equally stately Hackley school like a bee hive with its 600 children. Other elegant buildings testify likewise to the liberality and munificence of this man who has pulled wealth out of the forests of Michigan.

It is no wonder then that the name of Charles H. Hackley is known at home and abroad. His munificence to Muskegon alone represents an outlay of nearly half a million. For the past twenty years he has been a constant sufferer from neuralgia and rheumatism, also numbness of the lower limbs, so much so that it has seriously interfered with his pleasure in life. For some time past his friends have noticed that he has seemed to grow young again and to have recovered the health which he had in youth.

To a correspondent of the Press Mr. Hackley explained the secret of this transformation, and to his friends who have known how he suffered it is indeed a transformation. "I have suffered for over 20 years," he said, seated in his private office, "with pains in my lower limbs so severely that the only relief I could get at night was by putting cold water compresses on my limbs. I was bothered more at night than in the day time. The neuralgic and rheumatic pains in my limbs, which had been growing in intensity for years, finally became chronic. I made three trips to the Hot Springs with only partial relief and then fell back to my original state. I couldn't sit still and my sufferings began to make life look very blue. Two years ago last September I noticed an account of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and what they had done for others, and some cases so nearly resembled mine that I was interested. But I did not know whether the testimonials were genuine or not and I did not wish to be humbugged, so I wrote to one who had given a testimonial, an eminent professor of music in Canada. The reply I received was even stronger than the printed testimonial and it gave me faith in the medicine.

"I began taking the pills and found them to be all that the professor had told me they would be. It was two or three months before I experienced any perceptible betterment of my condition. My disease was of such long standing that I did not expect speedy recovery and was thankful even to be relieved. I progressed rapidly, however, towards recovery and for the last six months have felt myself a perfectly well man. I have recommended the pills to many people and am only too glad to assist others to health through the medium of this wonderful medicine. I cannot say too much for what it has done for me."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box, or 6 boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

WE are much pained to hear of the death of the honored father of Rev. Dr. M. C. B. Mason, assistant corresponding secretary of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society. The sad event occurred at Houma, La., the home of Father Mason, on the 6th instant. He passed away in the peace of the Gospel, triumphing in the assurance of a saving faith. We invoke the prayers of the Church for our bereaved brother and snrviving relatives.

THE semi annual meeting of the General Executive Board of the Women's Home Missionary Society will occur in Cincinnati April 26 and 27. On Friday, the 26th, the meeting will be held in Wiley Hall, and be open to all interested in hearing the reports of the officers of the society and secretaries of the varions bureans. It is expected that a large number of the Execntive Board will be present; not only those residing in Cincinnati and vicinity, but many from a distance. It is hoped there will be a large attendance of the friends of the work at this opening meeting. On Saturday a private executive session will be held for the transaction of bnsiness, and it is probable that the business meeting will continue on Monday.

CENRTAL MISSOURI CONFERENCE NOTES.

We were in royal company at Fayette, Missouri, and felt from the start, the warmth of a Central Missouri welcome. God bless the noble men. It was a contest whether we should be the gnest of Brother South at the parsonage, already filled to overflowing, or of the genial and progressive layman, Brother J. H. Diggs. Diggs won, and we were soon installed as one of the family in company with Presiding Elder J. Will Jackson, Revs. Patten, Smith and McAllister. Sister Diggs reigned as the queen of the home, and the guests gladly paid tribute to her skill in the happy art of entertaining. We have a standing invitation to retnrn and hope to accept.

It seemed like Olivet to be with this royal company of the elect. Fayette was onrs for the time being at least. The citizens, white and black, looked a welcome. Let it be said that Shem, Ham and Joseph dwelt together in peace for once at least during the closing hours of the nineteenth century. And we saw, as it were, the dawning of the "New Era." President Hammond, the able and accomplished snccessor of the distingnished Bishop Hendrix; Prof. Bond, of royal Methodist lineage and training, and Rev. W. S. Woodard, the accomplished and venerable historian of Missonri Methodism, formed a historic group as they exemplified in a pre-eminent degree, the greatest of all virtnes.

Presiding Elders Hughes, Gillam, Jackson, Reeves and Clark are aeceptable leaders.

There is a good number of promising yonng men in this conference who will be felt in the coming years.

AN APOSTLE OF INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION.

Prof. Booker T. Washington, principal of the Tnskegee (Ala.) Normal and Indnstrial Institnte, lectured recently at Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn., on the snbject of "Indnstrial Edncation," and said among other very valnable things:

"As a race there are things we mnst learn to do—one is to pnt brains in the common occnpations of life, and the other is to dignify common labor. If we do not, we cannot hold onr own as a race. Ninety per cent of any race on the globe earns its living by the common occupations of life, and the Negro can be no exception to this rnle. I have been told that the young colored man is cramped, and that after he gets his education there were few chances to use it. I have little patience with such argument. The idea has been too prevalent that the educated colored man must either teach, preach, be a clerk or follow some profession. The educated colored man must, more and more, go to the farms, into the trades, start brickyards, sawmills, factories, open coal mines; in short, apply his education to conquering the forces of nature."

The professor has a happy way of putting things, and not only so, but a happier way of practically demonstrating the reasonableness of his propositions. His great school at Tuskegee is a triumphant vindication. While our people have been very seriously handicapped in all the avennes of indnstry, there has nevertheless been a failnre on their part to take an intelligent view of the great evolntionary process which has been going on in almost every department of industry. Says the professor:

"Twenty years ago, every large and paying barbershop over the country was in the hands of black men; to day, in all the large cities, yon cannot find a single large or first-class barbershop operated by colored men. The black men once had the monopoly of that industry, bnt had gone on from day to day in the same old monotonous way without improving anything abont the industry. As a result the white man had taken it up, put brains into it, watched all the fine points, improved and progressed until his shop to-day was not known as a barbershop, bnt a tonsorial parlor, and he was no longer called a barber, but a tonsorial artist. Just so with the old Negro man with his bncket of whitewash and his long pole and brush had given way to the white man, who had applied his knowledge of chemistry to mixing materials, his knowledge of physics to the blending of colors, and his knowledge of geometry to figuring and decorating the ceiling. Bnt the white man was not called a whitewasher; he was termed a house decorator. He had put brains into his work, he had given dignity to it, and the old colored man with the long pole and bucket was a thing of the past. The old Negro woman and her washtub were fast being supplanted by the white man with his steam laundry, washing over a hundred shirts an honr. The many colored men who had formerly earned a living by cntting the grass in the front yards and keeping the flower beds in trim were no competitors for the white man, who, bringing his knowledge of surveying and terracing and plotting land, and his knowledge of botany and his blending of colors into active play, had dignified and promoted the work. He was not called a grass-cutter or a yard-cleaner, bnt a florist or a landscape gardener. The old black "mammy" could never again enter in the sick room, where she was once known as a peerless nurse. She had given place to the tidy little white woman, with her neat white cap and apron, her knowledge of physiology, bandaging, principles of diseases and the administration of medicine, who had dignified, beantified and glorified the art of nnrsing, and had turned it into a profession. Jnst so, too, the black cook was going out of date nnder the influence of the snperior knowledge and art of cookery possessed by white "chefs," who were educated men and commanded large salaries. * * * Are we going to put brains into these common occnpations? Are we going to apply the knowledge we gain at school? Are we going to keep up with the world, or are we going to let these occnpations, which mean onr very life blood, slip from ns? Edncation itself is worthless; it is only as it is used that it is of value. A man might as well fill his head with so mnch cheap soup as with learning, nnless he is going to nse his knowledge."

These noble words are worthy of onr highest consideration. Let the race profit by them.

AS TO REMOVAL OF THE "SOUTHWESTERN."

The Epworth Herald, one of our most reliable journals, had this item a short time ago:

"There is a decided sentiment in favor of removing the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE from New Orleans to Charleston, South Carolina."

It is quite probable that the rumor of a contemplated removal will be as much of a snrprise to the good people of Charleston, as to the people of New Orleans. Neither of the cities has expressed itself favorably as to the feasibility, desirability and practicability of the proposed change. We do not know that there is any very serious disposition on the part of the constituted authorities, looking toward the removal of the SOUTHWESTERN from New Orleans. We opine, however, that such a movement would be based upon the circulation of the paper, its moral and substantial support in the city of its publication. It is perfectly reasonable to suppose that the agents and members of the General Book Committee would seek to obtain the best information possible, and to put the paper upon the most permanent basis. The agents get their information from our books, which show that there has been the most unaccountable apathy in the city of New Orleans, where, with sixteen churches, sixteen pastors, and an enrolled membership of over 3000 sonls, the people have so far failed to fully appreciate the benefits of the institntion which the Church has so generously located there. Less than three hundred subscribers represent the nnmber of those in the city of New Orleans, who are helping in a substantial way to establish the paper. It is not the purpose at this writing to even attempt to give reasons why this is a fact. No practical person will donbt that with our constituency here, as a matter of bnsiness, if for no other reason, we ought to have 1000 names of cash subscribers on our books. Many good words have been spoken by the presiding elders, whose work centers in the city, but for some reason there is not the increase which we ought to expect.

It has been said that the support of our various Advocates is not so liberal in the places where they are published as in the other parts of their patronizing territory. It is nevertheless true, that the support which the SOUTHWESTERN receives here is ont of all proportion to the certified membership; and if we take into consideration the character and ability of the men who have the spiritual oversight of the flock, the small subseription list accredited to them is almost astounding.

As to the beantiful city of Charleston, South Carolina, we have this to say: that if a removal were desirable on the hypothesis of a more liberal support to the paper, our ardor wonld be dampened not a little by consulting the subscription lists from that city, where we have only six snbscribers, each of whom is a clergyman, notwithstanding in one church alone there is an enrolled membership aggregating 2,000.

We cheerfnlly bear testimonial to the fact that the agents of both the Eastern and Western honses, as well as the entire membership of the Book Committee, have manifested unusual interest in the welfare of the SOUTHWESTERN, and there has beeu a very generons interchange of snggestions as to the most practicable and feasible plans to secure its snccess. It is the general verdict, that there has been improvement in all departments of the paper, and that the thing most needed now is more cash snbscribers, and more at once. There will be bnt little objection to any change that will accomplish this very desirable result. Meanwhile, we say to onr brethren in the large cities, who may have an ambition to have the paper located in their midst, that the most potential way to bring about that result would be to carry their subscription lists up to that point, which would justify the agents in ordering the change, if deemed advisable.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Easter—"He Is Risen!"

By REV. J. H. REED, A. M., Paris, Texas.

The centuries are milestones along the pathway of human civilization; events are chapters in the history of time, and epochs mark periods in the great drama of the world.

Celebrations of great public moment, both political and ecclesiastical, are as old as the human race.

Three annual feasts were observed by the Jewish race, in commemoration of important events: First—The Feast of Unleavened Bread, which commemorated their miraculous deliverance from Egyptian bondage. Second—The Feast of Harvests, which told of their triumphs amid the hardships of husbandry. Third—The Feast of Ingatherings, which marked the time when glad hosannas would resound throughout their borders, because of the abundant sheaves being garnered in ample storehouses.

Centuries before human lips had learned to praise the true God, the religious ceremonies of the nations marked some special event that called forth adoration to some supposed deity. The fire worshipers deified this raging element, for although it is destructive, they supposed life to be its embodiment. The human sacrifices of the Druids, the tutelary gods of the Romans, the deification of inanimate objects or persons, all had its origin in religious rites and ceremonies, and mark the religious thought of mankind until divine revelation touched the darkened minds of men and transformed them into worshipers of the unknown God. Bigotry and idolatry have constituted the greater part of the religious thought of the world. The universality of the belief in a supreme being may be seen in the olympiads of the Greeks, and in the many festivities practiced by other heathen peoples. The ancient Germans are said to have worshipped their goddess Ostera with bonfires and illuminations, together with the singing of national anthems; this was an annual feast which occurred on the first Sabbath after the full moon in the month Nisan. This heathen practice was carried to Britian by the Angle-Saxons, which finally became a church ceremony and adopted into the creed of the Western church, thus, in process of time developing into what is known by the Christian world as Easter.

It may be well to observe that our own glorious Christianity is but the product of the religious concept of heathenism, having its genuineness and authenticity in the immaculate lamb of God, and if we eliminate from our creed the Man of Galilee, the whole system would bear no more impress upon the world's thought than does the tale of the Arabian Knights. Like as in the political history and civilization of mankind, sixteen decisive battles have changed the tide that bathes the shores of humanity, and left an ineffaceable impress upon the memory of the race. So in ecclesiastical history and Christian civilization, we reach our climax in this annual celebration that lifts the dark pall from nations and casts the anchor of hope in the depths of a sea of ecstasy. We stand to-day upon the threshold of an era radiant with universal rejoicings and victories through and by the cross. In all lands monuments have been erected to perpetuate the names of heroes and heroines who sacrificed their lives upon the altar of liberty and patriotism. The discovery of America will always stand connected with the name of the world's greatest navigator and geographer, and the World's Columbian Exposition has already designated the place he shall ever occupy in the hearts of men; but this and similar events dwindle into insignificance when compared with him who disrobed and dethroned his Satanic Majesty and ushered in the dawn of the Christian era. Kings and princes, philosophers, scientists, popes, atheists, agnostics, bigots and infidels, all dictated the future destiny of the world amid delusive hopes, while the race was left to struggle in the very blackness of darkness for the solution of the mightiest problem of the age—redemption—until in the fullness of time the star of the East heralded the birth of the wonderful Counselor, the mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of peace! Glorious dawn! Blessed day! Ten thousand sacred memories cluster around this greatest of all events. It eclipses the glory of Marathon, turns into silence the praises of Syracuse, puts to naught the warriors of Arbella, and even takes away the memory of Hastings, Orleans, Saratoga, Waterloo and Gettysburg. What meaneth this universal commotion throughout the Christian world? Why this unabated interest in the celebration of a day which had its origin in heathen worship? Why these wonderful floral displays as if spreading branches along the pathway of a victor returning from triumphant entry? Whose memory do the nations of the world perpetuate by their loud acclaims and hallelujahs? Let the devotees of Christianity answer. Nineteen centuries ago, just outside the walls of Jerusalem, a lonely Nazerene was nailed to a shameful cross amid the scourges, mocks and huzzae of a wicked world.

He dies! the Friend of sinners dies!
Lo! Salem's daughters weep around;
A solemn darkness veils the skies,
A sudden trembling shakes the ground.

Sin raged and the armaments of hell unfurled their direful colors to a sinful breeze. Demons sat enthroned in eternal darkness, and laughed to scorn the death agonies and groans of a dying Savior. Into the jaws of death had rushed the nations of the earth for forty centuries. Listen! The spotless lamb of God gives up the ghost and is laid in a rock-hewn sepulchre, while demons boasted of their momentary victory over the limp and cold form of the Son of God. See! He sleeps within the cold embrace of the tomb upon which the strongest governmental seal has been placed. Listen to the tramp! tramp! tramp! of the Roman legions as they defy the approach of the terror-stricken disciples who are completely overcome with deepest despair. Creation felt the mighty stroke; the joys of the whole earth were turned into sorrows; the natural laws of the universe for the first time lost their force and proud nature, drooped her head and wept icy tears over the calamitous defeat and ignominous death of the world's redeemer. Angels peeped out from high heaven, gazed upon the scene, and with mute lips and silent harps they wondered if divine wisdom had failed. The kingdoms of the world that had stood in awe concerning this new king and his spiritual kingdom which they could not understand, now clapped their hands in exultant triumph. God the Father sat upon the circles of the universe and surveyed the scene with perfect complacency, since through his omiscience He had decreed that "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." The spirits of just men who had died in the faith began to tremble, and the eternal decree of Him who made all things seemed now to have been reversed by the opposing forces and noises of a sinful world. The solemn interrogatory went through the earth: "Watchman, what of the night?" While he who should change the momentary gloom into radiant glory lay as quiet as in a night's repose. But lo! the Sabbath dawns. Three days have witnessed the mighty Conqueror within the cold shades of the tomb. Hark! the silence of the hour is broken. A messenger from the celestial world, speeding upon the wings of light, rolls back the dark curtain of night and floods the world with heavenly glory! See! he touches the seal and it bursts. Roman guards shrink from duty at the coming of this celestial visitor. The great stone is rolled away, and Jesus the conqueror of death and hell, folds up his grave clothing and walks out with victory stamped upon his serene brow.

"The rising God forsakes the tomb,
In vain the tomb forbids his rise;
Cherubic legions guard him home,
And shout him welcome to the skies."

O blessed Christ! We join with poets in loud acclaims throughout Christendom, and let the glorious news roll on:

"The morning kindles all the sky,
The heavens resound with anthems high;
The shining angels as they speed,
Proclaim, "The Lord is risen indeed!"
Vainly with rocks his tomb was barred,
While Roman guards kept watch and ward,
Majestic from the spoiled tomb,
In pomp of triumph he has come.
O Christ! thou King compassionate!
Our hearts possess, on thee we wait,
Help us to render praises due
To thee, the endless ages through."

"The Wolf also Shall Dwell with the Lamb."

By N. H. SPEIGHT, D. D., Anniston, Ala.

In the last issue of the "Methodist Advocate Journal" of Chattanooga, I notice that a Union Association had been organized in that city, composed of all the evangelical ministers of the place, both white and colored. We look for a mighty forward move on all the lines of Satan from this Union. Where Christian ministers, regardless of color, unite themselves together for good, good must be the result. Not long since in the Baltimore Conference, Bishops Wilson of the M. E. Church South and Wayman of the A. M. E. Church sat upon the platform with our Bishops Andrews and Hurst. Surely we see a brighter day breaking and prejudice giving away as a cloud before the summer sun. If in every Southern city an association of the white and colored ministers were organized, better feeling would exist between the two races—could not be otherwise, from the fact that it would be a pulpit topic.

A great deal of the bad feeling comes from the pulpit, and it will take the united effort of the pulpit to break it down. The Negro of the South has been taught from the pulpit by many, and especially those of strictly race churches, to hate the white, because they were white, and the whites were taught to hate the black, because they were black. This teaching was carried on until prejudice like mountains stood between the two. Now I must say we are reaping a terrible harvest. But a better day is coming. The pulpits can do more to make this Southland the land of God than any other power that may be put in operation. The day will come when more Wilsons and Waymans will be found, together with more Andrews and Hursts.

What good would Union Ministers' Associations do? First—It would bring our white brethren to sit down in the house of God with our colored brethren. Second—It would bring the intelligent white minister to face the intelligent colored minister, and the colored minister that has not prepared himself for his work would readily see his needs and prepare. Third—It would bring them to discuss subjects of vital importance and plan together for the good of both races. Fourth—It would cause the leaders of both races to respect each other on the streets and elsewhere; our people of both races must know this and better feeling would exist between our people. Last—Through this work lynch laws would go under, mobs broken up and the famous Jim-Crow-car system would be derailed and ditched forever.

Let the watchmen of the South awake, as in Chattanooga, and haste to sound the bugle blast in the cities, valleys and mountains until the power of God is felt throughout this country.

The circulation of Scriptures in China during 1894 by the American Bible Society amounted to 305,715 volumes, a greater number than ever before. The issues from the Bible House during the month of March were 64,349 volumes.

Resolutions of Sympathy by the First Quarterly Conference, March 30 and April 3.

By D. K. MICKELBERRY.

WHEREAS, It has pleased our all-wise heavenly Father to call from our midst the wife of our pastor, Rev. M. J. Dyer, Sister Emma Dyer, on March 5, 1895, in her great usefulness; thereby casting a sad gloom over us and our church in this, the greatest moment of its existence; therefore be it

Resolved, That we bow in humble submission in the death of Sister Dyer, and lament the untimely taken away of her from us at this moment, and extend to Brother Dyer, his daughter Julia, and niece, Miss Rhoda, our hearts of sympathy and earnest consideration, and pray God's blessing upon them in this their sad hour of their afflictions, and pray God to sustain them in lasting remembrance, "while we lose, heaven gains." Blessed are the dead who dieth in the Lord.

It was ordered that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the SOUTHWESTERN for publication, and be spread upon our minutes. So ordered.

CORNELIA HASON, Secretary.

The "St. Louis Christian Advocate" of the M. E. Church South issued a special Easter edition, which was exclusively a woman's paper. It was unique and will merit a more than ordinary perusal. It contains many fine half-tone engravings of elect ladies, and is brim full of interesting matter splendidly arranged.

NOT A SICK DAY

For Over Thirty Years!

RESULT OF USING

AYER'S PILLS

"Ayer's Cathartic Pills for over thirty years have kept me in good health, never having had a sick day in all that time. Before I was twenty I suffered almost continually—as a result of constipation—from dyspepsia, headaches, neuralgia, or boils and other eruptive diseases. When I became convinced that nine-tenths of my troubles were caused by constipation, I began the use of Ayer's Pills, with the most satisfactory results, never having a single attack that did not readily yield to this remedy. My wife, who had been an invalid for years, also began to use Ayer's Pills, and her health was quickly restored. With my children I had noticed that nearly all their ailments were preceded by constipation, and I soon had the pleasure of knowing that with children as with parents, Ayer's Pills, if taken in season, avert all danger of sickness."—H. THE PRECIOUS BLOOD.

God's holy law transgressed,
Speaks nothing but despair;
Convinced of guilt, with grief oppressed,
We find no comfort there.

Not all our groans and tears,
Nor works which we have done,
Nor vows, nor promises, nor prayers,
Can e'er for sin atone.

Relief alone is found
In Jesus' precious blood:
'Tis this that heals the mortal wound,
And reconciles to God.

High lifted on the cross
The spotless Victim dies;
This is salvation's only source;
Hence all our hopes arise.

—Benjamin Beddome.

DAILY THOUGHTS.

[From Phillips Brooks.]

APRIL 18.—We all know how it is, all along, with the life in which we are living. Sometimes the sky which is above us, which is always radiant with light, opens its supremest depths and lets us see, as it were, into the very city of the throne of God. Sometimes, as we sail on the ocean, some peculiar radiance upon its surface seems to open all its depths and let us see how deeply it mirrows all the world. So it is in the life of men, and so it is especially in the life of the great Man who stands as our Example, our Savior, our Guide.

We never see so deeply into the depths of any human nature as when we see that nature lifting itself up by prayer. Prayer is the consummation of the human life, and it is also its spontaneous action. And so, when one prays in the presence of his fellow-men, it seems as if those fellow-men, looking into his life most deeply, would be able, at any time, to enter into the richness of his conscience, his communion with God, which must be the fullness of his life. And so we can see that when Christ stood before His disciples and offered up His heart to God, then most deeply did men look into His soul and understand Him.

APRIL 19.—The great thing is you must live near to God. You must let no problem interest you that does not bring you into the life of God. And remember what we talk about when we talk about coming near to God, and God coming near to us. I do not know what it is for God to come near to us. He is infinitely near at every moment of our life. I do not know how He can come any nearer to me, or how I can come any nearer to Him, except in the discovery of His nearness to me. There is no coming nearer of God to man, except the showing to man how near He is to man already. And there is no coming near of man to God, except in the man's coming to know how near he always has been to the heavenly Father. And so the coming near to God is just the opening of the eyes, just the knowing of the fact that God is infinitely near to you. You cannot picture greater nearness. You cannot crowd yourself to His bosom more closely than He is holding you to His bosom now.

APRIL 20.—I am to serve my fellow-men because they are God's children; because, in the great, deep mystery of the words that Jesus spoke, when I am serving them I am serving Him. The life that I am to cultivate lies in Him.

* * *

APRIL 21.—Self-culture and self-sacrifice, both present themselves as true and pressing duties of a human existence. No man has any right to contemplate the life before him, no man has any right to be living at any moment of his life, unless he knows himself to be doing all that he can to develop his soul and make it shine with its peculiar lustre in the firmament of existence. And no man has a right to be living at any moment unless he is also casting himself away and entering into the complete and devoted service of his fellow-men. Self-culture and self-sacrifice,—these two have been the great inspiring forces of existence in all ages, in every land.

The Epworth League.

Look Up and Lift Up.

[Composed by J. B ASKINS and recited at the mass meeting of the Epworth League at Simpson's Chapel, D. C., March 20, 1895.]

By looking up we see the light
And know how to proceed;
By lifting up we do the right
To those who stand in need.
By looking up to things that's just,
Our duties are made plain;
By lifting up one out the dust,
Our works will not be vain.
Will you look up, both young and old,
Who this Leaguer attend?
Will you lift up from want and cold,
Your fallen fellow-men?
Look up, look up, will be our theme,
In year of ninety-five,
Lift up, lift will be the scheme,
Of those who will survive.
By reading up, young girl and boy,
True knowledge you'll maintain;
'Twill be your everlasting joy,
And an everlasting gain.
Read books and papers that are fraught
With things that's good—that's true,
And treasure up the things that's taught
By him, by her to you.
When fleeting years shall roll around,
Epworth Leagues will still look up;
Lift up humanity wherever found
Beneath want's bitter cup.
We are here to seek the low, the meek,
And show the path they ought to tread;
Come in and sit and get the benefit
Of addresses and papers read.
I will appeal in words like steel
To you, dear Leaguers, young and old,
In words of light we must do right
To remain within this fold.

Should the Afro-American Emigrate? If So, Why?

By W. F. SMITH, D. D., Decatur, Ala.

This is a question that I feel I am unable to discuss, but yet I am forced to attempt it when I see the uneasiness that exists in the Church and State for my people. Four million of them were born in a single day, and the country was flooded with speakers, male and female, waking up the oppressed manhood that we had suffered under the cruel bondage for more than two hundred years; and the enactment of the 14th and 15th amendment of the constitution of the United States made us feel that we were fit subjects for American citizens; that we were entitled to the protection of the laws of the American government.

But on account of the pressure we have been forced to move to the hills of Tennessee, Virginia and Alabama. We have been forced out of these States into the swamps of Mississippi, and then to the Western States along the Gulf and Atlantic States. We have been pressed to the edge, having but little protection anywhere. Our people have been shot down like cattle. If they hide in the earth, they are dug out and shot down. If some white man or woman with a Christian heart in them gets our sympathy, or speaks a word for us, they are snubbed in society, hissed at as they walk the streets, or boycotted in their business. We call on the Deity as our witness. Many who came among us in the dark days of reconstruction to teach our people have been whipped, butchered, and shot down. What for? Because they were instructing us in the things that were right, religiously and spiritualy. While we admit that some of these instructors were for honor, office and emolument, nevertheless it is a fact undeniable, in spite of the false teachings and great slaughter of our people, and strictly cast prejudices that exist, we have wonderfully thriven—religiously, politically and financially, in thirty years. No nation, perhaps, has made such wonderful progress as the Afro-American. There are now more than eight million of us, almost doubled since the emancipation.

We have friends in the South and the North, it is true, but it seems they are powerless to help us. In many places in some of the States in the Union, it is said, a colored man is not allowed to reside. In many places of this Southland the poor helpless Negro has been taken out of the hands of the proper officers after they are arrested and hung to trees and beams, and to burning stakes, from one to six in a pile; and the rest of the Negroes are powerless to help them. And should a decent white man speak in defense of these helpless ones he is charged with trying to bring about social equality, a thing which no intelligent colored man wants. They simply demand equal protection of the law. A distinguished white gentleman riding in the car by my side, said to me, "This is a white man's country and this is a white man's government, and for your people to get what they are demanding, 'twill never be politically or religiously." I have always opposed emigration, but now something must be done. You who are in the oppressive districts, go to the sunny lands of Africa, or to Mexico. Better die out at sea and be buried in the dark Atlantic, or the Gulf, than in the United States with bullet holes through your body; or die in Africa where the flag floats free, than to be burned to stakes in America. Let this be the prayer of Afro-Americans in this land:

"O God, come to our relief in this day of our oppression, for we will serve Thee, we will obey Thee, keep Thy commandments, and will follow Thee where'er Thou leadest us."

[We do not believe in wholesale emigration to Africa, Mexico, or to any other place. There is a just God, and he will vindicate our cause in his own good time. Let us wait on him, do his commandments, and trust in his providence to put an end to these terrible sufferings through which we are passing. Many things which the brother says in the foregoing letter are true, yet he must remember that our people are making marvelous progress toward those conditions in which their sterling manhood and character will compel the respect of their enemies. This is a free country. The whole civilized world has something to do with it. There is a triumph, it is true, of the baser elements, but that triumph is only temporary. Justice waits possibly, but God lives; and so sure as he lives, he will arise in defense of the oppressed, and more surely so if they run under his sheltering arms. It does not occur to us that the salvation of the Afro-American is in wholesale emigration; but otherwise.—ED.]

—The fifth Biblical Institute of Claflin University, Orangeburg, S. C., was conducted by Dr. James C. Murray, of Gammon Theological Seminary. The institute afforded an excellent opportunity for Bible study, and also to impress young men preparing for the ministry with the importance of a thorough knowledge of the Book they expect to teach. Dr. Murray's lectures and addresses were of great interest, and many were encouraged to make more thorough study of God's Word.

Scrofula Breaks Out in Running Sores

The Poison Perfectly Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"A year ago a sore came on one of my limbs. It spread, and soon four others, which proved to be as bad as the first, broke out. I could not account for them and my physician did not seem to do me any good. The eruptions would spread to the size of a half dollar, and the flesh would become ulcerated nearly to the bone. I finally decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking several bottles of the medicine I am glad to say that my limb is now perfectly well, and I am in better health than I have been for some time. Soon after the sores appeared I was compelled to take my bed, but

E. W. S. HAMMOND, D. D., EDITOR.

HENRY BASCOM RIDGAWAY, D. D.

We are pained to chronicle the deafh of this eminent servant of God, which occnrred on Saturday afternoon, March 30. He had been in declining health for some days, bnt his immediate relatives and friends had indulged the hope that he would recover his wonted health. To Dr. Ridgaway, however, the comiug of the momentous hour had no terrors. It was the expected with him, and he was ready and willing to depart, and be with his Lord forever. Retaining his mental faculties to the last, he sank gently away, surrounded by those whom he loved so dearly.

He was a conspicuous figure in onr Methodism, and was widely known for his preeminent abilities, his deep and thorough culture. He was educated at Dickinson College, after which he became a member of the Baltimore Conference, serving in some of the most important churches within its bounds. He was snbsequently appointed to Portland, Maine; afterward to St. James, St. Paul's, Washington Square, and Sing Sing, New York. Thence to St. Paul's and Walnut Hills, Cincinnati. He was appointed professor of practical thoology in Garrett Institute, in 1882, and became its president in 1884, which position he filled with signal ability nntil his death.

Dr. Ridgaway was one of the most tenderhearted of men. He abounded in sympathy, and was ever ready with those kind ministrations which won him innnmerable friends everywhere. He was a voluminous writer, and has added very liberally to the literature of the Church. The writer regrets the death of his personal friend and brother, and tenders his cordial aud heartfelt sympathy to that dearest and best of his earthly friends, the wife of his youth, his constaut companion, and the sharer of his joys and his sorrows.

A TRUE PROPHET.

Rev. Ernest Lyou, D. D., pastor of St. Mark's M. E. Church, New York City, is well known to many of our readers. He has lived in the South for sevoral years prior to his transfer to New York to take charge of the great church of which is now pastor.

We insist on it, that people who live in tho South, or who visit it more frequently, are in a better position to speak intelligently upon the various phases of its social, commercial, political, intollectual and religious progress than any other class of people.

Dr. Lyon's able paper, in a late number of the New York Independent, on "The colored man in the Sonth, his present condition and futnre prospects," has attracted wide attention, as it deserves, because of the carefnl, intelligent and truthful way in which he brings out the facts concerning our people. Here are some of his hopeful words:

"At the outset, speaking generally upon this important theme, I may say I think the colored people, taking the whole popnlation, are in a very healthy condition, industriously, religiously and morally."

A conclusion in perfect accordance with the facts.

"According to a recent anthority the Negroes of the United States own $275,000,000 worth of property and $25,000.000 worth of chnrch property. About $180,000,000 of this property is owned in the South. At least $200,000,000 is owned by those who were slaves and their children. The Negroes, in some cases, control banks and are large depositors. In nearly all sections of the Sonth a very large proportion of the meohanics are colored men. * * * Prominent white men have testified that colored men in time can develop the necessary proportion of skilled labor to afford proper snpervision of the nnskilled labor required in many of the mechanioal occnpations. * * * One of the most enconraging signs in connection with the industrial condition of the colored man in the Sonth is that an increasing number of the race are learning trades. Thirty thousand colored youth have graduated from the industrial schools, three years being the average time given to the trades; about 15,000 are now in the industrial schools in all departments and grades, every department being crowded to its utmost capacity. In other words, 4,000 trained mechanics are turned out yearly in the South. * * * The ambition of the colored man is to own his own home. You will find in a majority of the large cities and towns a respectable number of colored men who live in fine homes, well furnished, showing that they both nnderstand and appreciato those elements which conduce to a high state of domestic and social life."

His statements concerning the condition of our people in many places far away from the railroad centres is trno to the letter. It seems almost incredible, and yet it is true, that hnndreds of colorod peoplo in some parts of the South are just as truly in slavery as were their parents before the war. Living in cabins, with rarely more than one room, soantily furnished, and with but few incentives to aspire to anything better. Happily this condition does not generally prevail.

The Doctor says fnrther:

"The common schools for the Negroes in the South are fair; but the system of schooling is not, of course, as porfect as it is in the Northern States. The term of sohool is short; and I must admit that, in many instances, the teachers are incompent, and do not fill their positions in a satisfactory manner. The trouble is that the appointment of the teachers is sometimes controlled by politicians. Wherever the politicians control the schools the places are filled with the single eye to political influence."

And, "The most cheerfnl and wholesome feature connected with the education of the Negro in the South is tho establishment of schools by Northern philanthropists and by the great religions denominations—the Baptists, the Methodist, the Congregationalists and the Presbyterians. Through these agenoies teachers are gradually being supplied to the Sonth, and in that way we are getting a better class of teachers to instruct our people."

We would wish that onr white fellow-citizens everywhore could acquiese in the following statement, which in our judgment would open tho way for a better dispensation of those helpful influences necessarily growing out of snch a contact:

"In regard to tho social coudition of the colored mau I may say that to exclnde the intelligent members of the race from good white society is to keep the colored people back in the progress of civilization. Any colored man who is admitted into the society of intelligent white poople is made better by reason of such contact. Ho is sure to derive an inspiration from his more favored brethren, and he returns to his own circle to make use of ideas, manners and customs that he has learned from them. Suppose a colored man is invited to the parlor of an intelligent white man. He could not have snch a meeting without receiving some intellectual or social benefit, and he could not help but communicate the same to his own coterie of colored friends, thereby further civilizing and improving his race."

In forcible language the Doctor calls attention to the difference between the colored laborer in the North and in the Sonth, and deprecates, as every honorable man shonld, the spirit which, notwithstanding his great embarrassments in the South, finds the colored man even more handicapped in the hnmane North, where he may not expect to rise above the mere menial. While this may be trne, we are of the opinion that Northern capitalists will in the near fntnre be so able to dictate as to their employes, that the question of merit and worth will obtain rather than that of race or color. The introdnotion of vast hordes of worthless foreigners into this country, and their arrogant and dictatorial seizure and paralysis of onr great indnstries, is bearing fruit which will result in snch a reorganization as will bring to the front only reliable wage-workers who will, without distinction, enjoy equal privileges. Altogether, the article does credit to the heart and brain of the writer.

—Rev. J. W. McIntosh, of the Southern Illinois Conference, who has been visiting in the city, gave the office a pleasant call last week.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Rev. Warren McDonald, presiding elder Holly Springs District, Upper Mississippi Conference, writes hopefully concerning his work, and sends us his personal pledge for 25 cash subscribers this year.

—Dr. James H. Potts, editor of the Michigan Christian Advocate, and Mrs. Potts, are in sore bereavement by the death of their yonngest child, Arthnr, a precious little boy of five. Thoy were called from Florida on account of his illness.

—F. G. Wilbon, Carrollton, Miss., writes: "Our first quarterly conference convened March 16, with Rev. W. E. Mask, P. E., in the chair. Reports showed snccess on all lines of church work. Eighty-five commnned. Collection, $31. Two cash snbscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN.

—From J. S. Luper we learn that the Friendsville and Craig Chapel work, in the Tennessee Conference, is assuming promising proportions. The struggle has been hard; but the heroic people, under the able leadership of the pastor, Rev. C. R. Russell, are deserving of much praise.

—From Calvert, Tex., Rev. G. A. Shanklin writes: "We are in for a good year's work. Our first quarterly conference passed off nicely. The sermons and lectnres of the presiding elder were excellent. Reports showed onr work on the inorease. Many anxious seekers are at the altar for prayer."

—Rev. G. W. Gill writes from Hempstead Circnit, in the Texas Conference: "First quarterly confereuce held at St. Thomas Church. San Felippe was an occasion of great rejoicing. Presiding Elder Duncan gave ns a splendid service. Four children baptized, one received into full connection and $29 collected."

—Rev. G. R. Rogers, of Monroe, La.. has been separated from his family since conference on acconnt of the recent epidemic which necessitated a quarantine. The embargo having been raised, Mrs. Rogers arrived a few days ago to the great delight of the people of St. James, who gave her a right royal welcome.

—Rev. W. R. R. Duncan, member General Book Committee and presiding elder of Pine Bluff District, Little Rock Conference, has been qnarantined at home on acconnt of the prevalence of the small pox. The embargo has been raised, and the doctor is in the saddle once more. He is pleased more and more with the SOUTHWESTERN.

—A big storm struck the M. E. parsonage at La Grauge, Ga., quite recently, causing the front doors to swing wide, exposing the pastor, Rev. Upshaw, aud family, to a mighty host of church members and citizens of the city, laden with baskets of provisions, etc. Miss Laura Stevenson made the presentation speech. Brother Upshaw is moving along finely, and all departments of the church are well organized.

—Rev. George W. Baker of Hernando, Miss., writes encouragingly concerning the work of Rev. H. B. Gladney, the pastor. The church and Snnday school are in the front line of progress, while peace and prosperity reigns throughout the borders of Zion. Brother Gladney was the recipient of a delightful storm party a few weeks ago, when members of the church and Epworth League brought many valuable presents.

—Dr. T. B. Neely, at the recent session of the Philadelphia Conference, closed his six years' term as presiding elder of the Sonth Distriot and returned to the pastorate. The quarterly conferenoes, by formal resolution, strongly indorsed his administration, and the preaohers on the district presented him with a handsome gold watch as a token of their appreciation. Dr. Neely has been appointed to Union Church, Philadelphia, where he has had a most cordial reception.

—Rev. A. N. Jackson, pastor, writes: "The Blnfton Charge in the Central Alabama Conference, has West Point, Ga., for its postoffice. The State line of Georgia and Alabama passes through the town, the postoffice being on the Georgia side. We have a strong work here, aud three trains a day pass each way between Atlanta, Montgomery and New Orleans; and we would be pleased for any of our general officers or ministers passing over this railway to stop over a night with us—previous notice having been sent. A visit from the editor, E. W. S. Hammond, would be of value to the SOUTHWESTERN."

NEW ORLEANS AND VICINITY.

Pleasant Plains M. E. Church is prosperous under the pastoral care of Rev. D. G. Butler. Congregation and Sunday school improving. The following good members and friends gladdened the hearts of Rev. Butler and wife recently with many choice delicacies and substantial presents, including a nice suit of clothes for pastor, presented by Mesdames C. Brown, W. J. Nickson, W. A Kenner, E. R. Tigals, who also presented a fine table cloth. There were present also Victoria Owsley, M. Johnson, C. Scott, M. Tillman, A. N. Nickson, M. Cook, J. Johnson, Elsie Chapman of Baton Rouge, R. H. Patty, E. Phillips, J. Allen, L. Allen, A. Thomas, L. Buchanon, Miss W. Johnson, E. Michael, D. B. Phillips, A. Downing, E. D. Johnson, E. Patison, M. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Lee, A. McKennie, Maggie Williams, B. Cleaves, C. Pernell, W. Jackson, R. Downing, A. Dellard, M. Archie, Aug. Brown. The evening was pleasantly spent, and a good foundation laid for an increase of subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN.

Simpson Chapel presented a beautiful appearance Sunday morning. The church was beautifully decorated, and a large congregation attested their interest in the Easter services. The editor of the SOUTHWESTERN preached the sermon. A delightful program was rendered at the evening service. The congregation was large and enthusiastic. Mrs. Lyon, wife of Rev. Dr. Ernest Lyon, pastor of St. Mark's, New York, was present at the morning service, and sang several songs to the great delight of all. The collections for missions will ge beyond those of last year.

At Scott Chinn Chapel, Rev. Edward Fields, pastor, there are signs of a gracious outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Twelve have already professed conversion. Ten were at the altar of prayer on Sunday night. The editor of this paper preached the sermon. These people are deserving, and should have the co-operation of the stronger churches in the city. This church is located in a difficult field, and it is a splendid triumph for Protestantism that our Methodism ever holds its own here. Sister Bond is rendering efficient help to the pastor in securing subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN.

The Christian Endeavorers, of New Orleans, will hold a meeting on Wednesday evening, April 17, 1895, at Union Bethel A. M. E. Church, corner Liberty and Thalia streets, where the following program will be rendered: Interdenominational Feature of C. E. Work, Rev. A. W. Page; The Secret of the Success of the Y. P. S. C. E., Rev. J. W. Whitaker; Open Parliament—"The C. E. Pledge," leader, Miss Hattie Moore. Meeting will open at 7:30 p. m.

A train left Philadelphia recently, destined for Boston. It was composed of 25 cars, all handsomely decorated, and every one of them from first to last loaded with "Hires' Rootbeer." The cars contained 581,040 bottles of Hires' Rootbeer Extract, sufficient to make 2,905,200 gallons of rootbeer, or over 10 glasses for each man, woman and child in New England. The above figures represent only about one-third of the total amount consumed in New England during the season, and give some idea of the popularity throughout the entire country of this "Temperance Drink for Temperance people."

OUR BOOK TABLE.

The thirtieth anniversary of Lincoln's assassination, falling in April, will be commemorated by the publication in Harper's Weekly of two noteworthy articles, of which the first will discuss the sources of Lincoln's eloquence, and the second will be devoted to the Lincoln genealogy—tracing the line back to New England stock. The second article will be contributed by Lucius E. Chittenden, Register of the United States Treasury during the period of the Civil War, and an intimate friend of the President himself, as well as of many of the leading men connected with that administration.

The Easter number of the New York Ledger surpasses in beauty and interest any previous issue of that famous periodical. The contents of this number of the Ledger are in keeping with its beautiful cover. It has a charming Easter story and an Easter poem. The number contains twenty-eight pages, beautifully illustrated, and is sold for only 5 cents.

Spiritual gifts and graces is the title of a new book by Rev. W. B. Godbey, A. M., author of "Sanctification," "Christian Perfection," "Holiness or Hell," etc. It is a scholarly and glowing exposition of 1st Cor. 12 and 13, such as only a person with its writer's experience as a spiritual author, preacher and translator could give. His other books were written to lead people into the experiences of salvation, but this is to show believers how to be effective soul winners. He shows that the gifts as well as the graces may be as effective now as ever. Manilla, 10 cents; flexible cloth, 25 cents; $2 per dozen. Published by Rev. M. W. Delaware Conference.

The thirty-second session of the Delaware Conference convened in Bainbridge Street M. E. Church, Philadelphia, Pa., Thursday, March 21, at 9 a. m. Bishop J. J. Newman presided, and J. H. Scott was elected secretary and J. A. Richardson statistical secretary.

Devotional exercises and love feast were conducted by the bishop and the presiding elders, after which the conference settled down to hard and constant work until its close. It has been characterized as the largest and best conference ever held since its organization. One of the great features was the holding of two executive sessions to expedite business in the interest of the conference. The execution of this idea ultimated in the best results. In fact cosmos was brought out of chaos. Every department of our Church was represented, besides other great interests and problems, such as "The American Sabbath" and "The Sailor at Sea," were given the closest attention and the prayers of the conference.

The auditorium was kept crowded from the second session until the bishop said sine die. So eager were the people to hear what Methodism was doing for God and humanity through her representatives, that our great Dr. J. H. Buckley, editor of the Christian Advocate, was turned away the first night he came, because of the dense crowd that lined the curbstones outside, that packed the halls, galleries, aisles and chancel, to hear our magnetic Dr. A. J. Kynet deliver his soul-stirring speech on Church Extension, and our Chaplain C. C. McCabe tell of the wonderful strides that Methodism is making. They heard from him that Rome is yielding to the true spirit of right and religion. We read the Pope's Encyclycal; we hear the voice of the See, but Methodism has not slacked her footsteps, but continues with renewed efforts to push forward her valorous cohorts of philanthropy upon the domain of superstition, misery, crime and heathendom.

Bishop Walden paid us a short visit, nearing the close of the conference, and gave us an able address on African missionary work. Bishop Foss was with us several times. Drs. C. H. Payne, J. C. Hartzell and F. J. Wagner were with us, and as earnest and cheerful as ever in presenting the cause of education. Dr. Schell spoke largely and encouragingly of the Epworth League.

Epworth League evening among the young folks will not soon be forgotten, because of the excellent program rendered.

Dr. D. V. Kelly served us with the "Elite delicacies of the season" as an introductory to our leading periodical, The Church Review.

Dr. J. H. Buckley held the conference with enraptured thought while advising the men to study language. The Christian Advocate, he said, is the paper in which all subjects of interest are treated by the very best men of the day, and from this paper, if carefully read, we would have benefits of a good vocabulary.

Dr. W. Swindells put in a strong plea for the Philadelphia Methodist, edited by him at our Book Concern in Philadelphia.

We were looking for Dr. E. W. S. Hammond in our midst to present the cause of the SOUTHWESTERN. Copies of the paper were received, which we took charge of, and every person was pleased with it.

Delaware Conference need to be glad of the work she is doing on the Missionary line. She stands equally, if not one of the leading Missionary Conferences in Methodism.

The missionary sermons were preached by Rev. J. H. Nutter and Dr. P. O'Connell. Sunday was a feast day of the Lord. Bishop Newman preached a great and inspiring sermon that made our hearts glad, because of the truth as presented through the Word of God. Bishop Foss offered prayer. Dr. H. A. Monroe, Chaplain McCabe, Dr. Wagner and Bishop Foss occupied seats in the pulpit.

Bishop Foss and Mrs. Foss invited Bishop Newman and Presiding Elders H. A. Monroe, A. R. Shockley, E. E. Parker, L. T. Cox and J. R. Waters to take tea Sunday evening at their residence, situated on Arch street. The bishop and his cabinet went and were gracefully entertained.

We adjourned at 12:05 a. m., to meet next year at Chester, Pa.

Other visters at the conference were: Drs. Homer Eaton and S. Hunt, of the Book Concern; Dr. Beiler, representing the American University; Dr. Ferris, representing the American Sabbath; Dr. Palmer, who bore the greetings from our Book Concern; Dr. McLaughlin, the sailor; and Dr. Moffitt, the Bible canso.

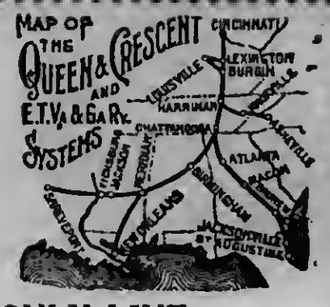
We had a delegation from the Philadelphia Preachers' Meeting to visit us. Dr. Peck and Rev. N. M. Carol, of Washington Conference, were also with us. Also, visitors of A. M. E. Church and others. Bishops Wayman and Tanner were present and delivered very fine addresses. Drs. Coppin, Emory, Johnson, Cook and Heard and Ex-Minister Durham to Liberia were with us.

C. E. HEMSLEY.

The Huntsville (Texas) District.

I am glad to report a measure of progress on the work since conference. Starting at Huntsville, I found matters in fair shape under the able management of Rev. S. G. Curtis. Huntsville Circuit has been somewhat retarded on account of the death of Rev. H. W. Booker, who was called from labor soon after the conference. I succeeded in securing the services of Doctor Morris, a superannuate, who is succeeding nicely. Brother C. M. Singleton is holding the reins firmly, but lovingly, at Dodge City and the people are in good spirits. At Prairie Plains we found Rev. E. Micheaux surrounded by a loving people who are doing all they can to make their stay pleasant and profitable. At Willis we found the indefatigable worker, Rev. M. Q. A. Fuller, in the midst of earnest, fruitful work. This is the strongest point on the district. We had a glorious meeting here. Rev. S. M. Bolden was found at his post at Conroe, doing nicely. His church has been improved and presents a neat and attractive appearance. We found them in the midst of a gracious revival. At Springs, Rev. H. Dickson is holding his own and the church is rallying to his support. Rev. E. Holliday was found at Lovelady, busily at work, surrounded by his excellent and progressive membership. I greatly enjoyed their hospitality and meetings. Going on to Crockett, I found the genial pastor, Rev. J. H. Anderson, somewhat embarrassed on account of the severe illness of his wife, but he was cheerful and the outlook is hopeful. A short visit to Carrington, with Rev. R. J. Campbell as a host, was made very pleasant. The church is doing as well as could be expected. I enjoyed the meetings. Rev. R. T. Scott is at Livingston and has matters well in hand. My visit was pleasant. The work is moving along nicely. Brother Scott has recently built a new parsonage and the people are rallying from far and near. Owing to a pressure of business, I requested Rev. G. S. Turner to hold my meetings at Colmesneil and Woodville, and he reports that Rev. G. S. Helm is getting along nicely and that the charge is in good condition. I had a good time at Coldspring with Rev. L. J. Hogan and his excellent people. He has nearly completed a new church, has a progressive Sunday School and is well equipped for good work, and our meetings were grand. Trinity and Groveton are not making the progress desired, but there is hope of better times in the near future. The pastor of Town Bluff and Beverlyport being sick, the work has been retarded to some extent. Newton has been supplied by Rev. J. H. Brown, who is holding on, but not making much progress; yet we are hopeful on the whole that better times will come shortly.

We are continually holding up the grand and good SOUTHWESTERN, and are urging our pastors and people to help us put the circulation of this valuable paper up the 10,000 line. Yours in Christ,



A. C. CULBREATH, P. E.

Rose Tobacco Cure

Has been on the market for nearly five years and cures 98 out of every 100. Many say it is the Only Absolute Cure. It is harmless. Price, $1 by mail. Order of ROSE DRUG COMPANY, 2105 and 2107 Third Avenue, Birmingham, Alabama.

Our Guarantee—We offer three Tablets for $2 50, and in case of failure to cure money will be refunded. We hate fair and prefer your good opinion to your money. All we ask is a fair trial, as out of the thousands who have used it, 98 out of every 100 have been cured. Beware of counterfeits. The better an article the more it will be imitated. There are some feeble and nasty imitations of our CURE on the market now.

LESSON HYMN. S. M.

My soul, be on thy guard;
Ten thousand foes arise;
The hosts of sin are pressing hard
To draw thee from the skies.

O watch and fight, and pray;
The battle ne'er give o'er;
Renew it bo'dly every day,
And help divine implore.

Ne'er think the victory won,
Nor lay thine armor down;
The work of faith will not be done,
Till thou obtain the crown.

Time.—The afternoon of Tuesday, April 4, A. D. 30; the third day before our Lord's death.

Place.—The Mount of Olives.

Rulers.—Tiberius, emperor at Rome; Pontius Pilato, procurator of Judea; Herod Antipas, tetrarch of Perea and Galilee; Caiaphas, high priest of the Jews.

Links with Lesson I.—On Monday morning early Jesus left Bethany, to which he had returned after the triumphal entry, for Jerusalem. On his way he cursed a barren fig tree. He cleansed the temple (for the second time) of its traders, and at evening returned again to Bethany. Tuesday morning was spent in the temple, where our Lord vanquished in debate "rulers," Pharisees, Herodians, Sadducees, and "scribes." In the afternoon, on the Mount of Olives, he gave to his disciples the most wonderful of all his discourses; our lesson is a part of it.

Watchfulness.

(Matt. 24. 42-51.)

Written for the Southwestern.

By Rev. G. N. Jolly, Kentucky Conference

GOLDEN TEXT.—Take ye heed, watch and pray. (Mark 13. 33.)

On the day following the events of the last lesson, as Jesus returned from Bethany to Jerusalem, He cursed the barren fig tree. When in the temple He "cast out all them that sold and bought, overturned the tables of the money-changers, and the seats of them that sold doves." In the evening He returned to Bethany. On the following day when in the temple He spoke the parable of the Two Sons, that of the Vineyard, and that of the Marriage Feast. He answered the question of the Pharisees and Herodians about Paying Tribute to Cæsar, that of the Sadducees concerning the Resurrection of the dead, and that of the lawyer respecting the Two Great Commandments. He commended the widow who cast in the two mites, and told of His future suffering and glory. He delivered His last cutting discourse to the Scribes and Pharisees, and departed from the temple for the last time. As He went away one of the disciples called His attention to the massive stones that composed the temple. He let them know the time would soon come when there would not be left in that building one stone upon another. They crossed the Kidron and ascended Olivet to the top. Here they paused. It was spring, and all nature was full of life. It was evening, when all have a pleasant spirit. Jerusalem was in full view, and was lit up by the splendor of the setting sun. While here the disciples asked Him three questions—"When shall these things (the destruction of Jerusalem and temple) be? What shall be the sign of Thy (second) coming? And (what shall be the sign) of the end of the world?" The answers to these questions are found in chapters 24 and 25 of Matthew's gospel. The lesson treats of the coming of the Son of man, the house and the thief, the faithful and wise servant, and the evil servant.

1. The Son of Man (42, 44). There is no doctrine of Scripture taught with more clearness than the second coming of Christ. "The Son of man cometh." "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him taken up into heaven." The time of His coming again is not known. "Of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, nor the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son of man (as man), but the Father" (Mark 13:32). His second coming will be a great surprise to many, for He will come "In such an hour as they think not." The manner of His return will be very forcible—"They shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory." He shall come in His glory and all the holy angels with him, then shall He sit upon the throne of His glory. "For the Lord Himself shall descend from [illegible] with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God." Let us be ready, and watch, and wait, for His second coming "Maranatha should be the watchword of the Church."

2. The house and the robber (43). This verse is a kind of parable. The house represents the human body. It is called a house because of its mechanism. The Psalmist said—"I will praise Thee, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made." The good man is the soul. It dwells in the body. It warms, clothes and feeds it; protects it when in danger, and nurses it when sick. The thief is Satan. He is ever seeking in a sly, cunning way to gain an entrance into our soul. He desires to break up our house. Then let us watch over ourselves that we be not overtaken in a fault, and over the duties that rest upon us that nothing be left undone.

3. The faithful and wise servant (45-47). (1) His character. Two noble traits are named. He is faithful, that is full of faith. He is willing to go where the Master leads, do what He enjoins, and endure all that may come on him for His sake. He is wise. He knows the best result of human life—heaven; he desires to possess it, and he takes the proper steps to gain it. (2) His appointment. "Whom his lord has made ruler over His household." We may safely let the household represent the Church of God. Paul has called it "The household of faith." It is like a great family. The ruler represents, in a primary sense, the minister of the Gospel. But he also represents the Sunday school teacher, and any other person to whom God has in any way entrusted the government of His Church. "Whom his Lord hath made" teaches that God raises up persons to take charge of certain duties in His Church. The ministry is God-given. (3) His work. "Give them meat in due season." Meat is here put for every kind of food. In the Bible, meat, bread, wine, milk, honey and water are used to express the result of the Gospel. This meat is given to the household. The Gospel is free. It is "without money and without price." Yet a salvation that never costs a sigh, tear, or sleepless night, or sacrifice, or dollar, is not worth much. It is given in due season—at the opportune time. This life is the due season. In youth, and in early manhood and womanhood is the due season. The time of the protracted meeting is the due season. Just now while you read is the due season. Will you not improve it? (4) His reward. He is blessed. Made happy. He is given much knowledge, honor, wealth and godliness. He is exalted. "Made ruler over all that is good." "Well done, thou good and faithful servant. I will make thee ruler over many things. Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." The bliss of heaven cannot be expressed.

4. The evil servant (48-51). (1) His meditation. "He said in his heart." He thought. "As a man thinketh so is he." Sow thoughts and reap words, sow words and reap deeds, sow deeds and reap character, sow character and reap destiny. "My lord delayeth His coming." Unbelief in the second coming of Christ causes many to apostatize. Delay does not mean never. This is clear from the destruction of the antediluvianists, and the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah. (2) His conduct—"He began to smite his fellow servants." A Christless heart is ever selfish and overbearing, and a Christless church is no better. The history of the household of faith during the Dark Ages proves this fact. Many mediæval bishops lorded it over God's heritage. They abused, persecuted and put to death multitudes of the saints. He also began "to eat and drink with the drunken." He no doubt ate to gluttony, and drank to drunkenness. Oppression and self-indulgence are the two sins most common to those in high places. Drunkenness is a disease, and as such it may be cured. (3) His surprise—"The lord of that servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him." Jesus will come again. We must meet Him in life, in death, or at the judgment. Then let us act the part of the wise. Set our house in order, balance our accounts, and "Prepare to meet our God." (4) His punishment. His death—"Cut him asunder." Division produces death. Isaiah, tradition says, was sawed asunder. When his lord came, he shaped up the course of nature, and soon brought about his death. "Bloody and deceitful men shall not live out half their days." His punishment—"Appoint him his portion with the hypocrite." He pretended to be a true servant of the Master, but in his heart was a deceiver. Assign him a place with his companions. Are the wicked classes in Gehenna. Surely there are degrees in punishment. The fearfulness of this suffering—"There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth." These are expressions of extreme agony. It is an awful thing to fall into the hands of the living God. "For our God (out of Christ) is a consuming fire." May we [illegible] the blessed Savior, keep Him [illegible]

Pine Ridge District—

Dear Brethren—You should be able to report your mission full during this round. Get ten subscribers each for the SOUTHWESTERN. It is increasing.

W. R. R. DUNCAN, P. E.

Waynesboro District—

Dear Brethren—This must be a year of success with us, the Lord being our helper. Put Him in front, asking His divine help and guidance. Remember "Children's Day," second Sunday in June. Get the program in time to make it a grand day throughout the district for our benevolent money. Push this cause now and success is ours. Yours in Christ,

R. R. O'NEAL, P. E.

Marion District—

District Conference will meet in Selma, Ala., July 31 to August 4. The program will be published in full time. Let every pastor raise his full claim for all benevolent purposes by that time. Every preacher, exhorter and delegate must come prepared to pay off the claim of the Marion Institute. Your brother,

H. N. BROWN, P. E.

Meridian District—

Dear Brethren—The Preachers' Institute will convene in the Academy at Meridian July 29 and close August 9. All ministers and exhorters are requested and expected to attend. A. M. TROTTER, P. E.

Tupelo District—

Dear Pastors—Have every local preacher and exhorter to take the SOUTHWESTERN as well as all others in your charge. I will notify you of the district conference soon. Yours truly,

S. H. NEVILS, P. E.

Chattanooga District—

Dear Brethren—The Chattanooga District Conference will convene July 15 21 at Harriman, Tenn. Push the work. Our district has had a hard time; especially through the winter, but let us now be up and doing. Make an especial effort to raise your benevolent money, also your missionary money and forward it the proper authorities at once, for they are in need of it.

Do not forget the SOUTHWESTERN—get as many cash subscribers as possible, for it is our paper. Yours in the work,

P. P. BROOKS, P. E.

Gainsville District—

Dear Brethren—Our worth as leaders are seen in the tact and ability with which we concentrate our forces. Easter will test our dexterity. Send money to Sanford Hunt, 150 Fifth avenue, New York City. Prepare for Children's Day, June 9. The Sunday School Convention will convene in Oxford, Ga., May 16, at 9 o'clock a. m. The district conference will meet in Union Grove, Ga., August 7. Let victory be written upon our banners. Money is getting easy; let us swell the SOUTHWESTERN. Yours sincerely,

C. R. BUFFINGTON, P. E.

Shreveport District—

Dear Brethren—You will remember your obligation at the conference—the promise made to help pay for the old minutes We want to bring up our benevolent collection all at the district conference, which will meet in Mansfield, August 15, at 9 a. m. Let us work hard and do our best and God will help us.

S. DUNCAN, P. E.

Rome District—

Dear Brethren—Your charge is an important one and much is expected of you and your charge. The eye of the Church is upon you. You cannot afford to fail. Don't forget that your apportionment depends on your worth; we must succeed; our district must come to the front. Our Sunday School and Epworth League Convention convenes at Rome First Church, May 23. The sermon will be preached by Rev. L. P. Kimball on May 23, at 7:30 p. m. Each pastor and delegates are expected to be present from each charge. Each pastor is doing all he can to raise his entire collection on that day; ain't you? You cannot afford to fall behind, or you will be left. I shall give a full account of the work of each pastor to our Church paper, with his collection, at the end of this quarter. The National Epworth League will meet in Chattanooga, Tenn., May 27 30. We will elect delegates at the district conference to this convention We expect a grand time. Many distinguished visitors will be with us, viz: Drs. M C. B. Mason, D. C. John, J. E. W. Bowen and others; so we must push forward. Many of us fell far behind in the first quarters. Please plan to bring up full reports. I am your co-laborer,

H. R. ALLEN, P. E.

A few Pennies

on the one hand—ruined garments on the other. That will be the result of your trying to save money by using poor, cheap washing-powders, instead of Pearline. Just consider. How much could you save in a year if you bought the cheapest and most worthless? And how far would it go toward paying for the things ruined in a single month? You can't save anything by buying cheap washing-powders. The way to save money in washing is to use what has been proved to be absolutely safe. That is Pearline. Millions use it. 417

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

ROLL call "up yonder" may be joyons or sad. For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, to give account of our stewardship. It may be that the unfaithful steward will tremble when the roll is called, bnt when he answers to his name, the Judge will say "Depart; I never knew you."

OH, BROTHER! Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world. Do you want an inspiration? Look to Calvary! Do you want a theme? Behold the fonntain—the cleansing fountain! Would you have the consciousness of pardoned sin? Then plnnge beneath the purple flood, and wash all your sins away.

THE faithful, earnest and humble Christian has no fears as to his fnture. He hath—already hath everlasting life abiding in him. He would fain labor and toil on in the vineyard of the Master until the close of life's busy day, when he will answer joyonsly when the roll is called, knowing that he will receive a robe and a crown, and palms of victory.

IT GIVES us great pleasure to acknowledge the receipt of The Sierra Leone Weekly News, West Africa, dated March 6, and now occnpies the post of honor in our sanctum. Trnly, "One touch of nature makes all the world akin," so the arrival of this able journal, edited by onr brother in far-away Africa, revives again the kinship in which we both delight.

OF THE colored population in South Carolina ten years of age and over, 64 percent cannot read or write. In Georgia 67 percent, in Alabama 69 percent, and in Lonisiana 72 percent are in the same deplorable condition. Here is Africa in America snre enongh! One of the very best ways to help decrease those percents and avoid the dangers which they indicate to society, is to increase the collections of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Edncation.

FELLOW-MINISTERS! Behold, the fields are white to the harvest—the harvest of souls! The enemy is determined that the lnst of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of the world shall stand in the way of the salvation of those for whom the Savior died on the field. The promise of the Master: "Lo, I am with thee always," will inspire, and thrill, and nerve you for the battle. On then, night and day; earnestly, faithfully, persistently labor to save the souls of the sons of men.

BROTHER, do the work of an evangelist. The Church expects yon to make fnll proof of yonr ministry. The power is within yonr reach. Yon are a failnre if yon cannot bring sinners to repentance. Yon will make a great mistake by calling in help until yon have exhansted all your own resources. In almost every instanoe, if you are the right man, you can drill your forces and take the lead in every movement looking toward the salvation of men. It is a dangerons practice to call in special evangelists unless they be in every respect those who have the approbation of the entire Church. Bnt you would better try your own guns. Go into your closet, read, study, pray. Get the baptistism of the Holy Ghost, and as snre as you do so, the power will come and sonls will be added to your ministry.

NEW CHURCH.

"A new church movement in Chicago, under the auspices of the M. E. Church, will be inaugurated at Apolio Hall, Sunday, April 7, at 2:30 p. m. There are scores of colored members of the M. E. Church in Chicago from all parts of the country, and we wish to meet them and their friends. An excellent choir has already been organized, and splendid music will be furnished. Rev. George E. Curry, the pastor, is a graduate of Morgan College, Baltimore, Md., a good preacher and a successful pastor, as his more than fifteen years of work in the ministry will fully attest."

Looking among the church notices in the Chicago Conservator, recently, we found the above item.

We believe this to be a movement of great importance to our Lexington Conference and to the colored people of Chicago generally. It has been our thought for several years that we ought to have in the "Windy City" a strong vigorous organization of colored people, under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The great benefits of snch a movement to the colored people themselves could not be adequately set forth in this limited notice. Aside from the fact that there are hosts of our members constantly pouring into that great city who desire generally to retain their membership with ns, there is the other fact that there are mnltitndes of colored people who could be and have not been reached by any of the churches; and it is highly probable that our organization, if properly encouraged, may accomplish nntold good in the salvation of these masses. Brother Curry is well qualified to inaugnrate this movement. He has the pluck, energy, and consecrated zeal necessary; and we believe he will also have the co-operation of onr Chicago Methodist brethren in this very providential undertaking.

DEATH OF REV. W. S. BIRCH, D. D.

"A shadow hnng ever the fifty second session of the North Indiana Conference, at Logansport, occasioned by the death of Rev. W. S. Birch, D. D., presiding elder of Kokomo District. Dr. Birch had an attack of the grip some time since, bnt had resumed work. He reached Logansport so ill that he was confined to his room, not being able to attend the conference or cabinet sessions. Rev. Dr. Parr bronght in his report, the last docnment he penned. Though written npon a dying bed, every sentence rang with a shout of victory. Tonching, eloqnent and tearful tributes followed that report, most impressive of which was one from that octogenarian hero, Dr. John L. Smith of Northwest Indiana Conference, who said that Dr. Birch was the first man he had ever licensed to preach, and eloquently pointed out the luminons pathway of his eminent services and successes. On Thnrsday afternoon, just as Chaplain Lozier olosed a lecture, a messenger oame with the intelligence that the doctor had jnst passed away. The chaplain announced it, and the congregation tearfully joined in singing 'The Snnbright Clime.' In fact, Dr. Birch lay apparently dead for a time, when he again breathed. Thns he lingered, in seeming nnconscionsness, for almost a day, dying on Friday afternoon, March 29, aged just threescore and ten years."

We clip the above from the Northwestern of a recent date, and desire to add our tribnte to the moral worth of this great and good man. Dnring our presiding elderate on the Indiana District of the Lexington Conference, Dr. Birch was among our most ardent friends, nor did that friendship cease even with his death. He was a stalwart, fearless defender of the faith, a stannch and uncompromising friend of the Negro, and an Israelite indeed, in whom was no guile.

—The love that will not suffer long and be kind, and is not God's kind.

A RARE EXHIBIT.

An Associated Press dispatch of some days ago, has excited the indignation of that bright and ably edited champion of human rights, the Methodist Advocate Journal, and an equally strong and vigorous protest from that other faifthful and able watchman, the Omaha Christian Advocate. The following excerpt is what "raised the mischief:"

"Among other rare exhibits here will be seen a series of figures illnstrating evolution of the Negro from the earliest animals, through the ape, the chimpanzee and the South African bushman down to the Negro as he is in this country."

Whereupon Dr. Shank of the Omaha Christian Advocate, in chaste and classic English, says:

"The Methodist Adocate Journal justly and vigorously protests against this offense offered against the colored race and white as well, and offered under the patronage of the government. Why this gratuitons assumption? As though it were an established fact beyound a donbt that any human being is an extremely developed protoplasm. As though the educated professors of the Smithsonian Institute have an exclusive patent right to fix the opinion of the rest of the intelligent world on this qnestiou of science. As thongh the gentlemen mentioned show any peculiar scientific discrimination in choosing a Negro rather than white man to represent their theory of evolntion. We will not quarrel with the Smithsonian gentlemen abont their preferences as to their genealogy, bnt a great many profonnd scholars, among whom is Prof. Virchow, than whom there is no greater anthority in anthropology, find no confirmation for the theory of ape and mollusk ancestry of the hnman race. Like many others, we do not believe the story of the garden of Eden to be a curiously devised fable. If Inspiration can record the geologic ages witkout a blnnder as confirmed by the earth's rock-strata, we prefer to believe its continued assertion of man's creation, and it is to be snpposed that creation does not mean evolntion, though none will deny man's dovelopment, or evolution as some may term it, in the progress of the race since Eden's gates swung open."

We shonld hardly hold the Associated Press reponsible for the statements which give rise to the foregoing editorial comments, since the Associated Press is nothing if not sensational. But we do think onr government exhibits should not be the first occasion to revive the old qnestion of Negro inferiority. The "figures illnstrating the evolntion of the Negro from the earliest animals through the ape, chimpanzee," etc., were no doubt gotten np or prepared for the special benefit of those who are too ready to classify the Negro with the most inferior animals. But the scientifio (?) gentlemen who may have these exhibits in charge, might as well nnderstand that there are scores of gentlemen eqnally scholarly, if not more so, who are not ready to yield their opinions, not only as to the nnity of the hnman family, bnt as to its common origin. Moreover, the Commissioners of the Exposition have assnred the colored people that their treatment shonld be, every respect, free from those nsual referenoes and suggestions whioh have rendered their presence anything bnt agreeable. Onr colored commissioners will donbtless see to it, that the zealous professors in charge of the government exhibit give no offense or occasion of stumbling to the large nnmbers of our people who will doubtless attend this great Exposition.

—S. O. Coleman writes from Gnthrie, Oklahoma: "St. Paul M. E. Church is alive here under the pastorate of Rev. D. G. Franklin. We have had four conversions. The Sunday School is doing grandly. S. Wood is the efficient superintendent. Mrs. M. Cole[illegible] been seriously indisposed, but is [illegible]

EASTER CHIMES.

Results of Missionary Collections in Different Parts of the Field.

ALABAMA.

..J. T. Martin, Dadeville.—Our Easter program was fully carried out. Collected $8 21 during the day. Presiding Elder C. Rogers helped us greatly.

ARKANSAS.

..J. C. Sherrill, Pine Bluff.—Sunday, April 14, was a high day with the Sunday School and St. James Church. The collections were taken by class, which resulted through the Sunday School alone, of $23, and from the committee and church, $27 20, making a total of $50 20. The program was carried out in full by the school. The songs and recitations were grand. The statistics made a great impression. We have one of the finest Sunday Schools in the South, with Mrs. A. T. Strickland, A. M., a graduate from Rust University and now teaching in the public schools of this city, as our superintendent.

..P. E. Roundtree, Forest City.—Easter services at Kynett Chapel were grandly celebrated. Our pastor, Rev. W. S. Sherrill, rendered efficient help in making the occasion a success. The program was carried out. We raised for missions $8 44.

..L. Mallory, Clarendon.—Everything looking bright. Churches and Sunday School on the forward march. Easter Sunday was a high day for our missionary cause. Crowded house. Good sermons. Collected, $1.55.

..H. Bright, Housley.—Our Easter service was grand, proving to the people that our blessed Lord did rise from the dead.

FLORIDA.

..J. M. Dean, Fernandina.—Sunday, April 14, was observed by our church and school as Easter and Missionary Day. The occasion will be long remembered. Collection by the Sunday School and church for missions was $23 79. The program Easter morn was well rendered.

..Miss C. Jacobs, Ocala.—Easter day at Zion Church was one of no small interest. At 10:30 a. m., our pastor preached to the edification of many. At 3 p. m., the church was filled to its uttermost capacity. Two infants were baptized. The Sunday School carried out the Easter program, which was the delight of all present. Grand day in Zion. Collection for missions, $6.

..S. Jackson, Lake City.—Easter Sunday was observed by our Sunday School as Missionary Day. Our collection was $1.10. Our school is very small at this place. We used our Easter program.

KENTUCKY.

..W. S. Rollins, Winchester.—Easter was a great day in Clark's Chapel. About 300 attend our Young People's Prayer Missionary Meetings on Thursday nights, which has proven to be the life of the church. We have advanced our collections over last year.

LOUISIANA.

..Valcour Chapman, Franklin.—Easter services were glorious and inspiring, and we raised $10 20.

..G. J. Rogers, Monroe.—Easter Sunday was a grand day here. The church nicely decorated and everything in order. Miss O. B. Taylor, as organist, rendered good service, and the best of all, the Holy Ghost was poured out upon our souls. One young man was happily converted. Collection, $4 45.

..G. W. Wells, Pineville.—Our Easter program was a glorious success. Evening service was followed by baptism of children, and at night the Easter program was carried out. Everything passed off nicely. The program ran as follows: Singing by choir, "He is Risen." "Easter Oration," Curtis Dorsey. Declamation, "The Day We Celebrate," Willis Lovett. Recitation, "Comforting Easter Bells," Mrs. L. Oliver. Five girls representing foreign countries, Mrs. J. E. Wells, and the Misses Mary Jackson, Bettie McNeal, Constance Washington and Mary Miller. Declamation, "Significant," Sherman Lovett. Recitation, "Lord's Day Mourning," Maggie Snyder. Recitation, "Footsteps of Angels," Bettie McNeal. Duet, Misses Minnie Green and Bella Allen. Exercise for four little girls, Claira Tillman, Sallie Williams, Eliza Gorgen and Nellie Lovett. Recitation, Miss Constance Washington, with other essays, readings and addresses. Misses Green and Allen attending the organ, and Mrs. G. W. Wells conducting.

..Jennie E. Wright, Eola.—Easter service was carried out in grand style. The church was nicely decorated, and everything went on as laid down by the program. The introductory address, which was delivered by Mr. Horace Robinson, was worthy of applause. Recitations were even delivered by some of the old mothers of the Church, which were appreciated by young and old.

..L. W. Haywood, Opelousas.—On Easter day the Lord manifested his power in the prayer meeting at 5 o'clock. The Sabbath school opened at 9 o'clock with 70 scholars. Our pastor, E. B. Richard, preached an appropriate sermon. Services were held at 3 p. m., with a large attendance. Collection, $2.

..J. W. Hudson, Shreveport.—At St. Paul's Church the Easter services were attended with power. One conversion.

..C. W. Kershaw, Chenyville.—The day was appropriately celebrated. We had a grand time with the children in the morning and at night.

..P. C. Clark, Resedale.—Hartzell Chapel had a gala day. Program fully carried out. Rev. P. C. Clark, the pastor, is elated. Collection, $7. A gracious revival is going on, and we have had 7 conversions.

..J. H. Pierre, Morgan City.—Our Easter services were observed all day, with Brother J. Thomas as Sunday School superintendent, and Prof. Hartram as organist. The program was fully carried out. Collection, $3.

MISSISSIPPI.

..A. D. Payne, Yazoo City.—Easter was observed here in grand style. The program for the occasion, as gotten up by our publishing house, was used. Raised for missions, $20.45.

..B. F. Woolfolk, Greenwood.—The Easter program was carried out to the letter. Such a time we have never had before. Collection for the day was $28.

..J. D. Gibson, Ripley.—Easter was a high day here. The program was carried out to perfection from the following named papers: World-wide Gospel, Universal Kingdom, Last Command, World's Redeemer and Collector's Cards. Essays: Subject, "Easter," Miss A. D. White; subject, "Model Sunday School," F. F. Grant. Our collection, $3 41, was the largest ever taken at this place.

..W. C. Clay, Tupelo.—Easter Missionary Day was a grand affair. The program was carried out to the letter. Our Sunday School is largely attended by the best young people of the town. The following are those who brought in the largest amount of missionary money: Miss Wolthia Williams, $8 10; Miss Eddie Stovall, $4 50; Miss Mattie Hamilton, $4 15. Amount of collection on Easter Sunday, $34 08.

..N. Toole, Enterprise.—We observed Easter here, and had a nice time. Both young and old people were delighted with the program. Collection, $3 40.

..Leona McNill, Ocean Springs.—We observed Easter Day, and had a nice time. Collected for missions, $6. Superintendent T. I. Keys spoke of the great missionary work. At 11 o'clock we had a very interesting sermon by Rev. E. D. Smith. We also had a missionary sermon at 3 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. W. McNeil.

TENNESSEE.

..E. F. Douglass, Crockett Mills.—Our Easter services were great. We collected $1 10. Our assessment this year for missions is $7 50. Now for the SOUTHWESTERN.

..Kate Blakemore, Cooksville.—Easter was observed grandly. We followed the full program and had a crowded house. It was the best ever witnessed here. Two of our white friends, Messrs. H. R. Endsley, county court clerk, and W. B. Ray, justice of the peace, addressed us. Collection $17 47.

TEXAS.

..Tenola Edwards, Clarksville.—Our Easter service was held with much success. Presiding Elder C. C. Minegan rendered us valuable services. Collections, $55 60. We are in the midst of a revival. Pray for our success.

..L. J. Hogan, Cold Springs.—Easter Sabbath was celebrated and the program was carried out to the letter. Collection, $9 15; also, one subriber to the SOUTHWESTERN. We are moving on to victory.

..J. T. Gibbens, Oakland.—The work at this place is moving along grandly and we are now in the midst of a glorious revival. Easter was strictly observed and program carried out. Collection, $31 50.

..J. W. Weakley, Hallettsville.—Easter Sunday was a great day here; we had an immense crowd which highly esteemed the program. Collection, $10 30.

..Aaron Taylor, Marshall.—Our Easter services passed off nicely, and the collection amounted to $15. Miss Ardella Ripetoe and Prof. S. S. Reed, superintendent, rendered valuable help.

..J. H. Reed, Paris.—Our Easter exercises were grand, to say the least. The program was most satisfactorily rendered. Paris stands in the front rank, and with the proper effort we can soon pride ourselves as having the most progressive and aggressive church in the city. Peace and harmony prevail and the people are realizing the deep importance of true Christian character, rather than emotional sentimentality.

..J. H. Williams, Sherman.—On Easter Sunday we had with us Brother N. Snoddy from Green county, Alabama, and Sister Doty from Mississippi, who gave encouraging words to the work. We collected $4 75.

..W. H. Jackson, Texarkana.—Easter Sunday was a glorious day with us, both spiritually and financially, with $45 collected for benevolence and $6 for other purposes, making a total of $51. The church was tastely decorated. Misses Lizzie Holloway and L. A. Bryant and Mrs. Sarah Bragg, with their committees, did grand work. Now we have launched out for 50 new souls for Christ's kingdom.

..Thornton Scott, Livingston.—Easter day was observed and the program carried out to the letter and the result was a grand success, realizing $26.

..R. B. Isam, Corsicana.—Sunday, 14th, we had a good time at Dawson. Our church is alive and the Sunday School is good; the collection reasonable.

..Moses Smith, San Antonio.—Our revival at St. Paul's Church closed with 43 accessions to the church. The Easter program was carried out in good style, and we realized $94 88 for missions. We have not forgotten the old SOUTHWESTERN.

..Mary Baker, Bonham.—Easter was one of the grandest day we have witnessed here. Rev. James Moton, G. W. Baker and W. Nickel of the A. M. E. Church, preached during the day. The collection was $9. J. Lock and E. Smith rendered us good help. We had one accession. Our pastor, M. C. Gillespie is able and efficient.

Use It in Time.

Catarrh starts in the nasal passages, affecting eyes, ears and throat, and is in fact the great enemy of the mucous membrane: Neglected colds in the head almost invariably precede catarrh, causing an excessive flow of mucus, and if the mucus discharge becomes interrupted the disagreeable results of catarrah will follow, such as bad breath, severe pain across forehead and about the eyes, a roaring and buzzing sound in the ears and oftentimes a very offensive discharge. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for these troubles.

Children's Day.

Easter was a grand success in all our churches. We sent from this office twice as many programs as last year. Now we should prepare for the next grand anniversary, which is Children's Day. Dr. Payne, secretary of our Board of Education, has again prepared an exceeding fine program and in a few days we shall have an extra large supply and can fill all orders on the day received. The program for this year is entitled "The Golden Gate." It is commended by all who have seen it. Read what our beloved Bishop Mallalieu says about it:

"My Dear Dr. Payne—I have carefully read your Program for Children's Day for June 9, 1895, and I congratulate you on its most excellent adaptation to the needs of our Sunday Schools. It is sound in doctrine, and true to Methodism, and full of wise, helpful, inspiring thoughts. I am sure it will greatly stimulate all good things in the hearts and lives of our young people. I wish every one of our Sunday Schools on Children's Day would use this program, and so promote the intellectual, moral and spiritual welfare of all.

The exceptional pictorial and descriptive features of the new religo-educational fine art work, "Earthly Footsteps of the Man of Galilee," can be fully appreciated by careful inspection only. Part I of this superb work will, therefore, be sent postpaid to any one sending his address with 10 cents to cover the cost of handling, wrapping, mailing, postage, etc. This part contains two introductions, a beautiful new map in eight colors, which traces in red the journeyings of the Savior and his Apostles, and also contains Dr. Samuel J. Andrews' famous outline harmony of the gospel and chronological index, which is copyrighted and published here only by special permission of the author. There are also shown sixteen magnificent views which are eloquently described.

UNTOLD MISERY
FROM RHEUMATISM
C. H. King, Water Valley, Miss., cured by
Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For five years, I suffered untold misery from muscular rheumatism. I tried every known remedy, consulted the best physicians, visited Hot Springs, Ark., three times, spending $1000 there, besides doctors' bills; but could obtain only temporary relief. My flesh was wasted away so that I weighed only ninety-three pounds; my left arm and leg were drawn out of shape, the muscles being twisted up in knots. I was unable to dress myself, except with assistance, and could only hobble about by using a cane. I had no appetite, and was assured, by the doctors, that I could not live. The pains, at times, were so awful, that I could procure relief only by means of hypodermic injections of morphine. I had my limbs bandaged in clay, in sulphur, in poultices; but these gave only temporary relief. After trying everything, and suffering the most awful tortures, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Inside of two months, I was able to walk without a cane. In three months my limbs began to strengthen, and in the course of a year, I was cured. My weight has increased to 165 pounds, and I am now able to do my full day's work as a railroad blacksmith."

The Influence of the Home in the Uplifting of our People.

FOURTEENTH LETTER—BY T. E. W.

Flashes of Thought.

Reading a daily paper not long since, I was very deeply interested in a statement concerning the abolition of that popular but very nonsensical diversion, progressive euchre. It should rather be termed progressive nonsense. Some society people will perhaps be startled to know that a grand jury in a neighboring State has pronounced progressive euchre a species of gambling.

"Fort Smith, Ark., April 10.—The State grand jury, now in session, is making a hot fight on gambling. It has just looked out that they have returned indictments against several prominent society ladies for playing progressive euchre for prizes. Many sensations are expected before the grand jury adjourns."

It has long been my opinion that this very questionable amusement ought to be outlawed by good society; and I have as often been disgusted at the persistent way in which it has been insisted upon by people who entertain, as well as by those who have been honored with an invitation to an evening of pleasure. I have made the question an object of study, and have come to the conclusion that in nine cases out of ten the progressive euchrists become confirmed gamblers. A little firmness and common sense on the part of the host or hostess could very easily dispose of this social nuisance. I have been as often pained to read in the society column of some paper that Mr. and Mrs. So-and-so entertained a number of their young friends at their splendid (?) mansion a few days ago; and after mentioning the beautiful dresses worn, of course the next thing was progressive euchre. I have known instances also in which people prominent in religious circles have sanctioned the foolishness by their presence. An evening with the poets, or a select musicale, with choice reading, would be more in keeping with good morals.

No one knows but a mother, the love she has for a worthy daughter; a daughter who shows that she has taken her mother's advice along all lines. One of the most pressing needs among our young ladies is the power of conversation. Learn how to talk, and above all things, what to talk about. Strange to say, some of our girls remain in colleges for years, and leave without making the slightest improvement in this respect. Who is to blame for this—the parent, the teacher or the girl? Truly, I think all are to blame; for it is by conversing with the intelligent that we become intelligent to this extent. Teachers should converse more with the pupils, and this would give them a better opportunity to become like them. And, mothers, never be too busy to join in a pleasant conversation with your girls.

THE SLEEPING HABIT.—Sleeping well should be as much a habit as bad sleeping is. Early rising does much to favor sound sleep; and one secret of the perfect sleep of the country people is that they retire early and fatigued, and have perfect quiet around them. The conditions favoring sleep are perfect quiet, fatigue to more or less extent, darkness, a full meal, continuous monotony (as of a dull sermon or recitation, the quiet splash of the sea), freedom from pain, and warm extremities.—Golden Rule.

—The Philadelphia Methodist says: The Rev. C. N. Grandison, of the Delaware Conference, was unanimously expelled at the late session. He fell into sin and spoiled a life that had much promise of usefulness in it. The action of the conference was a sad but imperative one.

Africa Mission Training School.

BISHOP JOHN M. WALDEN, D. D.

The Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society is a part of our Methodist home missionary work. One of the declared purposes of its organization was to co-operate with the Missionary and Church Education Societies in their work in behalf of the freed men and others. Its teachers have not only done effective service in the schoolroom, but have also been active in the Sabbath school, and have aided pastors in other helpful services. The thousands of young men and women who have prepared in our schools to teach are exerting a Christian influence in the common schools of the South. The preachers who have been students in our seminaries and colleges have elevated the standard of preaching in every Southern Conference aided by the Missionary Society. The girls who receive such important training in the "model homes" of the Woman's Home Missionary Society are, as a rule, selected from the advanced classes in the Freedmen's Aid schools. In these and other ways this society for twenty-nine years has been a factor in the evangelization of our country.

Its relation to foreign missionary work has been remote, hence not obvious; but this is changing. The schools among the colored people have had to do with so grave a problem at home that even the redemption of Africa has not enlisted a large measure of attention. But evidently a new era is dawning. About seven years ago the Africa Mission Training School was begun in the Central Tennessee College at Nashville, Tenn., the first school established by the Freedmen's Aid Society. Within the past two years the Rev. W. F. Stewart has inaugurated a missionary endowment at Gammon Theological Seminary for the dissemination of missionary intelligence. Bishop Mallalieu is also working a plan intended to awaken a missionary interest. It is not a mere coincidence that these movements among the Afro-Americans in our country are transpiring at a time when the partition of Africa, mainly by England, France and Germany, is opening that continent to Christian missionaries as never before. While the Africa Mission Training School, the older of these recent developments, has been limited in its work by want of means, it has interested many of the students in the college in the study of Africa, and it has one conspicuous representative in Liberia—Miss Georgie C. Pattin, M. D.,—a graduate of the Meharry Medical School. She was convinced of her duty to become a medical missionary through her studies in the Mission Training School. Where she now leads, we may believe many will follow as the years go by.

To do its work successfully, this mission department of the college must have a habitat. Two years ago the most eligible property in the vicinity, the very property it needed, was thrown upon the market. The Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society was so pressed with other claims that it could not make the purchase. Every member of the Board saw that this particular property would be invaluable to the college. To meet the exigency I became responsible for the purchase price, $18,000. Two payments have been met by loans; hence there is interest on the whole, namely, $1,080 a year, except as the principal may be reduced. I had faith that liberal persons interested in the evangelization of Africa would aid in this matter, but the times have been such that it has not been pressed. I must now appeal to these friends of long neglected Africa for at least the $5,000 which must be provided before I start to our East Asia missions in May. Missionaries sent from this school will be prepared for largest usefulness; hence to aid it is to bless Africa. Send subscriptions either to Sanford Hunt, D. D., New York, or to Earl Cranston, D. D., Cincinnati, Ohio.

WONDERS OF REDEMPTION.

How great the wisdom, power, and grace,
Which in redemption shine!
The heavenly host with joy confess
The work is all divine.

Before His feet they cast their crowns,—
Those crowns which Jesus gave,—
And, with ten thousand thousand tongues,
Proclaim his power to save.

They tell the triumphs of his cross,
The sufferings which he bore;
How low he stooped, how high he rose,
And rose to stoop no more.

With them let us our voices raise,
And still the song renew;
Salvation well deserves the praise
Of men and angels too.

—Benjamin Beddome.

DAILY THOUGHTS.

[From Phillips Brooks.]

APRIL 25.—As soon as I can feel about my friend, who has become a better man, that he has become a larger and not a smaller, a freer and not a more imprisoned man, as soon as I lift up my voice and say that the man is free, then I understand him more fully, and he becomes a revelation to me in the higher and richer life which is possible for me to live.

* * *

APRIL 26.—I am anxious to have you know that to be a Christian does not mean primarily to believe this or that. It does not mean primarily, although it means necessarily afterward, to do this or that. But it means to know the presence of a true personal Christ among us and to follow Him. Here is the only true power by which a religion can become perpetual.

APRIL 27.—I know not what our Christian faith means unless these things are true, unless it be true that behind all enthusiasm and energy must be the deep life of the soul opening itself to God, and that the soul, opening itself to God and filled with Him, becomes by the possession of God its own true self, recognizes this as its own natural condition, and sees how unmanly and unnatural is any other way of living.

APRIL 28.—And so it must certainly be true, somehow or other, that self-culture and self-sacrifice are not merely capable of being reconciled to one another by compromises which they shall make between them, but that they are mutual ministers to one another, and that the more truly a man sacrifices himself to others, the more truly shall he live in his own life; the more truly he lives in his own life, the more truly shall he be a sacrifice to his fellow-men.

APRIL 29.—It does not take a great man to do great things. It only takes a consecrated, a devoted man; because God does everything, and man does nothing except what God does through Him.

APRIL 30.—And don't dare to hurt any soul; for to hurt a soul is to touch the very substance of the life of God.

MAY 1.—In all the simplest characters that line between the mental and moral natures is always vague and indistinct. They run together, and in their best combinations you are unable to discriminate, in the wisdom which is their result, how much is moral and how much is intellectual. You are unable to tell whether in the wise acts and words which issue from such a life there is more of the righteousness that comes of a clear conscience, or of the sagacity that comes of a clear brain.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. IS IT POSSIBLE?

Brother Davidson, the editor of the Tribune of this city, calls the attention of his Baptist brethren to what we believe is a growing evil. Referring to the 11th and 12th of April, he says:

"All day Thursday and Friday, from early dawn until late in the evening, hundreds of men, women and children could be seen wending their way to the Catholic churches in the different parts of the city with bottles, jugs, buckets, etc., getting what they call "holy water." Yes, even members of the Baptist Church were seen worshiping the god of Baal by getting this "holy water" and carrying it to their homes, as they claim, to keep the devil out and give them good luck."

From what we have been told by some of our Methodist brethren, we are certain that our Baptist friends do not have a monopoly of this abominable superstition. We believe all that has been said by our genial confere, and more. It is about high time that the Protestant ministers of this city should look into this matter, and throw themselves unitedly into the breach to prevent what we believe must be a wholesale drift toward Roman Catholicism. Surely, there is intelligence enough, and virtue enough and moral stamina enough among our leading ministers to begin a very necessary reform at this point.

GET READY FOR CHILDREN'S DAY.

Let it be understood that the second Sunday in June next, the 9th day of the month, has been designated and set apart as Children's Day in every Methodist Episcopal Church throughout the world. Now, brother pastors, don't interfere with that day. It is to be exclusively the children's day. The collections on that day are to be devoted exclusively to the children's fund for educational purposes. See the Discipline, paragraph 321.

The program for Children's Day this year is out in good time. It is entitled "The Golden Gate." It is every way admirably adapted to this great festival for our youth. The parts for the older scholars are not difficult, while the primary scholars have their full share in simple parts with object lessons from flowers, birds, seeds, fruit, the Cross, etc., all to be exhibited by the little ones. The musical features are exceptionally fine, with hymns by Dr. Geo. Lansing Taylor, Dr. J. B. Kenyon and Dr. C. H. Payne, and music by Professors J. R. Sweney, Wm. J. Kirkpatrick, W. L. Mason and Mrs. Dr. J. B. Kenyon. The music is so simple as almost to "sing itself." The whole exercise teaches through eye, ear and intellect by song, address and picture, the most valuable and most inspiring lessons. Bishops, pastors, superintendents and everybody who has examined the program pronounce it excellent, and commend it for universal use. "Stylus," the wide-awake correspondent of the New York Christian Advocate, says: "It would hardly be possible to overestimate the value and utility of the program for Children's Day just issued by Dr. C. H. Payne. While the program in itself is eminently popular and thoroughly workable, and within reach of any Sunday School, the idea which underlies it is singularly appropriate and comprehensive. Dr. Payne has a marked genius in this line of work, but this program is by far the best of any he has published. Every Sunday School in Methodism should get it and use it." Price $1 per 100, postpaid, at this office.

FOR downright, hard "hoss sense," as Sam Jones puts it, the following from the Tribune of New Orleans takes first place:

"Spring time has come, and notwithstanding the levee outrages, the Jim Crow cars and the concubinage bills, and numerous other outrages, some of the Negro preachers are busy already planning summer excursions. When will the Negro preacher learn to be a man and respect himself and race more than a silver dollar? If the existing circumstances are not sufficient to disgust the Negro preacher with railroad excursions, we don't know what will convince him."

A LOUISIANA DIVERSION.

About a month ago, near the Woodlawn plantation in this State, a Negro named E. T. R. Augustus, it is said, applied a vile epithet to Judge Basil LaPlace, following it up by striking the judge in the face, who retaliated by shooting the Negro six times while he was riding away. The firing attracted a number of people, including Lee Todd, the manager of the plantation just above Judge LaPlace's place. Mr. Leon Newman, one of the leading merchants of St. John, Mr. Charles A. Vicknair, one of the judge's employes, and a number of others hastily organized themselves into a posse, and being reinforced by a number of Negroes friendly to the judge, they started in pursuit of the Negro, running him down in the canefields. Mr. Vicknair emptied two loads of a Winchester shotgun, charged with buckshot, into him, and it is said that he received in all forty-two bullets, including the six fired by the judge from a 38-calibre revolver, all of which took effect. Notwithstanding this fact, Augustus was still alive when the posse came upon him, and there was a strong sentiment in favor of lynching him. Judge LaPlace, however, prevailed upon them not to do this, and the Negro was taken to his home, about a half mile up the road, where he received surgical attention, and in a few days, to the astonishment of everybody, the announcement was made that he would recover. The charge against the judge and the chivalrous gentlemen who emptied six chambers of a revolver and two barrels of buckshot into the body of Augustus, was for "shooting with intent to kill and wounding less than mayhem." At the examining trial before the justice of the peace, who was himself a Negro, the judge was released on a $50 bond, while the bond of each of each of the others was fixed at $100! The strangest part of the whole matter is that the Negro yet lives and is in a fair way of recovery, notwithstanding his strange experience of having fired into his body six bullets from a revolver and two loads of buckshot out of a Winchester shotgun. We can hardly believe it, yet it is true, our white folks, who are so handy with their revolvers and Winchesters in shooting "burly Negroes," had better consider the propriety of using Gatling guns or other weapons which will more certainly and quickly accomplish the desired result. After all, we have a suspicion that the highly inflamed mentality of the reporters, added to an imagination whose vividness is conspicuous in its failure to grasp the real truth, and whose most ardent desire is to create a sensation regardless of the consequences, are responsible for many of the reports which, if true, are a disgrace to any community, civilized or savage. If reports are true, the learned judge, and others of the gallant posse, are to be congratulated for their failure to kill the Negro, although striving so desperately to do so. But the Negro is more to be congratulated on his escape from death by the terrific shower of deadly missiles which was poured into his body. He will be yet more fortunate if he is not imprisoned for his failure to be shot to death.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Rev. Tenola Edwards of Clarksville, Texas, is keeping his contract. He has already sent in eight subscribers, and promises as many more. To an earnest, faithful pastor success is sure.

—A number of sisters of Greenwood, Miss., led by Sister Hetta Marshall, surprised the pastor, Rev. B. F. Woolfolk, and family, on the 29th inst., by bringing many good things. They are invited to come again.

—Rev. J. Jones of Columbia, Texas, reports a glorious revival, which resulted in the conversion of eight souls. Rev. Wm. Bartley, P. E., was present at the last quarterly meeting and did splendid service.

—Bessemer, Ala., S. H. Viel, pastor: "Our quarterly conference was held March 16 17, with Rev. Dr. Prettyman in the chair. The work is in good shape. The elder is greatly loved here. The collection was good."

—G. W. Mayes, Rising Sun, Tenn., writes: "In the midst of dark clouds, trials and temptations, the Lord has been merciful to us. We closed our revival services with happy results. The church is greatly revived."

—Rev. J. W. Sheppard of Wedowee, Ala., speaks in high terms of the recent visit and labors of Rev. Cain Rogers, the presiding elder. Rev. W. H. Bonds also rendered good service on the occasion of their late quarterly meeting.

—Rev. E. Troupe, pastor, writes from Greenville, Miss.: "The work is progressing. The watchword is go forward. Rev. J. W. Davis, P. E., was with us. While he preached to us our hearts burned within us. Forty-six partook of the sacrament. Collection, $9 05."

—Rev. W. McNeil informs us that our church at Ocean Springs, Miss., is in a prosperous condition. The quarterly conference and meeting was a feast of good things. Presiding Elder Shumpert was present to the joy of all. Three subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. More to follow.

—Our esteemed brother, Rev. Walker Miles of the Lexington Conference, has our profound sympathy in the loss of his bright and promising son, Willie, who fell asleep in Jesus, March 18, at Simpsonville, Ky. May the good Father administer comfort to the bereaved father and family.

—Rev. G. A. Shanklin is pleased with the outlook at Calvert, Texas. The people are loving and kind, and have liberally provided for the support of the church and pastor. A pleasant surprise made everybody at the parsonage rejoice, and signs are promising for a successful year.

—Rev. A. C. Oulbreath, presiding elder of Huntsville District, Texas Conference, writes: "We had a grand rally at Huntsville, Sunday, March 31. There were sixteen short sermons preached by ministers of three denominations. The collections amounted to $112 50. We are moving on nicely."

—My first quarterly conference convened at Columbia, Texas, March 23 24. Rev. Wm. Bartley, P. E., was on time. Sunday was a day long to be remembered. We are moving along nicely. We have lumber on the ground and will build our parsonage at an early date. Collection, $15 65. So writes E. D. Blackwell.

—Our church at Gloster, Miss., is among the more progressive churches in the district. Rev. A. T. Thomas and family have had occasion to acknowledge the progressive spirit of the people recently. A splendid surprise was planned and successfully executed, whereby the parsonage was completely taken by storm and many good things brought.

—Mrs. A. Bentley, Spring Hill, Tenn., writes: "Second quarterly conference fairly attended, and a pleasant time had. Presiding elder lectured to the Epworth League and gave satisfaction. The SOUTHWESTERN is appreciated here, but there is room for improvement. We ought to have it in all our homes. Our young people are progressive and the outlook is promising."

—Social cyclones seem to be the order of the day at Darrow, La. Recording Secretary J. A. Reddix sends us an elaborate and graphic account of the last visitation, wherein a large number of kind-hearted members and friends completely overwhelmed Rev. Baptiste, the pastor, with substantial tokens of their esteem. During the happy reunion the pastor urged the claims of the SOUTHWESTERN, as all good pastors do. We congratulate Darrow and everybody concerned in the visitation.

—At Bellville, Tex., the first quarterly conference was a grand success. Rev. W. L. Duncan, P. E., presided. This work is spiritually alive. Two good Sunday schools and a flourishing Epworth League, which is a power for good in our Church. With only two members and the aid of a number of friends, both white and colored, we erected a church building last year at Sealy, Tex., which is now valued at $650, and is one of the finest churches in the town. So writes Rev. P. H. Jenkins, pastor.

—Rev. Geo. A. Sissle, presiding elder of the Louisville District, Lexington Conference, writes: "Willie Miles, the son of Rev. L. W. Miles, departed this life March 18, at Simpsonville, Ky. He was sick but a few days. Brother Miles was called home to his bed-side during the session of our annual conference, arriving there just in time to see the last of Willie. His suffering was borne with great patience and his end peace. Brother Miles and family have our heartfelt sympathy in this sore hour of bereavement, and our prayers shall ascend for them to Him who hath said, 'Lo, I am with you always!' Aged 24 years."

A Lung Gymnasium.

The Rev. J. T. Wilhide, a Methodist minister, has invented a new breathing tube which he calls the Exhalor, which is in reality a Lung Gymnasium as the use of it will widen and strengthen everyone of the six million air cells in the lungs, whether diminished by tubercle or not, increase their activity and strengthen the elasticity of their tissue, making consumption almost impossible. It is equal to the very best elocutionary exercise to strengthen the throat and vocal organs, deepen and enrich the voice, and increase its power. It introduces 2 to 4 times more air into the lungs, consuming a large quantity of oxygen, and so purifies the blood, increases the circulation, relieves congestions and many morbid conditions of the system. The price is only $1 50 by mail post paid.

It is sold for the inventor by the HEALTH CULTURE CO., No. 32 East 14th street, New York, and by E. H. MORSE, 631 Poydras St., New Orleans.

An illustrated descriptive circular will be sent on application.

NEW ORLEANS AND VICINITY.

The Temperance Band of the New Orleans University held a joint meeting with the Epworth League of Simpson Chapel, at the church, Sunday, April 7. The following program was rendered: Prayer, Rev. H. Taylor; welcome song by the Epworth League choir; song, "A Thousand Years," Nellie Landry; recitation, "The Best Place for a Drink (town pump)," Charles Bush; song, "The Drunkard's Child," Elirra B Spears; recitation, "Tempted to Ruin," Lillie Baston; song, "I'm Hiding," Carrie Turpean. Mrs. L. G. Adkinson delivered a lecture on the need of a person being temperate, and 60 persons took the pledge. Praise the Lord.

Mount Zion M. E. Church, this city, has recently had three backsliders reclaimed, one received in full membership, and five on probation.

An Important Letter.

Mr. Editor—I wish to announce through the columns of your paper the former and present condition of our work within the bounds of the Pine Bluff District. A little more than two years ago I was appointed to this special district to do some special work, of course for the Methodist Episcopal Church, which I found to be an intricate problem, abnos insoluble, if not wholly so.

I found the following churches incumbered with a heavy load of cares (debts, of course), which the people contracted, so they say, ignorantly: Johnsville—Wilson's Chapel, $112; Warren—Woods Chapel, $150; Monticello—Mason's Chapel, $175; Dermott—Brown's Chapel, $180. Total, $617, with $400 of Church Extension donation, expended or received at least. Whether or not this amount has been faithfully applied, I am not in the position to know, or in other words, I am not conversant with sufficient facts to say. Since my appointment to this peculiar charge, the greatest financial depression the world ever knew has prevailed, which has rendered it impossible to liquidate the above debts in so short a time and under existing circumstances. We have applied to the Church Extension Society for loans to cover the debts in part, thereby giving time to arrange for a complete wipe-out of the whole, but failed there, or at least on Warren Charge, which then seemed more needy. I tried my friends by means of an appeal through the papers, and secured some aid, enough to partially satisfy one man; since that time, the others have reorganized and united their forces, and came on us just when we were least expecting it.

Now we are in for it, with no money nor way of getting any, to battle alone for whatever the outcome may bring. Dr. Kynett says in answer to my letter for information: "I cannot promise anything. Your people might as well learn first as last how to keep their pledges made to the society"—namely, to complete, free of debt, with the donation. This is all well and good to say, when circumstances justifies it; but not when $400 of the church's money is involved, which would go to waste if not avoided by further aiding the causes. Three hundred dollars would save to our church and poor people these churches worth more than three times the cost, to say nothing about the possibility of receiving back at some time all we put in, and thereby aiding the faithful few who are as true and loyal to our great cause as any North or South.

The brother who preceded me upon this district now stands upon our journal expelled from the church for wholesale embezzlement of this money and other monies intrusted to his hands as presiding elder.

Can I interest some dear friends to help me in this hour of great need. Thanking former friends for their aid, and hoping and trusting to find others, I am your humble and devoted servant minister,

W. R. R. DUNCAN, 2008 State St.,
Little Rock, Ark.

P. S.—Write me, brethren, a sympathizing letter.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

A Tribute.

To the Memory of a Friend and Venerable Father.

It is with a deep sense of sadness that I enter upon the duty of chronicling the death of one more of those great characters, whose history, if known, would prove an inspiration to the youth of our race. Here and there some great spirit tires of its earthly environments and takes its flight to the land of infinite soul possibilities—spirits which, in spite of great discouragements, asserted a sturdy, sterling manhood in days which tried men's souls—spirits, born in a nation's travail, entered with vigor and freshness the arena where is fought the battles of life. This and more can be said of Alfred Mason, father of our Dr. M. C. B. Mason. He was born near Woodville, Miss., in 1810, and died at Houma, La., April 6, 1895. He became a jeweler of recognized merit while yet a slave, and by his thrift and proficiency as a jeweler, secured enough money to purchase his freedom. The price was paid, but the grant of freedom was not realized. The papers were improperly made out, and he was doomed to abide the issue of the civil war, which made possible Lincoln's proclamation, whose authenticity and genuineness no man or nation dared question. He continued his work as a jeweler for some years after the war, only interrupted by demands upon him as a shoemaker, engineer and carpenter. He was happily converted early in life, and exemplified a worthy and consistent devotion to the Master's cause throughout his life. Though robbed of an opportunity to educate himself under the very frowns of the institution of slavery, he addressed himself to the task of learning to read. Success crowned his efforts. The opposition which confronted him in his efforts to educate himself stimulated and nurtured a zeal which found expression in his pushing his own children to the halls of learning, and surrounding them with circumstances conducive to their highest culture. Dr. Mason is a fair example of his untiring zeal. His last days were days of rest and patient, trustful waiting for the Master's call to reward. When it was made known that he desired to see his older son before his departure. Dr. Mason, who was then fulfilling an official engagement at Chicago, came in response to a telegram, and spent nearly a week with him.

The meeting was a sad one. The son, full of life and the duties of life, nobly facing its sorrows, adversities and disappointments looked forward with confidence. The father, having passed through these varied experiences, only waited the coming of the chariot to transfer the mantle to his son. Thus he left the wife, who for so many years had shared the joys and sorrows of his life, and who must feel keenly this separation in the even-tide of her life. The bereaved must feel their sorrows softened and sweetened by the precious memories with which such a life was replete. If I dared disturb the sorrowing circle of his loved and loving ones, it would be to say cease sorrowing and listen to the joyous acclaim of the angels who welcome Father Alfred Mason to the abode of the blessed.

"Life's race well done.
Life's work well done,
Life's crown well won,
Now comes rest."

LESSON HYMN: C. M.

That doleful night before his death
The Lamb, for sinners slain,
Did, almost with his dying breath,
This solemn feast ordain.

Thy sufferings, Lord, each sacred sign
To our remembrance brings;
We eat the bread, and drink the wine,
But think on nobler things.

O tune our tongues, and set in flame
Each heart that pants for thee,
To sing, "Hosanna to the Lamb,
The Lamb that died for me!"

Time.—Thursday, April 6, A. D. 30, afternoon and evening until the approach of midnight.

Places.—The lesson begins in Bethany; in verse 16 the scene is transferred to an upper room in Jerusalem; in verse 26 to the Mount of Olives.

Rulers.—Tiberius, emperor at Rome; Pontius Pilate, procurator of Judea; Herod Antipas, tetrarch of Perea and Galilee; Caiaphas, high priest of the Jews.

Parallel Passages.—Matt. 26. 17-30; Luke 22. 7-23; 1 Cor. 11. 23-25; Compare John 13. 1-30.

Connecting Links.—The words of our last lesson were uttered on Tuesday afternoon of "passion week;" no event on Wednesday is mentioned in any of the gospels, and we assume that that day was spent in retirement at Bethany.

The Lord's Supper.

(Mark 14. 12-26.)

Written for the Southwestern.

By Rev. G. N. Jolly, Kentucky Conference

GOLDEN TEXT.—This do in remembrance of me. (Luke 22. 19.)

Jesus was on Mount Olivet when He delivered our last lesson. He went from there to Bethany. The following day was spent in retirement. Sad and solemn must it have been to Him. We have in this lesson the Passover, and the Lord's Supper.

I. The Passover (12-21). 1. Preparing the Passover. (1) The time is uncertain. Many take the position that Jesus and His disciples ate the Paschal lamb on the same day and hour it was eaten by all the Jews. Others think they ate it the evening before, and Jesus died on the cross, the very hour the Paschal lamb was slain in the temple. The weight of evidence favors the last supposition. With the Jews the day began at sunset. The Passover, arrest, trial, and crucifixion were all the same day. (2) The place was a large upper room. According to St. Luke, Jesus spoke first to the disciples about observing this Passover. The directions given to Peter and John clearly teaches the fore-knowledge of Christ. The name of the man bearing the pitcher is not given. Some think he was Nicodemus, or Joseph of Arimathea, or John Mark. He possessed wealth, and was a true friend to Jesus. This upper room was likely the one in which the disciples were assembled when Jesus met them, on two occasions, after His resurrection: the one from which he led them forth on the day of His Ascension: the one in which they tarried for the promise of God, and in which the tongues of fire were poured out upon them. (3) In the preparation all leaven was removed, mats were spread, tables arranged, cloths placed on them, and couches set in order about them. The Paschal lamb was secured, slain in the temple precincts, the blood and some of the fat offered as a sacrifice, the flesh roasted and taken to the place of the feast. The unleavened bread, the wine, and the bitter herbs were secured. It took money and labor to serve God. We cannot serve the Lord without cost. But it costs more to live in sin than in holiness.

2. Eating the Passover. While the Jews ate this feast, it was customary for some one, usually the youngest at the table, to ask about its origin. Then some aged person in a solemn way related the history of the bondage and oppression of their fathers in Egypt, the institution of the Passover, the death of the first born, and their deliverance by Moses. But on this occasion the conversation ran in other channels. (1) Jesus said—"With desire have I desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer" (Luke). He likely wished to eat this feast with them for His comfort. His hour was at hand. Bitter suffering and death were before Him. He was a real man, and as such desired to eat this Passover that his soul might be strengthened. He also wished to comfort His disciples. They would be scattered as sheep having no shepherd. Here He gave them His farewell address. John has recorded it for us. It begins in the latter part of the thirteenth and ends with the close of the seventeenth chapter of his gospel. A third reason for desiring to eat this Passover with them was that He might institute the Lord's Supper. This sacrament has taken the room of the Passover. It comes immediately after it; the same elements were used in both; and the design of each is the same.

(2) But while they ate "There was also strife among them, which of them should be accounted the greatest" (Luke). Jesus was no doubt grieved at this, and told them the Kings of the Gentiles exercised lordship over them, and if any would be great in His kingdom let him be servant of all. He then arose from the table, laid aside His garments, girded Himself with a towel, took a basin of water, and began to wash their feet. This taught love and humility. He then said—"I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you." May God keep our heart humble, and constrain us in every possible way to show our love to those about us. (3) Jesus was troubled in Spirit, and said—"One of you shall betray Me" (John). This was a grave charge. No wonder they were sorry, and anxious to know who would be guilty of such a crime. One by one they ask Him the searching question—"Master, is it I?" Even Judas, the basest of all, came with the same interrogation. Jesus answered—"He it is to whom I shall give a dip when I have dipped it." This He handed to Judas with the remark, "That thou doest do quickly." When he "Received the dip he went immediately out." It was night.

II. The Lord's Supper (22-26). 1. The bread and the wine. The bread was unleavened. Why? Because such bread was flat and heavy, and was an emblem of their bondage in Egypt. The slavery of sin in which we have been is just as severe. Leaven indicates decay, and any matter that has in it decomposed parts, was not a true type of the body of Jesus that did not see corruption. Use nothing but the finest of flour and the purest of water in making bread for the Lord's Supper. The wine was likely the unfermented juice of the grape. Why? Fermented wine would be a source of temptation to the reforming drunkard. Yet we are commanded to say when we pray—"Lead us not into temptation." The wine was an emblem of the blood of Jesus. That blood never saw corruption. Fermented wine has in it decomposed matter, therefore it is not a true type of the crimson tide that flowed through the veins of Jesus. Always secure, if possible, the unfermented juice of the grape for the Lord's Supper.

2. The body and blood of Jesus. The Savior did not give to His disciples, in a literal sense, His body and blood. The words are figurative. They represent His broken body and shed blood. Such assertions are common in the Bible. Jesus, in explaining the parable of the Wheat and the Tares, said—He that soweth the good seed is the son of man, the field is the world, the good seed are the children of the Kingdom, the tares are the children of the wicked one, the enemy that sowed them is the devil, the harvest is the end of the world, and the reapers are the angels. In this explanation the words are and is are figurative. They represent the Son of man, the world, and the children of the Kingdom. So the bread and the wine represent the body and the blood of Jesus.

3. Who should partake of this sacrament? "And they all drank of it." It is likely Judas was not with them when this Supper was instituted. He was not excluded by Jesus. It was his sin that drove him from them. The doctrine of "close communion" as taught by some denominations is narrow, selfish, and bigoted. They cannot prove "Apostolic Succession," neither can they sustain the assertion that it is "close baptism." Free communion does not mean that unbelievers are invited to the Lord's table, neither does it teach that believers who have been guilty of some great sin are welcome. It means that only those who truly and earnestly repent of sin, who are in love and charity with their neighbors, and who intend to lead a new life following the commandments of God are invited.

4. The blood of the Covenant—"This is my blood of the New Testament which is shed for many." The blood is the life (Gen. 9. 4). The wine represents the blood; that is, the life of Christ. The blood of the New Testament. God, in His wisdom and love, saw fit to enter into a covenant with man to redeem him from sin and death by Jesus the Christ. That blood has been shed, that life was given, for many. The atonement is full. All may be saved by it. It was shed for the remission of sins—in order that sins might be forgiven.

5. Drinking new the fruit of the vine. The wine is the fruit of the vine. The wine represented the blood, and the blood the life, of Christ. Partaking of the fruit of the vine is, in a spiritual sense, partaking of the life of Jesus. The Kingdom of heaven means the spiritual reign of Christ in heaven, in the Church on earth, and in the heart of man. We may, when alone, have communion with God in our heart. The assertion refers to communion with Jesus around the Lord's table when we take this holy sacrament. But, does it not point to a feast in the heavenly world? May we not there be gathered around the table of the Lord with the patriarchs, prophets and apostles, and feast on Him by prayer, praise and thanksgiving forever?

BY UNCLE THOMAS.

Sly is the most cowardly chicken of the whole brood. Just trace his history and you will find it to be so. It never will go by himself; he must always have some other chicken with him. He is one of the better reasoners of all the other chickens. He never fails to get a person into trouble whenevar he is allowed to remain in their house. Sly and Anger will get together sometimes and make up a plot to hurt somebody, and they will even go so far as to lead a boy or girl away from home, and you may imagine how silly they are to be lead off by these two little chickens. Why don't they run them out and keep them out forever more? There is no happiness while these two chickens are in the house. When Tease and Sly get together they will make all the boys and girls hate you. Sometimes the boys and girls will associate with you, because they can't get rid of you; but all the time they are wishing you were absent. There are two more of the brood that causes trouble. Their names are Want and Not Satisfied, or Want and Dissatisfaction. Want is the tamest chicken of the lot, and you can reason with him if you will keep all the others away.

Sometimes a piece of bread and preserves is sufficient; but if Dissatisfaction is around, you may give bread and preserves. Put on your new clothes, new shoes, go out and play; and with all the kindness that mother, father and friends can render, yet nothing will please you. Dissatisfaction is a bad little chicken. Run him out, and keep him out forever more. Pride is a very troublesome chicken, and wherever you find Pride, you are very apt to find Dissatisfaction; and whenever you hear Dissatisfaction chirping around, then lookout for Anger, for he is not very far off. Now I will tell you what to do with Pride. You put him in the coop. Don't let him in your house. If you do, Dissatisfaction will go in with him, and you will be unhappy. If Pride gets lonesome, put Want in with him, that is if he becomes troublesome. Don't feed them very much, for they grow very fast.

T. R. FLETCHER.

Answer.

Mr. Editor—In answer to the question of Annie Shelby, under Watch Tower, I would answer as follows: First number of days 42; an egg and a half in a day and a half appears to me as being an egg for each day; say 42. Hoping that you will correct me if in error, I remain a friend to Watch Tower and the SOUTHWESTERN.

Christianity Not Going Backward

I know that many declare that Christianity has collapsed; that the Bible is an obsolete book; that the Christian Church is on the retreat. I will show you that the opposite of that is true. But let us see whether the Bible is a last year's almanac. Let us see whether the Church of God is in a Bull Run retreat; muskets, canteens and haversacks strewing all the way. The great English historian, Sharon Turner, a man of vast learning and of great accuracy, not a clergyman, but an attorney as well as a historian, gives these overwhelming statistics in regard to Christianity and in regard to the number of Christians in the different countries:

In the first century	500,000
In the second century	2,600,000
In the third century	5,000,900
In the fourth century	10,000,000
In the fifth century	15,000,009
In the sixth century	20,000,000
In the seventh century	24,000,000
In the eighth century	30,000,000
In the ninth century	40,000,000
In the tenth century	50,000,000
In the eleventh century	70,000,000
In the twelfth century	80,000,000
In the thirteenth century	75,000,000
In the fourteenth century	80,000,000
In the fifteenth century	100,000,000
In the sixteenth century	125,000,000
In the seventeenth century	155,000,000
In the eighteenth century	200,000,000

A decadence, as you observe in only one century, and more than made up in the following centuries; while it is the usual computation that there will be, when the record of the nineteenth century is made up, at least 300,000,000 Christians.

Poor Christianity! what a pity it has no friends! How lonesome it must be! Who will take it out of the poor-house? Poor Christianity! Three hundred millions in one century! In a few weeks of the year 1881, 2,500,000 copies of the New Testament was distributed! Why, the earth is like an old castle with twenty gates and a park of artillery ready to thunder down every gate.—Michigan Christian Advocate.

When author and artist, with note-book and camera, actually retraced (as did Bishop Vincent) the journeyings of the Savior and His Apostles, recounting their toils, trials, and triumphs, which brought to humanity the dawn of a new day.

BEAR IN MIND

"Earthly Footsteps of the Man of Galilee" is a wholly unique offering. Never before has a work of like plan and scope been attempted. The journeyings of Christ and His Apostles were literally followed in 1894 by author and artist with note-book and camera, photographing and describing the scene of every recorded event. Eight hundred negatives were secured and 384 fresh, first hand views from these embellish the production. It is new, original, artistic, and striking in every respect. The work is copyrighted, is thoroughly exclusive, and can not be secured in this vicinity except through this paper.

FROM PRESIDING ELDERS.

Holly Springs District—

Dear Brethren—The first session for 1895 will convene at Duck Hill, June 27, in the M. E. Church. A full attendance is desired the first day. Please be able to report as much of the assessment collected as possible; and we want each pastor to see to it that the SOUTHWESTERN is put in the home of each family on his charge. May God bless each pastor in the attempt.

W. MCDONALD, P. E.

Greenville District—

Dear Brethren—Send money for General Conference expenses to Hunt & Eaton, 150 Fifth avenue, New York City, at once; don't put it off. The first District Conference will be held at Webb, August 1 4. The Epworth League and Sunday School Convention will meet one day earlier, Wednesday, July 31.

J. W. DAVIS, P. E.

Beaufort District—

Dear Brethren—Take the full amount of F. A. and S. E. Society and report the same before the commencement day, May 23. Urge the claims of all the benevolent societies and take the collections monthly. Remember the apportionment for General Conference delegates traveling expenses. The winter is over, now let us rally. "No blanks in our statistics," is our financial motto. District conference at Buford, July 24 29. Save the people by urging them to duty—their duty well performed is life. Yours at work,

B. F. WITHERSPOON, P. E.

Griffin District—

Dear Brethren—We are very desirous of making this year a great success on spiritual and financial lines. We can do so. Let every man go to his tent to pray, and then come forth to work, fight and achieve. Victory will be ours with God in front! Let us have for our watchword, "A thousand souls for Christ, and a thousand dollars for benevolences." Our appointments will be according to our work. Do not waste time and fire at random, but take good aim. Do all in your power for the Missionary, Church Extension and Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Societies. The district conference will soon be here, when each brother will have to report his work.

The Sunday School Convention will meet at St. Peter M. E. Church, Sunnyside, Ga., on Friday before the first Sunday in June (May 31). The delegates will be met at the church on the afternoon of the 30th of May.

Sermon on Thursday evening by Rev. J. C. Hunt, pastor of the Greenville Charge.

"Children's Day" is the second Sabbath in June. On that day special effort should be made to lift your benevolent collection. On each Sabbath day present the interest of the SOUTHWESTERN to your people. Yours for the great work,

JOHN P. WRAGG, P. E.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have had wonderful success selling dish washers. Have not made less than $8 any day and some days $15 Nearly every family buys one. They are cheap, durable and do the work perfectly. You can wash and dry the dishes for a family in two minutes without touching your hands to a dish. I believe any lady or gentleman anywhere can do as well as I am doing, as I had no experience. Any one can sell what every one wants to buy, and every family seems to want a dish washer. Write to the Iron City Dish Washer Co., 142 S. Highland Ave., E. E. Pittsburg, Pa. They will send you full particulars and help you as they did me. I do not write my experience boastingly, but because I think it a duty I owe to others in these hard times.

A Shipment of Emigrants to Africa.

The Danish steamship Horsa left Savannah, Ga., March 19, for Liberia with 997 Negro emigrants, ranging from the infant in arms to old men on the verge of the grave. As she sailed down the river the passengers sang songs, while crowds of Negroes on the wharves and the banks cheered. The emigrants carried extensive supplies, including agricultural implements and stores of seed, and are said to have considerable money. It is believed that this is the best equipped party that ever sailed for Africa. The colonists will endeavor to secure 3000 acres of land and organize a town government of their own Among them are three ministers and a doctor. The first building to be erected will be a church. The treasurer of the Migration Society says it is his intention to send a shipment of emigrants to Africa every month, if possible.—Ex.

A Woman's Nerves.

THE STORY OF A WOMAN TO WHOM NOISE WAS TORTURE.

Prostrated by the Least Excitement—
Physicians Baffled by Her Case—
Had Given Up in Despar when Relief was Found.

[From the Gate City, Keokuk, Iowa.]

Mrs. Helen Meyers whose home is at 3515 Vernon Avenue, Chicago, and whose visit to Keokuk will long be remembered, was at one time afflicted with a nervous malady which at times drove her nearly to distraction. "Those terrible headaches are a thing of the past," said she the other day to a Gate City representative in the presence of a number of friends. "And," continued Mrs. Myers, "there is quite a story in connection with it too, indeed I consider it one of the most miraculous cures of modern times.

My nervous system sustained a great shock some fifteen years ago, brought on I believe through too much worrying over family matters and then allowing my love for my book to get the better of my discretion where my health was concerned. Why, whenever my affairs at home did not go along just as I expected, I would invariably become prostrated from the excitement and I would consider myself fortunate indeed if the effects of the attack would not remain for a week. I was obliged to give up our pleasant home not far from the Lake Shore drive, because I could not stand the noise in that locality. I could find no place in the city which I deemed suitable to one whose nervous system was always on the point of explosion. To add to my misfortunes my complexion underwent a change and I looked so yellow and sallow that I was ashamed to venture from the house at all.

"Madam," said my doctor to me soon after an unusually severe attack of the malady, "unless you leave the city and seek some place of quiet, you will never recover." So I concluded I would visit my uncle, who lives in Dallas county, Iowa, and whose farm would surely be a good place for one in my pitiable condition.

"Now, for the strangest and most miraculous part of the story," continued Mrs. Myers, who had aroused the curiosity of her listeners. "My uncle used to live here in Keokuk, you know, and when he moved to his Dallas county farm, he of course ordered the Gate City sent to his address. I picked up the paper one day and happened to come across an interesting recital of the recovery of some woman in New York State who was afflicted as I had been. This woman had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I thought that if Pink Pills cured that woman they might do the same for me. I began to take the pills according to directions and I began to feel better from the start. My uncle told me two weeks after I commenced taking Pink Pills that he guessed he would not be afraid to discharge his old army musket now without warning me beforehand, for he didn't think it would affect me at all. I took several boxes of the Pink Pills and then I was ready to go back to Chicago. My nervousness was gone and my complexion was as fresh as that of any sixteen-year-old girl in Iowa and Pink Pills is what put the color in my cheeks. No wonder I am in such high spirits and feel like a prize fighter. And no wonder I like to come to Keokuk, for if it had not been for Pink Pills bought from a Keokuk firm I would not have been alive now," laughingly concluded the lady.

Dr. William's Pink Pills for Pale People are not a patent medicine in the sense in which that term is usually understood, but are a scientific preparation successfully used in general practice for many years before being offered to the public generally. The Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, that tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration, all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale or sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature.

These Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50.

GOOD WORDS.

From Our Little Friend.

Dear Editor—I have been thinking I would write to the dear old SOUTHWESTERN. I am a little 15 year old girl, and I am a member of the Church. I attend the Church very regular, and read the dear old SOUTHWESTERN and enjoy its interesting pages. It should be a member of every Christian family, and I am trying to get every one of my friends to subscribe for it. Yours,

SOPHINA IRONS, Paris, Tenn

From a Presiding Elder.

Shreveport, April 3, 1895.

Rev. E. W. S. Hammond, D. D.: Dear Brother—Let me congratulate you on the general improved appearance of the SOUTHWESTERN, and the valuable instruction its readers receive from its pages. God bless you. We will do all we can to bring 200 subscribers on the district this year, although times are very hard with our people now. We are starting off nicely this year on the district. The pastors in Shreveport are taking hold earnestly. Truly yours in Christ,

S. DUNCAN.

E. W. S. HAMMOND, D. D., EDITOR. NEW ORLEANS, MAY 2, 1895.—Vol. 30. No. 18. HUNT & EATON, PUBLISHERS.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

IN TWO Southern States, Mississippi and Louisiana, there was a larger per cent of illiterate people in 1890 than there were in 1880. Think of it! In America the number of illiterates increasing in two great States among native white people!

OH, BROTHER MINISTERS! It is an awful responsibility that you have voluntarily assumed. If you are not absolutely certain that you are divinely called to the great work of soul-saving, it would be far better that you quietly retire from the ministry. But even the divine call may be lost, and the spirit of the Master withdrawn, because of your indulgence in sinful practices. One may deceive the people for a time, but the man's true character will out at last. Then comes the fearful retribution. Be ye clean that bear the vessels of the Lord.

THE Methodist Episcopal Church is giving less than four cents per member in annual conference collections for the great educational work of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society. If it were not for the heroic efforts of the society in raising money from other sources, and for the careful and economic administration among the schools, this work would be soon seriously crippled. As it is, the straits to which the society is put to carry on this work are such that demands immediate and thoughtful attention of our ministry.

DR. PARKHURST, our genial confere of Zion's Herald, has been rusticating in the West Indies, and it is quite evident that he has been carefully studying the Negro in his habitat. We agree with the Doctor that it would be more philanthropic, statesmanlike and Christian, if the people who would help the Negro would study him as he is, learn his weaknesses as well as his virtues, his environments and his needs, and then seek to minister unto him. But the great difficulty seems to be that many of the Negro's so-called friends are distinguished largely for their optimistic views concerning his future, and are too often content to allow the other fellow to do the personal work. The Doctor appreciated the privilege of riding on a train where "every employe was a black man"—this was, of course, in Jamaica. And, we observe, there was no surrender of his ministerial dignity, nor was there any surrender of social comity in allowing these black men to look after his comfort, in common with other passengers. We could wish that many of the people who travel in this country could make frequent visits to those countries, where colored people are employed and where their occupancy of positions of trust does not excite unfavorable comment.

IN A DILEMMA.

Poor Governor O'Ferrall of Virginia is having a hard time getting around the common civilities. He gave a reception recently to Postmaster General Wilson, at which time the employes of the postoffice were invited to meet him and shake his hand. The irrepressible Negro again furnished an opportunity for the exercise of Mr. O'Ferrall's gubernatorial racial, ancesteral and traditional dignity. Among the employes was a Negro letter carrier who had the temerity and the unblushing effrontery to expect even the slight recognition of a hand shake. Of course, he was refused admittance. If the Negro expects to shake hands with the clan O'Ferrall he must proceed immediately to get white! The postmaster general, however, went to the door and shook the hand of the Negro.

MISS WILLARD NO COLOR PHOBIST.

It is probable that a studied attempt has been made to connect the name of that faithful and staunch friend of all people, Miss Frances Willard, with those who have and are now favoring the lynching of Negroes. We are exceedingly glad to find that the statements are erroneous. We cheerfully publish the subjoined letter, written to Bishop B. F. Lee, of the African M. E. Church, by Lady Somersett, which will place Miss Willard in a proper light before her many colored friends in this country:

THE PRIORY REIGATE, March 14, 1895.

Dear Sir—I send you a copy of a document in my possession, which has been prepared by those who signed it for the English press. I should be much obliged if you would afford it space in your valuable columns. It is almost the last signature Mrs. Frederick Douglass ever gave. I remain yours, faithfully,

ISABEL SOMERSETT (LADY HENRY SOMERSETT).

THE DOCUMENT:

The Position of the National Temperance Union of the United States in Relation to the Colored People.

BOSTON, Mass., February 6, 1895.

It has come to our knowledge that wrong impressions concerning the attitude of Miss Willard toward the colored people in America have been made in certain quarters, and as an act of justice we desire to put it on record that no such criticisms would be for a moment received in her own country by those who have any adequate knowledge of Miss Willard's character and career. Her ancestors were Abolitionists, her childhood's home was on the line of "underground railway" for fleeing fugitive slaves; her father was one of the founders of the Free Soil, afterwards the Republican party, and her convictions and sympathies, as proved by her speeches, books and editorial articles, are with those who from the beginning of the great anti-slavery agitation, have been devoted to the cause of the colored people. As president of the National W. C. T. U. and founder of the World's W. C. T. U., Miss Willard has always maintained the position that no color line could be drawn by either society, and the women who have thus far guided and controlled these great national organizations have never sought to establish any distinction in either, but have freely and gladly accepted the colored women as officers and delegates to the conventions of both. Within a few weeks Miss Willard publicly declared that if a certain woman's club of Chicago, of which she is a member, declined to receive colored women on terms of equality, she should resign her membership.

CHIVALRY (?)

Five Negroes—two men and three women—were arrested recently, charged with the murder of a white man near Greenville, Ala. The crime was peculiarly atrocious, the murderers burning the body of their victim according to the confession of one of the Negroes. A dispatch says: "A band of one hundred men carrying rifles, and all cool and brave, took the prisoners from the sheriff's possee and riddled them with bullets." Five men, "cool and brave," could have done this work, thus relieving the other "cool and brave" ninety-five from participation in a very disagreeable piece of business. It is possible, however, that there was a slight disregard of that very important Scripture injunction, that "out of the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word be established."

—Rev. W. S. Matthews, D. D., editor of the California Christian Advocate, has completed his first year as editor. That he has rendered valuable service to the Church, increased the circulation of the paper and fully measured up to the great responsibilities which the Church has placed upon him, goes without saying. The SOUTHWESTERN congratulates him, with many good wishes for his future success.

TIGHTENING THE ROPE ABOUT THE NECK OF THE RACE.

"Every man who betrays his trust, shirks his responsibilities, or breaks the law, helps to tighten the rope around the neck of his neighbor." This utterance from a recent philosophic work on "Civilization and Progress" is true of all people. It is true of every society of white men, the world over. It is true, in an emphatic and peculiar way, of the Negro race. This race is only one generation removed from low and degrading social conditions. It has its record to make. It has prejudices to meet and overcome. There are many people who have little sympathy for the Negro race in its struggle upward to a recognized place among the advanced and privileged races of the world. They assert that the race is by nature inferior. Their prejudices blind their eyes to the evidences of the rapid advancement of the colored people since emancipation. They are open-eyed when any weaknesses are to be judged. They claim that the race has not raised up men for leadership. They point to any weakness, or failure, or immorality of men in high places. When a prominent white man falls into shame, his failure is simply charged up to the general weakness of humanity. But, when a Negro, in a position of trust and prominence, falls, his weakness and failure are charged against the Negro race,—and so it tightens the rope about the neck of a race that is struggling up to a place among men. This is not merely because he is black, but because he is weak and down in the world. The Irish people have for generations contended against the prejudices of the English. When Parnell, their chosen leader, was found to be living a life of shame and immorality, the cause of the Irish people was set back for years. It was illogical that the English should claim that the Irish were not fit to be trusted with Home Rule, because their chosen leader could not be trusted, but they raised this cry against them. Thus, one prominent man and leader, by betraying his trust and breaking the laws of God and man, helped "to tighten the rope around the neck of his people."

Thus every leader, especially of a people who are struggling up to a place of power and recognition among men, carries a weight of immense responsibility. He has in his power, not only his own life and future, but, in a large measure, the life and future of his people. When the only colored chaplain in the United States Army degrades himself by joining in the dissipations of the soldiers under his care, instead of rebuking them for their profligacy, he not only himself sinks into shame and contempt, but he "tightens the rope about the neck of his people." He makes it very difficult for another colored man to be elected to such a position of honor and responsibility under the government.

And so, when a trusted and honored minister of the Gospel falls into dishonor, and betrays his trust, he strikes a blow at his race. He makes it harder for every pure and self-respecting man and woman who is fighting a brave fight against great odds. May God help every man who is called to leadership, to be true to his trust. He will thus, instead of tightening the rope about men's neck to drag them down, be a lever to lift them up into a place of recognition and power.

—Rev. S. H. Nevils, presiding elder of Tupelo District, Upper Mississippi Conference, writes: "Rev. I. M. Lampkin, a member of our conference, having been sick ever since the annual conference, died at his post April 8, 1895. His last appointment was by Bishop Vincent to the Bell Circuit.

—Sin is its own detective. The sinner cannot escape himself any more than he can escape God.

EASTER CHIMES.

Results of Missionary Collections in Different Parts of the Field.

ARKANSAS.

..W. H. Simpson, Fort Smith.—Our Easter exercises were conducted grandly by Miss Ella C. Phillips, Mr. W. J. Kidd, Miss Alice Simpson, assisted by Rev. John Qualls, pastor. The program was nicely rendered. The house was beautifully decorated, and was crowded. Missionary collection, $17.20.

..J. B. Donnelly, Stamps.—Rev. J. B. Donnelly preached an instructive sermon in connection with the Easter exercises. The program was instructive and helpful. The good members also made the pastor some valuable presents. The church is moving forward.

GEORGIA.

..P. H. Travis, Asbury.—We celebrated Easter Sunday in good style. The program was conducted by the Sunday School. Mrs. S. M. ..W. A. Ray, Topeka.—There was Easter service all day at Mt. Olive Church. A blessed time was had. Collection, $3 80.

LOUISIANA.

..H. C. Gair, Booneville.—Our first quarterly conference convened at Booneville. Presiding Elder S. E. H. Morant was on time. We had a grand time. Collections for the day, $17 70. Easter services were excellent. Collection, $3 60. A $20 Bible and hymnal was presented to Booneville M. E. Church by the Willing Workers through Ford Robinson, 7 years old.

..F. W. Lashington, Lake Providence.—Easter day was a grand time with the pastor, members and friends at St. Peter's M. E. Church. The young people decorated the church in grand style, and the program was fully carried out. Missionary sermon preached by pastor. Collection, $6.

..S. K. Ilason, Vanceville.—Our first quarterly conference was held April 13-14, Rev. W. S. Duncan, P. E., presiding. Reports show progress on all lines. Easter Sunday was fully observed, and success attended our labors. At the close of the presiding elder's sermon 17 came forward for prayer. Collection, $31. We are spiritually alive. Three joined the church and one was happily converted. At night about 75 persons came up to be prayed for.

..A. A. Lacey, Dulac.—Easter Sunday was a high day. Church was nicely decorated by the Sunday School. Collection, $1 55.

..A. Grant, Sotilla Bluff.—Church revived. Outlook good. Easter services unusually interesting. Collection, $10.

MISSISSIPPI.

..A. Hawkins, Moss Point.—Easter Sunday was quite a high day with us here. The program was carried out to the letter. The music furnished by Miss Mary F. Girard and choir was excellent. The services were highly enjoyed by all present. Messrs. J. H. Carter and F. J. Hill read very appropriate essays on the occasion. The amounts collected for missions by the different named persons were as follows: Alice Anderson, 26 cents; A. Campbell, 41 cents; W. Smith, 20 cents; W. Hyde, 30 cents; G. Hand, 35 cents; I. Watson, 60 cents; C. Dubra, 68 cents; Bill Pollard, $1 45; F. J. Hill, $1 55; F. C. Smith, $2 46; D. C. McFail, $8 45; A. Hawkins, $8 88. Total collection, $31 65. Too much cannot be said in praise of our beloved pastor, G. W. Smith, and S. H. Wallace, our efficient superintendent, for the manner in which the services were conducted.

..J. Burton, Amory.—Presiding Elder Nevils was with us at the first quarterly conference, which passed off nicely. The presiding elder preached grandly and urged all the brothers to take the SOUTHWESTERN. Collection during the quarter, $78. The sacrament was administered to 50 persons. We had a grand Easter Sunday collection, $19 80.

..Minnie I. Hardiman, Grenada.—The Sunday School at Payne's Chapel is prospering. Easter service was carried out according to program. Bible verses were repeated and essays by Misses Anna M. Johnson, Carrie A. Johnson, Ida E. Hardiman, and Mr. J. M. Brewer. Addresses by Albert H. Hardiman and Rev. M. D. McKenney. Collection, $2.

..N. H. Williams, Oxford.—Easter Sabbath was celebrated in grand style. A splendid audience witnessed the whole service during the day. Collection for missions, $13.

..G. W. Brame, State Line.—Easter Sabbath was a day of much success. Superintendent S. E. Thompson and others deserve praise. Collections good. Helpers: J. Dancer, J. Black, H. Davis, S. Cherry, W. C. Crawford, S. Jackson, F. Mills, T. Fairley, J. S. Summers.

OKLAHOMA.

..S. C. Coleman, Guthrie.—Easter was a grand day at the Second M. E. Church. The Sunday School held the first service, conducted by A. M. S. Woods, superintendent. Rev. T. Shelby delivered an address after the morning program was carried out. Rev. D. G. Franklin preached an Easter sermon. At 3.30 the program was continued, and a grand time was had. Collection, $8 20.

TEXAS.

..T. Moore, Mineola.—On Easter Sabbath the church was nicely decorated, and the program was carried out, which gave grand satisfaction. Our churches were crowded, and the collection was $23.

..A. Jackson, LaGrange.—Easter program was rendered here in grand style. Our collection was $5, from the Sunday School, which is in advance of last year.

..W. E. Hutcherson, Marshall.—Easter was a grand day with us. We carried the program out in full. Much credit is due Rev. S. Q. Kelly and his teachers for their valuable assistance. Collections—Sunday School, $1 35; church, $4 15. Woodlawn Circuit is alive. Pray for our success.

..G. S. Helm, Colmesneil.—On Easter Sunday I had but three programs, as my Sunday School is very small; but I said, by the grace of God, I would not be a failure, and I had all of my good sisters to decorate the church. I then went around and told the people what I was trying to do, and the Lord so stirred up their hearts they came out in large numbers, and we collected $3 10. Our good Baptist friends came out with us and rendered valuable assistance. The speakers were Prof. C. A. Ward, Prof. F. W. McCray, Dr. C. A. Porter, and the writer.

...W. R. Morrow, Littig.—Our Easter service was held at St. Paul M. E. Church. The "World-wide Gospel" program was carried out with much success. Church was crowded. Rousing speeches were made by Prof. H. B. Fry, Misses J. B. Cheatham and Fanny Washington of the Col. D. D. and B. Institute at Austin, Tex., also by the pastor. Mr. Isaac L. Houson presided at the organ. Collection, $8 10.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

"Means to a Great End."

By MRS. M. R. RODGERS WEBB, Missionary Local Preacher and Lecturer, Columbus, Colorado County, Texas.

In the issue of your valuable organ, the SOUTHWESTERN of April 18, in an article entitled "The Wolf also Shall Dwell with the Lamb," by N. H. Speight, D. D., Anniston, Ala., occurs this sentence, on which I feel impelled to comment: "If in every Southern city an association of the white and colored ministers were organized, better feeling would exist between the two races—could not be otherwise, from the fact that it would be a pulpit topic. A great deal of the bad feeling comes from the pulpit, and it will take the united effort of the pulpit to break it down," etc.

The italics are mine, however. For therein lies a volume for thought. It has been my thought—even more, my outspoken declaration—that only when the ministers of Christ are awakened, themselves grow alive to the great power of the pulpit in this matter, will the dawn of another era of revival, an intensified, supreme revulsion to purest religious conceptions of the Christ-mind, break in this land. As a constant worker, as a Christian observer and teacher, as one engaged in the performance of the holy work of telling the way the Redeemer trod, as a pained spectator of the sad mistakes made by the pulpit occupants, as a keen sufferer from the consequences of the non-existence of a real, genuine sympathy between the two races—its respective pulpit leaders and the congregations being ministered to by them, "so near and yet so far," as a traveler and lecturer through ten States during the past seven years constantly, as a W. C. T. U. working spirit, as a firm believer in the equal rights, in every sense, of men and women before God, on the same plank which Paul stood upon at Mar's Hill, whilst uttering his sublime and glorious platform: "God hath made of one blood," etc.—I re-echo Dr. Speight's feelings, and my heart responds to every word in his most sensible and timely article. That he conveys the glad intelligence in it, of the Christian stand made at Chattanooga, as told in the Methodist Advocate Journal, that a "Union association had been organized in that city, composed of all the evangelical ministers of the place, both white and colored," was read by me as an indication that the greatest necessity of the times, in fact, the absolute and indispensable necessity of the hour had been so recognized to evidence that the pulpit were about to make an effort to recover the sadly lost ground amid the scattered and disheartened masses of seriously thinking, really observing souls, it fell on me this day as the music of joy bells.

For twenty-two years I have lived in this Southern land, trained previously on an English island, educated under the generous breath of very liberal Christian conditions—religiously, socially and morally, these later years have been very trying, very exhausting. Testing all of my pure belief and trust in the overruling of a great, grand and incorruptible providence; developing all the patience, sympathy, high purpose and hopefulness possible, whilst contrasting the stand and condition of the pulpit men to one another, and the various congregations to each other here and there,—that this awful, strained, unnatural and regretable condition gives one rift now, indicative of the mutual purposes arrived at, of the pastors to get to know the conditions of the flock's needs, as well as to grasp personally each other's interests intelligently, is cause for rejoicing. I've always maintained that the "pews" were readier to be led right, than the pulpit had grasped clearly enough, so as to lead them aright. That the pastor's fears to abate his popularity and his pecuniary resources from nervous apprehensions that the "pews" would resent to be directed to courses of plainest duty, which Christian requirements entailed unavoidably, had made them more conservative, reserved and humbly silent on those sore ills, destroying and sapping all Christian vitality in the unsullied light of scientific development and moral conscientiousness. I believe this to be decidedly yet unfortunately too apparent. Whilst the stern fact remained, that want of a generous, tolerant, loving sympathy among the various pastors for each other, by lack of personal acquaintance or interchange of pulpit courtesies, had produced an increasing distrust, even dislike and proud resistance, one against the others; claims to respect, confidence, or even a common belief in any deep religion, of vital, Christianizing, spiritualizing force, as operating, ruling or controlling the pastorate. With a sore, wounded, aching heart, mutually despising, inharmony must naturally have been burning in the breasts, governed by such unpleasant apprehensions, and with conscience, alive to their living hourly before the congregations so unlike the loving, sympathetic, tender Jesus.

It is no wonder, therefore, that the real, thoughtful, Christian hearted feel appalled at the present results appearing from the thorny seed so wantonly and widely sown. Separate church interests, separate worshiping crowds, separate pastors unions, separate everything, amid God's so-called people—are responsible principally for the "terrible harvest we are reaping," and have still to reap, I predict.

The pulpit in this Southland, I've said loudly for years every day, can do "the all" to mitigate and change the trend of public opinion. No issue in this country anywhere, is as serious a menace to Christian progress, as is the persistent continuance in, of a non-comprehension mutually, of whereto such things are leading all the people. Truly does its gravity demand a widespread and complete ministerial union of every pastor, in every town, city and village in the land, whereat prayerfully, humbly, in the dear Lord Christ Spirit, these matters be discussed, prayed over, laid on the altar before Him "who can do all things even as He would," to be followed by pulpit discussions as pulpit topics—which I feel sure from my wide experience will be listened to temperately—aye even gladly. For so many feel as I do, that the ministers are, unthinkingly, behind the rush of events, and the "pews" are readier for transitional ideas, than they possibly are awake to. Knowing the wonderful influence and power of the clergy in every church circle he guides, I hope these thoughts will act as a spur to humbler thought and loving action, with the Master held up high as a true copy for each to go by, and taken universally by every servant of that gentle Nazarene; and thereby aid to herald in the expectant era "of peace and good will" which the Lord Christ inaugurated by example. Such blasts will be re-echoed by the waiting, faithful, but perplexed "pews" I do believe. Anyway, duty demands they be gently led to recognize humanity's claims of a tempered tolerance that will grow into Love, led by the Christ, burying intolerance and false conceptions.

Special Notice.

Dear Editor—Please say through the paper that a meeting of the presiding elders of the Little Rock Conference, called for May 15, 1895, will meet at the office of Rev. W. R. R. Duncan, 2008 State street, Little Rock, Ark., at 2 p. m.

A. J. PHILLIPS, Chairman.

Ringing Noises

In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great Blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood.

HOOD'S PILLS are the best after dinner pills, assist digestion, prevent constipation.

THE DEAREST NAME.

How sweet the name of Jesus sounds
In a believer's ear!
It soothes his sorrows, heals his wounds,
And drives away his fear.

It makes the wounded spirit whole,
And calms the tronbled breast;
'Tis manna to the hungry soul,
And to the weary, rest.

Dear name! the rock on which I build,
My shield and hiding-place;
My never-failing treasure, filled
With boundless stores of grace.

Jesus, my Shepherd, Savior, Friend,
My Prophet, Priest, and King,
My Lord, my Life, my Way, my End,
Accept the praise I bring!

I would thy boundless love proclaim
With every fleeting breath;
So shall the music of thy name
Refresh my soul in death.

—John Newton.

DAILY THOUGHTS.

[From Phillips Brooks.]

MAY 2.—The essence of the Christian life—what is it but the perfecting of the human life by the indwelling of the Spirit of the Lord Jesus Christ?

MAY 3.—I wish I had the power to convince every one of my hearers of the importance of service. In service you throw yourself into another life. The other life becomes part of yourself, you part of the other life; you are one. You work together for the bettering of the world. Just so you enter into God and the divine life enters into you. You do not surrender to pope, priest, or church, but still have your own independence. You simply surrender to God.

* * *

MAY 4.—May Christ be with you, may you be with Him, every day, every hour!

* * *

MAY 5.—Let the heart be right, and the voice will shout and the hands must work.

* * *

MAY 6.—Do whatever you can to help every struggling soul, to add new strength to any staggering cause, the poor sick man that is by you; the poor wronged man whom you with your influance might vindicate, the poor boy in your shop that you may set with new hope upon the road of lif that is beginning already to look dark to him. I cannot tell you what it is. You know your duty. No man ever looked for it and did not find it.

* * *

MAY 7.—There is only One to whose words we can turn to seek our guidance and direction, our inspiration and our joy.

* * *

MAY 8.—As man has been, so has the world responded to his touch and call.

Our Austin (Texas) Letter.

We have closed one of the greatest revivals ever held at Wesley Chapel, and the best of all is, God has been with us, is with us, and will be with us even to the end. We have had 283 conversions and accessions to the church. Rev. H. Swann, presiding elder Waco District; Rev. M. C. Cavines, pastor of St. James M. E. Church, Waco, Texas; Rev. M. S. Jordan, of Mt. Zion M. E. Church, Waco, Texas, rendered valuable service; their songs and sermons will live when they are in glory. The well-known face of Rev. C. L. Madison, ex-pastor of Wesley, was seen in our midst. Brother Madison came to our Macedonia cry with two of the ablest sermons of his life. That old veteran and warrior, Brother Moore of the Texas Conference, on a visit to his sick and aged mother, showed that he is no coward, and had not lost his activity on the battle-field. Brother W. E. Blackson, a young man and minister recently appointed to Macon and Littig Charge, worked with much zeal in the meeting.

There is no set of members anywhere the writer chanced to meet, that manifested a greater interest in the salvation of souls, than those making up the membership of Wesley Chapel, Austin, Texas. The Baptists of Austin also had a good meeting. Every service at Wesley since Watch-night has been a revival, and souls have been converted and added to the church. We have set a SOUTHWESTERN day.

ANDREW FOSTER.

Meridian District.

The Meridian District, Mississippi Conference, convened at Scooba, April 11 at 8:30 a. m., with Rev. A. M. Trotter, P. E., in the chair. A. J. McNair was elected secretary, with C. W. Ivy, L. J. S. Bell and N. Toole assistants.

The usual committees were appointed and the presiding elder read a well-written report, which indicated that the district bids fair for a grand and noble work for Christ and Methodism. All the pastors read encouraging reports of their circuits and charges. Reports from local preachers, exhorters, Sunday School superintendents, class leaders, Epworth League Chapters and district stewards were also encouraging.

The literary sessions were carried out, and all the subjects were discussed.

Rev. O. Gillespie, of the Upper Mississippi Conference, gave us a pleasant visit and preached. Also, Rev. J. M. Shumpert, of the Shuhuta District, was present and delivered a very able speech in the interest of the Church.

The white citizens visited the conference and gave their aid and spoke in high terms of the ministry of the M. E. Church.

E. L. Wilbon and R. L. Brooks were recommended for reception on trial in the Annual Conference.

The presiding elder made strong appeals for the SOUTHWESTERN and all other enterprises of the Church. His speeches and advice made us all feel that he is the right man for the place.

Strong and eloquent sermons were delivered by Revs. W. N. G. Lipscom, J. W. Davis and Bell.

Sunday, April 14, was a high day in Israel. Love feast was conducted by P. Bine and P. R. Crump, at 10:30 a. m., in which many testified. At 11 a. m., Presiding Elder Trotter preached a sterling sermon; at 3 p. m., Rev. J. Campbell delivered a sermon, and at 7:30 A. J. McNair preached. Many came forward for prayer.

Resolutions were read and the conference adjourned to hold its next session at Haven Chapel.

A. J. MCNAIR, Sec'y.

—Bishop Haygood, writing in the Nashville Christian Advocate on "Education in the South," says: "Few Southern people in any church are awake to the facts of the case. I do not know of but one well-planted and well-endowed Church school in the whole South. A number have partial endowments. The Gammon Theological Institute, Atlanta, Ga., is well endowed—the Christian gift of an Illinois local preacher in the Methodist Episcopal Church This admirable school, of which Dr. Wilbur F. Thirkield is dean, is for the training of young preachers of the Negro race. No other denomination, so far as I know, has a well-endowed school, college, or university."

A GREAT UNIVERSITY.

Among the many educational institntions controlled by the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society of the M. E. Church, Rust University at Holly Springs, Miss., stands well at the head. The course of instrnetion is thorough, the faculty able, and the resnlts achieved are highly gratifying. The University buildings are located upon the highest ground in Mississippi, and while hardly ample for the accommodation of the increasing number of students, are nevertheless imposing and attractive. Rust Hall, recently erected, is one of the most magnificent bnildings in the South. It will cost when completed, over $50,000. It is not yet completed, work having been suspended on acconnt of lack of funds. It bears the name of the venerable Rev. R. S. Rnst, D. D., honorary corresponding secretary of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Edncation Society, who was the founder and has been one of the most liberal donors to this institution. Rev. C. E. Libby, Ph., B. S. T. D., is the president, assisted by the following very capable and efficient facnlties: Rev. D. H. Sawyer, A. M., principal normal department and secretary of the faculty; C. G. Logan, A. B., professor of ancient languages; Mrs. S. G. Libby, preceptress; E. C. Walden, A. B., professor of natural sciences; Maud J. Nickerson, history and English literature; J. A. Williams, assistant in mathematics; E. H. McKissack, principal commercial conrse; Cora F. Murphy, principal of music department; C. F. Murphy, librarian. In the manual and trades departments H. W. Wright is instrnctor in carpentry; Fannie F. Phillips, instructor in printing; J. M. Mulvany, instructor in shoemaking. Mrs. Jennie D. Spear has charge of the millinery, dressmaking and painting departments, and is jnstly proud of the achievements made in her department. A visit to this department was one of the pleasures of our brief stay. Specimens of needlework, dressmaking, embroidery, and other attractive articles gave gratifying evidences of the thoroughness of training here. The nnrse training department opens np a new field of labor to our young ladies, and is already exerting an influence for good. The Indnstrial Hall is one of the most important features of the university. Thorough instrnction is given in mechanical and architectural drawing, and in practical work. The Elizabeth L. Rnst Girls' Home is a most magnificent structnre. It adjoins the college campns, and is the property and under the management of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The home is named in honor of Mrs. Elizabeth L Rust, the honorable wife of the eminent Dr. R. S. Rust, who is no less interested in the home than is his excellent wife. Miss Sophia Johnson is the superintendent, and is in every way a model woman. She discharges the dnties of her important position with that tact and skill which has entirely won the confidence and esteem of her household and patrons. The home is commodions, clean and well arranged with accommodations for twenty-four girls. During this session there have been present eighteen young women, well-dressed, neat, tidy, pretty and promising. We thonght we saw a prophecy, and a promise of a great uplifting of the race throngh the homes which these girls represented. Housekeeping, dressmaking, millinery, plain and fancy needle work are tanght, together with those adornments and virtnes which will be helpfnl in the work of character building. There are no strained relations here. On the other hand, the kindest feelings exist between the young women and those who have charge of the home. The social life of the home of the president, and the high ideals exemplified in the lives and characters of Miss Johnson and her efficient assistant, Mrs. J. D. Spear, tonching as they do the lives and characters of these young women, is a constant inspiration, and worthy of emnlation in all our institutions.

The commencement exercises began with a splendid address on Saturday night, April 20, by Bishop E. Cottrell of the Colored M. E. Church. The editor of the SOUTHWESTERN conducted a most delightful love feast in the College Chapel on Sunday morning. After the love feast, Dr. R. S. Rust preached the baccalaureate sermon. The large chapel was filled, and the sermon was one of the most masterly sermons of his life. It will never be forgotten. In the afternoon the editor of this paper preached the annnal sermon at the church, which was filled with the students, their friends, and the members of the church. At night Rev. J. W. Davis, P. E. of the Greenville District, Mississippi Conference, delivered an able and eloquent sermon. It was altogether a most remarkable day. The editor of the SOUTHWESTERN was placed under many obligations by the thrilling and earnest addresses by Dr. Rust, Bishop Cottrell and Dr. Revels, in favor of increasing the circulation of this paper. The immense congregation was aronsed to a high pitch of enthusiasm, and the canvass will be pnshed hereafter with more vigor than ever.

The board of trustees met on Monday a. m., and transacted the necessary business. The nnanimous sentiment was in favor of the reappointment of Dr. C. E. Libby to the presidency of the nniversity. Monday night a splendid audience, composed of many of the best people of the city, white and colored, assembled in the large chapel to witness the beantiful and sparkling musical cantata, Priscilla, or the Pilgrim's Proxy, rendered by the students, under direction of Miss Cora F. Murphy, principal of the musical department. It was one of the most interesting and instructive entertainments ever held here. It was unanimously pronounced a grand success. Rev. B H. S. Fergnson of the class of "92" delivered the sermon to the scientific and literary societies on Tuesday morning. It was a production which did credit to the head and heart of this rising young minister. The graduating exercises, which were of a very high order, took place Tuesday afternoon. The large hall was filled with a deeply interested andidience, who listened attentively to an unusually attractive program. Everything connected with the exercises was of a very high order. Rev. W. H. W. Rees, D. D., recording secretary of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society, addressed the graduates in snch a way as to make a lasting impression for good npon all present. The address was masterly, eloqnent and appropriate. Dr. R. S. Rust followed in an address which will never be forgotten.

Notwithstanding the term was shorter by nearly a month, the students were able to make excellent averages, and to secure the coveted prizes. The following received the honors: J. L. Wilson and E. H. McKissack, A. B.; graduates from the normal department, H. C. Weatherall, Josie English Wells, F. H. Henry and Aurena Smith; college preparatory, Harry L. Jordan, A. L. Reid, Maggie Revels; music department, Mary Wilson; nurse's training school, Mary E. Jamison. Honorary degrees were conferred as follows: Doctor of Divinity upon Bishop E. Cottrell, of the Colored M. E. Church of America; Rev. J. Will Jackson, of the Central Missouri Conference M. E. Church, and Rev. J. M. Shumpert, of the Mississippi Conference M. E. Church. The president's levee closed the delightful exercises.

THAT COLOR LINE AGAIN.

An Associated Press dispatch, dated April 16, to the New Orleans Times-Democrat, has the following, under bold head-lines:

"Color Line Drawn in the Epworth League.

"ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 16.—At a meeting of the ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church the color line was drawn in the matter of admitting colored branches of the Epworth League. Rev. Mr. Lenig claimed that to admit colored branches would destroy the plans of the League. Rev. A. R. Brown, a colored preacher who was present, said that the Negroes were doing all in their power for the Church, and if their color was distasteful, they would ask to be left out. This was agreed upon. At a meeting of the Baptist preachers it was agreed to invite the colored branches of the Church to attend their regular meetings."

We say frankly, that we do not believe the Methodist ministers of St. Louis made any snch ruling at their late meeting. They had no authority as snch, either to admit or reject the colored branches of the Epworth League. We do not believe that it would destroy the plans of any body of Christian people to practice the "Golden Rule." We do not believe that the colored preacher, who is reported to have been present, expressed any desire to have his people left out if their color was distasteful to the Christian ministers present. And, finally, we do not believe that the Methodist ministers agreed to leave the colored brother ont. The action of the Baptist preachers seems more in keeping with the spirit of Christian sympathy, and interest and love; and hence, as a Christian, we can more readily accept that part of the statement as true.

We stand open to conviction, however, and invite correspondence on the subject. We have taken this negative stand with reference to the statement, because we know how repugnant it is to the true followers of the great Wesley to be charged with the indulgence of even a scintilla of prejudice against people on account of the color of their skin. If at any time we are convinced by reliable parties that the statement upon which we comment is true, we will endeavor to give some additional reasons why we refused to believe Methodist ministers guilty of such unpardonable wickedness.

CAN THIS BE TRUE?

The following from the Gleaner of Knoxville, Tenn., will give our readers an idea of the manner in which some professing Christians administer the Golden Rule:

"In this city and Maryville there is a Christian Endeavor Society. Some weeks ago each of these societies received notice of the State meeting that is now being held here, requesting to appoint delegates. They were appointed. The Freedmen's Institute delegates consisted of men and women, and those appointed by the home society were men. Strange to say, but neither delegation was admitted, because they were colored. Strange Christianity that does not admit a man as a Christian."

How sick and tired we are of reading of such conduct on the part of people professing Christianity. What right have people to call themselves Christians, who deliberately draw the line against other people calling themselves by the same name, for the sole reason that they are of a darker hue? These so-called Christian organizations which do not propose to treat colored Christians with that consideration to which they are entitled by virtue of their relationship to the one blessed Lord, ought to have the moral courage to announce in connection with their meetings that colored people are not expected to attend. This would relieve our colored brethren to some extent and at the same time show the temper and spirit of some people who are making much ado about bringing the world to Christ.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Rev. A. A. Lacey, of Dulac, La., says: "The work is prospering and the outlook for a good year is very favorable."

—Rev. S. A. Cowan, presiding elder of the Vicksburg District, Mississippi Conference, is on duty again, after a temporary illness.

—Rev. J. F. Marshall, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, has been seriously ill at his home in this city. We are glad to say that he is now convalescent and hopes to be at his post in a few days.

—Brother B. J. Lewis writes Mariana, Ark.: "Our Church and Sunday School prosperous. Quarterly meeting was a grand success with Elder J. W. Jackson presiding, who helped us greatly."

—The following sad news came to the office last week, from Forest, Miss.: "James Smith and Henry Broadfort were instantly killed in a railroad accident a few miles northeast of this place, on the evening of April 13. Both were highly respected members of our church."

—Rust University, at its recent commencement, conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon Bishop E. Cottrell, of the Colored M. E. Church of America, and Rev. J. Will Jackson, of the Central Missouri Conference, and Rev. J. M. Shumpert, of the Mississippi Conference.

—Brother James Johnson, of Dulac, La., writes: "We return our sincere vote of thanks to the Sunday School Union and Tract Society for a complete outfit of Sunday School supplies through our pastor, Rev. A. A. Lacey. Our Sunday School has been closed for five years, but under the leadership of our faithful pastor, God be praised for what we now see and witness. Our Sunday School subscribes for the SOUTHWESTERN."

Conference Minutes.

We have received the minutes of the Texas, West Texas, Central Alabama, Upper Mississippi and Little Rock Conferences. Will the secretaries of all the others please send us one as soon as issued. They are needed to aid us in finding addresses of the pastors.

We notice that some of them do not give names of "supplies" in list of appointments. We think they should be included in all cases when known.

NEW ORLEANS AND VICINITY.

The Editor of this paper has been invited and accepted an invitation to preach at St. Peter's African M. E. Church, corner Cadiz and Coliseum streets, on next Sunday night, May 5.

We enjoyed the privilege of worshiping at St. Peter's A. M. E. Church Sunday morning and at Union Bethel Sunday night. We officiated at the latter place, we trust with some profit.

Rev. Drs. Clark of St. Peter's and Willard of Union Bethel are having marked success. They report a very healthy increase in their congregations and in their Sunday schools, with a corresponding healthy tone in their finances.

Revs. T. G. Montgomery of Mt. Zion and F. Walker of Thompson Chapel, this city, gave the office a Monday morning call, bringing good cheer and glowing reports from their churches. Both Mt. Zion and Thompson are on the high tide of success. The outlook is altogether hopeful.

The Rev. Dr. B. Carradine of St. Louis, assisted by Dr. E. T. Reinhart, have been holding a series of very successful revival services under the auspices of the Louisiana Holiness Association, at our St. Charles Avenue M. E. Church. Several have either commenced a Christian life or been led into the experience of sanctification. On Sunday morning last, at our regular service, the pastor, Brother Osborn, received three persons into the church, and there is promise of a rich harvest of souls.

Rev. F. T. Chinn, presiding elder of the Monroe District, Louisiana Conference, is in the city on a visit. He has had much success on his work thus far. He will preach the baptismal sermon at Thompson Chapel on Sunday, May 12, at 8 p. m. Brother Chinn is an able and cultured leader, and will no doubt be very helpful to the people of Thompson's Chapel.

Bro. Chinn was the recipient of a grand birthday reception at his home in this city on Wednesday, April 24. It was the occasion of his 47th birthday, and his estimable wife, Sister Chinn, planned the entertainment, which was a genuine surprise to the Rev. gentleman, who is very seldom caught napping. There was quite a large gathering of the older's ministerial brethren with other feiends, who made the occasion exceedingly pleasant. An invocation by Rev. T. G. Montgomery, address by Miss L. A. Bell, after which the circle, led by Mrs. A. P. Johnson, presented many useful and ornamental presents. The SOUTHWESTERN congratulates the genial elder, and wishes him many happy birthday anniversaries.

Children's Day.

Read What is Said of the Program for 1895—June 9.

"Dr. Payne's services for Children's Day grow better year by year. 'The Golden Gate' is as original in its plan as any of its predecessors, and even more likely than they to be a favorite. Its symbolism is poetic and picturesque, its recitations are as good as the best of sermons and as interesting as they are good, and the music is certainly of a high order."

"ROBERT R. DOHERTY."

"My Dear Dr. Payne—Your 'Golden Gate Program' came to-night, and I have read it through. It teaches a rich lesson, and with a somewhat lighter hand and more artistic touch than some of its predecessors; while its setting and machinery are simple and can be made rich or cheap, according to the taste and means of the schools using it. It ought easily to drive out the intrusive and flashy competitors that so pester our Sunday Schools for the benefit of private pockets."

"GEO. LANSING TAYLOR."

"Dear Dr. Payne—I am much pleased with your 'Program for Children's Day.' It is instructive, interesting and stimulating. I believe it will do the young people much good. God bless you in your great work. "THOS. BOWMAN."

Obituary.

J. C. Ensaw, student of Wiley University, was suddenly called to the bedside of his father, Charles Ensaw, at Daisy, La., on April 10. Like Jacob of old he blessed his son. He sang and prayed freely with his friends, singing the hymns: "Precious Promise," "Guide me, O Thou Great Jehovah," and the old-time praise of "Trouble's Over." He passed this life on April 12, in the full triumph of faith, at the ripe age of 86 years. To his widow and children we pray God's blessings. Peace to his ashes. F. B. SMITH.

LESSON HYMN. L. M.

'Tis midnight; and on Olives' brow
The star is dimmed that lately shone;
'Tis midnight; in the garden, now,
The suffering Savior prays alone.

'Tis midnight; and from all removed;
The Savior wrestles lone with fears;
E'en that disciple whom he loved
Heeds not his Master's grief and tears.

'Tis midnight; and for others' guilt
The Man of sorrows weeps in blood;
Yet he that hath in anguish knelt
Is not forsaken by his God.

Time.—Thursday, April 6, A. D. 30, about midnight before Friday, the day of the crucifixion.

Place.—The garden of Gethsemane, at the foot of the Mount of Olives.

Rulers.—Herod Antipas, tetrarch of Galilee and Perea; Pontius Pilate, procurator of Judea; Caiaphas, high priest of the Jews.

Parallel Passages.—Matt. 26. 36-46; Luke 22. 40-46; John 18 1.

The Agony in Gethsemane.

(Mark 14. 32-42.)

Written for the Southwestern.

By Rev. G. N. Jolly, Kentucky Conference

GOLDEN TEXT.—"The cup which my Father hath given me, shall I not drink it?" (John 18 11.)

After the Lord's Supper had been established, Jesus delivered to the disciples His valedictory address. It is found in John's gospel chapters 14-17 inclusive. It treats of the departure of Jesus, the sending of the Comforter, the vine and the branches, the commandment of love, the office of the Holy Spirit, and the immediate presence of the Savior. It closes with His priestly prayer. This discourse is for the Church, and to them it is one of the most comforting passages in the Word of God. When it was finished they stepped from that upper room into the bright moonlight, at the quiet hour of midnight, and walked silently through the Eastern gate, crossed Kedron, and began the Western ascent of the Mount of Olives.

I. The Place (32). The word Gethsemane means an Oil-press. It was a suitable spot for one whose soul was weighted down with grief, and who was at this time treading the wine-press of the wrath of God. Gethsemane was a garden that lay on the Western slope of the Mount of Olives. It was likely the property of some one who was friendly to Jesus. Some think it belonged to John Mark, the writer of this lesson. Jesus, with His disciples, often resorted to this place. Those who love the Lord admire His works, and will arrange to be frequently alone with Him.

II. The Company (33). He left Judas in Jerusalem arranging with the chief priests and scribes to act as guide to the mob that should take Him. Wicked man. His love of money proved his ruin. The eleven came with Jesus into the garden. Then eight of them were left behind. It is not known how long they were separated. They were re-united before the Savior was arrested. He took Peter, James and John, and went farther into the garden. This same division was made when the daughter of Jairus was raised to life, and when He was transfigured on the mount. These were the three chief apostles and should be familiar with every important act of the Savior's life. Let us never be grieved because God shows more favor to some of His disciples than to us. We should feel very grateful for the least of His mercies.

III. The Agony (34). He was "sore amazed," "very heavy," and "exceeding sorrowful." Why this intense grief? Many reasons have been given. We notice three. 1. Suffering.—He had a clear knowledge of all that was before Him. He saw the treachery of Judas, the unkindness of Peter, and the malice of the Jews. He beheld just before Him the mock trial, the crown of thorns, the bitter scourging, and the ignominious death of the cross. He was intensely human, and as man He shrank from suffering. Be not surprised when you find good people more anxious to live than die. Life is sweet and the ordeals of death are bitter. 2. Conflict.—Before Him was a severe engagement. A battle was to be fought. The foe was "the prince of this world." This battle had once before been fought during the temptation in the wilderness. Satan was there conquered, and departed from Him for a season. He has now returned, and is determined that this scheme of Redemption shall not be wrought out. The conflict is short but intensely fierce. The Prince of this world came, but found nothing in Him, and soon departed. We are soldiers. We have an armor, a foe, and a leader. Let us be brave and true. 3. Redemption.—The death of Jesus was more than that of a martyr. Just now "He is despised and rejected of men." He is bearing our griefs and carrying our sorrows. "He is wounded for our transgressions, and bruised for our iniquities. The chastisement of our peace is on Him, and with His stripes we are healed." He had no sin, yet on Him was laid the iniquity of us all. By the grace of God He tasted death—the bitter pangs of eternal death—for every man. When we realize what He has endured for us, will we not be sorry because of our sins, give them up, and lead holy lives?

IV. The Prayer (35-36). 1. The Place.—"He went forward a little." He retired from all company. He had just prayed with the disciples, and now He withdrew from them to be alone with God. He taught secret prayer by precept and example. It is well for us to pray often in our closet. 2. The Posture.—He "fell on the ground." St. Luke says, "He kneeled down." He likely first kneeled and afterwards threw Himself prostrate on the ground. The state of the soul will usually suggest the position of the body in prayer. An humble, dependent heart will kneel when it approaches God. 3. The Petitions.—(1) The Address.—"Abba Father." "O, my Father" Though the clouds above Him were as black as night, and the mercy of God had hid herself, and His justice was ruling with a rod of iron, yet He could look up and address God as His Father. The Lord is the Father of all mankind, but in a high and holy sense He is the Father of those who trust Him. (2) The Possibility.—"All things are possible unto Thee." We blunder when we limit the power of God. Jesus, who knew the Father perfectly, has set no bound to His ability. Sin is fearful, and eternal death is awful. Man must be ransomed. But is there no way to save him only by my death on the cross? Will not the life of the Paschal lamb do? All things are possible unto Thee, redeem the race in some other way. Man is not to be saved by angel or beast, but by one who is a real man. (3) The Request.—"Take away this cup from me." The cup here represents the sufferings of Jesus. The prayer, in other words would be—Forbid that I should endure the death of the cross. We may ask God to withhold afflictions from us, but if it be for our good and His glory for us to pass through them, we should beseech Him to give us strength to bear them. 4. The Submission.—"Not what I will, but what thou wilt." Here is apparently a break in the Trinity. Jesus willed that this cup of suffering pass from Him, the Father willed that He drink it. But we see immediate resignation. Jesus learned "obedience by the things He suffered." This prayer should be studied as a whole. If we let one part overshadow another we may be led into an error. Jesus prayed a second and third times, and in each instance used the same words. We may ask God many times for the same favor. The soul agony that caused the bloody sweat was during the second prayer. 4. The Answer.—This is not given direct. The agony was a conflict. Jesus gained the victory. Now peace and resignation took possession of His soul. An angel came and strengthened Him. The cup of suffering was not taken away, but strength was given to bear it.

V. The Disciples (31-42). 1. The Command.—Tarry, watch and pray. We should always adapt ourselves to the Lord's time, constantly be on our guard, and ever pray that we enter not into temptation. 2. The Conduct of the Disciples.—They did not do as Jesus directed. Why did they sleep? (1) "Their eyes were heavy." It was the hour for sleeping. Nature demanded her rights. (3) "He found them sleeping for sorrow" (Luke). The first effect of grief is wakefulness. But in the course of time it exhausts the nervous system and we sleep to gain strength. (3) Is there not something more than nature and grief in this sleeping? Is not Satan seeking to add to the sufferings of Jesus by causing the disciples to appear indifferent to the whole matter? 3. The Reproof.—(1) "Why sleep ye" (Luke)? They did not answer this question. They wist not "what to answer Him." They did not understand why they slept. (2) "Could ye not watch with me one hour" (Matt)? An hour here means a short period of time. They had the disposition to watch for "the spirit was willing," but not the ability, for "the flesh was weak." 4. The Departure.—(1) "Sleep on now and take your rest." The time for watching is past. (2) "The hour is come." The time for going is at hand. (3) "The Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners." It was sin in the race that caused the agony of Jesus. (4) "Arise up, let us go." We will bravely meet the foe

Has been on the market for nearly five years and cures 98 out of every 100. Many say it is the Only Absolute Cure. It is harmless. Price, $1 by mail. Order of ROSE DRUG COMPANY, 2105 and 2107 Third Avenue, Birmingham, Alabama.

Our Guarantee—We offer three Tablets for $2 50, and in case of failure to cure money will be refunded. We vote fair and prefer your good opinion to your money. All we ask is a fair trial, as out of the thousands who have used it, 98 out of every 100 have been cured. Beware of counterfeits. The better an article the more it will be imitated. There are some feeble and nasty imitations of our CURE on the market now.

The Funk & Wagnalls
STANDARD DICTIONARY
—OF THE—
ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

Embodies Many New Principles in Lexicography. 247 Editors and Specialists and 500 Readers for Quotations. Cost nearly One Million Dollars. Contains more than 5,000 Illustrations, made expressly for this work; 301,865 Vocabulary Terms, nearly Two and One-half Times the number in Any Single-volume or Two volume Dictionary, and about 75,000 More than in any other Dictionary of the Language; also, a Complete Appendix of Proper Names, Foreign Phrases, etc.

Harvard University, Prof. Andrew Preston Peabody: "The Standard Dictionary will prove of invaluable service, and will last while the English language remains essentially unchanged. It may need supplements, but will not have to be rewritten for three or four generations to come."

Yale University, Prof. A. M. Wheeler: "Clear, concise, accurate; at once scholarly and popular, a delight to the eye and mind."

Oxford University, England, Prof. A. Sayce: "It deserves all the encomia passed upon it."

Cambridge University, England, Prof. J. E. Sandys: "It is an admirable work, and deserves to become famous on both sides of the Atlantic."

United States Patent Office, A. G. Wilkinson, Principal Examiner, formerly Professor of Languages, University of Missouri: "The general arrangement of matter is so vastly superior that I can hardly say enough in its praise.....I congratulate the editors on the most perfect dictionary ever made in any language."

Henry M. Stanley, the African Explorer: "It comes nearest to my idea of a first-class dictionary."

Edmund C. Stedman: "It is the most inclusive and scholarly of recent English dictionaries in not more than two volumes."

Journal of Education, Boston: "It will make the world its debtor, and all who write must praise it evermore....It challenges criticism and commands admiration."

The New York Herald: "We are free to pronounce it the most complete dictionary yet printed."

The Liverpool Post, England: "It is an implement that will be of vast service to those who cultivate the literary arts on either side of the Atlantic. It is a monument to American industry no less than the Great White City by Lake Michigan."

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

We Must Educate.

SUSIE B. LEGARDY.

It is with a great deal of satisfaction, mingled with embarrassment, that I write upon such an interesting subject—"We Must Educate." I know too well where there is no beginning, there certainly can be no ending. The greatest writer of to-day, or of modern times, had once to start at his alphabet. I think that now is the time for our Negro girls and boys to launch out upon the seas of literature.

We must educate! This is a simple declarative sentence, which we all know to be a fact. When I say we must educate, I mean to convey the idea in three ways, namely—religiously, morally and intellectually. One cannot go without the other. They go hand in hand. We, as the Negro race, must educate. I will say as Lyman Beecher has rightly said—"We must educate!" We must educate, or we must perish by our own prosperity; if we do not, short will be our race from the cradle to the grave. Looking over the last thirty years, we see that we have run well. When our fathers and mothers were set free, no doubt there were a few who could read and write; but as a race they knew nothing. But, to-day we have men and women of this noble race who can compete with any man or woman in any of the three ways mentioned above, and be found equal. The Negro race affords ladies and gentlemen, boys and girls, who have converted hearts, pure characters, and intellectual minds. But we are not to look at what has been done or what is being done, but we are to look at what we are to do. What are we to do to be an intelligent people? We must educate! Why? Because, if we don't, we'll be foot-mats for every other race. My friends, can we hold that position? We can. But will we do so? Any man or woman that has any race pride will answer, no! An education of our race of people is essential to our prosperity. We need men and women educated in every respect. The pulpit is calling for educated ministers. This sticking the fingers in the ears and hollering to the top of the voice is being stopped. We want the Gospel expounded in its truest sense, and it takes none less than the educated ministers to do it. O young men, you who are sent to preach God's Holy Word, educate yourselves. The public is calling for educated doctors; the hoodoo doctors are being thrown aside. Our homes are calling for educated mothers to train the little ones, in order that when they reach the years of maturity, they can stem the storms of life without much difficulty; and when the combats of life are hard, that they shall not sink in the ship of despondency. Mothers! Fathers! Send your children to school. Do you know that you neglect your duty when you fail to send your children to school? Some say, I am not able—I am too poor. But, we must educate; trust God and go ahead. Do all you can, and when you have done that, you have performed your duty. Dear readers, there is a fourth class of education; that we must not overlook—physical education. We must not be indolent. Since it is true that we can educate, let us educate religiously, morally, intellectually and physically.

WITH BALDNESS
The Danger is Averted by Using AYER'S
Hair Vigor.

"Nearly forty years ago, after some weeks of sickness, my hair turned gray and began falling out so rapidly that I was threatened with immediate baldness. Hearing Ayer's Hair Vigor highly spoken of, I commenced using this preparation, and was so well satisfied with the result that I have never tried any other kind of dressing. It stopped the hair from falling out, stimulated a new growth of hair, and kept the scalp free from dandruff. Only an occasional application is now needed to keep my hair of good, natural color. I never hesitate to recommend any of Ayer's medicines to my friends."—Mrs. H. M. HAIGHT, Avoca, Neb.

FROM PRESIDING ELDERS.

Hot Springs District—

For two months I have been shut out from home by reason of small-pox. It first broke out in Hot Springs, and it has troubled the whole district. We could not pass from one town to another. We had the same trouble last year at Texarkana, and it has and will greatly hinder our work on the district this year again. I have been allowed to go home to see my family, and shall leave at once to begin my work on the district. I shall not forget the dear old SOUTHWESTERN, and will do my part for the paper.

A. J. PHILLIPS, P. E.

Knoxville District—

Dear Brethren—Come up with your benevolent collections; do not wait until the end of the year. You that have money collected, send it to headquarters, for every dollar will save interest. I know times are hard, but we can do better than last year in benevolent collections and for the SOUTHWESTERN. May the Lord help us. Brethren, read paragraph 189 of the Discipline. If we all do this from the heart, this will be the crowning year of the East Tennessee Conference in Church work. Yours for success.

OWEN HYPSHER, P. E.

Dadeville District—

Dear Brethren—Please raise and report all your benevolence at the district conference at West Point, August 1-3; don't put it off until the last of the year, and do remember the dear old SOUTHWESTERN.

Yours for the cause,

C. ROGERS, P. E.

Tennessee River District—

Dear Brethren—Let us make one Sunday in May Freedmen's Aid and SOUTHWESTERN Day. Send for programs free and let the people know what the society is doing. Some of my brethren have done well for the paper and others have not done much. Do your best, or you won't feel good. S. B. DANLEY, P. E.

Catarrh caused hoarseness and difficulty in speaking. I also to a great extent lost hearing. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm dropping of mucus has ceased, voice and hearing have greatly improved.—J. W. Davidson, Att'y at Law, Monmouth, Ill.

I used Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh and have received great benefit. I believe it a safe and certain cure. Very pleasant to take.—Wm. Frazer, Rochester, N. Y.

Price of Cream Balm is fifty cents.

Our Shreveport Correspondent.

Things are moving along here brightly, and our people are making commendable progress. Eagle Lodge U. B. F. had their annual sermon preached at Galilee Baptist Church. Rev. R. H. Bailey preached the sermon, which gave satisfaction and was greatly enjoyed. The Sisters of the Mysterious Tens were out with their camps, and made a fine appearance. Collection, $15.

The Summer Social and Literary Club had an entertainment and a debate recently which was very interesting. The debatants were J. H. Whaley and Miss L. Murdock, affirmative, and Wm. Flynn and Miss J. Gibson, negative. The affirmatives won, the judges deciding that the cow was more useful than the mule.

The SOUTHWESTERN will be delivered weekly at the residences of our citizens. Please leave your address at 1036 Cane street, Shreveport, La.

The best alterative, diuretic, and tonic properties are contained in Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The exceptional pictorial and descriptive features of the new religio-educational fine art work, "Earthly Footsteps of the Man of Galilee," can be fully appreciated by careful inspection only. Part 1 of this superb work will, therefore, be sent postpaid to any one sending his address with 10 cents to cover the cost of handling, wrapping, mailing, postage, etc. This part contains two introductions, a beautiful new map in eight colors, which traces in red the journeyings of the Savior and his Apostles, and also contains Dr. Samuel J. Andrews' famous outline harmony of the gospel and chronological index, which is copyrighted and published here only by special permission of the author. There are also shown sixteen magnificent views which are eloquently described.

for women, according to whether they do, or don't do, their washing in a sensible way. If they use Pearline, it means good, hard dollars saved. Pearline is economy. All that ruinous rubbing that makes you buy linens and flannels twice as often as you need to, is spared, to say nothing of your time and labor.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

Hon. Theodore Roosevelt has written a series of six articles, with the general title "Heroes of America," for Harper's Young People. Mr. Roosevelt, as an ardent American, thinks that the bravery of American soldiers, displayed in the four great wars, is not less worthy of celebration than that which has been regarded as the precious heritage of other nations. The first article in the series published in the Young People of April 30th, and will be devoted to the "Defense of New Orleans," in which defense, it will be remembered, fifteen thousand of the first troops that had ever defeated Napoleon were pitted against five thousand poorly equipped Americans. The second installment of the "Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc," in the May Harper's, tells the story of Joan's visions and her first public assertion of her message, with illustrations from historic material by Mr. F. V. DuMond. Mr. Julian Ralph presents the social and industrial attractions of the least understood of all the Southern States in an illustrated article entitled "In Sunny Mississippi." A popular paper, entitled "The Story of the Liver," is contributed by Dr. Andrew Wilson, of Edinburgh. Harper & Brothers, publishers, New York, April 16, 1895.

Among the many attractive and handsome Easter numbers so popular among readers of magazines and papers, The Youth's Companion is very appropriate to the season and exceptional in the quality of its reading matter. Each one of the entire collection of stories deserves special mention, and with the miscellany, poetry, etc., collected in this one issue is worth the price of the paper for the entire year.

"The Peninsula Methodist" came to our table last week, looking as a "bride adorned for her husband." The portraits with brief sketches of the prominent men of the Wilmington Conference, with other historical information, made it a most desirable and beautiful number. Its distinguished editor and publishers are to be complimented.

The department of Current History and Opinion in the Chautauquan continues to meet with enthusiastic comment from all quarters and is attracting many new students to the special C. L. S. C. course in current history.

The subject of "Fear" will be taken up by Prof. James Sully in the next of his Studies of Childhood, to appear in the May Popular Science Monthly. "The Work of the Naturalist in the World" is the subject of a spirited and suggestive essay by Dr. Charles S. Minot. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

St. Nicholas for May provides the usual diversity of contents for its youthful readers. Hon. Theodore Roosevelt begins a series of papers called "Hero-Tales from American History." Mr. Eldridge S. Brooks' serial, "A Boy of the First Empire," has to do with Napoleon's retreat from Moscow.

$100 Reward $100,

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE C. M. E. QUARTO-CENTENNIAL.

Sunday, May 12, will be a great day throughout the bounds of the Colored M. E. Church of America. It is proposed on that day to celebrate the first twenty-five years of that rapidly-growing organization. Collections will be taken in all the churches, special services held, and it is hoped that all the brethren will give such evidence of their appreciation of their denomination as will show to the world that the doctrines and polity of a great Church has been placed in safe hands. We bid the Colored M. E. Church in America, God speed.

SAD NEWS.

Just as we go to press, Dr. G. W. Arnold, A. M., of South Atlanta, Ga., sends us the following sad notice:

"Rev: Dr. C. K. Wright, P. E. of the Atlanta District, Savannah Conference, died at his home in South Atlanta, on Wednesday, May 1, after several months of severe illness. Dr. Wright was an able and efficient pastor and presiding elder."

We feel very keenly the loss of this eminent brother. He was a most ardent admirer of the SOUTHWESTERN. Peace to his ashes.

STRAIGHT ON THE RACE QUESTION.

Dr. W. T. D. Clemm, who recently passed over to join the innnmerable company of the redeemed, was a royal soldier in the army of the Lord. The Baltimore Conference, composed as it is of some of the most stalwart friends of humanity, did not possess a grander, brighter, more conrageons soul than he. His life was well rounded and full of good deeds. His last message was characteristic of the great and good man—"Tell the brethren I am straight on the woman suffrage, prohibition and race questions, and that it is all bright and beautiful beyond the river. Hallelujah!"

To be "straight" on the question of conferring upon woman the right to help make the laws by which she is governed, to shake off the fetters which mediæval and modern superstition has placed upon her, and to place her in that position where her pre-eminent virtnes will make her yet more and more man's most reliable helpmeet.

To be "straight" on the question of banishing from our homes and from onr native land that most gigantic evil, intemperance; for the overthrow of which every trne Christian minister stands committed.

To be "straight" in favor of the perfect and comple eqnality of all men before God and before the law—denying to none their God-given rights, bnt rather helping to bear the infirmities of those, who having been enslaved, but by the grace of Almighty God are now free, shonld have no barriers—civil, social or religions—placed in the way by which their progress to higher and better conditions shall be impeded.

To be "straight" on all qnestions is the desire of the trnly good everywhere. But how strangely in contrast is such a course with the conduct of those who find apologies for actions which perpetnate nnholy prejndicles, or resorts to subterfuges which retards the progress of righteousness on the earth.

What an appropiate epitaph for the tomb of this eminent minister of the Gospel!

—Brother L. Burton, of Honston, Tex., says: "Onr three-weeks' meeting at St. James Church was qnite a snccess, resnlting in 25 conversions and 30 additions. Our work is moving forward on all lines. We are preparing to enlarge our church."

SOUTHERN OPINION CONCERNING THE AFRO-AMERICAN.

Fortunately for the Negro, there is a class of Southern white men who are broad enough to recoguize the growth of their country and the relatiouship existing betweeu its several social and iudustrial factors. Still more fortnuate it is, that the more thoughtful and practical of these gentlemen do not belong to the "calamity howlers" whose "bark from the tombs" iu the moruiug and at noon and at night is, "This is a white man's goverument." The New York Independent's symposium ou "The South and Its Resources," while remarkable for the diverties of opiuion, is equally remarkable for the very generous, frank and forcible manner in which the writers advocate their respective views. It goes without saying, that no discussion of the social, political, commercial and industrial phases of Southern life can be had without a consideration of the Negro question in some form or other. Men fume and rage, and swear, bnt the Negro question bobs up sometimes serenely, and at other times in such a way as to baffle the wisdom of the most astute statesman. In "ante-bellum" times the Negro question was very easily settled so far as the South was concerued. The master held in his pocket both the vote and the value of his human property. All questions touching the Negro's social, and moral and domestic life were settled by the arbitrament of the "Manor." There was no appeal from this high social tribunal. The whipping post and the auction block generally brought racalcitrant offenders to terms. At times the more snmmary way was called into requisition, but often at sneh a loss to the master as to render it nnpopnlar. Things have changed now, and the former slave is a free man, and a citizen according to the intent of onr great Magna Charta. Bnt few would have the old regime reestablished. All would solve the problem, because it is verily a problem. Many plans are proposed—some of which would be revolting to the most uncivilized people on earth. Meanwhile there is more and more a manifest disposition to discnss the question with the light of the best wisdom obtainable. The concensus of pnblic opinion is in favor of the Negro, as both an industrial and a political factor in the development of the South. Prejndice dies hard, but die it mnst. With its decadence will come that recognition and co-operation with the Negro which will pnt him into perfect and complete harmony with the spirit, and sentiment, and genius of onr American institutions. Of conrse we mnst recognize the fact that centnries of slavery have placed the race at a terrible disadvantage, and that many of the nnfavorable things which are said of the race are trne. The Negro is a laborer to-day, it is true, but he is hardly a competitor with any other class of laborers in this conntry. Three decades of freedom have hardly snfficed to eliminate those nnfavorable featnres which to-day are the greatest stumbling blocks in the way of its recognition. "Faithful are the wounds of a friend," and if the opinions expressed seem some times adverse and will fnrnish the incentive to the improvement of the people, they should hail those criticisms as helpfnl agencies. The Hon. Jas. F. Izlar, Member of Congress from South Carolina, expresses himself as follows:

"As a rnle, I do not think the colored people are industrions. In their various vocations they need considerable snpervision on the part of the white man who has to give them directions, tell them how to work and what to do. They take no thonght for the morrow. I thlnk that dlsposition comes from the fact that all their lives they have had some one to care for them. As time goes on and they become more intelligent I presume that they will become more thoughtful in regard to their personal interests and work with more regard to their future needs."

This is a strong puttiug of the case, but we recognize in it a lesson of hopefulness. There is great room for improvement. The more thoughtful men of the race will take heed.

The Hon. Hilary A. Herbert, Secretary of the Navy of the United States, says:

"The question is sometimes asked, How is the Negro problem being solved in the South? My answer is that the Negroes generally are not as thrifty as the white men in any country in the world. The Negro has never succeeded as well as the white man; but in the South the condition of the Negro population is very much better than it is anywhere else. That is to say, there is no large body of the Negro race anywhere in the world that have reached the same degree of civilization and that are as prosperous as they are in the Southern States. A few of them are making money; but they are not generally prosperous, because they are improvident and do not save their earnings. In what are called the white counties, where the white population largely predominates, the Negroes are doing better than they are in what are called the black counties, where the blacks largely out number the whites. Here they lose the influence of example and the benefit of that fuller protection of property rights always enforced by the white man. There is a growing disposition among them to secure homes for themselves. The statistics, which I have not at hand, show a vast increase in the amount of property held by the colored people in the South in the decade of 1880–'90, and from 1890 to the present time it would show a still more rapid increase. Politically, the Negroes are breaking up to a very large extent. That is to say, they do not vote solidly in favor of one party, as they formerly did; there is a greater disposition to think for themselves and to act on their own judgment."

THE colored people of the United States are paying taxes on $264,000,000 worth of property. It is certainly a remarkable showing as compared with thirty years ago. Still, beyond a very small per cent, these people are miserably poor. They are benevolent in the giving of money, sometimes to a fault. It is astonishing how their Church properties are improving. Another interesting fact is, that they are giving more and more to the education of their children.

THE California Christian Advocate, in our judgment is one of the most attractive, interesting and ably-edited of all our Advocates. The Easter number is a gem of the first water, and will carry joy and sunshine into thousands of homes, to whom it is a welcome visitor. Our genial confere, Dr. W. S. Matthews, the editor, with the publisher, Dr. J. D. Hammond, are deserving of much credit for the increasing popularity of this valnable paper.

—Rev. O. A. Brown, D. D., pastor of Foundry M. E. Church, Washington, D. C., is mentioned frequently in connection with the Chaplainey of the next House of Representatives. He is an Ohio man, having been born in Greenville. Dr. Brown is a man of fine physique and most suave bearing. His pronounced natural ability is supplemented by thorough courses of training in the Ohio Wesleyan University and Drew Theological Seminary. He graduated from the former institution with the class of 1866, and from the latter with that of 1869. His father before him was an honored minister of Ohio. Dr. Brown's first charge was in Cincinnati, and since then he has served churches in Cambridge, N. Y.; Gloversville, N. Y.; Lynn, Mass.; Boston, Mass.; and Hoboken, N. J. He is an ardent Republican, and no more affable or competent gentleman could be selected for the place.

EASTER CHIMES.

Results of Missionary Collections in Different Parts of the Field.

ALABAMA.

..North Birmingham—Mattie Goodson and Ida Forest, little girls.—The Easter services of Mt. Pleasant M. E. Church were most glorious. The program was carried out by Miss Susie Rohnck as leader. Essays were read by several young ladies; also lectures by several brothers and leaders of the church. Our beloved pastor, Rev. L. W. Goodson, delivered a very interesting address. Collected $2 08.

..Athens, A. G. Glenn.—We celebrated Easter. Used the "Easter Morn" program. Raised a good collection for missions, and sent it to S. Hunt, treasurer.

ARKANSAS.

..Hensley, H. Bright.—Our Easter service was a grand success. Collected $6 and sent it to Hunt & Eaton, New York.

GEORGIA.

..Lawrenceville, E. Holivet.—Easter was observed appropriately and the program carried out well. Collection, $30 04.

MISSISSIPPI.

..Jackson, J. C. Hibbler.—We had an excellent service on Easter day. Much praise and credit is due Miss Sallie Rather and choir for their excellent singing; also Superintendent W. H. Ruffin and the committees. Collection, $50 07.

..Ellisville, D. F. Dudley.—Easter was observed. Collection, $2 50.

..Winona, N. R. Clay.—Easter Sunday was a "Red Letter Day" for our church here. The program was carried out verbatim. Miss Emma F. Fox, Sunday School superintendent, and Mrs. F. P. Mask deserve much credit for their skill in handling the little folks in the exercises. We offered a year's subscription to the SOUTHWESTERN for the one raising the most money for the occasion. Miss Emma Fox was the successful one. Collected $15.

..Abbeville, E. J. Turner.—Easter program carried out to the letter. Brother E. J. Turner, the superintendent, and Prof. G. H. Pane, Brother W. M. Barnor, Miss Tillie Cancer, reflected credit upon themselves for the active part which they took in the exercises. Total collection, $12 09. We have four subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN, and intend to have more.

..College Hill, S. D. Tronpo.—We are going forward here. Easter was a success. Church nicely decorated and curtains used at night. Good music led by Miss Rosie E. Wilson, Emma Anderson and others. All hearts were made glad among the children and old folks. Collection, $15.

LOUISIANA.

Pleasant Hill, Rosa L. Taylor.—The church was nicely decorated on Easter Sunday, and we had a very good attendance all day. Our Sunday School is progressing rapidly under the efficient care and superintendency of W. L. James. Our day school is getting on nicely with Miss Phillis L. Carnine as teacher. Church is doing grandly. Rev. Wm. Harrison is at his post of duty. Two have reclaimed with five probationers.

..Mansfield, J. O. Brown.—Our Easter celebration was a spiritual and financial success. The church was beautifully decorated. A large number attested their interest in the service and left tokens of their appreciation, which amounted to $8 15.

OHIO.

..Columbus, A. McDade.—I arrived at my new field of labor and preached my first sermon on March 24, I found a good people, and they received me gladly. On April 6 my family arrived, and to our delight a great host of members and friends came to the parsonage and brought many good things. And now we are carrying on a glorious meeting and preparing to remodel the church.

TENNESSEE.

..Foulkes Station, B. F. Anderson.—Easter services were grandly carried out at Dunlap Chapel M. E. Church. Our pastor, Rev. B. F. Anderson, rendered efficient help for our missionary cause. Collection, $1 50.

TEXAS.

..Bellville, P. H. Jenkins.—Easter Sunday was a day of rejoicing for both the people of Jackson Chapel and Richard Grove Churches, Richard Grove being ten miles away in the country. The program prepared by Rev. W. F. Smith was used and well rendered. Grand results followed. Collection for missions, $6 10. Remember, this work raised last year for all purposes $2. The church is very grateful to Miss Annie Fields, Prof. Aldridge and Mr. H. M. Smith for their noble efforts to make Easter a grand day in the history of this work.

..Belton, Willie Parchman.—Our Easter services were the grandest that were ever witnessed in our city. There were several essays and lectures delivered. Among these that deserve special mention are: "Our Little Boys," by Mrs. Lizzie Gilmer, and "He Is Risen," by Mr. Halley Marshall. Professors Harris and Gilmer gave the school an interesting talk. This is the work of our superintendent, Miss Ardella Embree. She has pushed things to the front in Sunday School work. Total collection for the day was $5. I am 11 years old and am going to school every day. Our pastor is R. H. Ponton. We love him very much. He has been with us three years.

..Franklin, Miss R. E. Collier.—Easter day here was grand. The program was carried out in full. The offerings were $10. Rev. G. I. Izard, our pastor, is getting on nicely. The church is framed, and we are expecting to have meeting in it in June.

..Goliad, A. Brown.—We have had 34 conversions this year. Easter was a grand affair. It was the best ever held here. We were asked to raise $57, and we realized for all purposes $63, and raised for improvement of church, parsonage, etc., $100; ministerial, $150. Total for all causes, $323.

A Word From Helena, Ark.

The outlook for the M. E. Church in this city is more hopeful than at any time during my pastorate. We have reorganized, and as a result our church roll shows 25 members and probationers and 100 in the Sunday school. We have no church house, but rent the K. of P. hall as a place of worship. This is the most beautiful hall in the city; is central and easy of approach from all points. Easter Sunday was a most glorious day with us. We had our presiding elder, Rev. J. W. Jackson, with us. He gave us good service all day and held a profitable quarterly conference on Monday night. We had several distinguished visitors with us who seemed to enjoy the Easter services, which were well rendered by all who took active part. Addresses were delivered by the presiding elder and Rev. E. C. Morris, D. D., pastor of Centennial Baptist Church, this city. Miss F. E. Alexander, sister of the late John Alexander; Prof. Henry Avant, principal of Helena public school; Profs. Mitchell and Talley, teachers in charge of the Helena art school, were all present. Misses I. H. Carter and S. A. Watson have our thanks for their most valuable services rendered on the program. Collection, $5.37.

Important to the Negro.

[The following letter will explain itself and is worth perusal.]

Baton Rouge, La., April 18, 1895.

Rev. E. W. S. Hammond, D. D., New Orleans, La.:

My Dear Brother—In yesterday's Times-Democrat is an Associated Press dispatch about the "Color line drawn in the Epworth League," referring to a meeting in St. Louis, Mo., on the 16th inst., in which a Rev. Mr. Lenig "claims that to admit colored branches would destroy the plans of the league."

Is it true? Is the Methodist family, at the instance of some of its leaders, to go entirely back on its record? Have we departed so far from the teachings of the fathers that any such doctrine can gain foothold in the Church?

There certainly must be a mistake in this telegram, and yet the fact of its utterance will work great injury to the league, the Church, and the cause of Christianity, no matter if it be a canard.

Am much afraid the "brotherhood of man," as taught by the distinguished Mr. Lenig and his followers, would mean a very select circle.

Please write me and tell me the newspapers made a mistake in their report, otherwise we shall be compelled to drop league business.

Am really "worked up" about it. The next step will be to draw the line in the churches, and then good-bye to Wesley's doctrine.

Hoping you are in position to positively contradict the article referred to, I am yours for a broad Christianity,

FRANK C. BLUNDON.

[We are waiting for reliable information.—EDITOR.]

Notes From Nashville.

"Who shall be the governor of Tennessee for the next two years?" is the question that is exercising the ingenuity of the skilled politicians here. The impression is quite general that the man who was elected according to the regular returns of the November elections will not get the office, although according to the constitution he is governor of Tennessee. Things very much like this have happened in this State before. Strong Republican counties have been suddenly converted into giving magnificent Democratic majorities. We are not easily surprised at anything which happens in politics.

Sam Jones has just closed a series of meetings here, which have been attended by thousands at every service. Many promised to live better lives.

Other evangelists are holding meetings, and the papers report them successful. Clark Chapel, under Rev. C. B. Wilson, has had about forty additions and conversions. Seay Chapel, Rev. J. A. W. Moore pastor, has had some revival influence. Braden Chapel, Rev. G. C. Harden, has had some additions since conference.

The Theological and Sunday School Institute, held at the Central Tennessee College, was well attended. The papers and addresses by the brethren of the conference were excellent. The lectures of Prof. Parks, of Gammon Theological Seminary, who had a leading part in the institute, were practical, doctrinal and of a high order. Rev. Dr. R. A. Young, of the M. E. Church South, delivered a very excellent address on Palestine, and Rev. Dr. Hoss, editor of the Christian Advocate in this city, gave a most practical address on the "Essentials of Ministerial Preparation," which was a gem in the line of thought presented. Rev. Dr. Tigert, editor of Books and of the Quarterly Review of the Church South, will preach the baccalaureate sermon, and Rev. A. W. McKinney, principal of Huntsville Academy, Alabama, the annual sermon on Sunday, May 19.

The summer school at Central Tennessee College, under the management of Professors Dogan and Boyd, will begin June 10 and continue eight weeks. This will be an excellent opportunity for teachers and others who wish to review or take advanced studies.

The college year is closing with an enrollment of four hundred and sixty, which is good for this year of financial stress. The African training class has had regular exercises and talks on the climate and customs of the people, productions of the soil and the work of missionaries who go to the "Dark Continent" to spread the gospel and Christian civilization. Bishop Walden favored the class and the whole body of students with his lecture on Africa on his last visit to the college. The present school year closes on the 23rd of May, and the next school year opens on the 30th of September.

J. BRADEN.

J. H. Scales Is Dead.

It is with sorrow and great sympathy that I make known to the Central Alabama Conference the sad news of the death of Rev. J. H. Scales, whom Bishop Vincent sent to take charge of the St. Paul Church in Pensacola, Fla., at the last session of the conference. He went immediately to his work at the adjournment of the conference, but was never able to do any work on account of his health. He gradually grew worse, and was excused from his work to go home, where he died a few days ago in full triumph of faith. He was a young man of promise, faithful and true to God and the Church. He was perfectly submissive to the will of God and said, "Whether he lived or died he was Christ's." He died with consumption, at Corn House, surrounded by his relatives and friends. He died well, and has gone from labor to reward. E. M. JONES

CANCER CURED

—AND A—

LIFE SAVED

By the Persistent Use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"I was troubled for years with a sore on my knee, which several physicians, who treated me, called a cancer, assuring me that nothing could be done to save my life. As a last resort, I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after taking a number of bottles, the sore began to disappear and my general health improve. I persisted in this treatment, until the sore was entirely healed. Since then, I use Ayer's Sarsaparilla occasionally as a tonic and blood-purifier, and, indeed, it seems as though I could not keep house without it."—Mrs. S. A. FIELDS, Bloomfield, Ia. *

OUR : WOMEN'S : ROUND : TABLE

The Influence of the Home In the Uplifting of our People.

FIFTEENTH LETTER—BY T. E. W.

How very hard it seems for some of us to "keep sweet." A thing that is necessary in every home, if it is desired that that home should be a happy one. The responsibilities of a home are many, and we may as well decide at once to do the work cheerfully as to grow impatient. If a girl does not love to assist in the housework before she leaves her mother's roof, she will never care for it afterwards. I find it the case especially in the South that mothers seem to take a pride in saying their daughter does not know how to work. That she is a school teacher, music teacher, or anything else, is a poor excuse. That is what we call a one-sided education. Training the brain and not the hands. Therefore, it is the duty of every mother to learn her girl something about everything around the house.

There is one thing that worries me a great deal, and that is the manner in which some of our prominent women act. A woman makes the greatest mistake of her life when she begins to feel that she is superior to her associates. Some one has said, "Be wise! Soar not too high to fall, but stoop to rise." I believe in every woman having a certain amount of pride, but there is a way to overdo almost everything, and as soon as we become conceited, then doubts will arise as to our future prosperity. This is one of the things that can be overcome by constant prayer. Therefore, go to our Heavenly Father and ask Him for that strength which He alone is able to give

In the summer, when fruit is cheap and plentiful, I would advise everyone to use it, for there is nothing better to aid digestion than an orange before breakfast. Do not be afraid to give it to your children; it will not hurt them unless you give them too much.

"RULES FOR THE LITTLE FOLKS AT THEIR MEALS.—Smooth hair, clean hands, clean face. Be in time at your place; then wait; say 'please;' don't haste; speak low; chew well; don't waste; laugh some; talk some; thank God when done; chair back; then go; do right. Fill home with light, morn, noon and night."

"ESSENTIALS FOR TRAVELING.—Let your grip, or hand-bag, contain a bottle of Florida water, bay rum or cologne. Nothing is more refreshing when travelling. Have also sewing and writing materials, soap (never use the soap supplied by the railroads), wash cloth, smelling salts, lead hair crimpers, manicure set, shoe horn and hook (if you wear buttoned boots), a bottle of listorine for mouth wash, extra handkerchiefs, pins, needles, scissors and pens."

To this list might be added a loose robe and soft slippers, in order to enjoy perfect rest while surrounded with every convenience.

"When a ham or a large piece of meat is boiled for slicing cold, use plenty of water, and let the meat stand in it until cold, for, by so doing, the meat will reabsorb much of the nutriment which has been drawn out during the boiling process."

Say It While They Live.

Bishop Potter recently told the following story: "Several years ago some of us were assembled in Calvary Church, New York, to bear our testimony to the life and influence of the late Dr. Edward Washburn. I may venture now to violate the confidence of a domestic incident which transpired then, and which I think you will own to have its significance and appropriateness here. One after another, Phillips Brooks, and others like him, rose in their places in that crowded study to tell what they owed to the genius, to the high spirit, to the unswerving loyalty to duty, to the splendid courage, to the rare scholarship, to the philosophic insight, to the prophetic utterance of Edward Washburn. The testimony was done. At the door, all the time, there stood a slender woman, who had stood, during his life, nearest to him of whom we spoke. I never shall forget her face—the passion of it and the pathos of it—nor the power, tender but reproachful, with which she spoke, when at length we were still: "Oh, if you loved Edward so, why didn't you tell him of it while he lived?"

The Resurrection Proves All.

PROF. A. R. Jackson, Jewella, La.

When Jesus appeared to his disciples in the upper chamber at Jerusalem, the night after His resurrection, He was there to teach them that the life after death is as real, personal and palpable as this which we now live. He was there to set before them not a system, but a person; not a legend, but a life; not an argument, but another step in his own history. He stood in the midst of the company as their days man, their mediation between the seen and the unseen, time and eternity, the material form and the spiritual life. His history of earth had mingled with theirs, and touched their individual experience at every point, and made him one with them in the most actual, material, matter-of-fact life. And he would show them that same life of the body, glorified in the life of the spirit, that they might believe in both.

They had no doubt about the reality of the life of the body which they were then living. Jesus had taken all its conditions and limitations upon himself, that he might mediate for them between that and the higher life of the spirit. He had passed from one to the other, showing Himself to be the same person in both. He had taken to Himself a mortal body, and carried it through all the experience, and exposures of their daily life; he had given it up to death, and then taken it again that he might show them how safe and direct and easy is the passage from one to the other to those who follow him. He went and came between death and life that he might show how sure and swift is the process by which this mortal, in its redeemed life, can put on immortality. Jesus did for His disciples and for us all as shepherds do in Eastern lands when persuading their flocks to cross a dark and rapid stream. They cross themselves, and come back and cross again in sight of the flock, and then even the lambs are not afraid to follow.

The great Shepherd crossed the dark stream of death, and came back to tell his disciples that the footing is firm to all who follow His steps. That night Jesus stood before His disciples in His own person, bearing a part both in the material and the spiritual world, that He might help them to believe in one as truly as in the other. He would confirm their faith in the reality of the other life by such evidences as we rely upon when judging of things that we can see and touch and weigh and measure with our senses. He showed the reality of His bodily life by taking food and eating before them. He showed the reality of His spiritual life by vanishing out of their sight without waiting for any to unbar the door. And the religion which is preached in the name of Jesus unto the nations, and which rests for its confirmation upon the reality of the resurrection, is itself a religion of reality. Its original witnesses did not follow cunningly devised fables. It is not now dependent for its confirmation upon the impressions or experiences of any peculiarly constituted mind. It is a presence which can be felt; a power, the effects of which can be seen and studied as easily as we can see and study the stars in the heaven and the stones on the earth. The religion of Jesus changes the character, and renews life, and beautifies the world. It changes the wilderness to a populous city and makes the waste place a garden, and fills the dark homes of millions with joy. It makes the false man true, the passionate man meek and gentle, the hard and cruel man tender-hearted and pitiful, the selfish and miserly man generous and charitable, the profane man reverent and pure in heart and life, the worldly and prayerless man penitent and spiritual and God-fearing. It finds a man who is proud, fretful, passionate, quick in quarrel, fierce in contention, implacable in revenge; it makes him gentle, patient, forgiving. It gives him such mastery over himself that when reviled he reviles not again; when he suffers, he threatens not. He wears upon his countenance the expression of peace. When he speaks the law of kindness is upon his lips, and his words of love are mightier than the words of wrath. The change wrought in the spiritual character of the man is as evident and real as the change which comes over the body in passing from sickness to health, from youth to age, from sleep to waking. Shall we not believe in the reality of a religion which has done all this for millions, and which can do as much for millions more? And shall we not believe in the reality of a religion which displays such mighty power? Not all the armies and revenues of nations could have done for this people what had been done for them by faith in Him who stood alive, serene and beautiful after death in the midst of His friends at Jerusalem, and said—"Peace be unto you."

An Appeal for Chili.

For the current year the General Missionary Committee made a conditional appropriation to Chili of $35,000. The work in that country is carried forward on what is known as the self-supporting plan. This means that the Missionary Society provides outgoing expenses, school houses and fixtures, chapels and homes for the missionaries, but pays no salaries. All workers are supported from "indigenous resources." The school work is of great importance, and it is believed that it will eventually open the way to the evangelization of the masses of the people now engulfed in the darkness and superstition of the Roman Catholic Church. We send missionaries to heathen lands, and that is right; but we should remember that the idolatry of strictly Roman Catholic countries is often as pronounced as can be found anywhere in the world.

In all the republics of South America and Mexico we have but forth-eight missionaries, (exclusive of native workers) including twelve belonging to the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. While we should not send a less number to pagan lands, we ought largely increase our missionary force in Spanish America. In all this vast territory there is but little being done by England or by any other European country. In this regard the Monroe doctrine of non-intervention with American affairs is quite scrupulously respected. It is very plain that North American Protestantism must evangelize South American Romanism. The exclusiveness of Romanism is yielding in spite of the hierarchy, and multitudes are ready to receive the glad tidings of salvation through simple faith in Jesus. The schools in Chili are located at Santiago, Concepcion, Iquique and other places, and were formerly under the auspices of the William Taylor Building and Transit Committee, but for nearly two years have been under the management of the Missionary Society, the plan of self-support remaining unchanged.

Last year two friends of this mission advanced the money necessary to send out needed reinforcements, agreeing to await reimbursement until special contributions should come in. Although three very urgent appeals have been sent out, but a small sum has been received, and the fund is now about $1,000 short. This sum should be paid at once, and $5,000 more is needed immediately to make important improvements on school buildings and to provide necessary accommodations for increasing numbers of students. Friends of self-supporting missions, let us hear from you promptly. Send all contributions to the undersigned at 150 Fifth avenue, New York. A. B. LEONARD.

E. W. S. HAMMOND, D. D., EDITOR.

"ETHICS AND ECONOMICS OF GUSH."

Under the above caption the Christian Advocate of New York utters a sensible and timely word. It is possible that its able editor knows what it is to be threatenee with all sorts of dire consequences for not "gnshing" over every little performance of "John Smith" et. al. A correspondent asked the editor why it was that the Christian Advocate did not "gush" more over persons and things? To which Dr. Buckley replies:

"For these reasons: Gush takes more space than any other class of writing, its sphere being that of the adjective, its nature resembling alcoholic drinks, which require continual increase to keep up the effect. The habit of gushing tends to the obliteration of moral distinctions; and to love to be gushed about has a weakening influence on mind and morals."

Aside from the necessary consumption of valuable space, this habit is superlatively harmful, in that it often encourages persons to believe that they possess qualities which they do not possess. It tends to inflate and encourage that species of self pride, which is but another name for self adulation. It is not unusual to find some of our exchanges devoted almost exclusively to wholesale toadyism. Every correspondent is the "grandest," "brainiest," "most versatile," "brilliant," etc. The whole vocabulary of adjectives is made to serve these editors and writers, who for ulterior purposes can make the most insignificant person appear to be the most honorable and useful. We have been sorely afflicted with the accounts of "the grandest," "soul-stirring," "most logical," "remarkable" sermons preached by persons known to possess only the most ordinary ability. To us there can be but one reason for such fulsome adulation: Some one evidently desires to gain some personal advantage, and resorts to this foolish practice as a means to accomplish his purposes. But the love of gush is intoxicating. Aye, more, it is damaging in the extreme. It is a dangerous stimulant at times, and has been known to inflate persons out of all proportion to their real importance. A brother suggested to us quite recently, that the SOUTHWESTERN might be yet more popular if it would adopt the policy of a certain local paper, which owes its popularity to its ability to make things and people appear to be what they are not.

The Advocate says further: "The statement of a good quality is not gush, and, with just reputation as a basis, illuminates a report." But to say that men are learned, studious, cultured; that they are great preachers, when they are not, puts the reporter among those who are of doubtful veracity, and at the same time damages "the reputation of those whom they commend." The following, from the Advocate, should furnish food for sober reflection:

"To credit a person with qualities they do not possess, or with possessing much of that of which he has but little, will, by the law of contrast, provoke others to criticise him adversely. Such would often be the case when men send in gush about themselves if, as they suggest, it were published editorially or anonymously."

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Postoffice address of Rev. A. Booker is 390 Watt street, Jeffersonville, Ind.

—Rev. W. McNiel, Ocean Springs, Miss., says the church is moving along nicely, and that they had a grand rally on April 21 and collected $25 for the pastor.

—Brother A. J. Trice, of Brookville, Miss., writes: "Elder H. R. Revels held our first quarterly conference at Baldwin Church. All things were on time. Collection, $17.50."

—Brother J. W. Turner, of St. Martinsville, La., says the revival at Mallalieu Chapel closed with good results, forty-five having been converted and two backsliders reclaimed.

—Brother C. A. Taylor, of Lonoke, Ark., writes: "On the night of the 11th of April we were visited by a band of friends who brought us many good things, which made us rejoice."

—W. W. Brown writes from Kendleton, Tex.: "We have pitched a battle here against the devil for Christ. We have 12 converts and a host of mourners waiting at the pool for the troubling of the water."

—R. N. Jones, Heidleberg, Miss., says: "On Monday night, recently, a large number of members and friends came to the parsonage and surprised us with many good things. Our work is in a prosperous condition."

—Rev. C. P. Westbrook, of the West Texas Conference, called to the bedside of his brother in Greenville, Miss., visited our office last week. He reports that he had three services at Victoria on Easter and raised $26.15 for missions.

—"We contemplate building a new church this year at this place. We have some of the lumber on the ground. Methodism is not very strong here, but we are expecting great things." So says W. C. McEwen, of Lexington, Miss.

—Brother M. W. Reid, Bee Lake, Miss., says: "Elder W. E. Mask held my first quarterly conference April 12. The sacrament was given, and a goodly number participated. Collection good. Our circuit is looking upwards."

—"Our beloved pastor, Rev. E. H. Scott, is doing a good work here. He has organized a Sunday School and is doing all he can to make it progressive. We have 36 on our roll." So says Grant Thomas, of St. James parish, La.

—"We are rejoicing in a wonderful revival here. Up to date we have had 23 conversions, and several reclaimed. Many are yet inquiring the way to be saved. Twenty-one have united with the church." So says W. M. Reid, Floresville, Tex.

—Brother E. D. Cameron, Dahomey, Miss., says: "We have succeeded in building a good parsonage and are now living in it. My first quarterly conference was held and was well attended. Rev. E. Troup presided and preached grandly."

—Brother W. H. Simpson, of Fort Smith, Ark., says: "We received our new pastor, Rev. John Qualls, with great pleasure. He is an efficient worker for God and the Church. Our worthy presiding elder, Rev. Morris, held his first quarterly conference as announced."

—Brother J. M. Watson writes us from Warrensburg Circuit, Tenn.: "The outlook is prosperous here for disciplinary training. On April 17 Sister Cornelia Read, assisted by other sisters and the class-leaders presented many valuable gifts and presents to the altar."

—"My first quarterly conference on this charge was held, with A. M. Trotter presiding. Twenty-three leaders presented their reports, which showed a membership of 310, including probationers. Total collection during the quarter, $23 75." So says N. Toole, Enterprise, Miss.

—Rev. A. Thomas, pastor at Lacoupt, La., writes: "Our work is moving along nicely and we are in the midst of a grand revival, and four have been added to the church. The altar is crowded with anxious mourners. Our first quarterly conference love feast was a season of power."

—H. Robinson, Mansfield, Tenn., writes: "Our work is now looking up. The Rev. S. B. Danley, P. E., was with us April 6 7. His visit has made a great impression. We have four churches—two log houses and two frame. We are trying to push the grand old SOUTHWESTERN."

—Sophia Gillespie, Bonham, Tex., writes: "The Epworth League is second to none at Bonham. Our pastor is pushing everything to the front. Our president is Jas. Mouton. We have some money in the treasury. Bonham must be in the first rank. I am doing all I can for the paper.

—Brother W. C. Clay, of Tupelo, Miss., says: "Our first quarterly conference, with Presiding Elder S. H. Nevils in the chair, received encouraging reports. Our church in this place is on the upgrade. Elder Nevils preached two sermons during the conference. The collections for the were $55.25."

—"On Saturday night, a few weeks ago, a heavy wind blew down the St. Paul Church in this place and killed my only horse. The church can be repaired, but the loss of the horse falls sorely upon me. Neither the parsonage nor its inmates were hurt." So says Rev. Jackson Harper, Guntersville, Ala.

—"My work is in a prosperous condition. Our first quarterly conference was held, and we had a glorious time. We are now preparing to build a new church the fifth Sunday of March. We collected only $25 and took a subscription of $1 65." So says R. L. Carpenter, Summerville Circuit, Miss.

—Howard W. Blackner, North Middletown, Ky., writes: "Our first quarterly meeting, with Elder Courtney present, was grand. Dr. Courtney preached three impressive sermons, which did much good. The outlook for a good year is hopeful. Collections, $9 15.

—Susie Pitts, Conroe, Tex., writes: On Sunday, March 31, we had a rally meeting for the W. H. M. S. The committee appointed for the purpose presented the program, which was carried out. Many worthy papers were read on missions, after which a missionary sermon was preached by the pastor. Collection, $7 25."

—Brother J. B. Starkey, Webb, Miss., says: "Our first quarterly conference, with Presiding Elder J. W. Davis in the chair, was held in our new church. Reports show the work in good condition. The elder preached a good sermon on Sunday at 11 o'clock. Nine children were baptized and one adult; 13 from probation."

—Rev. H. B. Gladney, of Hernando Charge, Miss., writes us: "Our first quarterly conference was held according to appointment, and Elder McDonald on time. It was one of the best ever held on the work. The work is alive. Collection, $34. Wesley Atkin, one of our exhorters, died Feb. 19 last. He was 47 years old and was a faithful member."

—"The members and friends of White's Chapel M. E. Church were grandly entertained on April 7, by the presence of Rev. W. R. R. Duncan. He addressed the Sabbath school in the interest of the SOUTHWESTERN. The children and members all enjoyed it grandly. He preached for us at 11 o'clock. The sermon was helpful." So writes C. E. Cluens.

—From Mt. Nebo M. E. Church, A. B. Venable writes: "We are in for a good year's work. Our first quarterly conference passed off nicely. Rev. F. T. Chinn, P. E., greatly assisted us. The church is in a prosperous condition. The Easter services were grand. The pastor gave a lecture, after which a delightful program was rendered. The collection was good."

—"Warren Chapel, at Lake Charles, La., is alive spiritually and temporally. Five have joined the church. The first quarterly conference was held on time. Rev. S. E. H. Morant, P. E., preached a good sermon. Collections, $72 40. On the night of April 3, the members and young folks came in a great storm to the parsonage, and left many good things on the tables." So writes T. Larkins.

—John A. Howard of East End Mission, San Antonio, Tex., writes: "I was appointed to this work by our late district conference, and have succeeded under God in organizing a good Sunday school with 53 pupils enrolled. We will organize a church with 15 members. The prospects are now good for a glorious revival. The SOUTHWESTERN must go along with the glorious work."

—From Hardinsburg, Ky., Rev. Frank Henton writes: "I never met with a more cordial reception than was tendered me on my arrival here. More than a hundred persons joined in filling our cupboards, barrels and safe with the good things of life, They also presented a purse containing $12 cash. We have had five accessions. The Epworth League is alive. The church is alive and will be heard from."

—Memorial services were held in St. Paul M. E. Church, Tupelo, Miss., recently in honor of Hon. Frederick Douglass. The services were interesting and impressive. Rev. H. C. Norman, Mr. E. D. Coleman, Clara Commander, Prof. A. S. Glover, C. H. Andrews, W. R. Logan, M. J. Blanchard, W. R. Wiley, Rev. G. W. Allen, W. C. Clay and Mrs. Fannie Norman took part in the interesting exercises.

—D. F. Dudley, Ellisville, Miss., writes: "A few nights ago many of the good brothers and sisters came at a still hour of the night and disturbed myself and family; they left many good things on our table. Brother and Sister J. Pickens rolled up one-half barrel of flour. They made our hearts glad. We have completed painting the inside of our new church, and will be ready for the district conference."

—Brother L. J. Long, Sr., of Texarkana, Tex., says: "The second quarterly conference of St. Paul M. E. Church, this city, was held April 20-21, with Rev. C. C. Minegan in the chair. Reports show spiritual and financial life. Total collection for the quarter, $203. Sunday was a glorious day for the church. The presiding elder preached two interesting sermons. One was converted. Rev. W. H. Jackson, pastor, is doing a good work."

A Chance to Make Money.

I have berries, grapes and peaches, a year old, fresh as when picked. I use the California Cold Process; do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh, and costs almost nothing; can put up a bushel in ten minutes. Last week I sold directions to over 120 families; anyone will pay a dollar for directions, when they see the beautiful samples of fruit. As there are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident any one can make one or two hundred dollars round home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and complete directions, to any of your readers, for eighteen two-cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc., to me. NEW ORLEANS AND VICINITY.

Rev. T. G. Montgomery, of Mt. Zion Church, gave us his usual Monday morning call. He reports the church and Sunday School in good condition. The services last Sunday were unusually impressive.

General class meeting at Simpson, Rev. H. Taylor, pastor, was a season of unusual interest. It was like unto "Pentecost." The Lord was present in great power.

The editor of the SOUTHWESTERN had the happy privilege of preaching for the congregation of St. Peter's A. M. E. Church. Rev. Dr. Clark, pastor, is getting matters well in hand, and there are signs of progress all around.

Brother T. J. Johnson, of Wesley Chapel, has just closed a glorious revival, and rejoices over the conversion of 113 precious souls. The sacrament of the Lord was administered to 303 last Sunday. The spirit of God was with us.

Allen A. Goins, recording secretary, was married to Miss Victoria Harden. The ceremony was performed in the spacious auditorium by Rev. T. J. Johnson. Brother Goins is all smiles over his happy choice.

Rev. C. P. Westbrooks, D. D., of Victoria, Tex., called at the office on Thursday of last week on his return from Greenville, Miss. He had been summoned on account of the illness and death of his brother, Mr. H. A. Smith, which occurred April 21.

Tired, Weak, Nervous,

Means impure blood, and overwork or too much strain on brain and body. The only way to cure is to feed the nerves on pure blood. Thousands of people certify that the best blood purifier, the best nerve tonic and strength builder is Hood Sarsaparilla. What it has done for others it will also do for you—Hood's Cures.

Nervousness, loss of sleep, loss of appetite and general debility all disappear when Hood's Sarsaparilla is persistently taken, and strong nerves, sweet sleep, strong body, sharp appetite, and in a word, health and happiness follow the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The strong point about Hood's Sarsaparilla is that they are permanent, because they start from the solid foundation of purified, vitalized and enriched blood.

—Throughout the United States there are over 100,000 physicians to attend 60,000,000 or about 1 to every 600. In heathen and Mohammedan lands there are about 350 medical missionaries scattered among 1,000,000,000, or about 1 to 3,000,000.—Ex.

—The Bible has a great deal to say about the moral conqueror and his reward. The great central thought of Revelation is the Lord of heaven comes to earth, fights error and wrong, conquers sin and leads his children and church to certain victory here and glory over there, and that there is no sin of thought, tongue, temper, conduct but can be overcome by the Gospel, the aid of grace and help of God. Through Him we are more than conquerors.—Ex.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

How He Won Success.

Hon. Chauncey M. Depew tells the story of his visit to the mechanical department of Cornell University. He found at the head of it Professor Morris, who claimed him as a superior officer, giving as a reason that he was an old-time worker on the New York Central Railroad. "How did you get here?" asked Depew. "I fired on the New York Central. I stood on the footboard as an engineer on the Central. While a locomotive engineer I made up my mind to get an education. I studied at night, and fitted myself for Union College, running all the time with my locomotive. I procured books, and attended as far as possible the lectures and recitations. I kept up with my class, and on the day of graduation I left my locomotive, washed up, put on the gown and cap, delivered my thesis, and received my diploma. I then put away my diploma, put the gown and cap in the closet, put on my working-shirt, got on my engine, and made my usual run that day." "Then," says Depew, "I knew how he became Professor Morris." That spirit will cause a man to rise anywhere and in any calling. It is ambition, but it is ambition wisely directed, aiming, not at the goal—for such an ambition produces envy, scheming, discontent and weakness—but bravely and cheerily aiming at one's self, seeking to make one's self fitted for higher work. When this is accomplished the opportunity for higher work is sure to come.—Golden Rule.

PLENTY OF PROGRAMS

FOR CHILDREN'S DAY,

Ready for mailing at this office.

The essential thing is to have the world shut out and to be alone with God ..... We may even so familiarize ourselves with the inward world that we shall acquire the habit of transporting ourselves into it at will, at any hour of the day and in any circumstances. Amidst the whir of machinery, in the bustle of the street, even in the midst of conversation, we may be able mentally to disappear out of time, and stand for an instant in eternity face to face with God; and few prayers are more precious than the momentary ejaculations offered in the course of daily occupations. He who has acquired this habit has a strong tower into which he can retreat in every time of need.—James Stalker, D. D.

In black burying time the cook must be away Sunday to tend de funeral. Monday the wash lady is 'bliged to rest and visit her friends. Three or four Daughters of Zion scrambles during the week take up a great deal of colored time that belongs to the employer. An old colored preacher was asked, the other day, how his church was getting on, and his answer was: "Mighty poor, mighty poor, bradder." When asked the trouble, he replied: "De 'cieties, de 'cieties. Dey is just drawin' all the fatness and marrow outen the body and bone of the blessed Lord's body. We can't do nuffin without de 'ciety. Dar is the Linenm 'Ciety, wid Sister Jones and Brudder Brown to run it. Sister Williams dus' march right in front of de Daughters of Rebecca. —At a recent meeting of the trustees of DePauw University, Bishop Thomas Bowman, who has for twelve years served as chancellor, asked to be released from his duties. Upon the recommendation of the president of the university, Dr. J. P. D. John, the Board unanimously elected Ex-Chancellor Charles N. Sims to the vacant position. Dr. Sims is at present pastor of Meridian Street Church, Indianapolis, and was for twelve years chancellor of Syracuse University. It is believed that he will undertake the work. The duties of the president remain the same as heretofore, except that he will be relieved of the financial administration. He will, as usual, direct the educational policy; while the chancellor, if he should accept, will direct the financial affairs of the university, and give his entire time and energy to its business interests. The Board has taken steps to enter upon an immediate campaign to raise an additional endowment of a million dollars. The present year has been one of the most successful in the history of the university.—Ex.

5 GALLONS FOR 25¢

Not of the preparations of coloring matter and essential oils so often sold under the name of rootbeer, but of the purest, most delicious, health-giving beverage possible to produce. One gallon of Hires' is worth ten of the counterfeit kind. Suppose an imitation extract costs five cents less than the genuine Hires; the same amount of sugar and trouble is required; you save one cent a gallon, and—get an unhealthful imitation in the end. Ask for HIRES and get it.

LESSON HYMN. L. M.

O who like thee, so mild, so bright,
Thou Son of man, thou Light of light?
O who like thee did ever go
So patient, through a world of woe?

O who like thee so humbly bore
The scorn, the scoffs of men before?
So meek, so lowly, yet so high,
So glorious in humility?

And death, that sets the prisoner free,
Was pang, and scoff, and scorn to thee;
Yet love through all thy torture glowed,
And mercy with thy life-blood flowed.

Time.—Very early on Friday morning, April 7, A. D. 30, the morning of the day of crucifixion; these events may have occurred as early as 2 a. m.

Place.—Jerusalem; the high priest's palace.

Rulers.—Herod Antipas, tetrarch of Galilee and Perea; Pontius Pilate, procurator of Judea; Caiaphas, high priest of the Jews.

Jesus Before the High Priest.

(Mark 14. 53 61.)

Written for the Southwestern.

By Rev. G. N. Jolly, Kentucky Conference

GOLDEN TEXT.—"He is despised and rejected of men." (Isa. 53. 3)

Jesus went forth to meet the mob. Judas came forward and with a kiss betrayed Him. Jesus asked whom they sought. They told Him. He let them know He was the man. "They went backward and fell to the ground." Again they advanced. Peter drew a sword and smote off the ear of Malchus. Jesus told him to put up the sword. The disciples fled. Jesus was bound and led away to the high priest Annas, and then to his son-in-law Caiaphas, who was high priest that year. We have in this lesson the court, the prisoner and His friends, the witnesses, the prosecution, and the verdict.

1. The court (53) was composed of the high priest, chief priests, elders and scribes. The high priest was the judge, the others composed the Sanhedrin, which was the jury. The high priest was different from the other priests in many respects. By being anointed he was set apart for his high priestly office. Christ is the anointed of God, and we are the anointed of Christ. The dress of the high priest was composed of the breastplate, the ephod, the robe of the ephod, the mitre, and the broidered coat. Our soul should be clothed with the righteousness of Christ. It was the office of the high priest to go alone, once each year, into the holy of holies, bearing the blood of the sin-offering to sprinkle the mercy-seat, and to make the necessary offering for himself and for the errors of the people. Christ is our high priest. He has entered into the holy of holies to make intercession for us. The chief priests were next in rank to the high priest. David divided the priesthood into twenty-four classes. This order was likely continued down to the coming of Christ (Luke 1. 5). The heads or presidents of the twenty-four classes are called the chief priests. These chief priests composed a part of the Sanhedrin. It was their chief duty to act as jurors and try cases in the Jewish courts. Between them and the Levites was the common priesthood, which kept the fire burning on the altar of burnt-offerings, fed the golden candlestick with oil, offered the morning and evening sacrifices, and taught the children of Israel the statutes of the Lord. God has always had ranks in His church. Let us be content in the sphere where He has placed us. Judges and jurors should be God-fearing men. We are kings and priests unto God, and may offer up daily spiritual sacrifices unto Him. The word elder means an old person. It was originally applied to the heads of families. It is not known when it became an official title. In Israel they were recognized very early as a distinct body. They were likely the leading persons in each tribe. In the New Testament we often see the phrase, "the elders of the people." They represented the people in the Sanhedrin as the "chief priests" represented the priesthood. Each Synagogue had its board of elders. The word carries with it age, wisdom and piety. Let all the children of God be filled with wisdom and devotion. The Scribes were transcribers and expounders of the Word of God. During the Babylonish captivity the Hebrew language became almost a dead letter. But few of the Jews could read their sacred writings. Their literature was changed from the Hebrew to the Chaldee language. Those who did this work were called Scribes. This made them very familiar with their sacred Scriptures. Herod inquired of the "chief priests and Scribes" when the Christ should be born. They sat as teachers in Moses' seat. Their manner of teaching was compared to that of our Lord. They became the bitter foes of Christ. The chief priests, elders and scribes composed the Sanhedrin, the great council of the Jewish nation. Before them Jesus is now being tried for His life.

2. The Prisoner and His Friends (54).—Jesus was in the palace of the high priest. John was known to Caiphas and went in with Jesus. Peter was unknown to him and was not admitted. But through the influence of John he was allowed to enter. It was during this Jewish trial, and while warming himself by the fire, that he denied the Savior. He first denied saying, "I know not;" then with an oath, "I do not know the man;" and after this, with cursing and swearing, he said, "I know not the man." It is fearfully solemn to think that one who stood so high, and who had just said, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God," could fall so low. The following are the chief reasons of Peter's fall: Satan desired to possess him; he was over confident; he followed afar off; and he fell into bad company. But thank God, Peter arose again and became a chief apostle. Let us watch and pray that we enter not into temptations.

3. The Witnesses (55-59).—The council sought for witnesses to put Jesus to death. They had secured His arrest. He was on their hands. They must dispose of Him. They wished to do this according to law. They sought for witnesses, not to testify to the truth, but swear against Him. If they had brought in Nicodemus, or Bartimeus, or Lazarus, what testimony they could have given. In the East there are professional swearers. They wait about court rooms to be hired to testify. Their evidence is always on the side that pays the most money. These false witnesses were not well advised. They did not agree among themselves. Finally two were found, and posted before hand, till their testimony agreed. They had heard Jesus say—"I will destroy this temple, that is made with hands, and in three days I will build another, made without hands." This Jesus had never said. But three years in the past he had stated—"Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up." Very different from their testimony. This He said not with reference to the temple built by Herod, but to His body. Law is a farce if we have not honest judges, conscientious juries, and truth swearing witnesses.

4. The Prosecution (60-62).—The attorney was Caiphas, the high priest. He asked Jesus of His disciples and His doctrine. The Savior let him know He had spoken openly in the world, and in secret He had said nothing. He then asked what He had to say of those who testified against Him. They had sworn falsely, had contradicted one another, and had misconstrued His words; yet He answered not a word. When we are reviled let us revile not again. The high priest then said—"I adjure Thee by the living God, that Thou tell us whether Thou be the Christ, the Son of the Blessed." Caiaphas was excited. He felt that no mere man would be so calm and resigned under such persecution. Jesus quietly answered, "I am." That is, I am the Christ, "the Son of the Blessed." We should tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, when we testify in court.

5. The Decision (63 64).—The high priest rent his clothes. That is, with his right hand he seized and tore that part of his raiment that covered his left breast. This was an expression of horror and great grief. He was filled with these because God had been blasphemed. The base hypocrite. It was not profane for Jesus to say He was "the Christ." In courts of justice we should keep our feelings concealed. The high priest then asked—"What need we of any further witness?" What a man was this Caiaphas to ask questions. The testimony of his witnesses was worthless. Now he would make Jesus condemn Himself. What had He said? Nothing more than He had been teaching for three years by His works. Caiaphas then took the vote—"What think ye? And they all condemned Him to be guilty of death." Jesus had friends in this council. They did the cross examining and caused these witnesses to contradict one another. These may have been Joseph of Arimathea, Nicodemus and Gamaliel. But let us hope they had withdrawn before this vote was taken. But the all may only mean a majority. Jesus is here condemned on the ground of blasphemy. This blasphemy is not based on the testimony of witnesses, but on His own assertion. He made Himself equal with God. A more groundless verdict was never given.

Notes From Lawrenceburg, Tenn.

From April 9 to 13 there was held a Theological and Sunday School Institute at Central Tennessee College, Nashville, Tenn., Dr. Braden president. Dr. Parks, a professor in Gammon Theological Seminary, Atlanta, Ga., conducted the institute well. The members of the institute and students of Central Tennessee College will not forget the lectures of Dr. Parks: "Entering Into Divine Life," "Justification," "Regeneration," "Adoption and Entire Sanctification or Perfect Love." Dr. Young, a member of the Tennessee Conference M. E. Church South, and Dr. Hoss, of the same church, editor of the Christian Advocate, of Nashville, Tenn., favored the institute with a lecture each, which were very much enjoyed. Three of our presiding elders and a larger number of the preachers than usual were in attendance. The papers presented by those who were on the program were of a higher character than usual.

The institute, held there from year to year, should be more largely attended by both preachers and Sunday school teachers.

—A colored convict at Jefferson City, Mo., was pardoned last week by Gov. Stone. This man, who had served six years of a twenty-five years' sentence, was pardoned because a white woman who had accused him of attempted rape, confessed before her death that she had paid witnesses to convict the colored man in order to save her own name.—Fort Worth (Tex.) Our Belton (Tex.) Letter.

Our society here has never witnessed such an era of progress as it has for the last few weeks. Until very recently we have never understood the real meaning of the society and its work. We were blessed by the presence of Mrs. Colonel Springer not long since. Through her efforts we have begun our work with renewed vigor and comtomplate doing some good. We were sorry when she ended her visit, as she was busily engaged all the time while she was with us. We were donbtful whether Sister Springer would come, fearing that we could not raise sufficient funds to hear her expenses. I wish for every one to understand that Sister Springer does not stand back on the money question. She is strictly working for the good of our cause. I would to God that every Home Mission Society could be favored with her presence. We raised $3 for her, and she donated it to our new church. God bless Sister Springer. We are expecting a visit from Sister Springer in the near future. Our pastor, Brother Ponton, is doing a good work here.

MRS. S. A. MITCHELL.

From Eola, La.

Dear Editor—I thought I would write something from this place, as I am now here teaching the public school. Rev. D. Shelby is now pastor in charge, and seems to be well liked by the people. On the previous night of my arrival here, the pastor was more than surprised to hear a crowd of visitors mingling their sweet voices together at the door. They came with baskets heavily loaded with pounds of various kinds. Everyone seemed cheerful, and the pastor and his amiable wife wished them many happy returns of the night. The old familiar hymn, "God be with you," was led by Miss Delia Barney, teacher of the Baptist school; after which the merry party adjourned, to call again in the near future. Eola has some bright stars, which will continue to "shine until the perfect day."

OUR BOOK TABLE.

The May "Century" has a wide range of interest. In the Napoleon Life, Prof. Sloane narrates the conclusion of Napoleon's superb campaign in northern Italy. Announcement is made that Mr. E. J. Glave, who was with Stanley in his last expedition in Africa, has been engaged for many months in making an investigation for "The Century" of the slave-trade in Central Africa, and a forerunner of his articles appears in shape of three photographs of the inscribed tree under which is buried the heart of Dr. Livingstone. In addition to a variety of poetry by Edith M. Thomas and others there are articles on sanitary reform, forestry, Southern dialect, children in art, etc.

The A. M. E. Zion Quarterly Review for April is at hand. This valuable monthly maintains its high standard, and continues to reflect credit upon its editor and publisher. The contents of this number are unusually interesting. The "History of the African M. E. Zion Church" comes in for a large share of attention. The editor's critical and able review of the life of the late Hon. Frederick Douglass, with other interesting matter, wins for it a place among our best literature.

The Season for May, with new and effective spring toilettes, shows many and varied designs that are both practical and beautiful. The costumes illustrated throughout this entire book will be found to be of the latest and best designs and suitable for all occasions. Yearly, $3 50; single copies, 30 cents. The International News Company, 83 and 85 Duane street, New York, N. Y.

Among the books recently published by the Harpers is Lawrence's Modern Missions in the East. This volume gives an account of a missionary journey around the world, undertaken with the express purpose of studying the work of the several denominations. A text book for the study of the general subject of mission. Dr. Lawrence's work is wholly unlike any book in this field that has hitherto been published.

In the May Ladies' Home Journal Edward Bok answers, with much force and directness, a page of "Problems of Young Men." Exquisitely illustrated and timely articles are Mrs. Mallen's "Dainty Commencement Gowns" and "The Silks of the Summer." "Ecclesiastical Embroidery," by Harriet Ogden Morison, is illustrated from original designs. This beautiful magazine is sold at ten cents per number and $1 per year, by The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia.

When a woman sends her subscription to The Ladies' Home Journal special privileges seems to go with it, besides getting her full money's worth in the magazine. There comes to us from this magazine a very artistically-gotten-up illustrated booklet of over 250 pages, called "5000 Books," which serves as an easy guide to the best books in any department of reading. The best literary experts of New York, Boston and Philadelphia were engaged by the Journal to select the 5000 books which it presents as the most desirable for a home library. Very clear, explanatory comments are given by these men of books, and besides there are given not less than 160 portraits of leading authors. This guide is generously offered free of any charge. Books listed are sold at greatly reduced prices. Address The Ladies' Home Journal, Philadelphia.

GOOD WORDS.

From the Presiding Elder of Knoxville District.

I am trying to do all I can to bring up my part of the 10,000 subscribers. That number is a very small thing for 250,000 members, 82 presiding elders and 1373 pastors. If we come under 15,000 we will fail to impress the world that we are a reading people. Enclosed find cash for six subscribers. Yours faithfully,

OWEN HYPSHER.

Dear Brother—I have started out on my first round. We shall try to make this a great year for the SOUTHWESTERN. Enclosed find cash for subscriber.

Children's Day.

More Testimonials Regarding the Program.

Dear Dr. Payne—I have read your program for next Children's Day. In purpose and execution it is admirable. Its general adoption by the schools of the Church would not only diffuse through them much valuable information respecting the educational work of our Church and lodge in the junior minds of the Church some noble sentiments respecting religious life and character, but would also stimulate the "connectional sympathy" which ought more fully to prevail among us. Whatever will foster and develop this last in all legitimate ways we hail with delight. I trust the program will meet with wide and merited success, and, as it ought, crowd out these cheap programs which often have but little religious value and denominationally, absolutely none. There is great need in many instances of lifting the Children's Day exercises to a much higher plane intellectually and religiously than they occupy in order to their greater usefulness to the Church and the young people. We believe your program well mastered and rendered would aid very materially in this respect. We trust the pastor will give it "the right of way" all over the land. GEO. VAN ALSTYNE.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

FROM PRESIDING ELDERS.

Western District—

The conference of the Western District will convene at Wells Springs July 31. Persons coming from the east will get tickets to Forest City, and those from the west to Marion. Take the C. C. C. Railroad to Forest City. We hope to have good reports from all the pastors and officers. Spring is here; push the SOUTHWESTERN into every home, and let us treble the number of subscribers this year. Yours, R. SMITH, P. E.

South New Orleans District—

Brethren—The object of this note is to express to you and our people my hearty approval of Dr. Hartzell's plan to raise the claim of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society in the Louisiana Conference, and recommend that you study same and carry it out on your charges. No group of statesmen pictures in the homes of our people can be complete without that of the late Hon. Frod. Douglass. Dr. Hartzell's offer, therefore, of his picture to every one who may raise and report one dollar for the education of his people is timely and suggestive. From beneath the iron heel of slavery and the incident degredation, Mr. Douglass pushed his way to the mark of honor and distinction in his own country and abroad. In his great character is combined both the best type of Negro manhood and Negro possibilities.

Raise and forward the money and names of those who may have raised one dollar, so that the pictures may be forthcoming, and report results to me at the second quarterly conference. Fraternally yours,

PIERRE LANDRY, P. E.

Eczema, or salt-rheum, yields surely to a persevering use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

—A lady who has one of our premium sewing machines thus writes concerning it: "I wish I could make you understand what a comfort my machine is to me. I was pleased because it looked so nice, but I never thought I could like to sew on it like my old one, but it has never bothered me once, and the old one (a Grover and Baker) was never, when new, as good as this. It (the old one) occupies a place on back porch—is retired for life."

Our News Letter.

North Baltimore District, Washington Conference.

The quarterly conferences are all at a high point of spirituality. The people are in deep sympathy and harmony with the presiding elder, Rev, G. W. W. Jenkins. The Sunday School work is marching on, and the Epworth League work will receive special attention under his administration.

The dear old SOUTHWESTERN is receiving the attention of our presiding elder. He insists upon the preachers and members of the district to take and pay for the paper.

The Epworthians of the district are preparing for the Fourth General Conference District League, which will convene on the 23d of May, in the City of Brotherly Love.

The Preachers' Meeting of Baltimore has been very largely attended since the annual conference, and some very commendable papers read by the ministers.

On Wednesday, April 3, Rev. N. M. Carroll, of Sharp Street M. E. Church, read a paper on The Unity of Our Fellowship, followed by a general experience meeting. The subject was continued for next meeting. J. H. BRICE.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

BISHOP Bowman recently spent a week in New Orleans and made a careful stndy of the New Orleans University, one of the leading schools of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society, and his verdict is: "Taking it all throngh, I think that this is one of the best schools among the colored people of the South."

THERE is a growing fraternal feeling among the white people of the Sonth, for the edncation and chnrch work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in that section. At the late session of the Louisiana Conference, held in Monroe, the leading white citizens vied with each other in giving social attention to Bishop Bowman, Dr. Hartzell, Dr. Adkinson and others. The mayor of the town gave an address of welcome, and the Sonthern Methodist people opened their chnrch for the nse of the conference.

OUR own heart is deeply touched by the sad bereavement of onr esteemed confrere, Rev. Dr. J. H. Potts, of the Michigan Christian Advocate. Words of sympathy have been ponred ont of sorrowing hearts, bnt how inadeqnate to comfort, and heal the lacerated hearts now bleeding from the stroke. Little Arthnr was a lovely child. His stay in this bnsy, bnstling, changing world was brief, bnt full of snnshine. As we read the life story of this precions little one, we feel nearer our beloved brother, and nearer onr heavenly home. The hnman tie is severed, bnt the precions jewel is lifted into higher realms, and into the better company of the redeemed. May the presence of the blessed Comforter, with guiding, sanctifying and snpporting power, so temper this bereavement that there shall come forth out of that saddened home great lessons that will cheer, comfort and inspire others who shall be called upon to pass throngh similar bereavements.

THE GREAT EPWORTH LEAGUE MEETING.

"On to Chattanooga," is now the watchword in all parts of onr Methodism. From the Atlantic to the Rockies, and beyond; from the Lakes to the Gulf, they will come to the great and historic Chattanooga and Lookont Monntain. There will no donbt be a large delegation of onr colored Leagners there. We have an able representative on the progiam—Dr. J. W. E. Bowen, of Gammon Theological Seminary. This appointment meets with onr nnqualified endorsement. It will be a wonderfnl inspira tion to our people to witness this gathering of the yonng and progressive members of the two great Methodisms. Remember, the talk will be of the fntnre of Methodism. We are of the opinion that it will be the greatest, most fraternal and most beneficial meeting of the centnry. As far as possible, onr chapters shonld be represented by their most progressive members. Let ns be there, and get a fresh baptism of the Holy Ghost, and an inspiration for the great work of spreading Scriptnre holiness through these lands.

—Rev. L. G. Adkinson, D. D., President of New Orleans University, will preach the baccalaureate sermon at Winsted Academy, Baldwin, La., on Snnday, Jnne 2. The Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN will deliver the commencement address on Tnesday, Jnne 4.

—Wiley Memorial M. E. Church, Chattanooga, Tenn., is in the midst of a glorious revival. Thirteen souls have been converted, and still the good work goes on. Rev. Geo. W. Ziegler is the able and efficient pastor.

AN IMPORTANT QUESTION.

We have received the following note:

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 8, 1895.

Rev. E. W. S. Hammond.

Dear Editor—I see in your paper that a National Epworth League is to convene in Chattanooga, Tenn., June 27, 1895. Is it to be held for whites, or for both white and colored? Please answer and oblige myself and others. W. T. MARLEY.

We are of the impression that those nearest to the place where the great meeting is to be held, wonld be thoroughly posted as to the time of meeting, spirit, objects, etc. But we cheerfully enlighten our brethren according to the best information that we have obtained.

First—The meeting will be called the Second International Epworth League Conference. It will be held at Chattanooga, Tenn., June 27–30, 1895. The conference will be composed of delegates and other persons represeuting all the Epworth Leagues of the United States and Canada. We have not heard it suggested or insinuated that the presence of colored people would be distasteful. On the other hand, we have reasons to believe from the tone and spirit of the organization that the meeting will be conducted on the broadest and most liberal Christian platform. There may and will be some discomforts to the colored delegates in traveling over the various railroads to and from the conference, in consequence of the odions laws which permit and encourage discrimination between colored and white passengers, but the conference is in no way responsible for this, nor will it, in onr judgment, attempt by any act, or temper, or spirit, or ntterance to increase the already grievons bnrdens upon its colored delegates. We should be glad to see a large delegation of onr brethren there, believing that this touch with the earnest and consecrated workers of the Christian Chnrches will prove of inestimable value to the millions of our people.

IN DARKER NEW ORLEANS.

There are some signs of an awakened conscience among the good people of New Orleans. We hardly know whether our rejoicing is prematnre or not. There are so many changes and cnrions happenings hereabouts, that we are compelled to modify onr emotions according to the ever changing circumstances. We ventnre to rejoice in this additional indication of virtue on the part of our good citizens, in secnring the snppression of that most gigantic nuisance, prize fighting, known morc recently as "glove contest," bnt in reality a brutal exhibition of brutal instincts. Henceforth, we are told, there will be no more of snch contests in onr bnmridden and hoodlum-ruled city. There are also indications of a determined disposition to suppress the low dives and saloons with theatrical attachments. Decisions of the Supreme Conrt, in the cases of the city against glove contests and Schoenhansen case, give the friends of good city government hope. The persistency with which the lottery business is carried on, notwithstanding the efforts of the police to snppress it, is evidence of a bad state of pnblic morals. The pool rooms and race track are unmitigated nuisances and are nseful only to attract to this city "tonts," "bnms," "hoodlums," "pickpockets," adventurers and adventnresses, thns adding to the criminal classes. If we add to this the unsavory repntation of onr city government with two or more of onr city officials serving terms in the penitentiary and indictments hanging over the heads of others. There is at least a crumb of comfort, however, in the old and much-qnoted aphorism, "The darkest hour is just before the break of day."

The friends of law and order shonld take courage and make common cause against the common enemy. If some of the newspapers, which are directing much of their time in attempting to prove the "utter worthlessness of the Negro," would bring their splendid energies into an alliance with the better elements of society for the snpremacy of good government, it would go far toward bringing in a better era. It is not politics that we need for the redemption of our city—we have more of that the square inch than can probably be found in any city on the continent. It is not arrogant ecclesiastical intermeddling with secular affairs—even that has become obnoxious. It is morals that we need; morals in high places; morals everywhere, as the only true solvent of the problem which now confronts every citizen.

THE daily press of the past few days has revealed an astonishing amount of human depravity. What makes it yet more astounding is the fact that the chief participants represent the higher and better phases of our civilization. The old fallacy has been going the rounds in this section, that the Negro alone is low, debased, brutal, and not susceptible to higher and better impulses; that he plans and executes the most diabolical crimes upon the record. What will those firm believers in the total depravity of the Negro say, when they compare his conduct with that of his more highly favored white fellow citizen? When white people, backed by distinguished family and high social relations, with all the safeguards of wealth and culture, not only deliberately plan, bnt execute the most revolting crimes against society; the inference is plain. Human natnre is totally depraved. Men commit sin because they are sinful. Nor do they necessarily refrain from the commission of crime, because they are educated, or occnpy high social positions, or because they belong to the Caucasian or Anglo-Saxon race. The pollution of sin is general, and its influences are to be shunned by all. Moreover, there is an obligation as sacred as life itself which every individual owes to God and to the commnnity, to stand for the highest moral excellence in conversation, in conduct, and in character. He is responsible to God and to his fellowmen to exert an influence that will be at once helpful and safe. Men and women of high life, of sporting proclivities, devotees to pleasnre, etc., are peculiarly exposed to these sins. Their constant environments, companions, and practices, conducing always toward that weakening of the moral sense which makes it bnt an easy step toward the commission of those sins and crimes, which not only appal the community, bnt bring desolation and sorrow to the hearts of parents and children. Sabbath desecration, pernicious and obscene literature, gaming, and kindred vices, are playing fearfnl havoc not only among the lowly and more vicious classes, bnt among those who, having been favored with wealth and high social standing frequently, are otherwise "weak throngh the flesh," and are drawn into the maw of cruel and relentless pleasnre. We say without hesitation, and without fear of successfnl contradiction, that nothing bnt the refining, pnrifying and restraining influences of divine grace can save men. For they only are safe whose minds are stayed on God.

Our Own Church.

A. BROWN, Goliad, Texas.

I doubt very much whether there would have been the degree of good accomplished as has been throughout the land in the advancement of the Redeemer's kingdom, had there not been different Protestant denominations, each working in their own way. The Episcopalians, the Baptists, in fact all denominations, will ever retain their distinctive peculiarities. Methodist people have as much right to retain this as other people, and will do so. The word union has been greatly misrepresented by people inside and outside the pales of our Church. The Methodists believe in brotherly love, fraternity, union in thought and sympathy, but cannot and will not substitute the principles and doctrines of our beloved Church to that of others or the union of our organization with other churches. I do not think it wise nor expedient to unite with other churches in localities where our Church membership is in the minority. We cannot represent our [illegible] by so [illegible] anything, it means to blend into one compact body from premises to conclusion.

Bishop Simpson, one of our distinguished fathers of Methodism, has said: "We live to make our own Church a power in the land, while we live to love every other Church that exalts our Christ." Let us see what we can get out of these remarks. Every movement must have a beginning. We cannot produce something from nothing. To make anything, we must apply the correct species that forms the compact genius. A Church is composed of true believers who have been converted, baptized, and have promised to obey and keep the laws of said Church. We ought to love our Church and seek to join believers to her faith. Not that we do not love other Churches, but because we love our's more. Build up our own Church, and love other Churches who are trying to build up their's in the holy faith. I shall never agitate the old hackneyed theory, "Just so you get religion is all I care for." Why not tell them that you want them to join your Church, as you have been the instrument of their conversion. If they join other Churches are they helping to "make our Church a power in the land?" Nay verily. If members do not find peace and contentment in our Church, they have free leave to go where it is more congenial to their temporal and spiritual constitution; for our Church certainly is not a prison house. Study her history and be convinced of her plan in saving a lost world. Our members should be more conversant with Methodist history. Who can bound her properly? There is no speech or language where her voice is not heard. We have built a tabernacle that the sun never sets upon. Bishop Harris once said: "Our Church is bounded on the east by the rising sun, on the west by the setting sun, on the north by aurora borealis (northern light), on the south by the judgment day." You may call this imaginary, but the King of kings said: "They shall come from the east, from the west, from the north, from the south, and shall sit down in the Kingdom." Only they can sit down who have been redeemed; they can be redeemed only through hearing of the Word and faith in His name. Our Church is doing her portion in the four quarters of the globe to hasten on the millennium. Peace within her walls and prosperity in all her palaces. Work for the Church. It is our Church, your Church, yea, it is mine!

"The Delegates to the General Conference."

The time for selecting the subjects, of my writing, rapidly approaches. Candidates are plentiful—"For many be called, but FEW chosen." "They which run in a race run all, but TWO receiveth the prize." Like the ambitious Apostles who sought position in the Kingdom of Christ, each candidate regards his claim for support equal or superior to others. But let us see what is the TRUE ground upon which any and all men's claim rests.

What motive should govern the Church in supporting persons for this important work? It should not be: Personal friendship, kinship, conference relationship or conference positions, favors already received or expected, nor the number of times the person has served in said position. I repeat, neither of these, nor all combined, should govern any brother in making his choice.

The proper and right motive is found in the Word of God—taught plainly by the Great Teacher of humanity, and beautifully exemplified in his life and death.

It is service! service! service! In Math. 20:20-28, Mark 9:33-35 and 10:43-45, Luke 22:26-27 we find the Apostles contending about this same question. Christ settles it at once and forever—teaching, that he who best can serve should serve. That a man's usefulness and ability to serve, determines his place. The Son of God is King of kings, Lord of lords and the great Interceder of humanity, because of His superior usefulness and service.

The question is pre-eminently a question as to who can best serve the Church. Governments are corrupt because officials are corrupt, and officials are corrupt because impure motives actuated both the supported and supporters. If Peter, James and John held peculiar places among the Apostles, it was on account of their peculiar fitness. This idea of service is seen throughout the Scriptures in all divine appointments.

The same motive that should control the Church in selecting representatives, should actuate the aspirant in seeking (if he will seek) or accepting the place. Position, merely; sight-seeing, travel, pleasure, curiosity and to be a witness of conference proceedings, should be no thought of the candidate. He should rest his claim upon his service—be anxious to serve the Church, and not for the Church to serve him. Fraternally, WM. MCMORRIS,

The Colored Ministry of the M. E. Church.

By R. E. GILLUM, P. E., Central Missouri Conference.

The race problem, or Negro question, has been discussed pro and con so much, and there has been such manifest ignorance and sophistry at times, until honest and intelligent persons can only be induced to approach the subject reluctantly from a sense of duty. The reason for introducing this paper under the above caption is, because in the writer's opinion the responsibility of a satisfactory solution of the vexed problem rests upon the colored ministry of this Church as it does upon no other class of individuals. The relation they sustain to the two races—the superior opportunity afforded them by reason of their connection with the M. E. Church, justifies the belief that they are peculiarly responsible for the outcome. It will not be disputed by any one who is conversant with the facts, and whose reason is not vitiated with prejudice that: the institutions so wisely located and so liberally supported by the Church has given colored people advantages for mental development they could never hope for otherwise.

More than that: Other denominations have read their own duty through the work of the M. E. Church for the colored people, until they are beginning to catch the significances of the Master's words when he said: "Go thou and do likewise." Who will say that the association of the colored men of the Church with their white brethren, who, under more congenial skies than it was ever their privilege to sail, has given them a better ideal of moral character, and has created aspirations they could never have had, if they had been isolated in purely Negro churches? Whatever just pride our purely colored churches may feel for having sustained their organizations and their accumulation of property, and whatever praise they may be entitled to for the good they have done the race, the serious fact remains: If the ministry of the M. E. Church had been deluded by sophistical appeals to their ambition and prejudice, or intimidated by the calumny heaped upon them by a heard of selfish colored men on one side, who received every encouragement from all classes of white people who were opposed to the progress of the [illegible] depict the deplorable condition in which we would find ourselves in to-day?

It must be apparent to any person of ordinary discernment, that the chasm between the races, if not deepening and broadening, is becoming more permanent. Eternity alone can reveal how much those race churches have contributed to bring about this state of affairs. We may apologize for this state of things, but the stubborn fact remains—that if we cannot worship God together and counsel together for the conquest of the world for the Master, it will be hard to harmonize our clamor against political parties, State legislations and railroad corporations on account of race proscriptions, unless our religion is the meanest institution we belong to.

The Methodist Episcopal Church has been consistent in theory at least, and her colored ministry, as leaders of a large constituency of the colored people, has been an effectual barrier against every assault of race prejudice and thereby preserved one ray of hope for a proper and religious solution of the race problem.

AYER'S PILLS

"I would like to add my testimony to that of others who have used Ayer's Pills, and to say that I have taken them for many years, and always derived the best results from their use. For stomach and liver troubles, and for the cure of headache caused by these derangements, Ayer's Pills cannot be equaled.

When my friends ask me what is the best remedy for disorders of the stomach, liver, or bowels, my invariable answer is, Ayer's Pills. Taken in season, they will break up a cold, prevent la grippe, check fever, and regulate the digestive organs. They are easy to take, and are, indeed, the best all-round family medicine I have ever known."—Mrs. MAY JOHNSON, 368 Rider Avenue, New York City.

OUR : WOMEN'S : ROUND : TABLE

The Influence of the Home in the Uplifting of our People.

SIXTEENTH LETTER—BY T. E. W.

Wanted, A Woman.

The great need at this present day is more true, honest, energetic women. For it is upon these that we are depending solely in order to become a great nation. Women who can see their own faults as well as another's; women who will stand for truth; women who are brave, yet fear God; women who are ever ready to do their duty. Thus we find that it is Christian women we need. Women that can step out on the promises of our blessed Savior and bring others to the fold. Some one has said, "Thousands of men breathe, move and live; pass off the stage of life, and are heard of no more." This is also true of women. And, in my estimation, this is due to lack of ambition. They are perfectly satisfied with things just as they are. Why not live for something? Do good, that your name may live forever.

A lady in Hong Kong engaged a Chinese cook. When the Celestial came, among other things she asked him his name.

"My name," said the Chinaman, smiling, "is Wang Hang Ho."

"Oh, I can't remember all that," said the lady, "I will call you John."

Next morning when John came up to get his orders he smiled all over, and looking inquiringly at his mistress, asked:

"What is your name?"

"My name is Mrs. Melville Langdon."

"Me no mombie all that," said John. "Chinaman he no sayey Mrs. Membul Landon—I call you Tommy."—Boston Globe.

Women's Home Missionary Society.

The semi-annual meeting of the General Executive Board of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, held at the Book Concern, Cincinnati, O., April 26, 27 and 29, was one of unusual interest. There were present: Mrs. Clinton B. Fisk, Mmes. W. G. Williams, H. C. McCabe, J. W. Mendenhall, Anna Kent, W. L. Boswell, E. L. Albright, H. M. Teller, J. P. Negus, W. A. Ingham, M. C. Hickman, Angie F. Newman, and L. H. Runyan.

Among the visitors introduced were: Mr. O. J. Wilson, Rev. Drs. Ambrose, Buxton; Cranston, Conger, Gullette, Pierson, Rawlins, Royal and Rust, of Cincinnati; Peck, of Denver, Col., and Ames, of Washington, D. C.

The treasurer, Mrs. Mendenhall, submitted a report, exhibiting receipts for the quarter, including balance $117 63, as $23,646 26; disbursements, $20,624 80; amount in treasury, $3,021 46. Mrs. W. M. Ampt reported the distribution of 3,981 mite boxes. Mrs. J. P. Negus, of Iowa, spoke effectively of the practicability of mite boxes to increase the funds of the Society. Mrs. W. A. Ingham, of Cleveland, O., was welcomed to her seat in the Board as secretary of the Bureau for Young People's Work.

The secretary of the Bureau for Home Missionary Reading Circle, Mrs. J. L. Trisler, reported that over 800 books had been read during the quarter by an actual membership of 276. Mrs. L. P. Williams, secretary of the Bureau for Orientals, forwarded a report in the interest of the work for the Chinese and Japanese in San Francisco. Mrs. G. N. Mansfield, of the Bureau of Immigrant Homes in Boston, New York and Philadelphia, reported progress. Her resignation as secretary was accepted with regret. Mrs. William E Dwight, of Melrose, Mass., was elected her successor.

Rev. A. H. Ames, D. D., superintendent of the National Training School at Washington, D. C., spoke of the excellent character of the students of this institution. The Southern fields of work were represented by their respective secretaries. Mrs. M. C. Hickman, secretary for the Bureau for Texas, spoke of King Home at Marshall, Texas. Mrs. Albright gave a most interesting account of her recent tour of inspection of the homes in the Bureau for East Central States.

The New Jersey Home, Morristown, Tenn.; the Homes in Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana; the E. L. Rust Home, Holly Springs; the Adeline Smith Home, Little Rock, and the Peck Home, New Orleans, were represented as prosperous. Mrs. H. M. Teller, Washington, D. C., represented the needs of the work in Alaska, and advocated for Mrs. Boiler, the absent Bureau secretary, the building of an addition—two and one-half stories, 72 feet front by 36 feet front—to the Jesse Lee Home at Unalaska, or the abandonment of the work at this point. Grateful recognition was taken of the kind offer of Mr. J. Stanley Brown, superintendent of the American Commercial Company, to give free transportation to all boxes of clothing sent to this Home, and to Captain Shumaker, of the United States Marine Service, to give free transportation to all supplies for the Home, if at hand when the revenue cutters sail. Mrs. E. W. Simpson, secretary of the Bureau for New Mexico and Arizona (Indian), wrote hopefully of the work in her department. Our missionary and field matron at the Navajo Mission have had their hands and hearts full the last winter, but are working on hopefully. The Bureau for Supplies, which had done such grand work during the year, reported, through its secretary, Mrs. James Dale, fifty cases of need in the South.

A special committee was appointed to examine the condition of our work at all points where it is in touch with the domestic missions of the Parent Board, to prepare a statement of this work, and secure proper recognition of it in the next annual report of the General Missionary Society.

Mrs. N. C. Alger, Bourne, Mass., recommended by letter the creation of a fund, to be known as the Alger Loan Fund, to be used by the Society without interest, and promised to contribute thereto each year what she could.

Beautiful Christian greetings were received from Mrs. Bishop Morris, and an expression of sympathy and love was directed to be sent her and Mrs. I. D. Jones, whose illness and absence from the meeting was universally regretted.

The Society recognized with sorrow in the death of the Rev. H. B. Ridgeway, D. D., Evanston, Ill., who was one of the earliest and most faithful promoters of its interests; and tenderest sympathy was extended to Mrs. Ridgeway in her severe bereavement.

Information of the death of our fellow-worker, Mrs. Daniel Dorchester, Boston, Mass., called forth expressions of sorrow at our loss of her valuable services; and earnest sympathy with Dr. Dorchester and family in their sad bereavement.

The early departure of Bishop and Mrs. Walden for Asia was the occasion of tender expressions of love and appreciation of our faithful associate in labor, Mrs. Walden, who was given a God-speed, with the prayers of the Board.

School and College.

From the New York Independent.

The last report of the United States Commissioner of Education, just issued, for the year 1892, gives some interesting tables with regard to the education of colored people in the sixteen Southern States and the District of Columbia. The tables show that in those States the estimated number of persons between the ages of 5 and 18 years is 7,013,656, of whom 5,322,805 are whites and 2,490,851 blacks, the proportion being about two whites to one black. There are only three States in which the blacks outnumber the whites, namely, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina. In Alabama and Georgia the two races are very nearly equally balanced. Of the white persons, from 5 to 18 years of age, it appears that 66.87 per cent are enrolled in the public schools, and of the blacks 52.21. In Kentucky and the District of Columbia, the percentage of blacks enrolled exceeds that of the whites. The percentages in Kentucky are respectively 61.97 and 62.86, and in the District of Columbia 69.51 and 62.34. In the average daily attendance, the colored children have the advantage in Alabama and Tennessee, where their percentages are considerably higher than those of the whites—that is, the percentage of those enrolled who are in daily attendance. The average percentage of fourteen States and the District of Columbia is 63.77 for the whites and 60.09 for the colored—in other words, while a smaller percentage of colored children are enrolled than white, there being a difference of about 14 per cent in favor of the whites, the percentage of the enrolled in the column of average daily attendance is very little to the advantage of the whites, being 63.77 against 60.09. The length of the school year in most cases is practically the same. It is a little shorter for the colored schools in Alabama and Louisiana, Maryland, North Carolina and Texas than for the white schools, and considerably shorter in Delaware. In the District of Columbia, in Kentucky and Virginia it is the same for schools of both races. It is in the number of teachers that the white schools have the great advantage over the colored schools. Even Mississippi and South Carolina, where the enrollment of colored children is considerably larger than that of the white, the number of teachers in the colored schools is much less. In South Carolina the white schools have 2611, while the colored schools have only 1787; in Mississippi there are 4634 teachers for white pupils and only 3288 for the colored, and for all the States, including the District of Columbia, the white schools have 83,325, and the colored schools only 24,741. It appears that in normal schools there are 8042 colored students, besides 16,237 in other institutions for secondary instruction, and 8116 in universities and colleges. Besides these there are in schools of theology 577, schools of law 119, schools of medicine 456, schools for deaf, dumb and blind 581, making a total enrollment of 34,129. The Commissioner of Education says:

"There is a wonderful contrast in the character of the schools established for colored children. Many of the schools, especially those in the remote rural regions, are as defective as one could imagine a school to be; but, on the other hand, most of those established by the missionary societies are better managed and have a better class of teachers. These teachers have generally been educated in the best Northern schools, and coming, as they do, from different States, they combine the best methods of different schools. Frequently, too, they have undertaken the work from philanthropic motives and are filled with aspirations not only to elevate the intellectual capacity of their pupils, but to implant in them high and ennobling principles, and by means of this training given at school to elevate the entire race."

Speaking of schools conducted by colored instructors, the Commissioner mentions Allen University, Biddle University, and Tuskegee Normal and Industrial School as examples of successful institutions. A table of institutions for the colored race shows that the value of the grounds and buildings is $3,054,433, and that the amount of permanent productive funds is $757,446. Referring to the fact that the work of the colored universities and colleges is at present to a large extent below the grade of a university, the commissioner says they are simply laying the foundation of their future work.

"The number of highly educated colored ministers, lawyers, doctors and educators is small indeed, as yet, and they are scattered over a wide expanse of territory; but each year sees the number increasing, for the very rarity of a highly educated colored man is best known by his own race, and hence, when they see one of their number possessing talents so cultivated as to command the admiration of all, or when one of them is able to secure a position of high honor and distinction, it is observed by none more quickly than by the colored people themselves. One colored man in the House of Representatives of the United States Congress will excite a thousand hopes and aspirations in the breasts of his admiring friends, and for every one who is thus able to rise to distinction hundreds of others will enter the doors of some university or college resolved that if they shall not be able to reach the acme of their ambition they will at least attain to the highest point their opportunities and diligence will permit them."

THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE AND THE "SOUTHWESTERN."

We take pleasure in answering some pertinent interrogatories concerning the relationship existing between the Louisiana Conference and the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. It is perfectly right, as well as reasonable, for the brethren of this conference to be especially interested in the paper, which was first established as a jonrual in the special interests of the conference. Its history is coexteusive with the history of our Methodism in Louisiana, and the brethren generally have manifested a deep interest in it as a local conference official. Bnt when the general conference adopted the SOUTHWESTERN as one of its official organs, the brethren rejoiced, that the child which they had so patiently and loyally fostered, had now become strong, and that being lifted ont of its mere local surroundings, it had become the property of the whole Chnrch, and the official organ of the Church in the great Sonthland. It is perfectly in keeping with that spirit that the Lonisiana Conference passed the following resolutions at its recent session at Monroe, La. They will explain themselves:

Wo are heartily in accord with the plan of the great Methodist Episcopal Church in the solection of the very best literature for the use of our people. We are the friends, and appreciato the value of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE as the official organ of your conference and in hearty sympathy with the editor, the Rev. E. W. S. Hammond, D. D., in his efforts to make the paper a success. Therefore,

Resolved, That we will see to it, that none but Methodist literature shall be used in our Sunday schools, and in our churches.

Resolved, That as the best evidence of our appreciation of the SOUTHWESTERN and its able editor, we will nevor cease canvassing for it until we shall have put it into every home in our respective charges.

Resolved, That we request our pastors and presiding elders not to license or renew the license of exhorters and local preachers that do not take and pay for the SOUTHWESTERN.

Resolved, That it is the sense of this conference that the paper be restored to its original size.

FRANK HARVEY, Chairman.

J. D. POOL, Secretary.

This resolution was adopted unanimously, after eloquent and ringing speeches in favor of it by Dr. J. C. Hartzell, corresponding secretary of the Freedmeu's Aid and Southern Education Society; Dr. A. E. P. Albert, secretary of the conference and presiding elder of the North New Orleans District, and Rev. Julian F. Marshall, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District. The sentiment of the conference was in perfect accord with the policy of the paper throughout, as the resolutions will show. At a subseqnent meeting of the presiding elders of the conference held in the office of the SOUTHWESTERN, a resolution was passed authorizing Dr. A. E. P. Albert and Rev. Pierre Landry to prepare an address to the ministry and membership ot the conference, nrging them to increase their efforts to put the SOUTHWESTERN into every Methodist home within the boundaries of the conference.

We believe the resolutions, with accompanying addresses, were in good faith. Already arrangements are being made by several of the pastors in the city of New Orleans and elsewhere to hold special meetings in the interest of the paper, or to set apart a Sabbath or other special day as SOUTHWESTERN Day.

We are pleased to recognize honest, earnest efforts on the part of several of our city pastors to work as they voted, and we will be very greatly surprised if our city subscription list does not from henceforth show a very gratifyiug increase. We are depending on the pastors of Wesley, Union Chapel, First Street, Monnt Zion, Simpson, Williams' Chapel, Mallalien, Thompson, Haven, Camp Parapet, Pleasant Plains, St. Matthew's, Scott Chinn, Gretna, Cushman and Malden, to carry the city subscription list up to at least eight hundred during this year. The presiding elders of the North and South New Orleans Districts have personally assnred us of their increasing interest in our work, and have promised to give to it their personal and earnest co-operation.

Our presiding elders and pastors outside of the city are fully awake to the importauee of the work necessary to be done. A glaiee at our publishers colnmn from week to week will show that the canvass is already being pushed with increasing vigor by them. We believe it is possible for these faithful brethren in the circuits and stations ontside of the Crescent City to surpass their record by at least twelve hnndred snbscribers.

The resolutions have the right ring, and we believe in the men of the Louisiana Conference. We believe also that the SOUTHWESTERN will prove of inestimable value not only as the pastors' assistant, but as an inspiration to the homes and firesides of the people which these pastors represent. We can safely promise that the paper, during the ensning year, will be very greatly improved in all departments, and in every way worthy of the patronage which it seeks.

Once more we say to the Louisiana Conference, "Stand by the resolutions," and you will assnredly stand by onr glorious Methodism.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

The efforts of the legislators of the sovercign State (?) of South Carolina, have been peremptorily challenged by the decision of Jndge Nathan Goff, U. S. Circuit Judge for the District of South Carolina, who declares the infamons registration law nnconstitntional. Onr readers are doubtless familiar with the history of the famous case. A high-handed attempt has been made to disfranchise the colored voters of that State by the enaetment of the most extraordinary system of registration probably ever known in this repnblic. The Governor of the State, with others of like political faith, proposed to hold a convention to revise the constitution of the State, and in order to complete the political disfranchisement of the Negro, secured the passage of a registration law by the Legislatnre, which practically disfranchised every Negro in the State. With rare malice, conpled with the characteristic ingennity of Negrophobists, the laws were so hedged and guarded that the colored people had actually no redress in the civil conrts of the State. Fortunately, the constitution adopted by the voters of the State of Sonth Carolina, gave some hope that this high-handed outrage would at least be checked. It was yet more fortnnate that the constitution of the United States had not been revised to snit these miserable suffrage robbers. To these established constitutional guarantees, the colored people appealed for an order to restrain the snpervisor of registration from perpetrating the last act in the rape of the ballot.

Jndge Nathan Goff, after an elaborate review of the case, granted the prayer of the complainants and declared the registration law unconstitutional. It is particularly fortunate that the colored people of South Carolina were permitted to bring their case before a judge who was not blinded by the abominable prejndice against color. The following, from the decision, will reveal to some extent the trne manliness and hnmane instincts of the learned judge:

"With what crnshing force then must it strike the weaker race, which is thus made to snffer by the stronger. How difficult for them to thns write ont the books of their lives and have all the pages thereof attested by two witnesses, reputable in the estimation of the registrar, who is to judge them. In my opinion the fact that there still remains several days prior to the election does not in the light of the allegations of the bill, the proofs tendered and admissions made, prevent the orator from asking for nor the conrt from granting the relief prayed for. I was asked in case any portion of the registration laws should be fonnd invalid to eliminate the part so fonnd and decree that the remaining section should stand. I have not been able to make the separation, for I fonnd it all so interwoven as to render it impracticable so far as resnlts are concerned, and I cannot winnow when there is no grain. In behalf of those so treated, all interested in the welfare of the country and desirous of seeing its laws enforced, should protest, in order that public sentiment should no longer be dormant, bnt may by its activity rouse the community thet has long snffered by such outrages to a realization of their cause, and to an appreciation of the beneficial results to be secured by the abolishment of the system that has caused them. If we may jndge of what the intention of the Legislature was by the inevitable result of its enactment, as we are assured we can (Soonhing vs. Crowley, 113 U. S., 703; Minnesota vs. Barber, 136 U. S., 313), then the object that controlled the minds of those who formulated the enactment I have been considering was how best to abridge and destroy the greatest number of votes of the citizens of African descent, while at the same time interfering with as few as possible of the votes of the white race. The fact is that, with a candor that was as frank as it was amazing, this was virtually admitted during the argnment of this case. It is evident that the effect of this registration system is to fearfully impede the exercise of the right of snffrage by the colored voters of the State of South Carolina. It, to a great extent, defeats their constitutional right to vote, and it seems to be leading, I must be permitted to say, its only object, the effort being to so legislate as to apparently respect constitntional reqnirements, bnt at the same time stab to the death the rights and immnnities gnaranteed by them."

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Rev. S. M. Hickman, D. D., and wife, from Cleveland, Ohio, were in this office on 7th inst. They were making a short visit to onr city.

—Rev. Wm. Brnsh, D. D., is dead. He was a prominent member of several general conferences, and a highly usefnl pioneer Methodist preacher. He was buried at Fayette, Iowa, on the 3d instant.

—H. S. Harvey, of Bowerton, Miss., writes: "I am glad to say that among the many homes that the dear SOUTHWESTERN finds its way to every week, mine is in that number. Onr pastor, I. C. Rncker, has launched on his third year with ns. We have a grand Snnday school, one worthy of praise. Our superintendent, J. H. Colman, is doing good work."

—A. J. McAllister, Baird, Miss., writes: "Onr first quarterly conference was held with Rev. Jno. W. Davis, onr efficieut presiding elder, in the chair. The officers presented written reports, showing progress along all lines of church work. The elder preached two glorious sermons which made our hearts glad, and spoke of the need of the SOUTHWESTERN being placed in every home. Look for more snbscribers from this charge in the near future. We are spiritnally alive."

—Brother J. W. Jarmon, of LaGrange, Tex., writes: "Presiding Elder B. F. Smith paid ns a visit and held our second quarterly couference. All reports were encouraging. Our pastor's report showed an increase of three, one certificate and two reclaimers. On Sunday the presiding elder preached two helpfnl sermons Onr Epworth Leagne, nnder the management of Mrs. F. L. Lavender, we hope to be a power in the fnture. The church is moving upon all lines. Onr pastor watches every interest of the church. He is loved by all."

—Brother G. W. Nevils, Columbns Circnit, Texas, writes: "My second qnarterly conference was held, with Elder B. F. Smith in the chair. Total collection, $85.85. The elder preached acceptably. Three children were baptized. The circuit is in line. We are now in the midst of a revival, and the old SOUTHWESTERN is being looked after—four snbscribers this qnarter. Brother Martin Kyle was summoned to the skies April 1. He was an old preacher and died in peace."

—"The members and friends of my church have a new way of surprising their pastor. On April 7, abont 10 a. m., the express wagon drove to the parsonage gate with a variety of groceries, with the compliments of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Brown, Mrs. M. J. Wilson, L. P. Jackson, I. A. Henderson, H. Wilson, P. B. Simkins, T. H. Monson, F. Lewis, J. Williams, M. W. Jackson, Rev. C. H. Shelton, C. Miens, O. S. Simkins, and Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Johnson. We are preparing to build a new church, which is needed very much at Mansfield." So says J. O. Brown, of Mansfield, La.

—Brother G. Orange, of Ackerman, Miss., writes: "The first quarterly conference on the Louisville Circuit was a success. The presiding elder, P. O. Jamison, was with ns on time. Reports were encouraging and showed progress. Our collection during the quarter was $21.80. My pledge to you for snbscribers this year is twenty-five. I mean to put the good old SOUTHWESTERN in twenty-five new homes. I have a SOUTHWESTERN Day set apart to take subscribers, and so you can look for my pledge to be carried out. The paper is a light in darkness and it must shine throughout our circuit." Remember, brother, you are on record.—ED.

Feeble and delicate constitutions gain great benefit by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Epworth Leaguers.

The International Convention meets June 27th, at Chattanooga, Tenn. The greatest meeting of this kind ever attempted. Don't fail to attend.

The Queen and Crescent Route makes a half-rate fare for the occasion, with long limits for return. The trip over this scenic and historic route is an added inducement to attend. Write to us for official announcement and full and detailed information. W. C. Rinearson, G.P.A., Cincinnati

NEW ORLEANS AND VICINITY.

The Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN will preach to the Young Men's Association at Pleasant Plains M. E. Church Sunday, May 19, at 11 a. m.; at Malden Chapel at 3 p. m., and at First Street at 8 p. m.

The annual displays of unnecessary and expensive paraphernalia has begun. Our city pastors have a splendid opportunity now to imitate the great Apostle Paul on Mars Hill. Will they do it? Will they stand as a unit against the altars erected to the unknown god, or will they join gladly in the useless display?

First Street Church, under the pastoral care of Rev. W. R. Butler, is unusually alive in these times. The new church is going forward rapidly, and there is a splendid spirit among the people. Services last Sunday morning were helpful, and the singing was especially inspiring. Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN preached.

Pleasant Plains, Rev. D. G. Butler pastor, is in the forefront in spiritual work. The revival, just closed, resulted in the conversion of 51 souls. The company rally netted $81 38. Last Sunday was a high day there. Revs. T. J. Johnson, G. E. Taylor, H. C. Green, E. Fields, Leik, Stevenson and others were present. Prof. W. Nickeson presided at the organ.

At Union Chapel there are signs of increasing interest in financial as well as spiritual matters. Rev. A. J. Ford is getting church matters in good shape, and the outlook is promising. The Editor preached in this church last Sunday night and was glad to notice the evidences of improvement. The attendance was large and the services were, we trust, profitable.

Special Notice.

There will be a meeting of the Alumni of New Orleans University on Friday, May 17, 4 p. m., in the University Chapel. The Alumni Sermon will be preached at Simpson Chapel, Valence street, on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, May 26.

PLENTY OF PROGRAMS

FOR CHILDREN'S DAY,

Ready for mailing at this office.

Important to Ministers.

A gentleman has paid for one hundred copies of Bishop Warren's book, "The Bible in the World's Education," one copy of which will be sent to those ministers of our Church whose name appears in the General Minutes for 1894, and who shall send one dime to pay postage. The applicant must, however, certify that his salary, besides house rent, does not exceed $500 a year. The books will be sent by mail in the order of application after the publication of this paper. Address Hunt & Eaton, 150 Fifth avenue, New York.

—Since Mr. S. F. B. Morse assumed the management of the Southern Pacific passenger business, marked improvements have been noticed in many ways. A system of advertising has been adopted and put in charge of Mr. Ingraham, an expert in the science, who is constantly engaged in getting new ideas and interesting matter. We expect this splendid road will ere long become one of the best known in the country.

—Paul T. Wayne, the talented New Orleans composer, is also publishing music. He has sent us four fine new pieces as follows: "White Violets," waltz, by Marie Louise Percy,—50 cents; "Home Institute," polka, by A. Hartman,—50 cents; "Silliman Institute," waltz, by Laurent Comes,—75 cents; "F. A. Daniels," a two-step waltz, by Comes,—40 cents. The postmaster's "two-step waltz" is a compliment to his ability in organizing his department into a double quick step movement for the benefit of the citizens of the Crescent City.

The District Conference, Epworth League and Sunday School Convention for Waco District, West Texas Conference, will convene in St. James M. E. Church, Wednesday morning, July 24, at 9 o'clock. All of the members are earnestly requested to be present at the opening.

I hope each pastor will do his best to report all, or as much as possible of his benevolent money raised. Let us do what we can to have full reports.

The Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN is cordially invited and we hope will be present.

The secretary of the last district conference will arrange for the usual reduced rates over the different railroads.

HARRY SWANN.

—Any reader who fails to secure a complete set of those superb Holy Land views, "Earthly Footsteps of the Man of Galilee," will miss (1) the finest collection of pictures that ever came from the East; (2) a magnificent educational exhibit; (3) a great bargain, since the views, if purchased as original photos, would cost at least $1 each. You get 396 of them all at once for $2 50, at this office. Separate parts can also be had for 10 cents a part.

Why Take the Advocate?

Rev. J. H. Creighton, writing in the Western gives seventeen reasons. They are worth pondering;

1. A man is not much of a Methodist who don't take his own paper.

2. He is not much of a Christian that has no taste for religious reading.

3. He is in awkward position, if an official member of the Church, and don't take the Advocate.

4. Every loyal Methodist does read the Advocate, because it is pleasnrable and profitable and very much edifying to all kinds of persons.

5. For the real intrinsic value of the Advocate compared to a secular paper. One is extensively diluted, and the other is concrete, sifted, selected.

6. We all want to know what is going on in the Church; how the great Methodist family is behaving; what advances she is making; what victories; what going forth into the kingdom of darkness.

7. It will not corrupt the children as some papers do, nor estrange them from the Church.

8. In the fifty-two Advocates of a year, much valuable information is conveyed. It will pay.

9. It is cheap, all things considered, and if any profits, they go to the Church.

10. It is a good paper to lend (?) or to borrow.

11. It is setting a bad example for a Christian to take a paper of mixed morals and refuse a firstrate, pure paper.

12. The Advocate makes a better Church member, because as a man readeth his newspaper, so is he.

13. The Advocate gives the political news without the mnd.

14. It gives home and foreign news, multum in parvo.

A LUNG GYMNASIUM.

The Rev. J. T. Wilhide, a Methodist minister, has invented a new breathing tube, which he calls the EXHALER, which is in reality a Lung Gymnasium, as the use of it will widen and strengthen every one of the six million air cells in the lungs, whether diminished by tubercle or not, increase their activity and strengthen the elasticity of their tissue, making consumption almost impossible. It is equal to the very best elocutionary exercise to strengthen the throat and vocal organs, deepen and enrich the voice and increase its power. It introduces 2 to 4 times more air into the lungs, consuming a large quantity of oxygen, and so purifies the blood, increases the circulation, relieves congestions and many morbid conditions of the system. The price is only $1 50 by mail, postpaid. An illustrated descriptive circular will be sent on application. E. H. MORSE, 631 Poydras St., New Orleans.

LESSON HYMN. 7.

Never further than Thy cross;
Never higher than Thy feet;
Here earth's precious things seem dross;
Here earth's bitter things grow sweet.

Gazing thus our sin we see,
Learn thy love while gazing thus;
Sin, which laid the cross on thee,
Love, which bore the cross for us.

Here we learn to serve and give,
And, rejoicing, self deny;
Here we gather love to live,
Here we gather faith to die.

Time.—From about 5 to about 7 o'clock of the morning of Friday, April 7, A. D. 30.

Place.—Pilate "sat down in the judgment seat in a place that is called the Pavement, but in the Hebrew, Gabbatha" (John 19. 13), which seat was on the site of the "throne" where Solomon sat when he judged the people. See 1 Kings 7. 7, 8, and Psalm 122. 5.

Rulers.—Pontius Pilate, procurator of Judea; Herod Antipas, tetrarch of Galilee and Peres.

A synopsis of the leading events of the passover morning, with the approximate hours. One a. m., the agony and betrayal; conveyance to the high priest's house. Two a. m., the preliminary examination before Annas in the presence of Caiaphas and the Sanhedrin at an irregular meeting. Five a. m., the formal sentence of the Sanhedrin in their proper place of meeting, and the first examination before Pilate at the palace. Half-past five a. m., the examination before Herod, the scourging, and first mockery by the soldiers at the palace. Half-past six a. m., the sentence of Pilate. Seven a. m., the second mockery. Nine a. m., the crucifixion. Twelve (noon), the darkness. Three p. m., the end.

Parallel Passages.—Matt. 27. 11-26; Luke 23. 1-25; John 18. 28-40.

Jesus Before Pilate.

(Mark 15. 1-15.)

Written for the Southwestern.

By Rev. G. N. Jolly, Kentucky Conference

GOLDEN TEXT.—"But Jesus yet answered nothing; so that Pilate marveled." (Mark 15. 5.)

The Sanhedrin condemned Jesus on the charge of blasphemy. He was then blindfolded, spat upon, struck with the hands, and asked to tell who smote Him. Think what the blessed Christ has endured for us. Early in the morning the whole council decided to bind Him and send Him to Pilate. There was a Roman law that prevented them from putting Him to death. The object of this meeting of the council was to decide what charge they would bring against Him when they took Him before Pilate. Men may become as zealous in executing the wrong as in pushing forward the right.

Pontius Pilate was a Roman knight. Through the influence of Sejanus he had been appointed procurator, or collector of the revenue, of Judea. His government of that land was very unhappy. He disliked the Jews, and they hated him. He did many things to aggravate them. They would not tolerate his conduct. There were between them bitter disputes and fierce insurrections. His conduct in the trial of Jesus shows him to be superstitions, cruel, cowardly, and untrue to the Roman government. Any nation is to be pitied whose chief magistrate is this style of man.

When the council brought Jesus to Pilate, they would not enter in, "lest they should be defiled, and prevented from eating the passover." They had deep convictions against entering a hall where there was possibly some unleavened bread, but no remorse over taking the life of a man they knew to be innocent. Pilate went out and asked what accusation they brought against Jesus. They answered—He perverts the law, forbids to pay tribute to Cæsar, and says He, Himself, is a King (Luke). The first and second of these accusations Pilate knew to be false. The third he investigated. When he returned to the judgment hall he said—"Art thou the King of the Jews?" Jesus answered—"Thou sayest." "My Kingdom is not of this world." The council accused Him of many things. Jesus made no reply. He did not defend Himself. Pilate marveled. The Savior, by His silence, plead His cause more eloquently than words could have done. Pilate ruled out—"I find in Him no fault." Yet, through fear of the Jews, he would not release Him. The old coward. Public sentiment prevents many from doing right.

The council became more fierce. They were determined to have the life of Jesus. Pilate wished to set Him at liberty. He learned that Jesus was of Galilee, therefore, he sent Him to Herod, who was at this time in Jerusalem attending the passover. This was the Herod that had John the Baptist put to death. He had heard much of Jesus. He desired to see Him, and was exceeding glad when He was brought before him. He hoped to see Him do some miracles. We may have wrong motives in desiring to see Jesus. Herod asked Him many questions, but Jesus answered him not a word. The council vehemently accused Him before Herod. The governor, with his men of war, set Jesus at naught—they looked on Him as worthy only of contempt. They arrayed Him in a bright robe, of white tissue, richly embroidered with silver. This they did in mockery. When he sent Jesus back to Pilate he released Him from every political charge brought against Him. Pilate and Herod were made friends that very day. Christ is a great reconciler.

When Pilate "was set down on the judgment seat," and Jesus brought before him, his wife sent unto him saying, "Have thou nothing to do with this just man, for I have suffered many things this day in a dream because of Him." The women are often nearer right than the men. If many judges, who are superstitious and cowardly, would follow the advice of their godly wives, results would be much better. Pilate desired to set Jesus free. He told the council he had examined Him and found no fault in Him. Still they were determined to put Him to death. He had a custom of releasing unto them a prisoner at festival times. He told them he would do so at this feast. He wished to release Jesus, and suggested that they ask for Him. But the chief priests and Scribes moved the people, and constrained them to ask for Barabbas—the son of Abbas, that is, the son of the father. The name indicates that he was the devil's counterfeit. It is likely he played the part of a false Christ. He deceived the people. Raised a band of followers. Caused an insurrection. Committed murder, and was cast into prison. Now the people ask that he be set at liberty and the innocent Christ be crucified. The world has ever been taking the counterfeit for the genuine. It accepts counterfeit men, religious, and pleasures for those that are true. Pilate hated to condemn Him. He told the council to take Him and judge Him according to their law. They let him know it was not lawful for them to put any one to death. When he examined Him he found no fault in Him; yet he did not release Him. He sent Him to Herod with the hope that he would set Him at liberty. This he did not do. Then he desired the people to ask that He be released, but they called for Barabbas. He had one more resort. He suffered Jesus to be scourged, crowned with thorns, and robed in purple. When the pale, bleeding, friendless man was led forth he cried—"Behold the man." "Hail King of the Jews." He no doubt hoped to disgust them, and cause them to set Jesus at liberty. This they would not do. The council buffeted Jesus, Herod mocked Him, Pilate scourged Him, and the Jews crucified Him. The blessed Christ "suffered many things" for us, before He died on the cross.

"When Pilate saw he could prevail nothing, he took water and washed his hands before the multitude, saying I am innocent of the blood of this just man." But this did not make him innocent. He knew Jesus was just, he had the authority to release Him, yet he delivered Him over to be crucified. He was cruel, superstitions, and cowardly. Poor man, he soon lost his office, and I fear afterwards his soul.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore bodily health for many years.

HOOD'S PILLS cure nausea, sickness, indigestion and biliousness. 25c.

The Leading.

One of the leading and best known painters in this country says, "I cannot afford to use anything but Pure White Lead" (see list of brands). Every practical painter knows this. It is only those who haven't any reputation to lose who don't know it, or will use misleading brands of White Lead or unknown worthless mixtures. Although low-priced, they are not cheap. Pure White Lead is the cheapest, because it is the best.

If colors are required they are easily made by using the National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead tinting colors. Pamphlet and color-card sent free.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

Mr. B. O. Flower, the editor of the Arena, contributes a very forcible paper to the May issue of that review, outlining the sources of the social evil in modern social and industrial conditions. He gives examples of the conditions under which hundreds and thousands of girls working for the sweaters in large American cities are compelled to live, and shows how they are reduced to the desperation of starvation and forced to make a choice between suicide and dishonor. If cheap clothes mean cheap souls which are we going to choose?

In the Popular Science Monthly for May, Prof. Frederick Starr traces the progress of Archæology in Denmark—the country that has given this science many of its leading terms and divisions. Many cuts of prehistoric objects and portraits of eminent Danish archæologists illustrate the account. W. D. Le Suenr discusses Kidd on "Social Evolution," criticising what that author says of the attitude of science toward religion. D. Appleton & Company, New York. Fifty cents a number; $5 a year.

The four weekly issues of Littell's Living Age for April are as usual overflowing with the good things that enrrent foreign literature affords, and present a widor range of thought and style than is to be obtained in any of the monthlies. Littell & Co., Boston.

New Englanders will appreciate the many valuable articles of a local character in the May issue of the New England Magazine. The number opens with a most interesting description of Boston's new Public Library, T. J. Walker's entertaining account of "Blue Mountain Forest Park," near Newport, N. H., the great game preserve owned by Hon. Austin Corbin, comprising about 25,000 acres, is admirably illustrated with characteristic bits of the park and photographs of many of the animals, including a herd of fifty buffaloes. The Editor's Table is devoted to some timely reflections on our hurried modern methods of reading as contrasted with the leisurely habits of an earlier time. Warren F. Kellogg, 5 Park Square, Boston, Mass.

The B. F. Johnson Publishing Company have a new book in press entitled "Story of the Confederate States," by J. T. Derry of Georgia, with an introduction by Gen. Clement A. Evans. The work is said to be written in a clear and dispassionate manner and is very profusely illustrated. It will be ready for delivery about May 20. Sold exclusively by subscription, and agents are wanted.

FROM PRESIDING ELDERS.

Vicksburg District—

Dear Brethren—Let me urge upon you the necessity of raising the entire apportionment for the various benevolent societies of our great Church. Let us be able at our district conference, which meets in Edwards in August, to have our full apportionment raised. The time has come for us to be men; no feeble effort on our part can be tolerated. Our pledge—a SOUTHWESTERN in every family on our charge. May God help you to do your whole duty for the Church and humanity. Yours truly, S. A. COWAN, P. E.

Florence District—

Dear Brethren—The Epworth League Convention meets at Cheraw May 29-30. Permit me to urge you to do, with due diligence, your best work. May God's richest blessings attend your labors.

Yours truly, A. G. TOWNSEND, P. E.

Alexandria District—

Dear Brethren—The district conference convenes Wednesday, July 24, at St. Martinsville. The eye of God and the Church is upon us; let us do our full duty in taking our benevolences and saving souls for Christ. These two things stand foremost in our work. Next comes the SOUTHWESTERN; after that, ourselves. Please let us have a grand time at the district conference. S. E. H. MORANT, P.E.

Starkville District—

Brethren—Push your benevolences, and get the SOUTHWESTERN in every home.

Yours in the work,

P. O. JAMISON, P. E.

Navasota District—

Brethren—Our Sunday School Institute and Epworth League Covention will convene at Brenham, in St. Paul Church, July 18-21. Programs will be out in time. Delegates will collect from each department fifty cents to defray expenses of the institute. W. L. DUNCAN, P. E.

They turn Green

at the ball and heel—even some of the best black stockings. Wash them with Pearline, and you'll have the black color restored. Does that look as though Pearline would "injure the clothes?"

Things like these, hundreds of them, all more or less important, make Pearline the best thing to wash with. Then, on top of that, it saves labor, saves rubbing, saves wear and tear, time and money.

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as," or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 433 JAMES PYLE, New York.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

OUR LEVEE TROUBLES.

As we predicted, there was another outbreak on the river front between some colored men, who were employed in loading a ship at Gretna, and a few white men who regarded the colored laborer as a menace to their happiness. Several shots were fired, one of which wounded the colored foreman, Mr. Smothers; but not seriously. It is exceedingly difficult to get at the true facts in this unfortunate condition of affairs. Of this one thing we are certain, however: The colored man will not be permitted to work on the levees of this city unmolested unless under the control of the white labor organizations; provided, the City, State or National governments do not effectively interfere—a thing which seems at this time almost impossible. We are both amazed and alarmed at the systematic ease with which our colored brethren are driven from their work, being often pursued by armed white men whom it is absolutely impossible to convict; either of carrying concealed deadly-weapons, discharging firearms within the city limits, or of shooting down a fleeing Negro. The situation is decidedly complicated. It is unsafe to those who manage the commercial interests of the city to employ a class of colored laborers who may be driven off at the whim of their dissatisfied white fellow-laborers at any time; and it is equally unsafe to employ the latter class, which are becoming more arrogant and dictatorial every day. Indeed it is difficult to tell just where we are.

AS TO DISCRIMINATION AGAINST NEGRO EDUCATION IN GEORGIA.

A colored graduate, and teacher in Georgia, has written to the New York Independent a letter, which, if true, reveals a condition far from conducive to the advancement of the Negro. He says:

"There is not a single large city in Georgia, in which the white teacher is not paid twice as much and occasionally three times as much as the colored teacher who does the same grade of work. A prominent officer of the State is responsible for the promulgation and the carrying out of the doctrine that the whites can still get the lion's share of the school funds by the appropriation method, rather than the "pro rata" plan, even if Negro students are in the majority in a district. By this appropriation plan a white school of fifteen pupils is supplied with a first class teacher at seventy-five dollars a month, or five dollars per month per pupil, while the colored school in the same district with a hundred or more pupils is apportioned the pitiful sum of twenty-five dollars per month, or twenty-five cents per pupil. I have in my possession a letter from a county superintendent of Georgia, in which he states that he 'regrets to say that the county authorities have only appropriated fifteen dollars per month for your school for the coming term.' And it must be remembered that this sum was to pay for the instruction of one hundred and twenty-five pupils, assistant's salary included, when the same school paid its principal not less than fifty dollars per month the previous year. This county is not alone in the adoption of this policy to get rid of what they were pleased to style 'college taught teachers.' But what was the result of this action? Most of the Negro schools were untaught for the want of teachers. Some, however, were supplied by local talent, ignorant laborers. For even a decent laborer could scarcely teach for fifteen dollars per month and pay his expenses."

All of which we believe to be in strict accordance with facts.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE AND THE COLOR LINE.

A statement has been going the rounds of the press that the Methodist ministers of St. Louis, Mo., had drawn the color line in the matter of admitting the colored branches of the Epworth League into their meetings. We have waited for the truth in the matter with satisfactory results. We are glad to publish the following from one of our most worthy colored representatives, the Rev. J. Will Jackson, D. D., presiding elder of the St. Louis District, Central Missouri Conference:

"BRIDGETON, Mo., May 13, 1895.

"My Dear Dr. Hammond—Since writing my last letter to you I have ascertained from one who was present at the Preachers' Meeting of the 16th ult., the facts concerning the reported proceedings. I am now prepared to say frankly, that the whole affair was misrepresented. From what Rev. W. H. Whitmore, of our conference, relates of it, there could have been no grounds whatever for the report, as sent out by the Associated Press dispatches, that the color line was drawn. As I now understand it, the German brethren of our city churches had formulated, or were formulating, a plan among themselves for unifying the work of the Epworth League Chapters of their own churches—for union meetings of these chapters. Dr. Lenig, referring to the advantages of such a procedure, suggested that the adoption of such a plan of Epworth League work in the churches of his conference, in the city, would be productive of beneficial results. He expressed the hope that the colored brethren would not feel slighted, as there was no purpose in the arrangement to draw the color line. So there it ended. The matter was not discussed in the spirit intended to be made prominent by the press reports. Our Methodism in St. Louis is distributed among three conferences—the St. Louis, embracing the English; St. Louis German, and I think the Swedish, and the Central Missouri, embracing the colored members. The discussion was simply a quiet talk on a matter which was strictly of a Church-social nature. Our Methodism of St. Louis, though divided by conference lines, is but one in the spirit of unity and in the sacred ties of brotherly love. Faithfully yours, J. WILL JACKSON."

Also the following from the Central Christian Advocate, published in the city where the meeting was held:

"This bit of so called news has evoked criticism, wonderment, and inquiries in many quarters. The facts can be stated in a few words for the sake of doing justice to the ministers themselves, and of relieving the fears and doubts of friends at a distance.

"At the regular weekly session of the ministers of our Church in St. Louis, on Monday, April 15, a paper was read by Mr. Chas. G. Bowman, president of the City Eworth League Union, the topic being the work and outlook of the organization. After the paper had been read the brethren who were present discussed the topic which had been presented, and made suggestions of methods whereby the Leagues of the city might be made of more service to the Churches. Among other suggestions, the inquiry was raised whether it might not 'help the cause' if all the Leagues of all the Churches of our own and other denominations in the city were to be formed into a union for cultivating brotherly relations and for literary and evangelistic and other work. At this point Rev. Frank Lenig, Ph. D., projected the question as to how far such an organization could go in St. Louis without running against the snag of the color line. Rev. Mr. Brown, one of our Afro-American pastors, replied that the question need not give any concern; that the colored Churches would not stand in the way of any movement which seemed to be helpful to the general work, understanding, as they did, all the circumstances of the case. The subject was not pursued further. No action whatever was taken bearing on the point that had been raised, and no sign was given of any intention to discriminate in any possible organization to be formed hereafter against the Leagues belonging to our colored Churches in the city.

"The last sentence in the above-quoted dispatch seems intended to place the Methodist ministers of the city in contrast with the Baptist preachers in their attitude toward the colored folks. The fact is that our Afro-American ministers, pastors in the city in our denomination, have always been members of our Preachers' Meeting in St. Louis, some of them occupying the chair at various times. If the Baptists have just invited their colored pastors to attend the regular ministerial meetings of their denomination, then they are simply following a precedent which our meeting established years ago."

This statement ought to be satisfactory, and we hope it will be. There cannot, in any charitable sense, be a clashing of interests in our great Epworth League work. The colored churches cannot stand in the way of any movement which is helpful to the general work. That which helps the whole work would help the colored. The "circumstances in the case" are about the same. It is a mutual doing of the Lord's work from which the question of color should be sacredly and rigidly excluded.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS.

The thirty-first international convention of Young Men's Christian Associations of North America, held at Springfield, Mass., May 8-12, was in many respects a most important convention. Delegates to the number of about 700 were enrolled, being the best representation ever shown at an international convention. This was the first convention to make a systematic exposition of the work done in the physical and educational branches of association work, while never was the presence of the Holy Spirit more generally sought or widely felt than here. This was the first of these conventions to be held in New England for twenty-three years, and royally was it welcomed and entertained by the good people of Springfield.

For better spiritual preparation for the work of the convention Wednesday morning was set apart as "Quiet Day," four hours being devoted to meditation, self examination and prayer. During each hour topics relating to consecration and personal spiritual needs were discussed in a helpful, effective way. These meetings proved of singular interest and of great blessing to the hundreds of delegates attending.

Our colored brethren were treated with marked consecration, and there was a conspicuous absence of that spirit which too often mars the harmony of these Christian gatherings. The discussion of the work among colored young men had been given by the committee to J. H. Meriweather, president of the Colored Association of Washington, D. C., but in his absence it was presented by W. A. Hunton, colored secretary of the International Committee, and by Rev. George W. Moore of Washton, field secretary of the American Missionary Association.

Mr. Hunton said the work among colored men was being pushed on two lines—among college students and among young men of cities and towns. There are 33 college associations with 1723 members. Seven new associations have been formed during the past year. The members are learning ways and methods. In nearly all the associations conversions have been reported, and in some blessed revivals have sprung from the students' Gospel meetings. But a half of the schools for higher education of colored young men have associations. Not one of the States west of the Mississippi has yet been visited. There are 20 associations in cities and towns aside from the college organizations. These have a membership of 1152. The most successful associations are in Norfolk, Richmond, Baltimore, Louisville and Washington. There are but seven paid secretaries, and but four of the associations own real estate valued at $14,500. We have yet but occupied the beginning of the [illegible]. The great need is for trained [illegible] place in the associations already [illegible]

EPWORTH DEPARTMENT.

Our Epworth League work in the South is assuming grand proportions, and we feel assured that our pregressive young members will highly appreciate the privilege of having a medium of communication for the diffusion of news and information concerning this rapidly growing organization. The Epworthians are among our best patrons and we propose to organize a department which will yet more increase their interest in our work.

Our many readers will be glad to know that Rev. E. B. Burroughs, A. B., of the South Carolina Conference, stationed at Charan, S. C., will have charge of the Epworth League Department and will contribute from time to time articles which will be of great interest to our Epworthians. Brother Burroughs is an able and brilliant writer and we indulge the hope that his splendid abilities will be fully appreciated.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

The Indispensable Cause.

Fellow-mortals, weak and vain,
Why the cause of God disdain?
Jesus died your souls to save
From the power of the grave.

Death and hell He vanquished then,
For the happiness of men;
Ye, His friends, are who shall do
Whatsoev'r He telleth you.

These who now for Jesus work,
And no conscious duty shirk;
Serve the Lord, who is the King,
Till He them to glory bring.

Pray and work, and work and pray;
Keep the devil well away;
When on earth your toil shall close,
God will give you sweet repose.

The International Conference.

The complete program for the Second International Conference of the Epworth League, to be held in Chattanooga June 27-30, has not yet been announced, but we are permitted to give the following synopsis:

General Subject—The Methodism of the Future.

Thursday, June 27.—2:30 p. m., Opening session; address of welcome, by Hon. Geo. W. Oehs for City of Chattanooga, and by Rev. J. P. McFerrin, D. D., for the local Methodism of Chattanooga; responses by Hon. McKenzie Bowell of Canada, Bishop E. R. Hendrix and Bishop John H. Vincent. 4:30 p. m., Chautauqua meeting, with address by Bishop Vincent. 7:40 p. m., Love feast, conference sermon and sacramental service.

Friday, June 28—5 a.m, Sunrise prayer meeting on Lookout Mountain; topic for the day, "Methodism, its life and mode of expression"; sessions at 9:30 a. m., 2:30 p. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Saturday, June 29—5 a. m., Sunrise prayer meeting; topic for the day, "Methodism, its doctrine and spirit"; sessions at 9:30 a. m. and 2:30 p. m.; 7:30 p. m., grand sacred concert.

Sunday, June 30—5 a.m., Sunrise prayer meeting; topic for the day, "Waiting for the descent of the Holy Spirit"; 11 a. m., sermons in all Chattanooga churches; 3 p. m., twelve mass meetings in Chattanooga and suburbs; 7:30 p. m., watch night services; addresses, sermon and closing consecration service.

Department conferences will be held each morning and evening. Many State, conference and district meetings will also be arranged.

We have assurances from Rev. G. W. Ziegler, pastor of Wiley Memorial Church, at Chattanooga, Tenn., that equal treatment would be given all delegates attending the International Epworth League Conference irrespective of color. Delegates or other persons expecting to attend the convention should give Brother Ziegler timely notice, so that their entertainment can be looked after. Let there be a big turnout, Let the Leaguers send their best representatives, and by all means let special prayers be made in all the Leagues for the baptism of the Holy Ghost upon the conference. For further information address Rev. G. W. Ziegler, 504 Lookout street, Chattanooga, Tenn.

The League at Crawford, Miss.

The Epworth League at this place is increasing in numbers. I find the League centers of spiritual activity. Meetings first and third Sundays at 3 p. m. Officers: L. J. Terrell, P. C., president; I. A. Hodgers, superintendent.

K. C. MINYARD, Secretary.

Women's Home Missionary Society.

HOUSTON, Tex., May 13, 1895.

Dear Dr. Hammond—I wish to call the attention of the Woman's Home Missionary Society that Mrs. Rev. T. S. McMorris, of Hearne, Tex., was appointed delegate to represent the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Texas Conference at the annual meeting, which will convene in Ohio this year. This means that the auxiliaries on the Houston District are to raise a part of the expenses to said meeting, and this we should do at once.

We want to commence work on the Bishop Foss Industrial Home, Harrisburg, Tex., some time this year, and we wish the help of the auxiliaries of the Texas Conference. The auxiliaries of Trinity Church, Houston, Tex., have raised since Jan. 26, 1895, a good sum and have it on hand. The Trinity auxiliary, with Pastor Wade Hamilton, mean to work, and are at work for this building. Remember, procrastination is a thief of time.

Yours truly,
MRS. H. A. JONES, Pres.

Our Baltimore Correspondence.

Rev. Wilbur P. Thirkield, D. D., president of Gammon Theological Seminary, was in Baltimore on Monday, and visited the Methodist Episcopal Preachers' Meeting. Being introduced by Rev. Clark, he made a speech that will do Gammon good. He spoke of the Negro as being capable of education; as being worthy of confidence and as being susceptable of moral training; as being worthy the help and prayers of all peoples. He also spoke of the Church educating the Negro and to make him a good citizen; but also to hold him to the Church in the coming generations. He showed us how the Romish Church was using all possible means to capture the Negro, because "Rome has learned that the Negro is an important factor in the future problem of religion;" he is all important. Dr. Thirkield is a man that I have always been "proud of."

Children's Day Special.

Dear Brother—Your special attention is invited to some matters relating to Children's Day.

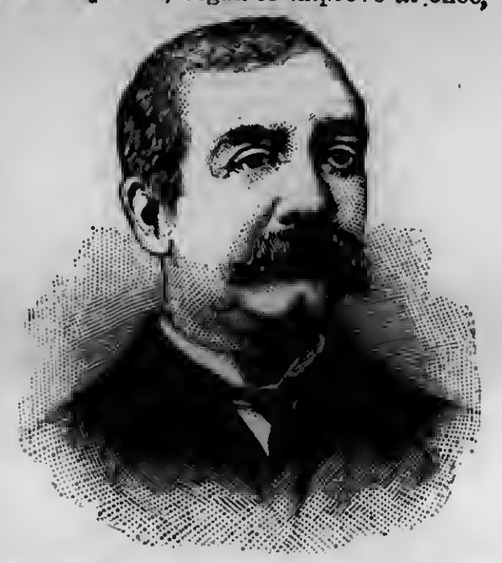
1. The Collection Envelopes.—The use of these envelopes, a specimen of which is inclosed, is introduced by the Board for the first time this year. They will interest the children, help to develop systematic giving, and increase the amount given to a needy cause. A full supply will be sent you free, postpaid, on your application, stating the number wanted, made to the Board of Education, 150 Fifth Avenue, New York. DO NOT ORDER THESE ENVELOPES FROM THE BOOK DEPOSITORIES.

2. The Program, "The Golden Gate."—If you have mislaid the copy recently sent you with the Annual Report, another will be sent you on request. Of this program "Stylus," the racy correspondent of the "New York Christian Advocate," says: "It would hardly be possible to overestimate the value and utility of the program for Children's Day just issued. . . . While the program in itself is eminently popular and thoroughly workable and within reach of any Sunday school, the idea which underlies it is singularly appropriate and comprehensive. This program is by far the best of any he (the author) has published. Every Sunday school in Methodism should get it and use it."

Pardon the suggestion that to leave the selection of the Children's Day Program entirely to a committee is seldom wise. Such a committee is often far from well informed concerning the origin and objects of Children's Day and the proper methods of observing it so as to secure the best local and denominational results. It not unfrequently happens that a program is rejected for the very reason that it has in it something worthy of use, while another is chosen because it has a little in it, and of course requires little effort to carry it out. Children's Day is a great connectional occasion, and no other program in the market gives connectional information and secures the ends proposed as does that issued by the Board of Education. If you will use "The Golden Gate," we are confident you will not have occasion to regret it.

3. The Collection.—By a little effort this can be greatly increased. The collection envelopes will help; have them distributed one or two Sabbaths previous to Children's Day, and explain their use. You will bear in mind that the Discipline now requires that a collection for the "Sunday School Children's Fund," which is administered only by the Board of Education, shall be taken in every Sunday school as a part of the Children's Day service, and that this collection entire, with no diversion and no division, shall be sent to the Secretary of the Board of Education at New York. To use for merely local purposes a day set apart by the General Conference to promote a special object is surely not in harmony with the law of the Church nor with the highest sense of right. You will, we are sure, see the propriety of guarding this collection as sacredly devoted to a specific and worthy cause.

4. The Boards Great Need of Funds.—Kindly remind your people that more than fifteen hundred of the noblest sons and daughters of Methodism, seeking an education to qualify them for Christian work, are annually dependent upon the aid furnished by the Board of Education through this collection. By reference to the Annual Report (pages 43-46) you will see how heroically these young people are struggling to support themselves. Any Sunday school can be stirred by the recital of these sacrifices and privations.



We trust you, Dear Brother, to help on this good work, and hope to hear a cheering report of the results of Children's Day in your church. Very sincerely your brother and coworker,

C. H. PAYNE, Cor. Sec'y.

"Some years ago, as a result of too close attention to business, my health failed. I became weak, nervous, was unable to look after my interests, and manifested all the symptoms of a decline. I took three bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, began to improve at once, and gradually increased my weight from one hundred and twenty-five to two hundred pounds. Since then, I and my family have used this medicine when needed, and we are all in the best of health, a fact which we attribute to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. EDUCATIONAL.

Commencement at Gammon Theological Seminary.

The twelfth annual commencement of Gammon Theological Seminary was, beyond question, the best of the years thus far in its history. This was to be expected as a natural result of these years of patient and steady work. The years of small beginning, when Dr. Thirkield struggled against ostracism and lack of adequate support, have passed away, and the seminary now looks into the future with the enthusiastic hope of being the largest, best equipped and most thorough theological seminary in the world for Negroes, and in other respects the equal of the best in the land for all students and the most unique of all.

Dr. Thirkield returned from Europe buoyant and enthusiastic for increased service. It was his pleasure to be welcomed by the faculty, students and friends in a royal way that doubly assured him that he was safe in the hearts of his friends. It was also his pleasure to observe that his labor of twelve years was not fruitless, for during his absence in Europe Dr. Murray, the acting president, had carried on the business of the seminary in a wise, faithful and commendable way. The faculty stood around him with their hearts as well as their heads. Furthermore, it ought to be said in this connection that, although Dr. Murray is a safe and wise counsellor and administrator in every part of the seminary, Mrs. Murray is not to be left out when you reckon the sum total of influences that enter into his life. This is only a little of what could be legitimately said on this point; ask the alumni and ask Dr. Murray himself.

The exercises began with the annual love feast in Chrisman Hall, led by Dr. Thirkield. At 11 o'clock the baccalaureate sermon was preached by Dr. Parks. It goes without saying, when Dr. Parks is to preach, there will be preaching. His theme was "The Great Commission." Without intending it, he showed himself an orator as well as a theologian. Read the extract of the sermon in another place. But that is cold type. One must hear the voice, see the face and feel the glow of the speaker's divine fire to appreciate rightly the truth delivered. He had a great truth to deliver, and he delivered it with telling effect.

The missionary anniversary, under the auspices of the Stewart Missionary Foundation for Africa, took place at night at Lloyd Street M. E. Church. The exercises consisted of first prize orations and essays and hymns. From the seminary—The oration, "Africa's Awakening and Redemption," was delivered by A. P. Camphor, A. M., class of '95; the hymn, "The Great Commission," by John D. Whitaker, A. B., class of '96. From the universities—The essay, "The Best Means of Inducing the American Negro to Engage in Missionary Work in Africa," by Abram B. Whitby, Clark University; the hymn, "The Heathen's Cry," by Lydia P. Laws. From the academies—The essay, "Africa: Glimpses of Her Past, Present and Future," by Albert S. Knott, Morristown Normal Academy, Morristown, Tenn. From the churches—The hymn, "Missionary Hymn for Africa," by the Rev. Jos. Wheeler, Harrisburg, Pa., Washington Conference.

The written examinations were held on Monday and Tuesday, and the oral examinations were held on Wednesday morning before the visitors and conference committees. The conference committees were as follows: The Savannah Conference, Revs. Geo. W. Arnold, J. P. Wragg; the South Carolina Conference, Rev. B. F. Witherspoon; the Washington Conference, J. W. E. Bowen.

On Monday night the Douglass memorial address was delivered by Professor Bowen.

On Tuesday night the Alumni address was delivered by the Rev. John H. May, '93, Griffin, Ga.; subject: "Personality in the March of Christian Civilization." The speaker had familiarized himself with the movements of recent history and found it easy to keep his audience in full sympathy with him throughout his address.

Wednesday night Dr. Earl Cranston, of Cincinnati, delivered the annual address from the subject, "Dreams." For an address containing science, theology, history and practical common sense, this effort of the speaker cannot be easily surpassed. Dr. Cranston is at home in the seminary; he knows what to say and how to say it, and his audience here is at home with him and always expects good things from him and is never disappointed.

The closing exercises of the week took place in Chrisman Hall of Clark University. Seated upon the platform were: Bishop Abram Grant of the A. M. E. Church; President John, of Clark University; Presiding Elders George W. Arnold and J. P. Wragg of the Savannah Conference; the Rev. Dr. White, editor of "The Georgia Baptist"; Prof. Booker, T. Washington, of Tuskegee; Revs. R. S. Robb and Formosa, of the M. E. Conference; Rev. H. H. Procter, Congregational Church this city; Rev. E. W. Loe, of A. M. E. Church, and the faculty of the seminary.

Ten young men were graduated. The orations were well delivered and showed wide reading. They were as follows. "Christianity as seen in art," D. W. Boatner; "The influence of Christianity upon society," John P. Franklin; "George Whitefild as a preacher," D. H. Butler; "Wanted, men," J. W. Thomas; "Americans as missionaries," William H. Lacy; "Young men in history," H. P. Strong; "The spirit that should characterize the leaders of the race," N. J. Johnson; "Material for race building," E. H. Oliver; "The relation of the minister to our social problems," A. P. Camphor; "The influence of personal contact in social reform," S. A. Peeler. Two of these, A. P. Camphor and S. A. Peeler received the degree of B. D, both having received previously the degree A. B. The others received the regular diploma of the seminary. The degree B. D. was also granted to the Rev. John L. Wilson, Holly Springs, Miss., and the Rev. P. H. Jenkins; they also having received the degree of A. B. The music was conducted by Mrs. J. W. E. Bowen.

The exercises received added spice by the presentation to Dr. Murray of a Standard Dictionary by the students of the seminary. It was given in grateful remembrance of his faithful and brotherly service as acting president during Dr. Thirkield's absence in Europe.

The president's address to the class had the ring and polish of a sound metal and was received as coming from a big brother's heart and head.

The faculty realize, as never before, that their work is beginning to be felt in the country and they are looking forward to the next year with larger hopes.

The benediction was pronounced by Bishop Grant, and the people walked out with the feeling and word that the faith and work of Mr. Gammon has begun to bear fruit.

Extracts from Baccalaureate, by Dr. E. Parks; Subject: "The Great Commission." Matt. xxviii, 18-20:

The great commission is to the disciples; but as the apostles are the leaders, it is primarily to them. As the ministers are the leaders since the apostles, we have here the great commission to the ministry.

It teaches that the minister is sent of Christ, and implies a personal commission. This precludes work of self. The minister who hasn't lost self in Christ and his work, needs to go back to God for the renewal of his call. His commission has expired. The self-seeking for remunerative and prominent positions, the presiding eldership, election to General Conference and to other high official positions and the bishopric, is treason to the Church and the betrayal of Christ. The minister has highest authority back of his work; one who shall reign not by might, but by right. The minister is to make men disciples of Christ, to bring them into personal and life union with Christ. The minister must learn of Christ, primarily from God's word. This make him a man of one book; immeasurably the greatest of all books. Any one who places before the people as co-ordinate with the Bible a fallible guide, is a blind leader of the blind. The minister's message is not a dead book, but a living personality; hence he must be dominated by Christ's life. He studies all nature, all history from the central point of view, Christ. He must not only know about Christ; he must possess Christ—aye, more; the Holy Ghost must possess him. The minister needs to know men. This makes him a student of the highest type of nature on earth, human nature. He must study men and live most intensely with the men of to-day. The minister is to lead men into a vital union and fellowship with God and with each other in the Church; the greatest institution among men. The ministers who imports ordinary political methods, with their bargain for place, into the Church, is trying to serve Christ with the deeds of the devil.

The minister should teach men to live in accordance with Christ's commandments. We cannot plead man's weakness and inability. Christianity means divine help, divine life. The supreme commandment of Christ is to love as he loved and give ourselves in loving service for others as he did.

The minister is engaged in spreading the kingdom of God upon earth, which is nothing less than human society transformed by the spirit and truth of Christ. The ministry is false to Christ if they do not proclaim all his truth in its application to the individual and to society. The Church and the world are entering upon their great social era.

The minister's most prominent means is preaching the Gospel. Oratory is the divinest art known to man. It will endure as long as man has living voice and personality. The minister has largest opportunity for true oratory. Another means is personal contact through the life. The true minister preaches more by his life than by his words. The minister is the great leader of men, and he works directly upon the highest material and the very springs of life. The ministry is assured all efficiency and the consummation of their work in the presence, power and leadership of the Father and Son through the Holy Ghost.

To the class: Go not forth without your personal commission from the great King. Do not count your preparation complete; it is a matter of lifelong growth. Remember, the indispensable preparation is the baptism of the Holy Spirit. You represent the members of this faculty who will follow you with loving sympathy, Gammon; but above all, Christ.

"Nothing Venture, Nothing Have."

Rev. John Reid, Jr., of Great Falls, Mon., recommended Ely's Cream Balm to me. I can emphasize his statement. "It is a positive cure for catarrh if used as directed."—Rev. Francis W. Poole, pastor Central Pres. Church, Helena, Mon.

It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and is worth its weight in gold. I can use Ely's Cream Balm with safety and it does all that is claimed for it.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Conn.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM.

We have been very greatly interested in a pamphlet which has been placed in our hands by its author, Rev. J. C. Houston, presiding elder of the Jackson District of the Mississippi Conference, in which he takes the view that sprinkling is the proper mode of Christian baptism. That Brother Houston has made a thorough study of his subject, no one who reads of this pamphlet will deny. The arguments are logical, lucid, plain, and conclusive. The style is simple and instructive; while the premises and conclusions are based upon the truth which the author has diligently gleaned from the Holy Scriptures. Altogether it is one of the strongest, simplest and comprehensive arguments we have ever read on this most important subject. The work is well done, and will stand as a most creditable testimonial to the ability of one of the rising men of our race and Church. The book deserves a wide circulation.

Strong testimonials as to its merits have been given by Rev. S. Walter Featherston, D. D., pastor M. E. Church, South, Yazoo City, Miss.; Rev. C. E. Libby, D. D., president Rust University, Holly Springs, Miss.; Rev. J. W. E. Bowen, D, D., professor in Gammon Theological Seminary, Atlanta, Ga., and Rev. J. C. Hartzell, D. D., corresponding secretary Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society. The Yazoo Herald also has a very appreciate notice of the man and the book, and gives it its unqualified endorsement. Terms: single copy, 35 cents; clubs of ten, 25 cents each. Any person sending 35 cts. each for five books, will get one copy free. Address Rev. J. C. Honston, Yazoo City, Miss.

A KENTUCKY EPISODE.

A white man named Wm. Shipp recently went to the house of one Samuel Brown, a colored man, residing in Lexington, Ky., to see his wife, who is reported to have sustained criminal relations with the white man. Brown, the husband, was at home at the time, when a quarrel ensued, and, as usual, the white man shot and killed his colored antagonist. The white man, who is said to be a member of one of the finest families of the State, was duly arrested, tried, and acquitted, notwithstanding the colored people of Lexington had engaged able counsel to prosecute the murderer. While we deprecate the affair, and the escape of the red-handed murderer, we deprecate much more the facts brought out in the trial, that there were evidences of criminal intimacy between the wife of the dead man and his murderer, which added to the usual prejudice against the race, rendered the acquittal of the murderer comparatively easy. The sanctity of our homes and the virtue of our women must, can and will be protected. Where there are pure homes and virtuous women and mothers, but few men, white or black, will have the temerity to violate their sanctity. Poor Brown might have died in a nobler cause. It were a pity that his life went out in a contention over a woman against whom there was even the breath of suspicion, and where his slayer's case was the stronger by establishing the fact of that intimacy, which in itself invalidated the marital relationship. Our colored friends in Lexington deserved much credit for the manner in which they conducted the prosecution. It would be a wonderful uplift to Lexington society if a strong public sentiment could be created against the very practice which caused the death of Mr. Brown. When white men, and no less guilty colored women and girls, violate the laws of society and the community with impunity, our homes, our wives, and our daughters are in danger.

—Prof. J. Bianchi, Ph. B., M. S., the distinguished phrenologist of this city, called at our office a few days ago, and gave a practical and instructive illustration of his method of character reading, by his new and unique method, which needs only to be seen to be appreciated. We cheerfully commend the professor to teachers, parents and guardians.

RECOLLECTIONS OF A GREAT GENERAL.

The Church and the world are under many obligations to Bishop John P. Newman, D. D., LL. D., for the splendid grouping of facts, anecdotes, and salient characteristics, illustrative of the life and character of his personal friend and parishioner, the late General Ulysses S. Grant. The several parts of these matchless "recollections" were published in a recent number of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, and are already bearing fruit in calling attention to the sterling qualities of the great general, which must prove a constant inspiration to our American youth, to rise even from the most humble circumstances to the highest positions of honor and responsibility. The history of Ulysses S. Grant reads like a great romance. The boy, the man, the soldier, the great general, the president of this great republic during the most stirring times of its history, furnish a narrative of the most thrilling interest.

As the bitter animosities engendered by the late civil war pass away, the American people will come more and more to recognize the grandeur of the man who moved by the most noble impulses, and with unselfish and unswerving devotion to his country, stood during its most important crisis as its noblest defender. Attempts to rob him of his well-earned fame as one of the greatest generals of modern times, meet only the contempt of his fellow-citizens. While he was truly great in war, he was even greater in peace. His magnanimous treatment of those who had poised lances with him in the terrible sanguinary conflict reveals but one of the many magnificent traits of the victor toward the vanquished.

Called to be the great executive of the nation on the establishment of peace, he sought to re-establish the relations that once existed, and recommended the adoption of the most pacific measures in order to bring about this desirable result. His self-poise was remarkable. At the close of his term as president, he laid aside his official harness and entered the ranks of the civilian with that grace which was characteristic of him. With his beloved wife and family, his many traits of character shone resplendent. His home life was singularly beautiful in its simplicity. A husband's and a father's love, blended with those qualities which only great souls possess, made the Grant home a veritable earthly paradise. Mistaken confidence in supposed friends, followed by a financial disaster which had well nigh crushed him, yet found him so anchored with that disposition to deal justly with his creditors, that the public renewed their confidence in his integrity. But he who had stood unmoved upon the field of battle recognized the insidious approach of disease. He began to set his house in order.

Bishop Newman has brought out some tender and pathetic incidents not before given to the public, in which the depth of the great general's devotion to God and to his loving wife and family shone with resplendent brilliancy during the terrible sufferings through which he passed. The bishop was his spiritual adviser, his chosen personal friend and confidant; and this tear-dimmed record coming from him will but increase confidence in the sincerity of the motives of his faithful friend, while it will evoke the hearty sympathy of the people for those whose hearts have been more deeply touched.

That last loving letter, written between paroxysms of intense suffering, and carefully concealed from his devoted and patient wife and children, revealed the character of his affection, and his interest in their future welfare. It is indeed gratifying to know that the consolations of the Christian religion were enjoyed by the distinguished sufferer, who, fully conscious of approaching dissolution, and desiring to fulfill every obligation to the teachings of the Church which he loved, received Christian baptism as the outward or visible sign of the grace by which he was saved. Then the end came, and the great soldier entered into the rest of the faithful.

—Rev. Charles Pyles, writes from Owensboro, Ky.: "Sunday, May 12, was a day of joy to us. The grand rally for the debt on our church netted $51, the largest collection in the history of the church. Everybody is happy, and we will go forward cheerfully. This is my fourth year as pastor here. My salary for three years was only $572, yet I am cheerful and happy. We are trying to raise the entire sum of our debt—$312."

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—G. A. Hall, Newport, Ark., says: "This place is looking up. All departments organized, and doing effective work for the Master."

—T. E. Woods, Adamsville, Tenn., writes: "Our banner floats triumphantly, and we are marching on to victory. Easter was observed with good results."

—G. W. Winn, Scottsboro, Ala.: "The church is on the forward march. Quarterly meeting was grand. Two baptized and two received into the church."

—David Hall, Oak Forest Circuit, Ark., says: "The outlook is hopeful, and hopes are indulged for an outpouring of the Holy Ghost. Our Sunday School is prosperous and well attended."

—R. P. Chapman, Chicora, Miss., writes: "Second quarterly conference was grand, J. M. Shumpert, P. E., presiding. Progress along all lines. Rev. G. W. Brame, of State Line Circuit, visited us.

—Rev. Wesley Singleton, Smithland, Ky.: "We are on the ground, and greatly encouraged with the work. A noble people here are doing all they can to make my stay pleasant. Prospects cheering."

—E. L. Rogers, Oxford, Miss., writes: "I still like the wonderful paper, and hope others will begin and take it. I have been converted, and am now started in a new life, and trying to secure the conversion of sinners."

—Rev. B. I. Adams, of Georgetown, Texas: "We are moving along slowly but surely. Collected on Easter Sunday, $7 35. Second quarter was held by Rev. R. H. Ponton, who preached a stirring sermon."

—G. W. Brame, State Line, Miss., writes: "My second quarter convened May 8 9, with Rev. J. M. Shumpert, D. D., in the chair. Reports from pastor and officers indicate progress spiritually and temporally. Collections this quarter, $73 67."

—Rev. L. W. Washington Cole, pastor at Clarksdale, Miss., died at his post April 29. He was a good man, faithful and true. His death was gain. Rev. J. B. Starky, of Webb, Miss., conducted the funeral, assisted by Rev. D. A. Bragg.

—Wm. Lewis writes from Little Rock, Ark.: "The church and Sunday School are alive. The Sunday School is doing a good work with Brother Thomas Blair as superintendent. Our Temperance Society is doing fairly well. Presiding Elder W. R. R. Duncan preached for us recently, and his sermon was greatly enjoyed."

—G. J. Rogers, Monroe, La.: "We are now in the midst of a glorious revival, and many precious souls are being saved. We have 18 converts, and 10 reclaimed. Rev. F. T. Chinn, P. E., visited and helped us, and held his first quarterly conference. Collections during quarter, $150. We are paying our church debt."

—G. W. Nevils, of Columbus Circuit, Texas, writes: "My second quarterly conference was a grand time. The work is in good shape. The elder preached a stirring sermon. Three children were baptized. Collection for all purposes, $81. Easter was grand. Collection, $2 60. We have just closed a gracious revival with 16 conversions and 12 accessions."

—Wm. McMorris, Vicksburg, Miss.: "My charge has been greatly blessed with special outpouring of the Holy Ghost. Have just closed a series of meetings, assisted by Revs. J. C. Hibbler, J. B. Brooks and M. Cooper. Forty-four souls converted and church revived. Our Easter celebration was a success in every way. Raised $20, entire missionary apportionment."

—L. C. Harris, Cloverport, Ky., writes: "I promised you that I would send you 10 subscribers. I have already secured 5 of them and will send you 5 more soon. This is my third year in Cloverport, and I must say that we are moving along nicely. Every department of the church is alive, and the people were well pleased with my return. The more I read the old SOUTHWESTERN the better I like it."

To Our Pastors.

Send for sample copies, and start a SOUTHWESTERN revival on every charge. It will "win its way" if you present it faithfully.

NEW ORLEANS AND VICINITY.

The fiscal year for the SOUTHWESTERN begins July 1, and our annual statements are then made. Considering the vast importance of making a good showing in the forthcoming report, we suggest to our pastor-agents an unusual effort during the remainder of May and all of June. We wish that rallies be held on all the charges as soon as possible. There has been a considerable reduction in the expense account, and if we can show an increase in the receipts, it will be greatly to our credit.

At a meeting of the Alumni of New Orleans University, held in the University Chapel on Friday, May 17, it was resolved to have the Alumni sermon exercises at Wesley M. E. Church on Sunday, May 26, at 3 p. m., by Rev. E. W. S. Hammond, D. D., Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN.

S. T. CLANTON, D. D.,
Pres't. Alumni Association.

New Orleans University and Lafon Old Folks' Home are again the recipients of the generous help accruing from the settlement of the estate of its noble benefactor, the late Mr. Toma Lafon. The sum previously donated will be largely augmented by the prompt and philanthropic work of the executors of the estate. The news will be received with joy by the university, and especially by those who are looking forward with no little anxiety to see our worthy old people in the comfortable home made possible by the generosity of a great benefactor. It is reported that immediate action is contemplated by the Board of Managers.

Mrs. Landry, wife of Rev. Pierre Landry, presiding elder of the South New Orleans District, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Lilian, is on a visit to New Orleans. They are the guests of Rev. Chas. Monroe, pastor of Williams' Chapel, who, with his estimable wife and Miss Nellie Landry, are making their stay pleasant.

Our city has been unusually favored with distinguished dignitaries during the past week, among whom were Presiding Elders F. T. Chinn, J. F. Marshall, Stephen Duncan and Pierre Landry, of the Monroe, Baton Rouge, Shreveport and South New Orleans Districts respectively.

Rev. D. J. Price, the popular pastor of St. Matthew's, was the recipient of a most agreeable surprise a short time ago. Many friends came to the parsonage with testimonials of their esteem. Pastor and wife were made happy.

A short time ago a number of members and friends called at a late hour after the family had retired for the night. They came with sweet songs and grocories, and after partaking of ice cream, and more music, the party retired, leaving us to rejoice. We are always glad to welcome them in our home. C. MONROE.

On April 22, Mrs. Mary Logan, a faithful member of Williams' Chapel, died in peace. Her remains were laid to rest. A large concourse of relatives and friends attended her funeral.

Dr. Dight, dean of the N. O. U. Medical College, has issued a comprehensive pamphlet and catalogue of that institution. We hope our young people, of suitable age and acquirements, will give the matter of entering this profession full consideration. Send to C. F. Dight, M. D., 1566 Canal street, and procure a catalogue.

The great benefactor of New Orleans University Medical College, Bishop W. F. Mallalieu, D. D., LL. D., has been made happy by the receipt of $10,000, a donation for the Medical College in New Orleans. Praise God for whom all blessings flow.

The missionary work established on North Liberty street by Mr. W. A. Cuddy, assisted by Mr. Edward Wittenburg, gives promise of splendid results. The campaign has begun in earnest, and revival services will be held every night during the next month.

The services at Pleasant Plains last Sunday morning were interesting. The Young Friends' Benevolent Association were present in a body, and the annual sermon was preached to them by the Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN. Rev. D. G. Butler, the pastor, has had phenomenal success at this church—59 additions, and a spiritually and financially revived church to date.

Rev. W. R. Butler, the indefatigable pastor of First Street, with his noble people, are enthusiastic over the prospect of the laying of the corner-stone of the new church, which will take place at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon.

Sunday services were largely attended. Presiding Elder Chinn preached in the morning, Revs. Willard and Johnson at 3 p. m., and the Editor at night.

Rev. W. R. Butler invites everybody to come out to the corner-stone laying at 3 p. m., next Sunday. Dr. A. E. P. Albert will preach the sermon, and it is hoped that the collections will reach $1,000.

Notice to Subscribers.

Occasionally subscribers complain of not receiving their papers. We investigate, and if the fault is ours (which is seldom the case), we correct it. Recently, a pastor in Louisiana mentioned several names who had not received their papers, and, we knowing they had been sent every week, wrote the postmaster of his town and received the following reply:

"Messrs. Hunt & Eaton—In reply to yours of 13th inst., would say that the parties you mention do not get their papers, as they do not call for them. As they are not taken out, perhaps it would be better to discontinue same."

We surmise that the cause stated is generally true in cases of failure. Perhaps they call once or twice and not receiving it, conclude that it is no use to call again. The better way, is to keep calling for a reasonable time, and if it don't come, notify the publishers.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

Concerning the Collection. For the Department of Finance. League at Work Series. By Edwin A. Schell, D. D., General Secretary of the Epworth League; with an introduction by Charles E. Pifer, A. M. Price, 25c net. New York: Hunt & Eaton; Cincinnati: Cranston & Curts.

This is a very serviceable book and is designed to encourage and stimulate the habit of systematic giving. The topics are happily arranged, full of timely suggestions and will doubtless be very helpful in the development of this very important department of our denominational energies. It should find a place in every League and Sunday School library.

"Growth in Holiness" Toward Perfection, or Progressive Sanctification. By Jas. Mudge, D. D. New York: Hunt & Eaton. Cincinnati: Cranston & Curts. Price, $1.

A great many books have been written upon this theme, and there has consequently been no little speculation, and as often confusion. In the opinion of the author, "A large part of the trouble has been that those who have attempted the solution of the problem, have approached it from the wrong standpoint." So in gathering evidences from the Word of God and from the thoughts of many of the great writers on the subject, he has effectually grouped the truth in a most attractive and helpful form, and thus furnishing the reader with stores of abiding good. Holiness is an experience predicated upon ones growth in grace, and there are abundant evidences that only they truly exemplify and enjoy this gracious experience who have grown, are yet growing. Altogether, the author has given a most helpful book and one worthy of the careful and prayerful study of all who would enter into the fullness and richness of the blessing.

The May "Babyland" opens with a funny story. The Marching Play, for Nursery and Kindergarten, will appeal to every child, being about "The House Mouse." This play has pictures by Mr. Bridgman and music by F. E. Saville. 50 cents a year, 5 cents a number. Specimen, back number, sent free upon request. Alpha Publishing Company, Boston.

LESSON HYMN. L. M.

When I survey the wondrous cross
On which the Prince of glory died,
My richest gain I count but loss,
And pour contempt on all my pride.

See, from his head, his hands, his feet,
Sorrow and love flow mingled down;
Did e'er such love and sorrow meet,
Or thorns compose so rich a crown?

Were the whole realm of nature mine,
That were a present far too small;
Love so amazing, so divine,
Demands my soul, my life, my all.

Time.—Friday, April 7, A. D. 30.

Place.—Golgotha: a place "nigh to" Jerusalem, and therefore outside its walls. There was a garden in it, and in the garden a tomb which was the property of Joseph of Arimathea. An old tradition identifies it with the site of the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, which was in Christ's time outside the city; some have identified it with the "Dome of the Rock;" there are other "identifications" also; but the site is not certainly known. "Calvary" is the Latin translation, and "Skull" the English, of its name. It was probably a round-topped hill, and received its name from its shape.

Parallel Passages.—Matt. 27. 38-50; Luke 23. 39-46; John 19. 28-30.

Order of Events on the Cross.—1. The taste of wine (vinegar) and myrrh (gall) (Matt. 27. 34; Mark 15. 23). 2. The crucifixion. 3. The thieves. 4. The prayer: "Father, forgive them." 5. The accusation written. 6. The garments divided. 7. The railing and mocking by people, priests and soldiers. 8. The railing malefactors. 9. The penitent thief. 10. The gazing friends. 11. The mother and Son. 12. The three hours of darkness. 13. The loud cry. 14. The last words (John 19. 30; Luke 23. 46). 15. The bowed head. 16. The veil of the temple rent, the earthquake, the rocks rent, the graves opened. 17. The confession of the centurion and of the people. 18. The blood and water (John 19. 34).

Jesus on the Cross.

(Mark 15. 2137.)

Written for the Southwestern.

By Rev. G. N. Jolly, Kentucky Conference

GOLDEN TEXT.—"While we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." (Rom. 5. 8.)

When Judas saw that Jesus was condemned, he took the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders, cast them down on the marble pavement in the temple, and went out and hanged himself. He confessed his sin, and repented of the same, but instead of seeking pardon he departed and took his life. The priests would not put the money into the treasury, because it was the price of blood. They bought with it the potter's field, in which to bury strangers. There is a repentance that does not lead to salvation.

When Jesus was condemned, He was delivered into the hands of Roman soldiers to be crucified. They took Him into the "common hall," gathered about them the whole band of soldiers, divested Him of His robes, clothed Him in purple, put on His head a crown of thorns, and in His hand a reed. They smote Him, spit upon Him, and worshiped Him. This they did in mockery. They then put on Him His own clothes and led Him away to be crucified. When they started Jesus likely bore His own cross (John 19. 17), but through weakness He gave down. They then compelled Simon of Cyrenia to carry it to the place of crucifixion. We should take up our cross and follow Jesus through evil same as good report. The crucifixion is divided into two periods of three hours each.

1. The period of mockery (23-32). The place where Jesus was crucified was called Golgotha, that is, the place of a skull. It was likely an oval-shaped knoll, and almost barren of trees and grass. The exact location is not known. It was beyond the walls of Jerusalem, but "nigh to the city" (John 19. 20). It was in a garden, and in the garden was a new tomb (John 19. 41). It was near a road (Matt. 27-39). It was the property of Joseph of Arimathea (Matt. 27. 60). The grave of many great men cannot to-day be found.

The drink given to Jesus was wine mingled with myrrh—vinegar mixed with gall. The wine was a cheap sour drink used by the soldiers. The myrrh was a bitter gum obtained from a low thorny tree in Arabia. This was likely mixed with wormwood, or some other stupefying drug. The design of this drink was to deaden the sensibilities, and thus prevent suffering. It was, no doubt, given in mercy. There may be found some sympathy in the most unfeeling hearts. This drink Jesus rejected. He felt it to be His mission to drink the cup His Father gave Him to its bitter dregs. Let us be very slow to take any drug to deaden pain.

The crucifixion of Christ is a sad bit of history. The instrument on which He died was composed of an upright beam and a cross piece. The main timber extended above His head, and to it was nailed the superscription. The cross was laid upon the ground, Jesus was placed upon it, His arms extended and His hands nailed to the wood. It is likely His feet were drawn towards the body until their souls rested flat on the beam, and then spiked fast. After this the cross was raised and allowed to drop with a heavy thud into the hole made for it. We can only imagine the pain caused by such cruelty.

The time of the crucifixion was 9 o'clock in the morning. The Jews began the day at sunset, but the second twelve hours began at sunrise, or 6 a. m. The Lesson says—"It was the third hour, and they crucified Him." The four soldiers that nailed Him to the cross now took their seats beside Him to see that He was not removed. While thus guarding Him they cast lots for His clothes. This was a fulfillment of prophecy. "They parted my garments among them, and cast lots upon my vesture" (Psa. 22. 18). See how cold and unfeeling men can become.

The superscription nailed above the head of Jesus was written in Latin, Greek and Hebrew. These were the leading languages of that age. They indicated empire, culture and religion. We read—"This is Jesus, the King of the Jews" (Matt.); "The King of the Jews" (Mark); "This is the King of the Jews" (Luke); "Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews" (John). Pilate gave Jesus up to be crucified because He acknowledged He was "the King of the Jews." The four evangelists show this to be the thought in the superscription. All that went before it was the prefix. Mark has omitted all of it. Each of the others have given parts of it. Pilate may have written—"This is Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews." It was written in mockery, yet a truer thought was never printed. Jesus is a King, not of the Jews only, but of all nations.

Jesus was crucified between two thieves. Thus the Scripture—"He was numbered with the transgressors"—was fulfilled. One abused Him for not saving them and Himself. The other feared God, acknowledged his guilt, said his punishment was just, and begged that Jesus would remember him when He came into His kingdom. Jesus said—"To-day shalt thou be with me in Paradise." The blessed Christ always saves the penitent, confessing, praying sinner. This is the only "death-bed" conversion in the Bible. God has given one to show that it is possible, only one to teach that it is not probable.

2. The period of darkness (33-37). It began at noon, and lasted three hours. It was not an eclipse of the sun, for it was at the full of the moon. It was a miracle. Nature was in sympathy with the Son of God now dying on the cross. It was that sign from heaven for which the Pharisees had mockingly asked. By it the people were awed. They became silent. All mocking ceased. No event of theirs is recorded while it lasted. How awful are the transgressions of men.

The seven sayings of Jesus while on the cross are impressive. When the cross fell with a heavy jolt into the hole made for it Jesus prayed—"Father forgive them, for they know not what they do." When the penitent thief confessed his sin, and begged for pardon, Jesus said—"To-day shalt thou be with me in Paradise." When He saw His mother and John standing nearby, He said to her—"Woman behold thy son," and to John—"Behold thy mother." When His suffering were intense He cried—"My God! My God, why hast Thou forsaken me?" When His wounds had created a burning fever He said—"I thirst." When the work the Father gave Him to do was completed He cried—"It is finished." He then cried with a loud voice—"Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit." He gave up the ghost. The Spirit took its flight. The head fell forward on the breast. All is over. The world is redeemed. He "suffered for sins, the just for the unjust." "He died for us." When He expired on the cross there was an earthquake. Rocks were rent, graves were opened, after Jesus arose, many saints came forth, entered the holy city, and appeared unto many. The veil of the temple was rent in twain. This was the great veil of purple and gold that divided the holy place from the holy of holies. It was about sixty feet long and thirty broad. God declared by this act that He no longer dwelt there, that the work of salvation was completed, that the prophecies concerning Christ were fulfilled, that the middle wall between Jesus and Gentiles was removed, and that the Old covenant with its priesthood and sacrifices was at an end, and the New Covenant of grace was now inaugurated.

Between the young life and the temptations of an evil world God has set the Christian home. Can anything be more pitiful than this home should open its doors to temptation, letting the poisioned atmosphere of unnatural excitement banish the sweet serenity that should breathe through it? There is not a community where half a dozen determined Christian households, working together, might not bring about any social reform they thought desirable in their own circle, and such homes would be sanctuaries of blessing to all coming within their influence. Why not unite to keep up a round of informal, simple, home receptions; for reading, for study, for music, for entertainment—for anything rational that shall make prominent the idea of mutual helpfulness, and the fact that we are in this world for growth and education and advance, and not as simple, irresponsible pleasure-seekers.—Emily Huntington Miller.

A LUNG GYMNASIUM.

The Rev. J. T. Wilhide, a Methodist minister, has invented a new breathing tube, which he calls the EXHALER, which is in reality a Lung Gymnasium, as the use of it will widen and strengthen every one of the six million air cells in the lungs, whether diminished by tubercle or not, increase their activity and strengthen the elasticity of their tissue, making consumption almost impossible. It is equal to the very best elocutionary exercise to strengthen the throat and vocal organs, deepen and enrich the voice and increase its power. It introduces 2 to 4 times more air into the lungs, consuming a large quantity of oxygen, and so purifies the blood, increases the circulation, relieves congestions and many morbid conditions of the system. The price is only $1 50 by mail, postpaid. An illustrated descriptive circular will be sent on application. E. H. MORSE, 631 Poydras St., New Orleans.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

Presiding Elder Edward L. Gilliam, Lexington Conference.

Since the adjournment of our conference at Maysville, we have gone to work on the "New Indiana District," and trust, by the help of the pastors and under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, to bring up a good report when we meet next year in Louisville, Ky. We have had but seven short weeks of this conference year in which to labor, and yet, although there were twenty-four changes on this district, the pastors have all settled down to work without complaining, and the people have accepted the changes without grumbling.

We have organized a new church with 17 members at Columbus, Ind.; have more than $300 raised for the erection of a brick edifice at Muncie; plans on foot to secure a lot at Alexandria, Ind.; a permanent place of worship, with a good attendance, secured in Chicago, and every pastor determined to make this the banner year of his ministry. "No steps backward" is the motto of the new Indiana District, and we are determined, God helping us, to lead the districts this year. Special efforts are being put forth by the pastors to raise their benevolences early in the year.

At every point I am urging the people to subscribe for the SOUTHWESTERN, and have secured the services of several persons to act as agents for me. I am resolved to make a determined effort to secure the 250 subscribers pledged at Maysville.

Our Epworth Leagues will do more effective work this year than ever before, while the missionary spirit is being developed in the Sabbath schools to a greater degree.

While the pastors are doing heroic work, I would not overlook the faithful and efficient help rendered by our noble superannuated brother, Rev. John Downs, at Muncie, to whose efforts is due largely the success that has attended us thus far.

There are forty-eight preaching places on the district as it now stands, and it embraces all of the State of Indiana, the eastern part of Illinois, and the Kentucky towns on and near the Ohio river, from just below Louisville to Cairo, Ill.

I shall travel at least 14,000 miles during the year, and should I hold the quarterly conference, I shall not be burdened with any surplus time on my hands.

Our district conference is to be held in Terre Haute, Ind., August 7 11, and Pastor Taylor and officers are busily engaged in raising funds to erect a new church by that time. The editor of the SOUTHWESTERN is cordially invited to be present.

Natchitoches District.

Notwithstanding the hardships that we are undergoing, and being deprived of many necessities of life, we thank God for the beautiful spring.

Brother Willis Carr went to Cades and Brother James Lopez to Boyce—the two thought the change desirable. They are encouraged and speak well for the future.

Brother H. W. Welsh, at Fairmount, has the work well in hand and it never looked brighter; people happy, as is the preacher.

Brother A. W. Goins, at Chapin, has things in good shape. This is a large field and hope that he will cover the ground.

Brother J. R. Williams, at Colfax, is hopeful, and there are indications of success.

Brother James Roberson, at Robeline, owing to a little friction at one of his churches, gave it up; otherwise, he is holding his own.

Brother John Sparks supplies New Town with indications of success.

Brother J. J. Ohee, at Marthaville, speaks well of his League in revival; he is succeeding at all of his points.

Brother W. Harrison, at Pleasant Hill, is holding things in his usual way, and is striving to master a small debt.

Brother Alfred McGlocklin, at Bedford, is himself again; people glad of his return. He is making preparations for our district conference and rallying his forces as none before.

Brother John Coleman, formerly supplying Springfellow and having been suspended, Brother W. C. Archie fills the place so far satisfactorily.

Brother John W. Lewis, at Coushatta, takes well among all. The outlook is bright. He has covered the parsonage.

Brother J. F. Fisher, at Alpha, left his work, and is being supplied for the present by Brother Jacob Stephens.

Brother M. S. Goens, at Compte, is a good fit; he has affairs in pretty good shape; large congregations fill the church.

Brother M. C. Harrison, at Lake End, gave up the work and Brother Fairfax fills the hill satisfactorily to all.

Brother M. T. Fairfax, at Allen, is abounding in work and everything looks bright for success. The new church will be occupied in the next thirty days.

Brother H. C. Chatman, at Cane River (Mount Sterling), is succeeding well.

Brother J. S. Wright, at St. Maurice, is striving hard for the church; he is a young man full of vim.

Brother Wm. Ector, at Columbus, is doing well. He has just finished a church at Aunacoco, where we held the conference, and is a nice little building. At Leesville he is about to build another. He will be a church builder in the near future.

Brother M. J. Dyer, at Natchitoches, mourns the death of his estimable wife, which occurred March 5. Sister Dyer was a wonderful woman, with hardly an equal in the State as a vocalist and worker for her church. Her place cannot be filled and her death touches us all. We can but bow in sympathy with our brother. She was sick only nine days and none thought her end was so near. Brother Dyer, the trustees and brethren have moved the old church from the corner, where the new one is to be built, and placed it in the rear portion of the church lot, and fixed it up, preparing for the new church, and when it is up, the old building will be used for school purposes, as an auxiliary to New Orleans University.

Notes on the District:

At Pleasant Hill, Miss P. L. Cauine has a good school in our church.

Rev. Father Nathan Taylor, one of the best friends we have, is confined to his bed. The district prays God to spare his life to us a while longer.

Brothers Welsh, Lapaz, Lewis and M. S. Goins are our new men. They, of course, will be watched by the old men. Brother Welsh leads so far.

Brother McGlocklin lead in benevolent money, also in finance; Brother Dyer in accessions, last year.

E. T. Roberson, Esq., of Bedford, La., has tendered his teams to Brother McGlocklin to transfer the people from Mansfield and Bock during our district conference.

Mr. Hutchison, Landry and all the white friends are interested in our conference here.

Brothers Sparks, Ohee and this presiding elder put in one good day's work on our church at Many, in finishing up. We held three services in our new church at this place.

This trip we went where we had never gone before. The times are closer on money matters than in the history of the oldest inhabitants of the country.

The people are pushing on with their crops in advance of last year, and prospects were never better in Red River, Natchitoches, Sabine, Grant, Rapides, DeSoto and Vernon. These we have traveled. The cane will be short; this cuts off our molasses and other comforts this fall. With renewed energy with preachers and God's help, we expect to come up in good shape. Yours, Leesville, La. H. J. WRIGHT.

Taking

it for granted that you want to get the best results in painting, you will have to use Pure White Lead to obtain them. There are many mixtures branded "White Lead," "Pure White Lead," etc., which contain little, if any, White Lead, but are principally barytes, which is of little value, if not worthless. To be sure, accept only a genuine brand (see list).

If you want any shade of color, tint the White Lead with National Lead Co.'s tinting colors, prepared expressly for this purpose. A feature of these colors is the ease with which they are used and the exactness with which the desired shade is obtained. For particulars send for pamphlet, free.

FROM PRESIDING ELDERS.

Tupelo District—

Dear Brethren—The first session of the district conference for Tupelo District, Upper Mississippi Conference, will convene in St. Paul M. E. Church, July 25-28. And the Sunday School and Epworth League will meet July 23-24. Now let each pastor see that the Leagues and school send $2 to the institute. Let the pastors please come prepared to report that every local preacher and exhorter in his charge is taking the SOUTHWESTERN. That will make a good show for you. All members bring written reports. Yours,

S. H. NEVILS, P. E.

Hot Springs District—

Dear Brethren—Do your best to make your benevolence report in full by the district conference. Don't fail to keep up the matter of your benevolence assessments. Do all possible to collect your entire assessments by the time of the district meeting, and try to be ready to make a full report on benevolences. The brother who will trust in God's promises will not fail to succeed as a minister, and those who work the hardest for God and Church will find more coming to them. All things are possible with God. Do your best, and send money to treasurer as soon as collected. Don't forget the SOUTHWESTERN. Do everything possible to put the paper in the homes of the people of your charge. The brother that will bring up to the district conference the largest number over 25 of six months and one year subscribers for the paper will be entitled to draw on the presiding elder of the district for a handsome and valuable present as a premium. Let us pray and labor for a year of grand success.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

OUR FALLEN HEROES—

MEMORIAL DAY, MAY 30.

Tens of thousands of grateful people will make pilgrimages on memorial day to the various places where sleep the sleep of death some of earth's greatest heroes. They will go to these shrines, not to worship the dead, but to strew flowers upon the graves of those who have covered themselves with an earthly immortality. It is a high privilege to stand amid bust, and shaft, and urn, and tomb, and more unpretentious tablet to be reminded that these all died in the defense of the Union. Believing in the supremacy of the law they marched forward with unswerving devotion, and stood by the National government when it was assailed by those who had sworn to protect and defend it. Thanks be unto God for the triumph of these noble men—martyrs they were for freedom. They perished, indeed, in the grandest conflict of modern times, but they decided the destiny of this nation. And this decision saved the Republic and liberated a race. This day comes to us with great and important lessons. Standing by the graves of our honored dead, we are reminded of the progress which our great country has made during thirty years of peace. Thirty years under the grand old flag which has stood for the Union and the constitution since the stirring days of "'76." There have been mighty strides toward the unity of the people, the burial of sectional hatred and strife, during these thirty years. With the exception of a persistent disposition in some localities to honor the memories and lift to the dignity of martyrs those who sought to destroy the institutions which we now enjoy, it is pleasant to recognize an increasing spirit of loyalty and patriotism in all sections of our great Republic. Is it not an increasing evidence that the people, with enlightened reason and a pure conscience, will take a more active part in the development and perpetuity of our "government of the people, by the people, and for the people," and which, under God, "shall not perish from the earth."

Let us then be grateful to Almighty God that the cause for which these noble heroes fought, bled and died, represented the unity of those institutions, which are the pride and glory of all loyal Americans. We owe them a debt of gratitude. Pilgrimages to the silent cities of the dead, where they sleep the sleep of the brave, eulogies of their heroism and prowess, the erection of monuments to perpetuate their memory, are in perfect keeping with the spirit of a grateful people. Even this is not enough. While we cherish their memories, let us treasure up their deeds and solemnly resolve, since they bequeathed to us such a noble legacy, that we will see to it that these glorious institutions shall be protected and defended forever. To the widows and orphans of these heroes, and to those veterans who now survive and bear the scars of many battles, the nation owes at least generous words, and such provisions for their welfare, as the higher and better instincts of loyalty, patriotism and humanity may dictate.

—President Cleveland has refused executive clemency to Editor Chase (colored) of the Washington Bee, who was convicted of malicious libel. In handing down his refusal, the president said: "This crime is a most detestable one. It has become so common and is so seldom punished that I cannot reconcile executive clemency in the case here presented with the duty I owe to decent journalism, the peace of society, and the protection of those constantly subjected to libelous attack."

THE BLACK REGIMENT.

By GEORGE HENRY BAKER, in Zion's Herald.

Dark as the clouds of even
Banked in the western heaven,
Waiting the breath that lifts
All the dead mass, and drifts
Tempest and falling brand
Over a ruined land,—
So still and orderly,
Arm to arm, knee to knee,
Waiting for the great event,
Stands the black regiment.

Down the long dusky line
Teeth gleam and eyeballs shine;
And the bright bayonet,
Bristling and firmly set,
Flashed with a purpose grand,
Long ere the sharp command
Of the fierce rolling drum
Told them their time had come.
Told them what work was sent
For the black regiment.

"Now," the flag-sergeant cried,
"Though death and hell betide,
Let the whole nation see
If we are fit to be
Free in this land; or bound
Down, like the whining hound,—
Bound with red stripes of pain
In our cold chains again!"
Oh, what a shout there went
From the black regiment!

"Charge!" Trump and drum awoke;
Onward the bondmen broke;
Bayonet and sabre-stroke
Vainly opposed their rush.
Through the wild battle's crush,
With but one thought aflush,
Driving their lords like chaff,
In the guns' mouths they laughed;
Or at the slippery brands
Leaping with open hands,
Down they tear man and horse,
Down in their awful course;
Trampling with bloody heel
Over the crashing steel,—
All their eyes forward bent,
Rushed the black regiment.

"Freedom!" their battle-cry,—
"Freedom! or leave to die!"
Ah! and they meant the word,
Not as with us 'tis heard,
Not a mere party shout;
They gave their spirits out,
Trusted the end to God,
And on the gory sod
Rolled in triumphant blood.
Glad to strike one free blow,
Whether for weal or woe;
Glad to breathe one free breath,
Though on the lips of death;
Praying—alas! in vain!
That they might fall again,
So they could once more see
That burst to liberty!
This was what "freedom" lent
To the black regiment.

Hundreds on hundreds fell,
But they are resting well;
Scourges and shackles strong
Never shall do them wrong.
Oh, to the living few,
Soldiers, be just and true!
Hail them as comrades tried;
Fight with them side by side;
Never, in field or tent,
Scorn the black regiment.

"THE COTTON STATES EXPOSITION."

Under the above caption, Editor H. C. Smith, of the Cleveland Gazette, speaks his piece in the most emphatic way. He says:

"The South does not recognize Afro-American gentlemen or ladies Neither hotels, nor restaurants, nor public places of amusement, nor railroads, nor educational institutions, nor elemosynary institutions, nor rest cures are open to the man of color in common with other men." [Italics ours.—ED.]

For these and many other reasons the Gazette urges our people not to attend the coming Exposition at Atlanta, Ga. While we are willing to acknowledge the truthfulness of many of the statements contained in the very able editorials, we believe that there are many, very many people in this prejudice cursed Southland who are generous enough, and magnanimous enough to recognize the true merit of their colored fellow-citizens, and they are doing all they can to mitigate the rigors of the terrible ostracism to which our genial confere calls attention. Our official duties require us to travel extensively through the Southland, where we have been frequently subjected to the treatment referred to. We find often very bitter prejudice in the North. Nevertheless, in spite of all these things, we do recognize an increasing spirit of tolerance, and a disposition to regard the better class of Negroes as worthy of recognition at least. The Cotton Exposition at Atlanta promises to be a big affair, and sentiment is very much divided as to the propriety of our colored people attending, either as exhibitors or as visitors. It should be understood that the Cotton States Exposition should not be held responsible for the discomforts to which colored people may be subject in transit to and from Atlanta. Several of the States have laws which compel the railroad companies to provide separate accommodations for colored passengers. We know, however, that the commissioners, both white and colored, are doing all in their power to secure for their colored visitors that treatment which will be entirely satisfactory.

After a careful study of the situation and weighing all the circumstances, we give it as our deliberate opinion, that if our colored people will make a creditable display of those products which are distinctively their own; if they will bring to this Exposition the results of their own achievements in literature, and science, and philosophy, and of their proficiency in the various social, domestic, industrial and mechanical departments, it will go farther toward breaking up the accursed prejudice against them than anything that has ever happened. It will, we verily believe, furnish to the Southern people, and all people for that matter, an opportunity for knowing that the Negro can advance under the most adverse circumstances, and is "not wanting in manhood, in courage, in moral character, and in all those virtues that distinguish the man from the brute."

The Negro is making a gallant fight in the South, against overwhelming odds. They are "coming up through great tribulations," and they will succeed, for the very reason that they insist on taking an active part in all that pertains to the development of the great South—socially, morally and politically, and in every other way; everywhere, where true merit is the test. If they "sulk in their tents," they will not only lose the opportunities which might otherwise furnish the inspiration for the development of the manhood of the race. We sincerely wish the able editor of the Gazette could see it in a better light, and that he would waive his objections. We have profound respect for his able opinions, and recognize him as one of the safest of our leaders. But we wish he could see the matter from the standpoint which we take, and come and, by actual contact with these Southern people, get an experience which we believe would enable him to present the case in a less gloomy form.

We believe it would be a capital idea to have the Afro-American Press Association hold its annual meeting at Atlanta sometime during the Exposition. By all means, let us go to the Cotton States Exposition with the best we have of brain and muscle—of hand, and head, and heart—with the firm conviction that we will be able to say, We came, we saw, we conquered.

—Rev. Henry Swann, presiding elder of the Waco District of the West Texas Conference, sends us a kind invitation to attend the next session of his district conference, and at the same time encloses his pledge card for 25 or more cash subscribers in addition to the large list which he has already sent in. Oh, for [illegible] Swanns!

EDUCATIONAL.

The Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

Commencement occurs Thursday, May 30. During commencement week there will be a number of exercises held here representative of the work done at the institution. The commencement sermon will be preached by Rev. E. Winchester Donald, D. D., of Trinity Church, Boston.

Our fruit and vegetable crop this year promises to be very large. Most of the vegetables consumed by the school are raised on its farms.

The Senior's Model Home, now in process of erection, is to be used exclusively for the young women of the senior class. In this building the young women of the senior class will room. One of the ends sought is to give the seniors an idea of a model home.

The class of '95 contains teachers, farmers, scientists, carpenters, printers, a preacher, dressmakers, cooks, lawdresses, nurses, and in fact almost every kind of craftsmen.

Every girl who graduates this year will wear a dress made by her own hands.

"Make a way," is the motto of the class of '95.

Mr. S. Laing Williams, one of Chicago's most noted colored lawyers, will deliver the annual address.

A fish pond is being made here. Fish will be sent to it by the Fish Commission at Washington.

Bennett College.

Pursuant to notice the Board of Trustees of Bennett College met in the office of the president of the institution, May 15, in their annual session. Those present were: Revs. J. D. Chavis, J. P. Morris, L. B. Gibson, W. P. Hayes, E. M. Collet; Messrs. A. A. Mendenhall, D. B. Yancey, C. H. Moore, and Mrs. Grace Nelson.

After a careful inquiry and investigation into the work done by the president, Rev. J. D. Chavis, and his faculty, during the past year, the trustees heartily and unanimously commended and endorsed his administration. They also made special inquiry concerning the income and expenses of the institution, the result of which proved very satisfactory, indeed, considering the financial stringency. The school has been in an usually prosperous condition during the past year, there having been about two hundred students enrolled. The best of all, there were scarcely half a dozen who had not professed a saving faith in our Lord and Savior.

The commencement exercises were very excellent. They took place Wednesday evening in St. Matthew's M. E. Church. Rev. J. W. E. Bowen, D. D., of Gammon Theological Seminary, delivered the annual address. It was a masterful, forceful and practical one from beginning to the finish.

The trustees discussed at some length the question of conferring degrees, as there were a few candidates for such honors before them. After looking at both sides of the question, it was agreed that the Board be very cautious and careful about bestowing such honors, unless they were fully aware of the fact that the person upon whom it is to be bestowed merits it on account of his scholarship, usefulness and moral standing.

After recommending President Chavis and Prof. J. P. Morris to the Parent Board at Cincinnati, Ohio, for re-election, the trustees adjourned. C. H. MOORE.

Greensboro, N. C., May 20, 1895.

Political Reform.

A Call for a National Conference.

The advocates of political reform, representing various views and various methods of procedure, unite in a call for a National Conference to be held in the University Temple, Prohibition Park, Staten Island, June 28 to July 4.

The object of the conference is to be an interexchange of views on the following leading questions:

1. No manufacture or sale of alcoholic liquor for medical or other use except by the State and Federal Government; total Prohibition for beverage purposes.

2. The details of the Tariff regulated by a National Bureau.

3. No monopolies or Trusts dealing in the necessities of life and preventing fair competition.

4. The ownership by the Government—Federal, State or Municipal—of railroads, telephones and telegraphs.

5. Civil Service Reform rigidly applied to non political offices.

6. Woman Suffrage.

7. Tax Reform.

8. Bi-Metalism.—Monometalism.—Free Coinage of Silver and Gold.—The demonetization of both gold and silver.

9. A National Currency issued by the Federal Government only, exchangeable in gold and silver bullion at the option of the Government; in gold bullion at the rate of 25.8 grains (standard) to the dollar, and in silver bullion of an equivalent market value.

10. The election, by direct vote, of United States Senators.

11. The system of proportional representation.

The discussion shall be open alike to those who are friendly or hostile to these various views, believing that the way to reach a closer union is through free speech and a clearer understanding of the views held by all. E. J. WHEELER,

Temporary Secretary,

30 Lafayette Place, New York.

The call is signed by some of the most eminent gentlemen and ladies in the United States, among whom are: B. O. Flower, editor of "Arena," Boston, Mass.; Mary E. Lease, Kansas; Rev. W. F. Crafts, secretary of the Bureau of National Reform, Washington, D. C.; A. B. Leonard, D. D., corresponding secretary of the M. E. Church, New York; Frances E. Willard, president National W. C. T. U.; I. K. Funk, D. D., president of Funk & Wagnalls Company, New York, and others.

GOOD WORDS.

From a Presiding Elder.

Rev. Dr. Wesley Prettyman, presiding elder Birmingham District, Central Alabama Conference, says:

"We enjoy and highly approve the SOUTHWESTERN, and pleased to do all we can to increase subscriptions."

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

The Colored Ministry of the M. E. Church.

The Magnitude of the Work.

By R. E. GILLUM, Central Missouri Conference.

The nature and object suggests the vastness of the task which one assumes in writing on this subject. We frankly acknowledge our inability to treat it as it should be, and plead as an excuse for its introduction, the timeliness of such a discussion.

Man has ever been a worshiping being, whether in his savage stage or in the highest state of civilization, and as such, has always had his religious teacher.

The ministry is ordained of God and has been adapted by Him to the different dispensations of His church. If the law was our school master to bring us to Christ, and the types and shadows of the Old Testament were fulfilled in the New, we conclude that the ministry of the Christian Church surpasses that of the old, as far as the antitype surpasses the type. There are positions which men aspire to and think themselves happy if they attain them.

The higher the position sought, the greater the effort to reach it, and the honor conferred on the successful candidate; but the office of the Methodist preacher is not one to be sought because of the honor and profit accruing therefrom. The man who stands in a Methodist pulpit, unless he be an imposter or deluded by a distorted judgment, occupies the highest position ever conferred by Infinite Power and Wisdom on mortal man, and commensurate to the honor and dignity of the calling is, the responsibility which rests on the individual called of God to preach the Gospel. Every man who is worthy of the name of a preacher, feels his inability and would avoid such a weighty responsibility if he dare do so. Yea, he feels that he is not meet to be called a preacher, and that he is the least of all; but, like the great apostle, he says, "Though I preach the Gospel, I have nothing to glory of, for necessity is laid upon me; yea, woe is unto me if I preach not the Gospel. For, if I do this thing willingly, I have a reward; but if against my will, a dispensation of the Gospel is committed unto me."

How the words of the Master should ring in the ears of the true minister, saying, "As Thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into world." If we understand the import of these and similar scriptures which shed light on this theme, the preacher does not arrogate to himself the honor and dignity of this high calling, but has a conscientious call to it from above; and let it be understood that we distinguish between a Divine call to the ministry and a blind impulse born of selfish ambition. It was pertinently said by a president of the United States once, when asked for an appointment by a clergyman, "You have a higher position than it is in my power to give you." A proper conception of the calling is indispensible, that the preacher may, by pains-taking effort, accomplish the greatest results. The Apostle Paul said, "Inasmuch as I am the Apostle of the Gentiles, I magnify mine office." Paul's thorough knowledge of the vastness of the work, his own weakness and the fearful consequences that follow any neglect upon his part, filled him with holy aspirations, kept him vigilant and alarmed with fear, until he exclaimed, "Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended, but, this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

International complications render wise diplomacy absolutely necessary, and those who have the appointing of the men to fill this high and important function and are careful to select men renowned for their patriotism and their knowledge of international law. The [illegible] of the city government dependents largely upon the wisdom and faithfulness of its representative. This only throws a dim light on the culling of the ministry. He is called of God because of his moral and mental fitness to represent the Divine government to fallen humanity.

We do not wish to be understood as saying that man is perfectly qualified, either morally or mentally, for the ministry, but that such qualifications do come into the count. The preacher is not sent to teach his views or theory, but carry a message received of God as revealed in the Bible.

The one business of the preacher is to know this message and so deliver it as to make it effectual in saving men or leaving them without excuse.

What we have said applies to the ministry in general. We now desire to speak of some of the peculiarities of the colored ministry of the M. E. Church. In a former article we said the relation of the colored ministers of the M. E. Church to the two races made them responsible for the proper solution of the race problem. While there is no law dividing the white and colored congregations, circumstances does so divide them.

The condition of the American Negro, as a consequence of slavery, renders the work of his ministry exceedingly difficult. Every vestage of the image of God that it was possible for an iniquitous institution to destroy was destroyed. A bare possibility of God's amazing grace is all that was left, and then to add to the difficulty, there were not enough colored preachers of intelligence for the stupendous work at the time of the emancipation and the confidence of the colored people in the sincerity of the friendship of white people was so shaken, that those of them who were loyal and true could not reach them.

Therefore it devolved on the colored ministry to lift up these oppressed people, though a large percent of the men thus put into the pulpit were wholly unqualified. They were not only required to preach, but they must help the people out of their poverty and ignorance, and teach them how to care for their bodies. It will avail little to preach to people not to steal, who are naked and hungry, and more especially is this true, if the audience has been robbed of its conscience, or if the conscience has been wrongly educated. If the Methodist Church has not been able to do all she desired, she has rendered incalculable aid through her colored ministry, in holding up the Prophet's hands.

The Summer Excursion.

The SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE calls the following from the New Orleans Tribune a bit of "downright, hard hoss sense," and so it is:

"Spring time has come, and notwithstanding the levee outrages, the Jim Crow cars and the concubinage bills, and numerous other outrages, some of the Negro preachers are busy already planning summer excursions. When will the Negro preacher learn to be a man and respect himself and race more than a silver dollar? If the existing circumstances are not sufficient to disgust the Negro preacher with railroad excursions, we don't know what will convince him."

This is rather tough on the precious preachers, but is well deserved. The clergy is expected not to lend its influence to those demoralizing summer outings, and if the interests of the race are consulted opposition, and not an active acquiescence, 'is to be expected. The clergy is a concededly powerful ally for good or evil and its influence is needed on the side of earnest protest against those things which tend to moral or financial demoralization of the race.—Texas Freeman.

People rightly have faith in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, more than in any other blood medicine.

Those who have secured the numbers thus far issued of that splendid Holy Land art portfolio series, "Earthly Footsteps of the Man of Galilee," are most enthusiastic regarding the religious, educational and art value of the work. The entire set of 24 parts only costs $3.40 and [illegible].

WATCH TOWER.

Pound Cake for the Children

BY UNCLE THOMAS.

Unhappy is a very bad chicken. Some boys and girls keep him in their house nearly all the time; he is so much like Dissatisfaction that you can hardly tell the difference between them. So, when you find them around your door, run them out, and keep them out forever more. I have named a few of the chickens, so that you may know what sort of creatures they are; that when you find them around your door. run them out, and you will be satisfied, good-humored and happy—playmates and friends will be happy. "Consider the lilies of the valley, how they grow," and the birds, how they sing, beautifying and making merry our homes. Why should children not do the same? They can grow pretty, sing sweet and make home pleasant and loved ones happy. God, the creator of all things, loves His little ones. He has blessed you with life and music. Sing good songs and praise His holy name. Run the little chickens out and keep them out forever.

Now I am going to change my subject some, and I am going to tell you some things that I want you to always remember. There is a great evil prevalent in the land, and it not only affects the guilty, but the innocent; the (infant) dear little baby, who can only smile in token of its love for mamma, papa and friends. It, with the millions of others, is caused to suffer from the destructive rage of this evil and curse upon mankind. A revolution to check its course has already been started. But its greatest battles are to be fought and noblest victories achieved by the little boys and girls of this nineteenth century. Men of to-day can only build the arsenals, enlist the armies and drill them for the great battle to be fought. There is no time to be lost, for the great day of battle is at hand. Boys and girls, muster up courage and be ready to do your part in the work. This great evil and enemy to the human race is ALCOHOL, better known by the names of whisky, brandy, wine, rum, gin, beer, ale, and all such spiritous, vinous and malt liquors, as are dealt out by the man who stands behind the bar. These liquors are drank by some poor child's father, mother, sister or brother; relative or friend of the family.

"Remember, child, remember,
That God is in the sky.
That He looks down on all we do,
With an ever-wakeful eye."

COOPER, Texas, April 20, 1895.

Dear Editor—I am a girl 13 years of age. My father is a pastor of the M. E. Church here, and the SOUTHWESTERN has been coming to our house more than six years and mamma loves to read of the good tidings. I think papa is doing a good work this year, and he is preparing to build a new church.

To Our Young Readers.

I want to ask all of the Sunday School scholars a question. It is this: How many times is the eagle mentioned in the Bible? I will give a nice present to the one who sends in the first correct answer. The answer must be accompanied with the proofs. I will give the name of the successful contestant in the SOUTHWESTERN. Write to H. HESLUP. Morton, Miss.

Send for sample copies, and start a SOUTHWESTERN revival on every charge. It will "win its way" if you present it faithfully.

Publishers Southwestern Advocate—We have perfected a portfolio holder with appropriate side stamp in gold, for holding the 24 numbers of the "Earthly Footsteps," when completed. In order to stimulate every one who has procured the original number or numbers to continue to take them throughout the series, we have decided to offer this portfolio holder to your readers who may thus complete the 24 numbers, absolutely free of charge. For the SOUTHWESTERN.

How Debt Robs and Enslaves Its Victims.

Testimony of a Southerner Against the Lien Laws.

The great majority of our colored people own nothing; or worse than this, they are in the bondage of debt. Their sad state is not to be wondered at, seeing that the white farmers are largely in the same condition. The Negro started out in the struggle without anything. In most cases he had to go in debt and give a lien on his crop in order to secure a farm and to keep his family in supplies. Debt, however incurred, is a curse. It robs the poor man; it breaks many a heart; it keeps a man in practical slavery to others.

Our hatred of the whole credit system in the South has been newly aroused by the reading of a book, by Mr. Aiken, a leading Southerner, with the title, "The Ills of the South." What a terrible indictment of the whole lien-law system is given in the following words:

"These lien laws have been the occasion of many unscrupulous transactions. Fair-minded, straight forward dealers, in large number, have not abused these instruments, but rascality has feasted on the opportunity. Signatures have been forged to notes; figures altered; a pound avordupois, according to the black code, contains 12 ounces, and a yard 25 inches. Poor Negro! Poor, ignorant white man! How you have suffered at the hands of the Philistines! Meanness, trickery and fraud have had full sweep at many an unfortunate victim."

Coming, as this does, from a loyal and intelligent Southerner, who has for years made a careful investigation of the whole credit system, it shows under what fearful odds the poor, ignorant blacks and whites have had to struggle. We have often feared that such grievious cheating was going on, that the poor, untaught Negro was being robbed of the results of his own labor and fleeced often out of his last dollar. Now we know it is so, on the authority of one who has the facts at his command, and who exposes the state of the ruinous credit system, in the interests of his fellowmen.

We again plead with the people to keep out of debt, live on scanty supplies till they are free from its burden. Raise your own home supplies; pay cash for what you buy; you thus get better goods and more of them. Once out of debt, you are a free man and have a fair chance in the struggle for independence and wealth. Buy land; build homes; educate your children. By this method, the Negro race in a single generation will silence all croakers against them, and will begin to take its rightful place among the most enlightened and progressive people of the earth.

Another Message to Robert Ingersoll.

On May 8 Colonel Ingersoll delivered his lecture on "The Bible," at Bangor, Me. Chaplain McCabe was passing through the city on his way to the seat of East Maine Conference. He had an hour to spend waiting for a train, and he went up to the Daily News office and asked permission to send a message to the colonel through its columns. Permission was granted, and the following is the message as it appeared in the columns of the Daily News on the morning of the day Colonel Ingersoll delivered his lecture:

"Dear Colonel—"While you have been lecturing against the Bible, the Methodists have built ten thousand new churches in this country. All other denominations have built ten thousand more at least. Meanwhile, you have not overthrown the humblest altar upon the farthest frontiers of this republic.

"In thirty years the Methodist Episcopal Church has increased its membership from nine hundred thousand to twenty-eight hundred thousand, and her church and school property has increased one hundred and twenty-five millions of dollars. Never were we so successful as now. In heathen lands orphanages and hospitals and asylums for children, for the sick, for the aged, and for the insane, spring up as if by magic. Thirty-five years ago we had but one convert in all the heathen world. Now we have one hundred and thirty-five thousand converts in foreign lands, and they give over three hundred thousand dollars a year to propagate the faith.

"Come and join the Methodists, Robert! Stranger things than that have happened. Saul of Tarsus joined the Christians. He built up the faith he sought so vainly to destroy. Come and do the same. We are praying for your conversion. Take your Bible; read the Sermon on the Mount; think what a world this would be if its teachings were universally obeyed. Meantime look out for your hammer. The seal of the Huguenots had on it a representation of an anvil surrounded by broken hammers and this legend:

'Hammer away, ye hostile hands;
Your hammers break,
God's anvil stands.'

Our Houston Correspondence.

HOUSTON, Texas, May 15, 1895.

Dr. Hammond—I have just closed a three weeks' protracted meeting at Mt. Vernon Church, which resulted in 35 conversions and accessions. It was in every way a grand and glorious meeting. Rev. Wm. Bartley, P. E.; Rev. J. T. Gibbons of Oakland, Texas; Rev. S. M. Bolden of Conroe; Revs. G. Todd, O. I. Jones and Dr. W. Hamilton, of this city, preached able sermons to my people, for which we are all greatly indebted to them.

On consenting to come to this congregation at conference I had in mind to revive it, and also pay their large and beautiful church edifice out of debt as soon as possible thereafter. I can now praise God for having succeeded in raising the money and lifting several very grievous notes against the church in five months. The members and friends of this church are rallying remarkably well. We will soon be in a position to take up our Church Extension debt which has run badly behind, and do our honest duty by the same. We raised $115 Easter Sabbath, which was probably the largest in the Texas Conference.

We have the Children's Day program, entitled "The Golden Gate," by Dr. C. H. Payne, and are preparing to make June 9 a great day for education at Mt. Vernon.

Yours truly, F. PARKER.

Tennessee River District.

I have completed my second round. Some of the brethren had a good many hardships during the winter, but they did not despair of hope. So we set our watch, and made our prayer unto God, I was able to meet all of my appointments. Clarke's Chapel leads the way with 78 converts. They have planned to build a new Clarke's Chapel. A new church will be erected at Savannah during the summer. The Epworth Leagues have greatly inspired the district. Easter tidings were encouraging. Those that have reported: Franklin, $4 20; Dickson, cash and subscription, $9 05; Paris and Springville, $1; Waynesboro, 60 cents; Dover, $2 10; Clifton, $5 38; Adamsville, $2 50; Lawrenceburg, $3 38; Petersburg, $3 50. Other points not heard from: Clarke Chapel, Brentwood, Cumberland, Beach Grove, Lewisburg, Spring Hill, Perryville.

We aim to have Children's Day this year at every charge. We are still determined to do our best for the paper. Find enclosed cash.

NOT A SICK DAY

For Over Thirty Years!

RESULT OF USING

AYER'S PILLS

"Ayer's Cathartic Pills for over thirty years have kept me in good health, never having had a sick day in all that time. Before I was twenty I suffered almost continually—as a result of constipation—from dyspepsia, headaches, neuralgia, or boils and other eruptive diseases. When I became convinced that nine-tenths of my troubles were caused by constipation, I began the use of Ayer's Pills, with the most satisfactory results, never having a single attack that did not readily yield to this remedy. My wife, who had been an invalid for years, also began to use Ayer's Pills, and her health was quickly restored. With my children I had noticed that nearly all their ailments were preceded by constipation, and I soon had the pleasure of knowing that with children as with parents, Ayer's Pills, if taken in season, avert all danger of sickness."—H. E. W. S. HAMMOND, D. D., EDITOR.

THE State Superintendent of Schools, W. M. Sheals, has recommended to the Legislature of Florida the enactment of a law making it a punishable offense "for any school, public or private, in the State to allow white and colored students to be educated together," and also, forbidding any white people to teach in the colored schools. Of course, the infamous bill has passed the lower house, and, if we know anything of the sentiment of the senate, the bill will be immediately passed by that body. Thus the chivalric Negrophobists of Florida aim to widen the almost impassable gulf between the races, and to strike down the heroic band of self-sacrificing white teachers who have gone into the Southland to help lift up the Negro. We deprecate this action greatly; since, if such a system should become general in the South, there will inevitably follow that indifference on the part of the constituted school authorities, which will permit and encourage the employment of inferior teachers, to the great detriment, if not to the utter annihilation of our colored school system. We have positive knowledge that, in places where this exclusive system is insisted upon, that inferior teachers are preferred. But such a law is clearly in contravention with the rights of a free people, and is in direct violation of the constitution of the United States. Our colored fellow-citizens of Florida should invoke the higher law in overthrowing this high-handed outrage.

"THE NORTHERN RELIGIOUS PRESS."

The editor of the Texas Christian Advocate of the M. E. Church South, evidently has a grievance; yea, he waileth bitterly because his Northern religious confreres (except Drs. Buckley of the Christian Advocate of New York, Gray of the Chicago Interior, Bishops Foster and Foss, and Hon. G. I. Seney, et. al.) have had the timerity and effrontery to speak favorably of the late Frederick Douglass, whom the doughty editor of the Texas Christian Advocate is pleased to call the "notorious ex-slave," and of the late John Brown, whom this adept, in the use of expletives and adjectives, calls "that typical old anarchist and anti-slavery fanatic." Here is a specimen:

"The bitterness of the Northern religious press toward the South is something unparalleled in the history of journalism. * * * * The other day the Independent brought out a special Lincoln number—forty pages extra. The Northwestern Advocate, not to be outdone, followed suit with a widely advertised Grant edition. Thus the war and the chief figures of it are constantly kept before the public, and the smouldering embers of sectional hate are continually fanned into a flame."

The editors of these journals ought to know that there are people down here who cannot see the superlative greatness of either President Lincoln or General Grant, and if they expect their journals to be popular among that class of people they should studiously refrain from mentioning their names. And, as for the names of the "notorious ex-slave" and that "typical old anarchist and anti-slavery fanatic," oh, my! It is too much; the one was a Negro, and the other had planned to liberate some Virginia Negroes before the war, both of which are unpardonable crimes in a certain section of our great Republic. But poor Brother Potts of the Michigan Christian Advocate has the "riot act" read to him in a most emphatic manner. He was so thoughtless as to say among other things:

"To honor the courage of Confederate soldiers is noble-hearted; the attempt to honor and perpetuate the cause in which they fought is disloyal to the Government. To attempt this in a Northern city whose sons gave up life in crushing that treasonable cause is insolent. It is injudicious and a piece of bold effrontery to thrust such a mounment under the gaze of old soldiers of the Union, some of whom still suffer from wounds received in putting down the 'lost cause.' It would show better taste and wiser judgment to at least limit such memorial shafts to the area where the rebellion prevailed."

Whereupon the Southern editor saith:

"To think that the Michigan Advocate would begrudge those ill-starred Confederate soldiers a few feet of common dirt as a burial place! 'Twas hard luck that gave these poor fellows a last resting-place in a foreign soil and in an alien clime, and it is nothing better than downright inhumanity to refuse them a chaplet of flowers or a monumental shaft. That they are buried in Northern soil is their misfortune and not their choice. That sympathetic hearts, recalling their valor and the pathos of their untimely taking-off, should try to honor them is natural. To rebuke the tenderly humane procedure is a species of indefensible babarism. The Grand Army of the Republic protests against the desecration and the Michigan Advocate endorses it! We dare say that these blatant objectors are not the highest type of the Union soldier, but on the contrary the pension-sucking element. That such a paper should have prostituted itself to the voicing of the hypocritical and cowardly remonstrances of a lot of low-minded 'pension bummers,' is a mystery to us. Heroes respect heroes."

Such pathetic and impassioned eloquence is enough to stir the ashes of the "ill-starred Confederate soldiers," who were so very "unfortunate" as to die in an "alien clime," and to have the "misfortune" to be buried on "foreign soil." And then to have the additional insult offered to their memory by a refusal on the part of these "low-minded pension bummers" to join in the erection of a monument commemorative of their unparalleled devotion to a lost cause. Our Texas editor grows more earnest and proceeds to say:

"We avail ourselves of this occasion to serve notice upon our Northern friends, that it is idle to talk about closer fraternal relations until such editorials as the aforesaid are a moral impossibility in a decent Northern sheet. We advise our people to be patient, charitable and kindly, but at the same time to assume and maintain inviolably an attitude of self-respecting independence." [Applause.]

And further:

"We desire fraternity, but only upon the broad platform of even-handed justice and unimpeachable brotherly love. [How about Brothers Frederick Douglass and John Brown?—ED.] We demand that the profound convictions of Southern people shall be respected. [We would add, Northern people also.—ED.]"

But we refrain. The subject is too vast. A generous diet of Warner's Safe Cure or Carter's Little Liver Pills will accomplish more than invective.

THE MASONS AND WHISKY.

"The Masons of Mississippi are after the whisky dealers with a sharp stick. Five members were expelled for selling liquor by the Greenville Lodge during the past year. An appeal was taken to the Grand Lodge recently convened in Jackson. The Greenville Lodge was sustained. The report of the committee confirming the action of Greenville Lodge was adopted by a nearly unanimous vote. The general rule under which this action was taken reads as follows: 'No Mason, either as principal, agent, employe, or in any other capacity, shall sell intoxicating liquors to be used as a beverage, and the penalty therefor shall be expulsion.' Now, if the brethren of the square and compass would also get after those of its members who drink the destroying stuff, they might accomplish a world of good. Does some one say that this would be interferring with the personal liberties of its membership? How about the personal liberties of those who want to sell?"

The above is from The Epworth Herald, the most largely circulated of all Methodist periodicals. It has the right ring. The Masons of Mississippi are to be commended for their stand in favor of temperance. If they, and other Masonic bodies, will be as diligent in suppressing that other evil of holding meetings for work on the Sabbath, they will impress the Christian people of this land more and more as to their right to the title of an "Ancient and honorable order."

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Canton, Miss., under the pastoral care of Rev. R. P. Threlkeld, has just closed a glorious revival with 23 conversions and accessions. Rev. Payne of Summit, Miss., assisted.

—Rev. J. A. Tillory of Anderson, Texas, has been the recipient of unusual favors recently. Two storm parties visited the parsonage, and left many substantial evidences of their esteem.

—The members of our church at Rising Sun, Miss., surprised their pastor, Rev. J. M. Bell, recently, with a most welcome visit to the parsonage with well filled baskets, bundles, etc.

—Rev. R. E. Gillum, presiding elder in the Central Missouri Conference, would like to correspond with two or three young single men who want work. Address R. E. Gillum, Box 450, Topeka, Kan.

—Our church at Glade Springs, Va., is greatly revived. A glorious revival resulting in the conversion of 19 souls, 14 of whom were added to the church, is the cause of much rejoicing. So writes S. M. Seals.

—Lassoter, Texas, pastored by Rev. T. Ward, is holding its own nobly. The church is greatly revived, and all seem happy. The good people stormed the pastor and family a few weeks ago, and left many tokens of their good will.

—Rev. F. Gilmore of Millican, Texas, is full of labors and usefulness. He reports the work as flourishing in all respects. A new church is nearly completed and work is being done on the parsonage. Twelve additions this year.

—Progress is the watchword at Heidelburg, Miss. The pastor, Rev. C. N. Jones, is abreast of the times. Writes E. Cooper, our correspondent: "One conversion. Epworth League prosperous. Class rally. Collected $13 07."

—"Eola, La.," Ammie Shelby writes, "is looking up and taking an active part in the upbuilding of the Master's kingdom. The young people of the church gave the pastor a surprise party not long since, which was greatly enjoyed.

—Rev. G. A. Shauklin, pastor at Calvert, Texas, is highly pleased with his people, who doubtless appreciate his services. The church is greatly revived, in consequence of a gracious revival which resulted in the conversion of several souls.

—A most excellent quarterly meeting was held at Danville, Texas; Rev. M. Q. A. Fuller, pastor. The presiding elder, Rev. A. C. Culbreath, was present, and greatly inspired the work. Many good things were said in favor of the SOUTHWESTERN.

—Rev. E. H. Scott of Vacherie, La., has taken hold of the work earnestly, and has already been rewarded with success. A good Sunday School has been organized, and preparations making to build a new church. He desires all the pastors to help him by a collection.

—J. E. Warren, Grand River, Ky.: "My circuit is in a good condition, and spiritually alive. Sunday, May 5, I baptized two and added two to the church. We are having a good time. Remember the promise I made—10 new subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. I will do all I can for our paper."

—Miss Carrie D. Harding of Dulac, La., says: "Our church and Sunday School has been closed nearly five years. We wept when we remembered Zion, but our weeping is turned to joy. Rev. A. A. Lacey is doing a grand and noble work. He leads in every enterprise of the Sunday School and Church."

—Rev. R. C. Barrow of Woodlawn, La., was in the city last week, and paid the office a delightful visit. He reports the work at Woodlawn as flourishing. A gracious revival resulted in the conversion of 104 souls. The work goes on with power. Brother Barrow will begin remodeling his church in June next.

—Clark Chapel, Nashville, Tenn., is holding her own. Rev. C. B. Wilson, A. M., the able and cultured pastor, moves forward cheerfully, and is successfully leading the hosts. The last quarterly conference was an occasion of much rejoicing. Presiding Elder Danley was present, and preached helpful sermons. A series of meetings just closed resulted in the conversion of 70 souls, 58 of whom were added to Clark Chapel, which is alive with the glow of spiritual light. Brother Wilson adds to our list of subscribers.

NEW ORLEANS AND VICINITY.

Sunday was pre-eminently New Orleans University Day in this city. The University Chapel was well filled at the morning service with a select and representative audience to hear the baccalaureate sermon by President Adkinson. The doctor was at his best, and delivered a most excellent and eloquent sermon, which will not soon be forgotten. The music, under direction of Prof. Adkinson, son of the president, was commendable.

The Alumni sermon was preached at Old Wesley at 3 p. m., by the Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN. The pastor, Rev. T. J. Johnson, deserves much credit for the very perfect arrangements made for this service. The church was beautifully and tastefully decorated for the occasion by the King's Daughters, Epworth League, and young people. A number of the students with representatives of the Alumni, together with a large congregation composed of the most progressive people of the city, were present, and gave evidence of deep interest in the purposes of the Alumni Association. Rev. J. W. E. Bowen, D. D., of Gammon Theological Seminary, preached grandly at Wesley on Sunday night.

The assistant superintendents and agents of the American Accident and Life Insurance Company presented to their retiring superintendent, Rev. Geo. S. Easton of Hammond, La., a beautiful gold-headed cane, as a token of their esteem and respect. Brother Easton is one of the most zealous and faithful among our white pastors in the Southland, where he has won many friends.

First Street M. E. Church covered herself with glory on Sunday last. The interesting program of corner-stone laying for the new First Street Church was successfully and impressively carried out in the presence of what was considered the largest gathering of people ever before assembled for such a purpose in this city. The pastor, Rev. W. R. Butler, and Presiding Elder, Rev. Pierre Landry, were ably assisted by Rev. A. E. P. Albert, D. D., who preached an able and interesting sermon. Revs. F. T. Chinn, P. E., Monroe District; A. J. Ford, pastor of Union Chapel; Stephen Priestley, of Mallalieu; T. G. Montgomery, of Mount Zion; P. Morgan, D. D., rector of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, and Rev. C. D. Shallowhorne, of Donaldsonville, were also present, and assisted in the impressive ceremony of laying the corner-stone according to the ritual of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The M. W. Enreka Grand Lodge and the Commandery of Knights Templar laid the corner-stone according to Masonic usages, after which the cash collection of $1,164 87 was taken. Rev. C. D. Shallowhorne of Donaldsonville, La., preached a grand sermon at night.

—Our Book Concerns have issued the highest and choicest collection of songs for Sunday Schools and young people's societies, entitled "The Junior Hymnal," edited by Edwin A. Schell and Mary Chrisholm Foster. One hundred and fifty songs, twenty of them new and twenty of them popular songs of the Sunday schools and social gatherings of thirty years ago; the remainder are the pick of to-day's favorites. Board covers, 20 cents postpaid; 25 or more copies, 15 cents each, not prepaid. For sale at this office and all the depositories.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

What the Negro Is Saying.

We must instill into the mind of our youth the value of a good character. Our minds are given us, but our characters we make. Great characters are made by many little acts and constant efforts. A good character is a precious thing, and we must keep thought constantly before the coming generation.—Guardian.

It is the duty of every colored man to patronize his own people and stick to his own nationality, first, last, and all the time. Were they united like the Jew, German, Irish, or the white race, they would be a power, and no profession or business, legitimate in its nature, engaged in by various individuals of the race, would lack for support. We want to see that day come when colored people will pride themselves in the support and maintenance of their own business and their own professional men.—Gleaner.

Local agents, under the influence of the town people, are putting up "color line" signs or rather "Jim Crow" signs at small stations. There is positively no law in North Carolina authorizing the placing of these "Jim Crow" sign-boards, and decent people should not make the concession of recognizing them. We were surprised to find these boards up at Concord, a few days ago. These boards are not designed for any thing except to awe decent colored people from taking first class accommodations and forcing them into dirty waiting rooms with the toughs of both races. It is these sorts of encroachments upon the natural, public rights of the colored people that influence us in holding off from the Negro Department of the Atlanta Exposition. Our leaders by eagerly rushing into that are tacitly endorsing "Jim Crow" arrangements generally.—Afro-American Presbyterian.

Our Jacksonville (Fla.) Correspondence.

Dear Brother—Ebenezer Church, Jacksonville, Fla., is in the midst of a sweeping revival. Within the last three weeks 93 souls were converted, and an accession of 117, and the end is not yet. This is one of the most genuine revivals in the history of this church, for which it is noted. Besides the large number converted, many have been reclaimed. We rejoice with the pastor, Rev. J. B. L. Williams, and his faithful members, in this the grandest success any church can desire or achieve. Yours fraternally,

J. GRANT, P. E.

From Atlanta, Ga.

Rev G. W. Arnold, A. M., B. D., the able and successful pastor of Loyd Street Church, has been appointed presiding elder of the Atlanta District, to fill the vacancy by the death of Dr. C. K. Wright. Rev. G. W. Arnold has had charge of Loyd Street Church for nearly four years. During his administration the church has grown on all lines, and all her interests well fostered. The membership has been greatly increased. Valuable improvements made on the church, both inside and out, and a beautiful set of new chandeliers put in this year. The members and many friends of Loyd Street regret very much to give up their beloved pastor. Rev. S. J. Harris, of Macon, now takes charge of the church.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

"Stay in the High School and Go to College." By Rev. Edward A. Schell, D. D. This little booklet, just issued from the M. E. Publishing House in Chicago, is designed to attract the attention of the young people of the Church to our Methodist schools and colleges. It is written in the author's usual racy and earnest style. Captures and entertains from the beginning. The subject matter is worthy of perusal, since it opens up a very important field for the thought of Christian Methodist parents, and their children as well. The book ought to be put into the hands of our young men and women at once. It would be a splendid inspiration and an invaluable auxiliary to the splendid program already arranged for Children's Day Anniversary. Chicago: Cranston & Curts. Price, 5 cents per copy; 50 cents per dozen.

Year Book of the Young Men's Christian Associations of North America, for the year 1895. It is a splendid compilation of facts and other valuable information concerning this magnificent organization. No person who desires to keep abreast with the progressive spirit of Christian activity of this all important age, can afford to do without this Year Book. Price, 50 cents. Published by the International Committee, New York.

The complete novel in the June Lippincott's is "The Battle of Salamanca," a stirring tale of the Napoleonic wars, from the Spanish of Benito Perez Galdos, an author of high repute in his own country, but hitherto too little known in America. Under the title, "William Shakespeare: his Mark," William Cecil Elam shows how largely the speech of illiterate Virginians is that of the corresponding class in England near three centuries ago, as preserved by the great dramatist. W. D. McCrackan furnishes a sharp essay on "The Referendum and the Senate."

Thoughts for the Occasion Anniversary and Religious. A repository of historical data and facts, beautiful thoughts, and words of wisdom. Compiled by Franklin Noble, D. D. New York: E. B. Treat, 5 Cooper Union. Price, $1 75.

The publishers have again placed public speakers and lovers of good reading under obligations for this very timely compilation. Thought for the Occasion Anniversary and Religious supplies a want not fully met in a recent publication designed more particularly to patriotic and secular occasions. In this volume we have a splendid grouping of useful and beautiful thoughts, which will be found especially "helpful in suggesting themes, and in outlining addresses for the observance of timely occasions and special days indicated by our Christian year." It is altogether a valuable acquisition to our current literature, and gives to the reader the benefit of the best thoughts of some of the most eminent writers of the age.

An article on "The Psychology of Woman," embodying the results of a careful scrutiny of the subject, by Prof. G. T. W. Patrick, is to appear in the June Popular Science Monthly. It is crowded full of facts and comparisons showing what traits and capabilities woman possesses in high or low degree, and affording valuable material for social and political reformers.

Debate on Baptism and the Book of Mormon, between Rev. W. H. Cooper, Methodist, and Elder A. Leverton, Latter Day Saint. Price, 50c. W. H. Cooper, Filbury Centre, Ontario.

For clear, logical reasoning, deep research and effective putting of the truth, Rev. W. H. Cooper, who was pronounced the successful contestant in the debate, must be commended by all practical Bible students. The book is well worth reading.

"The Monthly Illustrator" for May is as strong as usual in articles of general interest. The photographic reproduction of living flowers is continued this month by a collection of pictures of epiphytal orchids, and Lennie Greenlee relates many facts about them, leaving the terrestrial orchids to be similarly treated later. Harry C. Jones, editor and publisher, 96 Fifth ave., New York.

Harper's Round Table, as Harper's Young People is henceforth to be called, announces for publication during the summer the following special features:

"Heroes of America," a series of six articles by Hon. Theodore Roosevelt; serial stories by Ellen Douglas Deland and Capt. Charles King; and "Great Men's Sons," articles on the sons of Alexander the Great, Charlemagne, Luther, Shakspeare, Cromwell and Napoleon, by Elbridge S. Brooks.

Don't talk in prayer meeting without having something to say. If you want to get hold of thoughts that will be helpful to others, read "Chicago Tabernacle Talks," by Evangelist George F. Hall, on such subjects as Prayer. Faith, Repentance, Confession, Was Jesus Divine? Vain Excuses, Heaven, The Great Commission, How to Hold Out Faithful, etc. Just published, 331 large pages, only 50 cents, postpaid. Address the publishers of this paper, or Charles H. Princely Givers and Peanut Peddlers.

During the past year $19,967,116 was given by private gifts and bequests to colleges, museums, churches, libraries, art galleries and other helpful agencies. In 1893 these free gifts reached the colossal figure of $33,319,866. These statistics do not include sums less than $1,000. The beginning of the year 1895 has been signalized in the matter of gifts to colleges by gifts to Columbia College, New York, aggregating more than $1,000,000. That institution during the month of January received $350,000 from the Vanderbilt brothers: $200,000 from Mrs. W. D. Sloane, who was a Vanderbilt, and also a gift of $500,000 from two persons whose names are withheld.

But of all this phenomenal giving, Southern institutions received next to nothing. It seems that Southern men of wealth have never learned this high art. Few of them seem to have broad mindedness enough to know how to use their money. They are not statesmen who take wide views of men and things, and make provision for the best and noblest interest. They are penny-picking peddlers who worship the dollar they work for.

We do not write these lines expecting any of them to read or heed what we say. They do not read much of anything outside of "prices current," and least of all do they read religious papers.

We write as we do in order to relieve our own mind of some of the contempt we feel for the affluent ignorance and vulgar money-getters of our section who ape the wealthy of other sections in all their pomps and vanities, but who have no heart for imitating anything better. What we write may also help some of our readers to relieve themselves of the disgust which they feel for this sorry crew. The accumulating nausea which comes to a man of sense who witnesses the antics of these pompous peddlers from day to day, must have some sort of vent.

If our colleges are ever endowed it will have to be done by our poor people and by our people of moderate means. Most of our rich people can do nothing in this line because they are too busy showing off their stuff and trying to make more stuff to show off.—Ex.

A LUNG GYMNASIUM.

The Rev. J. T. Willhide, a Methodist minister, has invented a new breathing tube, which he calls the EXHALER, which is in reality a Lung Gymnasium, as the use of it will widen and strengthen every one of the six million air cells in the lungs, whether diminished by tubercle or not, increase their activity and strengthen the elasticity of their tissue, making consumption almost impossible. It is equal to the very best elocutionary exercise to strengthen the throat and vocal organs, deepen and enrich the voice and increase its power. It introduces 2 to 4 times more air into the lungs, consuming a large quantity of oxygen, and so purifies the blood, increases the circulation, relieves congestions and many morbid conditions of the system. The price is only $1 50 by mail, postpaid. An illustrated descriptive circular will be sent on application. E. H. MORSE, 631 Poydras St., New Orleans.

Grateful Appreciation.

Anamosa, Iowa, May 15, 1895.

Dear Editor—Can you find a corner for me in your valuable paper, in which to express my grateful appreciation for the many courtesies received from the members of the Texas and West Texas conferences while in the Home Mission work?

To each brother beloved, who did his best to aid the cause, giving so many gracious words which greatly lightened the labor; and to each dear sister who so heartily welcomed me to her hospitable home, I give the warm hand clasp of changeless friendship, and am comforted with the knowledge that Heaven is large for us, who truly love and serve our Lord, to dwell forever together in that land of eternal delights. I shall hold them all ever in affectionate, Christian remembrance and pray the great Head of the Church to lead them to perfect victory.

I have great satisfaction in recommending them publicly, what I have always done conversationally, the rare opportunities for students at Wiley University. Even one year there, will be of lasting advantage. Last year and this, I visited many of the classes and was delighted with the work of the faculty and students.

I have only words of praise and commendation for the heroic workers at King Home and Wiley University.

LESSON HYMN. S. M.

The Lord is risen indeed,
The grave hath lost its prey;
With him shall rise the ransomed seed,
To reign in endless day.

The Lord is risen indeed;
He lives, to die no more;
He lives, his people's cause to plead,
Whose curse and shame he bore.

The Lord is risen indeed;
Attending angels, hear!
Up to the courts of heaven, with speed,
The joyful tidings bear.

Time.—April 9, A. D. 30; the first day of the week after the passover. Each "first day" is now called Sunday, a name borrowed from heathenism, and unknown to the Jews. But the day of which we are now to study differed from a modern Sunday in that (1) it had no sacredness until the events of our lesson came to be commemorated; (2) every day with the Jews began and ended with evening, so that the dawn of the day was not at its beginning, but half way toward its close.

Place.—The tomb at Golgotha, near Jerusalem, outside the city walls.

Rulers.—Pontius Pilate, procurator of Judea; Caiaphas, high priest; Herod Antipas, tetrarch of Galilee and Perea.

Introductory.—On the evening of our Lord's death, Friday, his body was buried by Joseph of Arimathea in his new rock-hewn tomb. On the next day, the Hebrew Sabbath, our Saturday, by Pilate's authority the stone door of the sepulcher was sealed and a guard of soldiers placed about it.

Parallel Passages.—Matt. 28. 1-10; Luke 24. 1-12; John 20. 1-18.

The Resurrection of Jesus.

(Mark 10. 1-8.)

Written for the Southwestern.

By Rev. G. N. Jolly, Kentucky Conference

GOLDEN TEXT.—"The Lord is risen indeed." (Luke 24. 34.)

Joseph of Arimathea, a just and good man, went boldly to Pilate and begged the body of Jesus. His request was granted. He, assisted by Nicodemus, took the body down from the cross, wrapped it in a linen shroud, and laid it in his own new tomb. Then they rolled a great stone over the door of the sepulchre and departed. The chief priests and Pharisees went to Pilate and asked for a guard to be placed about the tomb. This was done. The governor's seal was then placed on the stone over the entrance. All was made secure. He must not arise.

1. The time of the resurrection. It was at the close of the Jewish Sabbath. This Sabbath was instituted at the close of creation, placed in the law at Sinai, and became a part of the Decalogue. It was the last day of the week, and enjoined rest and devotion. Jesus was in the tomb all of this day. How dull and dead must have been the temple service. If Christ be dead all our worship is vain. It was at the beginning of the Christian Sabbath. There is no command for a change of the Sabbath from the last to the first day of the week, neither is there any command against it. The resurrection of Christ, and the descent of the Holy Spirit, were likely the chief causes of the change. What God demands is one seventh of our time for rest and devotion.

2. The manner of the resurrection. There was an earthquake. When Jesus died there was darkness and a rending of the earth, and when He arose from the dead there was light and a trembling of the earth. All nature was in sympathy with the death and resurrection of Jesus. "The angel of the Lord descended from heaven." Angels show profound interest in our Savior. They came to announce His birth, they ministered unto Him when He was tempted, they comforted Him in the garden, and they were near when He arose from the dead. They desired to look into the Plan of Salvation wrought out by Him. "And came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it. His countenance was like lightning and his raiment white as snow." See here the power of the angel—he rolled away the stone; the authority of the angel—he sat upon it; and the glory of the angel—his countenance was like lightning. "And for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men." The [illegible] of Jesus was a terror to the wicked, but a source of joy to the righteous. So will it be at the end of the world. Those who work abomination will cry to the mountains to fall on them, but the pure will return to "Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads."

3. The visit of the women. Women were the last to leave the tomb and the first to return to it. The love of God only, surpasses the love of a true woman. The time of their coming—"very early in the morning." Those who would receive the richest of Christ's blessings should come to Him early—early in life and early each day. The design of their coming—"That they might anoint Him." This was an ancient custom, the design of which was to keep the body from decay. They had no thought that He had arisen from the dead. We should pay every tribute of respect to the dead. Their conversation—"Who shall roll us away the stone?" It is well to make all arrangements for worship before we begin, but burning love will rush on without consulting slow, plodding judgment. There are many stones in the way when we would come to Jesus. There is the stone of pride, the stone of unbelief, the stone of profanity, and the stone of intemperance. True love will remove them.

4. The angels' message to the women. They remove fear—"Be not affrighted." "Fear not ye." That guard may well be filled with fear, but you need not be afraid. The true friend and faithful worshiper of Jesus need not fear to approach Him at any time. They give information by telling the women their design in coming to the sepulchre—"Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth." The hosts of heaven know our motives same as our words and deeds. They know us all together. They gave two proofs of His resurrection. His words—"He is risen as He said." He had told them more than once. He would arise on the third day. We have no reason whatever to doubt any words Jesus has ever spoken. They will all come true. They point to the vacant tomb—"Behold the place where they laid Him." You knew where His friends placed the body. You see He is not there. "He is risen." These are very consoling words to the saint. They remove, in part, the fear of death, and the terror of the grave. They strengthen our faith in a risen living Savior. They deliver a message to the women. "Go quickly and tell His disciples that He is risen from the dead." The angels were the first preachers of the resurrection, and the women the second. St. Peter was spoken to individually. This may have been because he thrice denied the Master. As a rule, it is not well to name persons in preaching, or in praying aloud. "And goeth before you into Galilee." Jesus has ever been going before His disciples. He opens the way for them and leads them on to victory. He also goes with His followers—"Lo, I am with you always." He accompanies them to encourage, strengthen, and keep them. "There shall ye see Him." We may by faith ever see Christ. It is our privilege to have Him continually at our right hand, then we shall never be moved.

5. The conduct of the women. "They went away quickly." The Lord's work requires haste. Delay has caused many souls to be lost. "They were filled with fear and great joy." This was a strange mixture in the same soul. Good and bad, truth and falsehood, may dwell in the same heart. "They told all these things to the eleven." Judas was now dead, and Matthias had not yet been chosen. Their words seemed to them as idle tales. They believed them not.

Cumberland River District.

The conference of the Cumberland River District, Tennessee Conference, will convene in its second semi-annual session in Gallatin, Tenn., on Thursday, July 25.

All local preachers and exhorters must be on hand for their annual examination and renewal of licenses; failing to do this will put an end to their exercising authority until the next district conference. We want all present at roll call, so that we can begin business on time. You must come to stay until the conference business is over, as we expect to adjourn on July 28. Drs. Hartzell and Mason will be with us. Also, Bishop I. W. Joyce is to be with us. The following is the program:

Duties of stewards, George B. Payton.

Duties of class leaders, Joe Rollings.

Rules for preachers' conduct, J. W. Richmond.

Where and how to preach, B. F. Whitley.

Duties and powers of Trustees, J. B. Bradford.

Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education, J. P. Price.

Regeneration, R. A. Dowell.

Justification, T. W. Ward.

Adoption, T. C. Harden.

Power of Central Tennessee College, W. T. Denton.

Education, S. S. Rideout.

Church Extension, T. W. Belcher.

Mission, David Gordon.

Sunday School Union, Sam'l Hartsfield.

Tract Society, Benjamin Payne.

Conference claimant, William Bryant.

How to hold revivals, N. Betty.

How to get people in and out of the church, Samuel Broddie.

Duties of local preachers, Jas. Martin.

Duties of exhorters, J. M. Lyght.

Duties of district steward, Thomas Robinson.

The SOUTHWESTERN, Robert Figgins.

Our Book Concern, R. B. Baker.

Minister for the tinies, R. R Burnley.

To preach the opening sermon, J. B. Bradford.

To preach the missionary sermon, A. P. Blakemore.

How to build and pay for churches, Frank Smith.

The care of probationers, Anthony Douglass.

Object, power and aim of the Epworth League, Lewis Withers.

Should we build parsonages? Andrew F. Reasonover.

Object, power and aim of preaching, G. G. Gordon.

The promise of the church to the ministry, Bird Dowell.

The promise of the ministry to the church, Peter Tubb.

The object of infant baptism, J. B. Bradford.

The power of the M. E. Church in the South, A. P. Blakemore.

How to open and close services, E. F. Carter.

How to make a collection, Page Belcher.

Should we bring children in the church? H. Carter.

How long should members remain on probation? Johnson Robinson.

Episcopal fund, J. F. Crockett.

The difference between the M. E. Church and other churches, Brooksy Seay.

Camp meeting, Allen Hancock.

How to keep peace in the church, Frank Brierson.

The work of the Holy Ghost, James Price.

Called to the ministry, S. Cage.

Falling from grace, C. Railey.

Unity, J. F. Crockett.

The colored membership in the M. E. Church, Rev. Keeton.

The doctrine of the M. E. Church, E. J. Guthrie.

Pastors will send me, at Gallatin, Tenn., the names of local preachers, exhorters, class leaders, S. S. superintendents, district stewards and presidents of Epworth League chapters, who are members of the district conference, so as to have the roll complete. All members, whose names do not appear in the program, will write upon such subject as they feel disposed.

E. J. GUTHRIE, Sec'y.

All the Clothes,

all at once, makes too much of a wash, perhaps. Use Pearline, and it's easy to do a few at a time. Lots of women do this. They take the napkins, towels, handkerchiefs, hosiery, etc., each day as they are cast aside.

Soak them in Pearline and water, boil them a few minutes, rinse out—and there they are, perfectly clean.

No bother, no rubbing. When the regular wash-day comes, there isn't much left to do.

Why isn't this just as well as to keep everything and wash in one day?

FROM PRESIDING ELDERS.

Austin District—

The district conference of the Austin District will convene in St. James Chapel at 9:30 a. m., August 20, with the reports and exercises of the Epworth League Chapters, followed by the Sunday School Institute works. As these departments of church work are still in their incipiency, the two first days of the district conference will be devoted to that work respectively. Remember, Tuesday and Wednesday are the days set apart for this work. If necessary, evening sessions will be held by these anxiliary workers. The presidents of Epworth League Chapters and the presidents of the Sunday School Institute will please have the committees on program to furnish me with their programs, respectively, for the press, by June 15, for the purpose of allowing time to make changes, if necessary; corrections, if need be, before printing program.

The preachers, aided by the stewards and committees, will report as much of their benevolent money as possible at the district conference, and be able to report an increased list of subscribers, to the SOUTHWESTERN, over last session.

MACK HENSON, P. E.

San Antonio District—

The twentieth session of the San Antonio District Conference will convene at Segnin, Texas, at 9 a. m., August 21. Let each one come with well written subjects, as much will be expected of yon at this conference. Come with two-thirds or all of your benevolences raised. Yon are doing well up to date, but let us push on to victory; for yon see our anuual conference will meet November 27. Many of the members of the district want to see our able Editor of the dear old SOUTHWESTERN before they cross the river of death, therefore he is respectfully invited to attend our session.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

We call the attention of the Epworthians, also to the Epworth League department. Rev. E. B. Bourroughs writes entertainingly.

DON'T fail to read "The Women We Need," by Miss Alice Jean Parham, of St. Joe, Mo. Her article in this week's paper shows her to be one of the leading yonng women of the race. She will be a frequent contributor to our colnmns.

We have given unnsnal space to Tidlngs from the whole field this week in order to rednce the vast pile ot letters which are constantly increasing. Brethren, send in more subscribers, for we really need more space; without the former the latter is almost impossible.

THE KIND OF WORK NEEDED.

Rev. I. L. Pratt is the able and energetic presiding elder of the Brookhaven District of the Mississippi Conference. He is also thoroughly in sympathy with the SOUTHWESTERN. In addition to forty-six snbscribers previonsly sent in, he seuds us a cheering letter with a pledge of twenty-five more. Our readers may imagine how happy we feel. We will report these pledges as they come in.

BISHOP WILLIAM TAYLOR has just arrived in this country from his fifth trip to Africa. He expresses himself as more deeply interested in Africa aud more hopetul in its future than ever. Dnring this tour he has visited all the Methodist stations on the west coast from Liberia to Angola aud the Congo District. He has traveled about 3000 miles, mostly by meaus of small low steamers. In addition too, he has traveled inland through the Angola statiou, a distance of about 400 miles, principally on foot. He was not sick a day during his stay in Africa. He has had wonderful success in acquiring the langnage of the strange people among whom he has traveled, and the work will be further advanced by the nse of the printed grammar and the translation of the gospel by John in the Kimbunda. Surely God has wonderfully preserved the life of his chosen servant, and the reports of his work with his wonderful experiences in the "Dark Continent," told as he alone can tell them, will awaken fresh interest in his vast field and quicken the zeal of our Methodism to take a more active part in its salvation.

THE Messianic era may still be somewhat remote, bnt out in distant Brownsville, Tex., there are signs of its approach when a Ladies' Aid Society can be organized with a Jewess as president, a Roman Catholic as secretary, and a Qnakeress as treasnrer, while an Episcopalian rector appeals in its behalf.—Jewish Messenger.

The Messenger is about on the right track. It does look a little like the Messianic era to see those good people of such diverse religions beliefs working harmoniously together. If they will now lay their hand of charity upon the colored women of the communities in which they live, and lift them up to a higher and a nobler womanhood, they will be conferring blessings upon untold millions, and thus better prepare the way for the diffusion of that desirable era when Jew and Gentile can unite in the exemplification of those prinoiples upon which hang all the law and the prophets, viz: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind," and, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

NEW ORLEANS UNIVERSITY.

The commencement exercises of this noble institution were among the most interesting of all the services. The commodious chapel was filled on Sunday morning the 26th to hear the baccalaureate sermon by President L. G. Adkinson. It was a masterly effort, and delivered in the doctor's usual forcible aud eloquent style, and made a profound impression upon all. Monday night witnessed a magnificent gathering of the alumni and friends to partake in the annual reunion of the association. Rev. Prof. J. W. E. Bowen, D. D., of Gammon Theological Seminary, was the orator of the evening, and right well did he maintain his high standing as a speaker of great ability and power. He is a great favorite here, and his fame as well as his friends are increasing. Tuesday was the great day. In consequence of the threatening inclement weather, the services were held in the college chapel. Not more than half the people who attended could be accommodated. The editor of this paper, with a dozen other members of the "cloth," heard from the outside. Our special correspondent, who took time by the forelock, speaks in the most glowing terms of the exercises. The following program was rendered to the great delight of an admiring audience:

Senior College Preparatory—Oration, Progress of the Age, Edgar Louis Hamilton. Oration, The Relation of Education to Church and Government, Oscar A. Holt. Oration, A Search for the Unattainable, Joseph B. Randolph. Oration, As is the Life so is the End, Elvira B. Spears. Oration, The Battle of Life, Carrie B. Turpeau.

Normal Department—Oration, Formative Influences of Literature, Laura F. Albert. Oration, The World Moves, Aaron W. Brazier. Oration, Rise and Fall of Republics, Perum A. Cook. Oration, We All Wear Veils, Lucy E. Fisher. Oration, Between Life's Morning and Evening Dreams, Florence L. Myers. Oration, There Shall be no Alps, Ruth E. Weathers. Presentation of Diplomas, President Adkinson.

College Liberal Arts, (Classical)—Oration, Self-knowledge the Criterion of Wisdom, Frank B. Smith Vocal solo, Merrily I Roam, Elvira B. Spears. Conferring of degrees, President Adkinson.

Music Department—Presentation of certificate to Miss Liatta Marshall. Concerted piece.

At the annual meeting of the trustees of the university, held on the 23d, President Adkinson's report showed that the year had been the best of all. The bequest of Thoma Lafon had proved to be double what was expected, and the ten thousand dollars had been secnred by Bishop Mallalieu for the medical college. A resolution expressing the thanks of the board to Dr. Adkinson and family for faithful work was passed with many expressions of heartfelt approval. The degree of Bachelor of Arts was conferred upon the gradnating classes. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon L. W. Munhall, of Philadelphia; F. A. Griffin, of Troy, N. Y., and E. O. Thayer, of Gardiner, Maine.

FROM the Pacific Methodist Advocate it appears that our Baptist brethren are not enjoying that increase which their statistics are made to show. It says:

"The Baptists are a great Church and a mighty power for good. They teach that 'once in grace always in grace,' and it seems that they are such rigid disciplinarians that they excommunicate the 'very elect,' or they, like some of their neighbors, sometimes receive the unconverted into their communion. In the Baptist churches of this country last year the total number of exclusions was 46,618, and the erasures 10,901, making a total of 57,419, or more than one-fourth as many as were baptized (27.4 per cent). That means more than one-fourth of all who are baptized and become members of Baptist churches lapse and become separated by some other means than by death."

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES.

Chalmette, the beautiful city of the dead, where sleep the remains of the brave 12,000 men who gave their lives to the service of their country, never looked prettier than on last Thursday, May 30. Hundreds and thousands of our best citizens gathered within this sacred place to take part in the decoration services. The veterans, representing nearly all the posts of the Grand Army of the Republic in the department of Louisiana and Mississippi, formed a line and marched through the cemetery under command of Major E. H. Wheeler. During the march a salute of artillery was fired. A fife and drum corps preceded the line of veterans, followed immediately behind by a detachment of United States troops from the barracks, under command of First Lieutenant Gallun. The States of the Union were represented by four little girls. Behind them came the Sons of Veterans, the Woman's Relief Corps and the department officers. At the monument, which stands in the center of the cemetery, Colonel Charles W. Keeting, department commander, read the general orders of the commander-in chief relating to exercises on Decoration Day. The monument was covered with floral offerings from the different posts, and from Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schute, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Wheeler and others. The immense throng then marched to the rostrum, where the choir of Morris Brown Chapel opened the exercises with an appropriate song. Rev. J. Richards offered the invocation. Miss Eloise Bibb, one of our most progressive young women, read an original poem, which evoked frequent applause. It was in every respect a most creditable production. Hon. F. B. Earhart, United States District Attorney, as orator of the day, delivered a most interesting and eloquent oration. Among other good things he said:

"These graves that stretch before us in long rows do not represent sectionalism. Every man who died for the cause of his country—for its blessings and the happiness of its people—the prosperity of mankind—died in no cause based on sectionalism. The true basis was a principle that shall forever endure. It would come with ill grace for a Southern man to apologize for the course of his own countrymen. The deeds of the South in the contest have gone into history. They were deeds of devotion and duty, and their memory will live forever. They will last when the banners of both sides have been furled, and the last drum-beat of the veteran has been heard. The Southern heart, imbued with a sense of right, marched to the front and fought as only brave men could fight. The South was defeated, and the dream of Southern leaders for a Southern nation was shattered, but the Union lives on and we have one country still, with one constitution and one flag. Demagogues may appeal to prejudices for selfish ends. They may stir the embers of a dead hate, but the past lives in history and recollection. The facts have been written; the day of a greater unity has come, and I am glad to say to-day that more than ever before is this a nation of the people, by the people, and for the people. The heart of the North and the heart of the South beat in unison, and in all States and all sections tribute is paid to valor and the chivalrous dead are honored with one accord."

General Chas. H. Schute, junior vice commander, followed in an impromptu but interesting address; after which Col. Keeting spoke briefly but eloquently. The chaplain of the Department pronounced the benediction. It was altogether a memorable occasion.

TIDINGS FROM THE WHOLE FIELD.

—Mesdames B. L. Eloy, F. Garrett, M. Marrell; Misses A. L. Bullock, Bessie Murrell, Mary Flowers, and Messrs. V. Eloy, Waldo Needham; Garrett Graham, I. W. Birge and Z. B. Eubanks composed a party of friends who visited the parsonage at Forest, Miss., taking the pastor, Rev. M. White, and his excellent wife, by surprise. The good things they brought were abundant and their visit will make a lasting impression.

—Rev. A Foster, of Wesley Chapel of Austin, Texas, is unusually happy over a successful campaign for the Master. More than 300 souls have been converted, all departments of the church revived, and an active canvas inaugurated to secure 200 subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN.

—Rev. N. Cannon, of Fayette, Miss., writes: "I held a revival four weeks, resulting in 5 conversion and 15 accessions to the church, among the number were two old sinners, 55 and 65 years old. The church is revived. I am trying to get my people to subscribe for our good paper."

—Reports from Easter Sunday are coming in too late to be published in full, and we give only a brief statement of each: Hahnville, La., E. H. Clark pastor, collected $3; Springfield, Tenn., J. P. Prose pastor, $8; St. Pauls of Meridian, Miss., J. C. Campbell pastor, $27; Mexia, Texas, L. H. Richardson pastor, $15 30; Columbia, Texas, J. Jones pastor, $22 40; Guthrie, O. T., D. G. Franklin, $8 10; Wallisville Circuit, Texas, C. M. Moore pastor, $17; Wesley Chapel of Austin, Texas, A. Foster pastor, $13.

—Meridian, Miss., St. Paul's, is in a flourishing condition. Rev. J. C. Campbell is a splendid organizer and has matters well in hand. Quarterly meeting was a splendid occasion.

—Rev. L. H. Richardson speaks encouragingly of his work at Mexia, Texas. Progress is being made toward paying off the church debt, Sunday school organized and a good condition generally.

—Heidelburg, Miss., in charge of R. N. Jones pastor, is in the front line of progress. All departments organized, and is working for the SOUTHWESTERN.

—San Augustine, Texas, Rev. A. W. Parker, has organized an Epworth League which is doing good work. He is also working for our paper.

—Rev. E. B. Richards sends word that the church at Opelousas, La., is moving forward.

—At Prairie Plain, Texas, E. Michaux pastor, the outlook is promising. Quarterly meeting and Easter day were good. Collections $34. There is a flouring Epworth League Chapter with 40 members.

—West Point, Miss., holds her own. D. T. Winbush writes hopefully. Easter service was a success, and all departments of the church organized.

—Elliot, Miss., G. J. Dobson pastor, rejoices over the prosperity of Zion. Bro. Dobson leads successfully. Missionary collection $4 22. Our paper is ably represented on the work.

—Rev. W. S. Simmons, of Newberg, Florida, is in midst of successful work. He has greatly added to the church and is moving along nicely.

—Rev. E. Halliday, of Lovelady, Tex., followed the Easter program, with $8 as the result of collections. Prospects are bright.

—Bro. Calvin Oliver, of Gainesville, Ga., writes: "Our first quarterly conference was held at this place April 27, with our new presiding elder, C. R. Buffington, in the chair. The elder found everything in fine shape. The pastor's report showed improvement; the new parsonage had been sealed and plastered and church lot beautified. A glorious revival resulted in 14 sanctified souls and 23 converts and accessions. We are favored with the presence of the Lord, which we hope will result in the conversion of many more. The Gainesville District is being stirred from center to circumference on the old Wesleyan religion, which sanctifies and saves. Our pastor, Rev. C. W. Adams, is showing himself a man equal to the task, and is much beloved by all. He is planning a SOUTHWESTERN Day and hopes to place the paper in all our homes. Pray for us, that our work may go on to perfection. Our new presiding elder is greatly beloved and we cannot say too much in praise of him who has done all things well."

—Brother R. B. Anderson, of Paulding, Miss., says: "We are moving on nicely, and have improved the parsonage by the addition of two rooms. Mr. Willie Crenshaw was the leader in a concert for the benefit of the pastor, which realized the snug sum of $6 45."

—Rev. Charles Jones, of Lagrange, Ky., writes: "We have just closed a revival of ten days, with 14 conversions and additions. The church is greatly revived. Sister D. Lewis with us and did good work. The outlook is good for Kynett's Chapel. We shall do all we can for our Church paper."

—Brother T. Moore, writing from Minola, Texas, says: "My second quarterly conference was held at Quitman April 27-28, with W. H. Logan in the chair. The presiding elder preached good sermons. Eighteen were received in full connection. Raised for all purposes $100."

—A. H. Banks, pastor at New Iberia, says: "We are closing a glorious revival with 45 conversions. Easter was a success, realizing $9. Our good old SOUTHWESTERN must come to New Iberia."

—Brother C. D. Shallowhorne, pastor at Donaldsonville, La., writes: "The Lord has blessed us with success. The members and friends have shown their appreciation of our labors. Three pound parties have been given us. The concert given by the Sunday School, under the direction of Mrs. Shallowhorne, was successful. Amount raised to buy literature for the Sunday School, $17 35. Easter Day program was carried out. The brick foundation of the new St. Peter was completed Wednesday, May 1.

—Brother William Parker, superintendent, Columbia, Central Missouri Conference, says: "Easter Sunday was duly observed here. Dr. Smith's program was used with good results. Mr. Francis Brown, one of our teachers, conducted the vocal and instrumental part of the exercise. Amount realized was $10 56. The service made a splendid impression.

—A. J. McNair, pastor at Meridian, Miss., writes: "Second quarterly conference was held at Bavon Chapel, April 27-28, with Rev. A. M. Trotter in the chair. Reports showed prosperity. Probationers received in full, 25. Nine dollars for benevolent causes. The church is spiritually alive. One young man was converted and joined the church."

—J. L. Marable of Walthall Circuit, Ala., says: "Our quarterly conference, with Rev. H. M. Brown, the presiding elder, in the chair, was a success. The work is in good shape. The elder preached and helped the good work generally. I am praying for the success of the SOUTHWESTERN." [Thank you.—ED.]

—David Hall, Oak Forest, Ark., writes: "Zion looks upward hopefully, and the battle goes on hopefully. Brother B. P. Scruggs, a faithful member of our Church, entered the heavenly city April 21. Aged 48. He leaves many friends to mourn."

—L. F. White, Aberdeen, Miss., writes: "Miss Ellen Reid, after viewing the situation of the pastor, went among the members and took a subscription to the amount of $50, to be paid at a set time. On the day appointed the effort resulted in a collection of $47. God bless Sister Reid."

—Miss Callie Davidson, Tullahoma, Tenn., writes: "Our third quarterly conference is just over. We had a grand time. Our revival closed with nine conversions. Collection, $26. Our pastor, W. R. Smith, leads grandly. The outlook is encouraging. H. W. White, the presiding elder, held our third quarterly conference to the great joy of all. He preached two helpful sermons, also lectured on Wednesday night, calling attention to the South and the grand old SOUTHWESTERN."

—A correspondent from Clifton, Tenn., writes: "Our presiding elder, S. B. Danley, came here on the 23d ult. He preached on Wednesday night, lectured to the Epworth League on Thursday night, held quarterly conference on Saturday night, and preached Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Total collection, $50 31. Miss Lula E. Truman of Mason, Tenn., principal of our city school here, has closed her school with remarkable success.

—H. Hampton, presiding elder of Hattiesburg, Miss., writes: "On the first Sunday in May we had a grand rally for the benefit of improving our church, and raised $42 71. Rev. A. Terrel rendered excellent service on the occasion."

—P. L. Jackson, Clarksville, Texas, says: "Our Easter Sunday services were grand at Pleasant Exchange. Total collection, $11 05. We are looking upward and going to the front on all lines."

—G. Washley, Altamaha, Ga., writes: "Easter was a grand day here. S. H. Jordan, our pastor in charge, preached a stirring sermon. Benevolent collection, $13 65. I am doing my best for the SOUTHWESTERN. I think we will get 12 subscribers this year at this place. I am trying to get all of my friends to subscribe for it."

—L. J. Lang, Sr., Texarkana, Texas, writes: "This is called the Twin City, because Arkansas and Texas join here. The city is on a boom at present. More than 50 buildings are being erected. The white and colored carpenters are working together as never before. Rev. W. H. Jackson just closed the grandest revival in the history of St. Paul M. E. Church—31 conversions and 33 accessions. He was assisted by the ministers of the city and Rev. P. Pruitt of Bagwell, Texas. Twenty-four conversions were Sunday School scholars. The colored people are buying homes here and building generally. Mr. W. M. Branch and Miss Mamie Johnson were married in St. Paul M. E. Church on the 2nd inst. Rev. W. H. Jackson officiated. The St. Paul Church is leader in this city. Rev. F. H. Beck of the Los Angeles (Cal.) Conference was with us on the 12th inst; indeed he is a worker. He was glad to be among his colored brethren in the South. Pray for us."

—Brother J. R. Reasonover writes: "My third quarterly conference of the Petersburg (Tenn.) Charge met at Poplar Ridge and Petersburg, with Rev. S. B. Danley in the chair. Reports showed that the church was alive. Raised for all purposes this quarter, $53 20. The presiding elder preached acceptably. One subscriber for the SOUTHWESTERN. Bro. Elijah Davidson departed this life May 8 in full triumph of faith. Aged 75 years. He leaves a wife and a host of children to mourn."

—J. C. Sherrill, Pine Bluff, Ark., says: "St. James M. E. Church is still spiritually alive. We went from a successful Easter service into a two weeks' revival service, which resulted in 31 conversions and 28 accessions. There are several subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN, and there will be several more before the end of this quarter.

—W. S. Curtis, Jefferson, Texas, says: "I have just closed a rally on Sunday, May 13. Raised $146. Rev. D. B. Stovall, W. H. Logan, P. E., and Aaron Taylor, of Marshall, Texas, all preached grandly and rendered splendid help. The church is alive."

—J. L. Augustus, Jeanerette, La., writes: "The memorial service of Sister Emma Dyer, wife of Rev. M. J. Dyer, was held at St. Paul M. E. Church, May 12. Much sympathy was expressed for Brother Dyer in the loss of his noble wife. It was quite a solemn service. Many were in tears. Blessed are they that die in the Lord."

—Brother Dickson, Spring Circuit, Texas, writes: "The second quarterly conference convened at Oak Grove Church. Presiding Elder A. Culbreath being confined to his bed, Brother S. M. Bolden of Conroe held the quarter, and preached a sermon. Collection, $51 20. From classes 1 to 7, $38 90. Baptized one and received six into full membership. We are doing a noble work for God. Brother S. M. Bolden spoke good words for the SOUTHWESTERN."

—R. H. Patton, Green Hill, Miss., says: "Easter Sunday was a grand day here. First quarterly conference was held on time. Reports showed the work to be in a growing condition. Collected during the quarter, $54 05. Rev. J. C. Houston, P. E., preached an edifying sermon on Sunday. We are preparing to remodel our parsonage."

—S. D. Troup, College Hill, Miss., says: "The Epworth League Chapter No. 1 surprised the pastor and wife about 12 o'clock at night, led by their president, W. F. Isaiah. Their singing was delightful. They brought many good things.

—Brother Crawford, Burnet, Texas, writes: "I write to let you know we are moving along well. The people here seem well pleased. We are having a good time. Easter Sunday was grand. Collection, $4 60. The first quarterly conference was good. Presiding Elder Mack Henson was on time."

—A. Johnson, Conroe, Texas, writes: "Our second quarterly conference was held as per appointment; the pastor, S. M. Bolden, presiding. A good time was had. The pastor is much beloved by the members and friends of this charge, and he is a faithful worker for the SOUTHWESTERN. Collection, $10 70."

—M. J. Dyer writes from Natchitoches, La.: "Our work is in very good shape. After a two weeks' meeting we have one convert and two joined the church. On last Sunday we had an all day meeting. Everything is coming to life again. We have had a series of sad occurrences here. Henry Roberts was shot to death and one Edward Jones was seriously wounded in an affray at a dance. Sister Lizzie Matthew, an old member of Ashbury M. E. Church, fell in the fire, and was so severely burned that she died in a few hours. Many friends mourn her loss."

—A. Quinn, Dailville, Miss., writes: "My second quarterly conference met at Sumton Church, with the presiding elder, A. M. Trotter, in the chair. We had a good time. Church is alive.

—Phillis L. Carnine, Pleasant Hill, La.: "A grand concert was given by the Epworth League, under the auspices of W. L. James, the president, for the benefit of the indebtedness on Taylor's Chapel M. E. Church. We had a grand rally the third Sunday, and by the blessings of God we collected $27 30 on May 18."

—N. H. Williams, Oxford, Miss., says: "We have just closed a glorious revival meeting. Forty-eight souls were saved, and 39 accessions. The fire still burns. Revs. D. P. Shaw, G. J. Dobson and S. D. Troupe gave much assistance. Our Sunday School and Epworth League Chapter are stirred up."

The Ways of God Justified.

Scripture Lesson: Job 34:10-28.

Here we have a modest attempt, on the part of Elihu, to "vindicate the ways of God to man." The speaker endeavors to reconcile Job to his afflictions, and, in a measure, to comfort him under them. And to do this, he lays down the proposition that the ways of God are equal. He argues that it is impossible for God to wrong any of his creatures; that to do so would be altogether inconsistent with his divine nature; that motive must precede action, and that as God could not possibly have any motive to injustice, it follows to reason that he could not possibly be guilty of preventing justice. The idea of a Supreme Being being other than perfectly good is absolutely impossible to imagine. "A God who can do wrong is a contradiction in terms—an impossible, inconceivable idea. * * * Once rise to the night of the conception of a Power absolutely supreme, omniscient, omnipresent, the author of all things, and it is impossible to imagine him as less than perfectly good." True it is, that the apparent prosperity of the wicked and the sufferings of the righteous, may at times cause it to appear to short-sighted mortals that the ways of God are unequal; yet, it must be remembered, that "if services persevered in now go unrewarded, and sins persisted in now go unpunished, yet a day is coming when God will fully render to every man, according to his works, with interest for the delay."

Again, Elihu here reasons that God is not to be quarreled with for anything he does. That for sinful man to do so, is for him to be presumptuous and impious. That as God is independent, and exercises absolute sovereignty over the universe, it is but in keeping with the natural order of things for men to submit quietly and without complaining to all that he may do. Job had often wished to plead his cause before God. Elihu asks, "To what purpose? The judgment already given concerning them will certainly be affirmed; no errors can be found in it, nor any exceptions taken to it; but, after all, it must rest as it is." God's judgments are unimpeachable, and invariably beneficent, being always dictated by the greatest good to his creatures. Cox has truly said: "And he has also learned what some of us are still slow to see, that the goal and end of all divine judgments is mercy; that God strikes down the lawless oppressor, whether of the family or of the nation; from love to the oppressed, and brings successful evil to a sudden end out of compassion for the unthinking multitude, who might be dazzled and corrupted by it, were its triumphs to endure."

"His purposes will ripen fast,
Unfolding every hour;
The bud may have a bitter taste,
But sweet will be the flower."

Gleanings.

God wrongs none of his creatures.

Good works shall be rewarded.

The wicked shall not go unpunished.

God's power, while irresistible, is not arbitrary.

God having no respect of persons, it is therefore wrong to impute iniquity to him.

What we know not now, we shall know hereafter.

It is always the wisest and best to leave matters in the hands of God.

The Balky President.

The success of an Epworth League depends largely upon the quality and soundness of the material composing the cabinet. The League itself is responsible for the selection of those at its head, and should be governed by common sense when voting for its officers. Avoid voting for anyone who aspires to an office and tells you confidentially that "things" would go differently if he were in the chair. There is a vast amount of littleness and no small amount of arrogance in the one who, ever so slightly, intimates that he would like for you to nominate him as president. Such a one is not the person to place at the head of the League. The president should be destitute of all desire to "rule things." He should be ready to work in concert with the rest of the League, and willing to withhold his own opinions and views of things until those advanced by others have been shown impracticable. The most remarkable phenomenon that has lately come within our observation is that of a newly-elected president who "rose up in meeting" and requested that a certain other office be left vacant, as he had his own notions as to how the affairs of that office should be conducted and did not wish his own will regarding same to come in contact with another's—he was ready to fill both positions. May the Lord help the League which has so presumptuous a presiding officer! It will have a hard time helping itself. Is the president an autocrat to dictate what the League is to do? By no means. His duty is to carry into effect the wishes of the League, to promote harmony among its members, to be an example of meekness and self-sacrifice; not holding too high an opinion of himself, nor exalting himself above his fellows. Next to the pastor, his advice and counsel should be sought upon all matters of importance, and he should be ready to "put the brakes on" when necessary; but when, sese invito, he undertakes to dictate to the League, officers, committees, and all in all their movements, he is trespassing the limits of his province. Such a disposition is to be condemned, and such a president is one of the "unreasonable men" from whom St. Paul prays to be delivered. It were better to have a president diffident, and with a modicum of brains, than a smart president who knows it all, and is always ready to assert his authority in the face of all comers. A good president, in common with charity, "vaunteth not himself." He should work in harmony with his cabinet, and strive to gain the love, respect, and confidence of all the members. This end will not be attained by high-handed dealing, nor an exhibition of long-eared obstreperousness. His zeal should be tempered by good will. If convinced that his own "wisdom" is superior to that of others, let him discreetly convince the League of that fact also, before attempting to run things all by himself. Some may not be of his mind on the subject, altogether. Let wise ruling bring them over. Mr. President should get in harmony with the members of his cabinet, give ear to their opinions, and mild expressions to his own. Kicking is odious at all times, and entirely of no effect, except to stir up hard feeling. Let all pull together, and thus promote the general good.—John W. Boswell, Jr., in Epworth Era.

In Memoriam.

Rev. E. M. Stephenson, Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Rev. E. M. Stephenson, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., departed this life May 21, 1895, in full triumph of faith. He was born in Macalpin District, West Moreland, Parish Whithouse, Jamaica, B. W. I., August 31, 1859. Was pastor at the above named place in 1893, and a student at Gammon part of the same year; appointed principal of Marion Institute in the district conference held at Marion, Ala., in July, 1894, where he served part of six months, but failing in health he went to Tuscaloosa for improvement, and where he died. All the ministers of the city were present at his funeral. Brother Stephenson was much beloved by the city and all denominations administered to him.

EDUCATIONAL.

Claflin University.

The commencement of Claflin University, Orangeburg, S. C., May 19-25, was of special interest. The total enrollment for the year was 570.

The address before the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. was delivered by Prof. Wm. L. Bulkley, Ph. D.; the baccalaureate sermon by President L. M. Dunton, D. D.; the annual sermon by Rev. C. C. Jacobs, A. B., agent of the S. S. Union, and the annual address by Rev. J. W. Hamilton, D. D., corresponding secretary F. A. and S. E. Society.

Seven graduated from the college classical course and received A. B; one received Ph. B.; two graduated from the college preparatory, and eleven from the normal course. Total graduates, 21. Prizes were awarded to Miss L. A. Jenkins for special work in English, to Miss Cherrie B. Townsend for superiority in elocution, and to Miss Allonia L. Townsend for excellence of debate.

The industrial exhibits from the various manual training departments were very creditable.

In connection with the commencement exercises, an orphan's home building was dedicated free from debt.

The honorary degree, doctor of divinity, was conferred upon Rev. Richard W. Humphries, Philadelphia, Pa., and doctor of laws upon Judge Hiram L. Sibley, Mariotta, Ohio.

About 5,000 people were present from all parts of the State to witness the exercises.

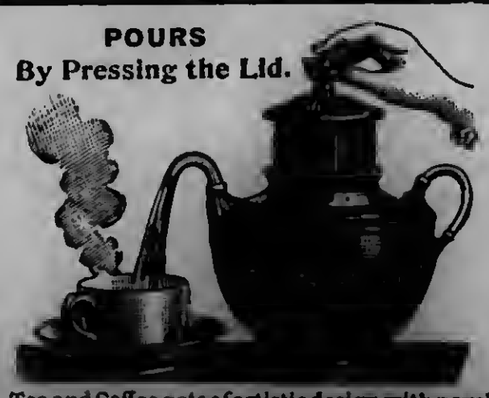
Brief Mention.

—Prof. J. Applesses, at St. Paul, Starlight, La., is doing a great work in education. He is making a deep impression on the minds of the community. He is a lover of the Southwestern, and sends two subscribers.

—Rev. V. D. Jenkins of Kings, Ga., was waylaid by highwaymen a few weeks ago, and but for the presence of his wife would have been robbed of the missionary money he had collected at the church during the day. He thanks God for deliverance, and promises to send 10 cash subscribers to the Southwestern.

—Rev. Augustus Tolton of St. Monica's Church, Chicago, and Rev. Charles P. Uncles, professor in Epiphany College, Baltimore, are the only colored Roman Catholic priests in the United States.



—We are under many obligations to Rev. G. W. W. Jenkins, the new presiding elder of the North Baltimore District, for encouraging words concerning an increase of subscribers on his district. Brother Jenkins thinks we ought to have 20,000 names added to the list before May, '96, and promises to do all he can to secure a goodly list for the district. This, from our old home and conference is cheering news.

UNTOLD MISERY
FROM RHEUMATISM

C. H. King, Water Valley, Miss., cured by

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For five years, I suffered untold misery from muscular rheumatism. I tried every known remedy, consulted the best physicians, visited Hot Springs, Ark., three times, spending $1000 there, besides doctors' bills; but could obtain only temporary relief. My flesh was wasted away so that I weighed only ninety-three pounds; my left arm and leg were drawn out of shape, the muscles being twisted up in knots. I was unable to dress myself, except with assistance, and could only hobble about by using a cane. I had no appetite, and was assured, by the doctors, that I could not live. The pains, at times, were so awful, that I could procure relief only by means of hypodermic injections of morphine. I had my limbs bandaged in clay, in sulphur in poultices; but these gave only temporary relief. After trying everything, and suffering the most awful tortures, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Inside of two months, I was able to walk without a cane. In three months my limbs began to strengthen, and in the course of a year, I was cured. My weight has increased to 165 pounds, and I am now able to do my full day's work as a railroad blacksmith." *

FOR COLORED PEOPLE.

The report has been proudly, ingeniously and industriously circulated that the Roman Catholic Church absolutely made no distinctions among its worshipers on account of race or color. Indeed we have read the utterance of one of the bishops of that church to the effect that "Roman Catholicism absolutely knows no distinction on account of race or color." We know that this practice has obtained in some sections of our country, and have not hesitated to applaud it, since we believed it to be in strict keeping with the teachings of our blessed Redeemer. In the Roman Catholic diocese of New Orleans, however, things have been different, in recent years at least. There is quite a large constituency of colored adherents to this church in this city, who have worshiped in the various Catholic churches with their white fellow-worshipers. There have been frequent instances where this mingling together has been characterized by more or less friction. Indeed, it is reported that some of the priests have drawn the color line, and have insisted on separating the races, which has occasioned no little dissatisfaction. But our colored Catholic friends, like the rest of the race, have patiently borne these thrusts at their manhood with the hope that the teaching of the great Christ would by and by become the dominant influence among all professing Christians. The resolution to build a church for the use of colored Catholics only was in obedience to a pressure upon the bishop and priests of the city by that class of white people who cannot endure the idea of worshiping in the same church and at the same time with Negroes. Hence the division between the sheep of the same fold. A most incongruous thing among people claiming the sole right to administer the oracles of God forsooth. It was perfectly reasonable that many of the more intelligent colored Catholics should look upon the remodeling of the old St. Joseph's Church for their use exclusively as an innovation entirely out of harmony with the spirit of a progressive age and a violation of their perogatives as faithful members of the Roman Catholic Church. Bishop Janssens has at times taken a noble stand in the defense of the black people of the State, for which he will have their gratitude; but his efforts to separate his worshipers on the color line, though inspired by the benefactions of an eminent and philanthropic member, is, in our judgment, a surrender to a most cruel prejudice, and mars an otherwise honorable record. We believe that distinctions based upon color alone are silly and unreasonable; but when the line is drawn in the churches to gratify the whims of a class of worshipers, and by the sanction of those who stand related to the people as shepherds of the flock, the discrimination, whether practiced by Roman Catholics or Protestants, is out of all harmony with the teachings of Christ.

IMMIGRATION OF NEGROES TO LIBERIA.

"WASHINGTON, May 23.—The immigration movement of Negroes from the South to Liberia is not proving altogether satisfactory, according to a report from United States Consul Payne at Monrovia. He says that the Danish steamship Horsa arrived there on April 7, after a voyage of eighteen days from Savannah, Ga., having on board 197 colored emigrants from different parts of the United States. She was chartered by the International Migration Society of Birmingham, Ala. The consul says these immigrants were landed at Monrovia, and the government of Liberia will have to provide for them, as they have not been provided for by the company."

We have reasons to believe that the above Associated Press dispatch is true. This African immigration business as at present conducted bears upon its face the marks of a gigantic money-making scheme. Our people should regard all such schemes with suspicion. We do not believe in being too premature in emptying our vast colored population on the shores of Africa. When we go out, if go we must, we must not go empty-handed, but like Israel out of Egypt, with higher and better types of the kind of civilization the world needs than are possessed by those who have made our stay in our native land intolerable. But somehow we do not believe that the time has come for our going, except it be in the training of our young men and young women for work as missionaries in the "Dark Continent," who will in this way discharge an obligation which they owe to the land of our forefathers in common with other nations of the earth. The money squandered in fitting out these immigrant expeditions could be more properly spent in the equipment and endowment of training schools, from which we could send those who would really be helpful to Africa and to all humanity.

A WORTHY CAUSE.

Our people though generally poor, and especially during this very severe season, should not, yea, must not, forget their suffering fellowmen in Nebraska. A letter from Mrs. J. Hewitt Broaddus, local agent relief work for Nebraska sufferers, sends us the following:

"To-day on the plains of Nebraska thousands of families are destitute. Our legislature made an appropriation for seed grain and feed, but that does not provide food for our people. We are compelled to again turn to the charitable people of the United States and ask, 'Can you help us?' 'Will you help us?' Our condition must remain the same until a crop is harvested. In your beautiful homes of plenty you can have no conception of our humiliating dependence. Money and supplies should be sent to Mrs. J. Hewitt Broaddus, local relief agent for Nebraska sufferers, Ewing, Neb. Reference—G. F. Smith, Rep. 50th Dist., Lincoln, Nebraska; A. R. Wightman, prof. Gates' College, Neligh, Nebraska; Rev. David Marquette, presiding elder, Neligh, Nebraska; M. N. Vanzandt, banker, Ewing; J. A. Jrommershausser, chairman town board, Ewing, Nebraska."

Should this appeal touch a responsive chord in the heart of any one who reads it, Mrs. Broaddus would see that any help given will reach those for whom it is intended.

AN exchange says: "A sudden flash of the electric light of God's providence in St. Louis last week, in the shameful death of a State senator, revealed the fact that this city had sent to the State senate a saloonkeeper and a social outlaw, whose life and death were so beastly that the Roman Catholic Church refused him Christian burial."

State Senator P. Morrissey is the person referred to, and he met his death after a night's debauch with an abandoned woman, being shot to death by his paramour. Some one of his partners in crime, perhaps, offered a motion in the State senate authorizing a committee to attend his funeral, of course at the expense of the State. There was one man in that body, thank God, who had the moral courage to "thunder his protest against appointing a committee to attend the funeral of such a man." There are others like him who should be at once relegated to political oblivion. But this will not take place while ward heelers, political tricksters, bummers and hoodlums control the primaries, and by fair means or foul, send men of that stripe to the legislatures of the State, and often to Congress, to make laws. The question of Morrissey's burial in consecrated ground will not reflect so much upon his untimely taking off as upon his moral training.

—Seldom was the degree of D. D. more worthily bestowed than upon Rev. E. O. Thayer, of the Maine Conference, by the trustees of the New Orleans University at the recent commencement. It was done in recognition of his eight years' faithful work as president of Clark University in Atlanta, and without his knowledge or consent.

—Rev. W. N. J. Lipscomb of Garlandsville, Miss., rejoices in the increasing prosperity of his church. On a recent Sabbath he baptized six infants and received six persons into full membership.

WHAT THEY THINK OF US ABROAD.

From the London (Eng.) Echo.

"FALSE ACCUSATIONS."

"To the Editor of the Echo:

"Sir—A cabled report is going the round of the British press to the effect that two Negroes and three Negresses were lynched the other day in Alabama, after having been caught in the act of burning the body of a white man called Murphy, whom they had murdered. Lawless although this act of vengeance was, it appeared according to the report, that the lynching had but forestalled an inevitable verdict of capital punishment, as the murderers seemed to have been caught in the very act. Permit me to furnish the other side of the story, which has just appeared in the New York Age, a leading Afro-American journal, and which is confirmed by the Rochester Herald, one of the few white American papers which give the colored people fair play. It appears that Murphy was killed during a quarrel, and that his body was placed in a bush heap and burnt. Six persons who had been in the habit of working with him were arrested. One of the men confessed to the deed and implicated five others. On this evidence only all the suspects, except one who escaped, were lynched on their way to the county jail by a mob which overpowered the sheriff's posse and immediately strung up the prisoners. The New York Age adds: 'The sheriff made the usual farcical resistance to the mob, the chances being that he knew all about the plans to accomplish the lynching, for the State of Alabama has a reputation for lawlessness which is a disgrace to the whole American people.' This case is but a specimen of the way in which stories are trumped up to palliate the lawlessness of white men. These persons have thus been lynched on the sole evidence of a self-accused murderer. The ghastly deed accomplished, some excuse had to be invented, and hence the story grows, until false statements are quoted, in perfect good faith by honorable persons. I would venture to beg the public to receive all statements concerning alleged Negro outrages with caution, unless the version furnished by white Americans has been compared with that of the colored people themselves. Yours &c,

"FLORENCE BAGGARNIE,
"Hon. Sec'y. Anti-Lynching Com.
"13 Tavistock-square, W. C., May 4."

Since the above was written, another Negro in Florida has been forced to confess complicity with two or three others in an outrage upon a white girl, with the usual results. Arrest by the sheriff; gathering of an infuriated mob; confession of one or more of the guilty (?) Negroes; sentence of death, etc. The Negroes are literally flayed alive, strips of their flesh being found scattered promiscuously about near the scene of the execution. We insist that these confessions are very often misleading. When one takes into consideration all the circumstances, the intense excitement, the thought that a Negro has committed this great offense against Southern society, it is an easy thing to conjure fancies into facts. Hardly a Negro feels safe, and often the really innocent try to escape, knowing how easy it is for the offended parties to make a mistake with reference to the identity of the guilty parties. This so called "confession" of guilty Negroes is alarmingly frequent; so much as to suggest very strongly the probability of a systematic and determined effort to find a victim at all hazards. We are glad our friends across the sea are recognizing the fact that there are generally two sides to these so called Negro outrages. Meanwhile, under the present regime in many of the Southern States, the better people have turned over the administrations of the laws into the hands of the mob.

—The Guardian, of Vicksburg, Miss., is a new competitor for public favor. Its initial number is bright, newsy and makes altogether a creditable appearance. It is the official monthpiece of an organization composed of several of the leading citizens of Vicksburg. It has a splendid field, which it will no doubt successfully cultivate. Mr. D. B. Temple is the editor, with Mr. T. V. McAlister as business manager.

NEW ORLEANS AND VICINITY.

Brother Timothy Gates, our city canvasser, is hopeful of getting the SOUTHWESTERN into the homes of many more of our people. His visit to the office last Monday morning was helpful.

Rev. E. B. Richards of Opelousas, and his brother, Prof. J. O. Richards of New Orleans University, were among the pleasant callers on Monday last. Their presence and good words greatly cheered us.

Brother Richards reports that Sunday services at Malden were unusually interesting. Rev. E. B. Richards, brother of the pastor, preached, and the services were greatly enjoyed.

Old First Street is yet rejoicing over her great victory of a week ago. The $1,250 raised has only given them an inspiration for grander effort. Under the splendid leadership of their big-bodied, big-hearted pastor, Rev. W. R. Butler, they will do a work in every way creditable to the race and the church.

Last Sunday morning it was warm within and warm without. There was a "Thanksgiving" sermon by the Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN. The services were grand. A gentleman of voracity and experience informed us that nearly all of the twelve hundred dollars collected at the corner-stone laying was the result of the thorough organization of the membership during the preceding six or eight weeks, and that the large crowd present did not augment the collection more than forty or fifty dollars, the splendid sum having been previously provided for in the very perfect organization.

—Rev. Dr. M. C. B. Mason, assistant corresponding secretary of our Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society, has just returned home for a few days' rest after an extensive tour in the East and West. He has traveled 10,879 miles, having spent only seven days in his home since Jan. 24. He is now planning to visit as many district conferences as possible, throughout our entire territory, and requests the presiding elders to write him places and dates at once. The doctor is very happy over his work, and reports the collections as steadily increasing.

Walter Baker & Co. have found it necessary to issue a special notice cautioning consumers against attempts to substitute other manufactures, bearing labels, and done up in packages, in imitation of theirs. A sure test of genuineness is the name of Walter Baker & Co.'s place of manufacture—"Dorchester, Mass."

—The Louisville and Nashville Railroad commenced, on Wednesday last, to run their excursion trains to Ocean Springs. They will run every Wednesday throughout the season; $1 for the round trip. The excursions are probably the most popular of any leaving the city, owing to the many popular resorts on the route. Splendid equipment and uniform courtesy of railroad management.

—Our Book Concerns have issued the brightest and choicest collection of songs for Sunday Schools and young people's societies, entitled "The Junior Hymnal," edited by Edwin A. Schell and Mary Chrisholm Foster. One hundred and fifty songs, twenty of them new and twenty of them popular songs of the Sunday schools and social gatherings of thirty years ago; the remainder are the pick of to-day's favorites. Board covers, 20 cents postpaid; 25 or more copies, 15 cents each, not prepaid. For sale at this office and all the depositories.

Julian Ralph's first paper on China, printed in the June Harper's Magazine, strikingly illustrates the difference between the points of view of the usual traveler who writes as an after thought and the trained journalist who travels for the purpose of writing. China has been described often as a sort of Proletaria to the whole earth. Its people are commonly supposed to be degraded and vicious, living in filthy poverty in an over-populated land. Mr. Ralph found the Garden Provinces of China as beautiful and prosperous as Holland, and almost as clean. The cities, he declares, are no dirtier than others he has seen, and the people were uniformly courteous.

"Twilight Tales of the Azores" is the attractive title of an article in the June number of The Chautauquan, by Lyman Horace Weeks. He shows that popular tales of these primitive people possess much romantic sentiment and simple beauty.

Northern Africa probably presents the best example of a ruined empire. Assyrian and Egyptian remains are of the remote past, but the ruins of Roman cities in Africa belong to the present, and their description by William Sharp, in the June Harper's is a page out of the history of our own civilization. This paper is fully and handsomely illustrated.

It is claimed that Rev. Robt. Collier's article, "The Woman Who Most Influenced Me," in the Ladies' Home Journal for June, is at once the daintiest and strongest contribution to it. Dr. Parkhurst, for the first time, writes of woman suffrage in an article, "Women Without the Ballot," which will probably call forth a storm of dissent. Edward Bok writes of "Girls Who Pose as 'Trilby'," and of the "New Woman," whom he says does not exist. Women who love dainty needlework will be delighted with the various designs. The journal costs only one dollar a year and is published by The Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia.

The Season for June abounds with pretty serviceable toilettes for the month of roses. A number of very pretty costumes are shown, suitable for all occasions and for all ages—some very simple, others quite elaborate. The art work contains much that is new and useful. To those who love their beautiful homes, some exquisite designs for window draperies come in this copy. Yearly subscription, $3 50. Single copies, 30 cents. A Chance to Make Money.

I am out of debt, and thanks to the Dish Washer business for it. In the past five weeks I have made over $500, and I am so thankful that I feel like telling everybody, so that they can be benefited by my experience. Anybody can sell Dish Washers, because everybody wants one, especially when it can be got so cheap. I believe that in two years from now every family will have one. You can get full particulars by addressing the Iron City Dish Washer Co., E. E. Pittsburg, Pa., and you can't help but make money in this business. I believe that I can clear over $3,000 the coming year, and I am not going to let such an opportunity pass without improvement. We can't expect to succeed without trying. MRS. B.

A False Diagnosis.

La Grippe is confounded by many persons with a severe attack of catarrh, which in some respects resembles the former. These individuals suffer severely with pain about the forehead, eyes and ears, with soreness in the throat and stoppage of the nasal passages, and in fact are incapacitated for work of any kind for days at a time. These are catarrhal sufferers. Ely's Cream Balm has been used with the best results in such cases. The remedy will give instant relief.

OUR : WOMEN'S : ROUND : TABLE

The Influence of the Home in the Uplifting of our People.

SEVENTEENTH LETTER—BY T. E. W.

What a wonderful amount of meaning there is in the word opportunity. By opportunity we mean suitable time, combined with other favorable circumstances, for the accomplishment of some object or enterprise. There occurs in the life of every individual a suitable time combined with other favorable circumstances, in which they may become great; hence it is, by the neglect of these opportunities, that so many of us fail.

"It is not the situation that makes the man, but the man that makes the situation." We each have opportunity for growth in every respect, and should your friend become great, while you still toil on, does not signify that our Heavenly Father loves you any less; but it does signify that you have neglected that which you should have seized in your youth.

My friends, how happy it makes us feel when we think how very unselfish this thing we call opportunity is. Rich and poor share it alike. Was Abraham Lincoln born in a king's palace? No; but by grasping the opportunity, he became one of the greatest men of the age.

Therefore, let us start out on our life's voyage with a determination to strive with Christian fortitude to reach the goal of success. When we have done this, then there will be some hope of the world growing better by our instruction.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

The Women We Need.

By MRS. ALICE JEAN PARHAM, St. Joseph, Mo.

I cannot understand why some mothers take pride in saying "My daughter does not know how to work," and I am more deeply surprissed when I hear it from mothers of our hapless race of people. It is a sad mistake and should be "nipped in the bud." There is a feeling of disgust that steals over me in spite of myself, when I see mothers (not the old-fashioned mothers, God bless them; they did the best they could) so airing themselves.

Labor is the vein through which all good must come to a people—it is by idleness and conceit that we are chained to poverty and degredation. Labor is the high road upon which every pair of feet seeking success must trod. It is the sword that must be wielded by every pair of hands that starts to conquer. It is our respect and practice of labor that marks our weal or woe. It is labor that knocks at every closed door of enterprise and gains admittance. Labor stands a monarch—is good to all that seek him faithfully, awarding prizes to those who are worthy; in short, and indeed, labor is the very life-blood of a nation's progress. It is by the ladder of industry that we climb and we as a people should grapple, with an iron will, all the powers that have made other nations great. Every woman that feels that labor is degrading, has no right to cross the threshold of the marriage sanctuary. No woman of that kind has a right to accept any good man's propesition to become his wife. The woman that feels that work makes her less a lady, has no right to take upon herself the care of a home, and any man that takes this miserable counterfeit to his heart and hearth, is ruined forever.

Home is woman's eminent domain—the sweetest word in any language, with the tenderest, deepest meaning. Home is a divine institution, the roots of which run back and are embedded in the soil of Eden. It has come down to us like a rare gem, saved from a wrecked ship from out the ruins of paradise.

One of the great needs of the colored people to-day is to have good men who will take to themselves good women to wives, make for them good homes and rear good children. The strength of England is her homes—the curse of France the lack of them. Home is the propegater of affection, that chain of gold that binds the heart of nations that nothing on earth can break asunder. Every woman should have a thorough domestic training—our men are poor. One failing among us colored people—we feel rich off of too small a capital. True, we boast of several millions of dollars paid for taxes on property owned by colored people; but look at the price of land; look at the tax system, then look at our millions of people who stand month agape, without a foot on which to live, and less on which to die, and still less in which to be buried! Our men should seek to marry sensible, industrious women who do not expect all the luxuries of life until they have economized with him to get them.

Dr. Beecher says, "the wife is the economist." That is one thing our girls do not know anything about, and it only comes by careful practice and strict adherance to rules. To spend less than one earns, is the secret of domestic thrift as well as substantial riches. Thus the balance is on the right side. But, let it be reversed—the out-go lapping the in-come, and the family is bound to poverty and want forever. It is essential that every wife should feel that she is the partner of her husband, and while he goes out to fulfill by work one portion of the partnership duty, she stays at home and by the care of the household or its economy, has to take another portion, and it is part or parcel of one operation. It need not be a fine dwelling with grand appointments, but the wife with domestic training will convert her home, however humble, into a bower of bliss. Then let every man marry a suitable woman, build him a house, plant a garden and eat the fruit of it, he and his. The woman that feels that a knowledge of work is degrading, will not only fail as a wife, but as a mother also. It is here that all her knowledge of domestic duty is called in practice. It takes a vast deal of earnest, patient labor to raise children, but the labor is not without its reward; they are to make our future men and women, and every noble-minded woman will feel that she does heaven service by welcoming and dutifully caring for the tiny bits of humanity that are entrusted to her. Train their young minds to thought, their hands to labor, their hearts to reverence, and their knowledge of books and the fine arts will be learned outside the home perhaps; but the forming, and molding, and shaping character, all depend on mother—it is the part that lasts the longest, goes the farthest. They will rise up and call her blessed. However widely one may roam, the influence of a good home will follow him. Then let the children have to say, mother's beds were the whitest, the rooms the neatest, her table the most inviting; I have found no such snowy bread as mother's—in fact, mother's house was the most beautifully ordered and regulated than any I have seen. Then mother comes in memory before them with her sweet, patient face and toil-worn hands that she thought not too beautiful to labor for her loved ones.

If I should be asked what I thought the future success of the Negro race depended on I should readily answer—its women. Whenever our women refuse to be considered a flock of gay butterflies to be chased, looked upon as a set of giggling nonentities, a lot of dressed-up dolls to be stared at, selected from and bought for the most money; a troop of gossiping, gad-about women whose souls are deformed by malice, envy, jealousy and deceit; shaking off these coiling serpents, mount the place assigned her by heaven, becoming intelligent, industrious, moral and gentle, man's true helpmeet, making good mothers of good children in good homes.

When this is done, there is no race or class of people that have bolts and bars strong enough to keep such a host of deserving people from opening her doors and entering her paths of respectability and renown. Then, daughters, awake; lay aside your mistaken ideas, like poison slowly but surely coursing through your veins and will undoubtedly cause your moral death.

Make it your highest aim to be good wives; the race needs you and must depend on you. For when we come to calculate the forces that decide the destiny of nations, it must be confessed that the mightiest and grandest come from home—good homes, the very salt of society, the strength and joy of any nation. Then banish from your minds, I pray you, that labor in itself is harmful and degrading.

A LUNG GYMNASIUM.

The Rev. J. T. Wilhide, a Methodist minister, has invented a new breathing tube, which he calls the EXHALER, which is in reality a Lung Gymnasium, as the use of it will widen and strengthen every one of the six million air cells in the lungs, whether diminished by tubercle or not, increase their activity and strengthen the elasticity of their tissue, making consumption almost impossible. It is equal to the very best elocutionary exercise to strengthen the throat and vocal organs, deepen and enrich the voice and increase its power. It introduces 2 to 4 times more air into the lungs, consuming a large quantity of oxygen, and so purifies the blood, increases the circulation, relieves congestions and many morbid conditions of the system. The price is only $1 50 by mail, postpaid. An illustrated descriptive circular will be sent on application. E. H. MORSE, 631 Poydras St., New Orleans.

LESSON HYMN. C. M.

I know that my Redeemer lives;
What joy the blest assurance gives!
He lives, he lives, who once was dead;
He lives, my everlasting Head!

He lives, to bless me with his love;
He lives, to plead for me above;
He lives, my hungry soul to feed;
He lives to help in time of need.

He lives, and grants me daily breath;
He lives, and I shall conquer death;
He lives, my mansion to prepare;
He lives, to bring me safely there.

Time.—April 9, A. D. 30. The same day as that of the last lesson, but late in its afternoon.

Place.—A country road leading from Jerusalem to Emmaus.

Rulers.—Caiaphas, high priest; Pontius Pilate, procurator of Judea; Herod Antipas, tetrarch of Galilee and Perea.

The Walk to Emmaus.

(Luke 24. 13-32.)

Written for the Southwestern.

By Rev. G. N. Jolly, Kentucky Conference

GOLDEN TEXT.—"He opened to us the Scriptures." (Luke 24. 32.)

Ten times did Jesus appear to His disciples after His resurrection and before His ascension. The lesson we study today is His fourth appearance. It occurred in the afternoon of the day He arose from the dead. It is one of the most beautiful passages in St. Luke's gospel.

I. Jesus joining the disciples. 1. The two disciples. The name of one is Cleopas, and the name of the other is not known. Many think it was St. Luke, the author of this lesson. The writer, no doubt, knew the other man, but for some cause withheld his name. The entire incident is told like the person saw and heard what he related. The chief speaker was Cleopas. Many saints not known by name on earth are enrolled in the Lamb's book of life.

2. Emmaus was a village about seven miles southeast of Jerusalem. The present name is Kulonieh. The word means "hot springs." There were three villages in Palestine by this name. The name indicates that the water possesses medicinal properties. This may have caused Luke, the physician, to be drawn there.

3. The subject of their conversation was the "things which had happened" at Jerusalem. That is, the trial, death, burial and resurrection of Jesus. They talked over these facts in a reverent, thoughtful way. It is well when on a journey with those who love Jesus to make Him the subject of conversation.

4. Jesus "drew near" and joined the company. "Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them." "They that feared the Lord spoke often one to another, and the Lord hearkened and heard it." (Mal. 3. 16.) They did not recognize Him. St. Mark says "He appeared unto them in another form;" the text reads, "Their eyes were holden." A mysterious change had taken place in the body of Jesus. It seems impossible to give a satisfactory reason why they did not know Him. They that look on Jesus till they become like Him, then know Him. Blessed are they that see God, for they shall be pure in heart. Jesus is ever present with His worshipers, but I fear there are many whose eyes are holden so they do not see Him.

II. Jesus talking with the disciples. 1. The question of Jesus—About what were you talking, and why are you sad? This was not asked for information. Jesus knew their heart. He wished to draw them out, that He might teach them. They had been talking about the Christ. They were sad because an innocent prophet had been put to death. We are always grieved when our loved ones are taken from us.

2. The answer of Cleopas. (1) The life of Jesus. "He was a prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people." By His teaching and works He convinced all that He was sent from God. May our daily life harmonize with our profession of godliness (2) The trial and death of Jesus. He was condemned and crucified by the chief priests and rulers. His trial before the council, before Herod and before Pilate was solemn mockery. No accusation worthy of death or bonds was brought against Him. He was pronounced innocent by all save the council, and their charge of blasphemy was absolutely false. The trial throughout was so absurd that all Jerusalem was talking about it. It is always profitable to the Christian religion when all the people begin to investigate the life of Jesus. (3) The blasted hopes of the disciples. "We trusted that it had been He which should have redeemed Israel." They hoped He would set up an earthly kingdom, break from their shoulders the Roman yoke, raise them to great dignity and honor, and subject all other nations unto them. False hopes, well they were blasted. It is good for us to be disappointed sometimes. (4) The resurrection of Jesus. "To-day is the third day since these things were done." Jesus had more than once told them He would arise on the third day. This they no doubt had heard. Some women and men also, who had been early at the tomb, had astonished them by saying the body was gone. No one had seen Jesus arise, yet they knew He had arisen. Then the women said they had seen a vision of angels which said He was alive. These disciples believed in the life and death of Jesus, but when they came to His resurrection their faith staggered. They did not believe what they could not understand. The resurrection was to them a great mystery; therefore, they were "slow of heart" to believe it. We should not reject all we do not understand.

3. The teaching of Jesus. (1) He chided them for being slow to believe the prophets. All the apostles were disposed not to believe in the resurrection. They would not believe it while they had any reasonable ground to doubt it. It took unmistakable evidence to convince them. How slow are we to believe the greatest truth of Revelation. (2) He questioned them about the sufferings and glory of Christ. The things Jesus suffered were the agony in the garden, the cruel mockings, the bitter scourging and the shameful death of the cross. The glory refers to the joys of heaven. This glory is His by creation. He left it when He came to redeem the world. When that work was completed He returned to it again. "Though He was rich, yet for our sakes He became poor, that we through His poverty might be rich. (3) He preached to them. Text—Old Testament. Subject—Himself. Sermon—Not given. Would to God we had it. It swept away doubt, confirmed faith and caused the heart to burn. He likely showed that He was the Seed of the woman, the promised heir to Abraham, the Paschal Lamb, the Scape Goat, the Brazen Serpent, the great Prophet, the Star and Scepter, the Meek Sufferer, the Branch, the Son of the Ruler from Bethlehem, the Lowly King, the Pierced Victim, the Messenger of the Covenant, and the Son of Righteousness. He likely ceased as they drew near to the village. The salvation of the world through Christ is the theme of the Old Testament.

III. Jesus eating with the disciples. 1. The movement of Jesus. "He moved as though He would have gone further." He no doubt would have left them had they not prayed Him with real earnestness to abide with them. How many are there to whom Jesus has appeared, but with whom He has not tarried, because they suffered Him to depart? He would be invited from the heart to abide with us.

2. The conduct of the disciples. "They constrained Him saying, 'Abide with us.'" They were not willing He should depart. They hoped to hear more of this matter. The day was far spent. It closed at sunset, and this was late in the afternoon. The place was likely not a residence, but an inn. "Jesus went in to tarry with them." If we will open the door of our heart and invite Him, He will come in and sup with us and we with Him.

3. At the meal Jesus "offered thanks." The bread was blessed, broken and given to them. "Their eyes were opened; they knew Him, and He vanished out of their sight." Sin has obscured the vision of many, but the blessing of Jesus has opened their eyes till they could see and know Him.

4. After the departure. "Did not our hearts burn within us while He talked with us by the way?" Jesus found them sad and left them glad; He enlightened their minds and warmed their hearts. Is not that the mission of His children today? Cause the people to see and know Jesus, and they will be holy and happy. They arose and returned to Jerusalem. They found the eleven "gathered together." "They told what things were done in the way, and how He was known of them in breaking of bread." When Jesus blesses us we should make haste to tell it to others.

FROM PRESIDING ELDERS.

Natchitoches District.

The district conference will meet Wednesday, August 14, at Bedford, La. Further notice will be given as to route and conveyances.

H. J. WRIGHT, P. E.

Birmingham District.

Birmingham District Conference, of Central Alabama Annual Conference, will be held at Springville, August 7, instead of July 11. W. PRETTYMAN, P. E.

Lexington District.

Dear Brethren—You are doing well. We are very anxious that you should succeed—continue your work earnestly and prayerfully, and success is yours. The district conference, Sunday School Institute and the Epworth League Chapters meet at Paris, Ky., at 9 a. m., Thursday, July 25, 1895; district stewards meet the same day at 3 p. m. The other presiding elders, Editor SOUTHWESTERN and some one of the secretaries of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society are invited to attend. Send in your minute money at once. Yours ever,

JOSEPH COURTNEY, P. E.

Columbus District.

Dear Brethren—Remember that the annual conference will convene in Calvert, Texas, Nov. 27. Let there be no time squandered. Work with a will to fill every blank. We want to do better than we did last year. The only way to do this is to push your benevolent collections to completion at the earliest possible date. Do not neglect the envelops sent to you by Dr. Hartzell; gather them in and forward them at once.

Bear in mind, our district conference will convene in Luling, Aug. 20. Let us have a full representation. Also our district league will convene in Oakland, July 4. Let every chapter be represented. Do not forget the SOUTHWESTERN; bring it before the people, and urge they subscribe for the same. I am yours in the work, B. F. SMITH, P. E.

Marshall District.

District conference at Mineola commences at 9 a. m., Aug. 22. All local preachers, exhorters, superintendents, district stewards and Epworth League presidents should be present the first day.

W. H. LOGAN, P. E.

Starkville District.

Dear Brethren—Our first district conference on the Rock Hill Circuit, four miles north of Starkville, in the Rock Hill M. E. Church, will convene July 25-28. The Sunday School Institute and Epworth League will meet July 24.

Let each pastor come prepared to report full assessments collected for all benevolences, and that the grand old SOUTHWESTERN is in every family on the work.

Dr. Hartzell writes that he or one of the representatives will be present; also, Prof. G. G. Logan, of Holly Springs.

We invite Dr. Hammond to be present, and hope he will be with us, as it will be a blessing to the district.

Brethren, do your whole duty to the Church and God will then bless our work and give us prosperity. Come with written reports. God bless you, brethren,

Yours, in the work,

P. O. JAMISON, P. E.

Holly Springs District.

The first session of the Holly Springs District, Upper Mississippi Conference, will convene at Duck Hill, Miss., June 26, 1895. Pastors and delegates coming by the way of Holly Springs and all on that line will arrive at Grenada, Miss., in due time to change cars, as the first train do not stop at Duck Hill. Others coming will not have to make any change. Ample preparation is being made to make your stay with us a pleasant one.

G. J. DOUSON, P. C.

A dose of Ayer's Sarsaparilla each morning, during vacation, will greatly benefit you.

Brookhaven District.

The Brookhaven District, Mississippi Conference, will convene June 27-30, at Summit, at 9 a. m. sharp. The following is the program:

Opening sermon, 8 p. m., James Ford. Repentance, I. C. Rucker; Justification, A. Davis; Regeneration, I. S. Thomas; Adoption, Wm. Payne; Entire Sanctification, Handy Roundtree; How am I to know that I am a child of God? H. Henderson; Evidences of a general judgment, D. Ray; Atonement, S. McDavis; A successful pastor, J. H. Cook; Unity of the human race, M. A. Hobson; What place should Fred Douglass hold in history? R. Coleman and P. H. Rembert; The call to the ministry, J. B. Smith, Witness of the Spirit, N. D. Hopkins.

Local preachers can select their subject. We are looking for a full attendance, and the people of Summit are making great preparation for the conference. We are to have with us several distinguished visitors, viz: Dr. Hammond, editor of the SOUTHWESTERN; Dr. Mason, field agent of F. A. and S. E. Society; Presiding Elder Cowan, and Prof. G. G. Logan, of Rust University, Holly Springs.

Dear brother pastors, please bring what money you have on hand for Rust University. Prof. Logan will receive it and give conference voucher.

The conference will meet one day sooner than first published.

In getting tickets, ask agent for certificate showing that you paid full fare. We may be given reduced rates.

I. L. PRATT, Presiding Elder.

Southwestern
Christian Advocate.

E. W. S. HAMMOND, D. D., EDITOR. NEW ORLEANS, JUNE 13, 1895.—Vol. 30. No. 24. HUNT & EATON, PUBLISHERS.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

—Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley, editor of the Christian Advocate, has received a bequest of $3,000 from the estate of Mrs. James Burns, of Detroit.

—We are wonderfully pleased with the new dress of the Pittsburg Christian Advocate. In many respects it reminds us of THE Advocate. Our congratulations to Dr. Smith and his vast constituency.

—There are some who take no interest in the SOUTHWESTERN, because the Editor is not all the time "puffing" them up. To all such we will say, that we are out of "gush." They must apply elsewhere.

—The Cuban insurrection seems to be gaining ground. We are not in favor of these periodical insurrections, yet we believe that the triumph of the Cubans would be a mighty stride toward freedom and the spread of the true Christian religion.

—Dr. J. P. D. John has resigned the presidency of DePauw University, to take effect September 1. Radical differences between the president and a part of the trustees as to the educational methods to be pursued are given as the reason for the action taken by the doctor.

—The faculty of Ohio Wesleyan University, after making a careful study of the matter, has decided to ask all students in that institution to discontinue the use of tobacco, beginning next fall, and if any tobacco-users enter the school, they will be asked to quit the habit or the school.

—Quite a number of our esteemed white ministers have been honored with honorary degrees by several of our Southern colleges and other institutions of learning. This is well, since the fortunate brethren richly deserve the honors. Now let some of our Northern institutions reciprocate by honoring some of our worthy colored ministers. This is the kind of reciprocity that looks well.

—The "sermonette" should go. That is to say, the poor little sickly thing which some of our editors are pleased to dub the "sermonette," meaning thereby, we suppose, a brief homiletical dessertation by a preacherette. But the "sermonette" hardly expresses that idea. How does this sound: Carette (half car and half wagon); satinette (half cotton and half wool, with a satin finish, and a superficial gloss)? Now what is a "sermonette?"

—Primitive Methodism cannot, must not be supplanted by the more vigorous and progressive movements of to-day. The Church has grown larger and stronger. There is much wealth among its membership, but the poor must have the same old Gospel. The same old pentecostal power is essential to the salvation of the masses, which the enlarged opportunities of the Church has brought within reach. Meekness, gentleness, humility, with simple unquestioning faith, cannot be dispensed with without great disaster. There has as yet been found no satisfactory substitute for the "old landmarks."

—Our brethren in the Southern conferences should not forget their obligations to the work of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society. There never was a greater demand for help than now. The indebtedness upon the society should be wiped out at once. We need more schools, more teachers, more money now. Our colored official, Dr. M. C. B. Mason, who has traveled thousands of miles, and performed labor which must severely tax his physical strength, will be in the field during this summer in the interest of the great cause. Drs. J. W. Hamilton and W. H. W. Rees are also expected to visit several of our district conferences. Let us give them a rousing reception and increase the collections a hundred per cent.

HON. WALTER L. GRESHAM.

The honored Secretary of State died at his post at Washington, D. C., May 28. His record was singularly pure. As a lawyer, judge, general in the army, diplomat, and lastly as the Secretary of State, he maintained his high repntation as a citizen of sterling worth and integrity. His views upon the great political questions were somewhat variant with those of the political party with which he once affiliated; nevertheless he was held in high esteem by his old party associates, and respected by all. His death is to be lamented at this particular time, since it creates a vacancy which will be hard to fill.

ATTENTION, LEAGUERS.

The Epworth Leagues of Old Wesley and other churches in New Orleans are putting forth special efforts to send a large delegation to the International Conference at Chattanooga, June 27. The district manager and Pastor T. J. Johnson are confident that the league of Wesley will be represented by at least thirty delegates. It is expected that the other leagues will swell the number to at least seventy-five, possibly one hundred from this city alone. Other leagues throughout the State will yet further increase the number. We should be glad to have all persons who expect to attend the conference send in their names to this office at once. If a sufficient number can be secured, a special coach or train will be placed at our disposal by the Queen & Crescent Railroad Company. Wednesday, June 26, 3 p. m., is the starting time. Fare for the round trip, $14 75. The convention will begin June 27 and close on the evening of the 30th.

THOSE LITTLE FOXES.

The SOUTHWESTERN is a vine; a little vine, it is true; yet it is contributing its share to the growth of the branches. We are sorry to say, however, that there are some very little foxes who are doing their best to cut and mar the vine, and so prevent it from growing itself, and preventing others from getting the benefit of its growth. We received a letter a few days ago from a prominent presiding elder in a certain conference which professes to be one of the most progressive conferences in our patronizing territory. Among other things he says: "Some of my ex presiding elders tell me that if I fool away my time with the paper I will make a failure as a presiding elder."

The very idea is preposterous. These so called and misplaced leaders trying to prevent the circulation of the literature of the Church. How these little foxes get into the presiding elderate is a mystery. We say here, without hesitancy, that no man should be appointed a presiding elder who thus deliberately obstructs the circulation of the literature of our Church. A Methodist preacher is narrow indeed who considers it fooling away time to present the claims of his Church paper to his people. We think we can get a thousand witnesses to testify that the SOUTHWESTERN was never better than now. The brother who writes the letter is among those who recognize its merits, and is doing acceptable service in increasing its influence on his district. We withhold his name and the name of his conference for obvious reasons. We indulge the hope that the bishops and other progressive presiding elders and pastors will watch for and successfully weed out these foxes, even "the little foxes that spoil the vines, for our vines have tender grapes."

—Dr. J. W. E. Bowen, of Gammon Theological Seminary, has been compelled, owing to a pressure of other engagements and business, to postpone his visit to Germany this summer.

ALL HAIL, THE SUNDAY LAW IN THE CITY OF NEW ORLEANS.

For several Sundays attempts have been made to enforce the law now upon the statute books of the State, with reference to the closing of places of business on the Sabbath. The brave stand taken by our chief of police has stirred up the opponents of the law considerably.

Several arrests have been made, and while there is determined opposition on the part of liquor dealers especially, there is equal determination on the part of the officers of the city to enforce the law. The saloon business in this city is an unmitigated nuisance on the week days, but when it is pushed with the brazen effrontery of its adherents into the blessed Sabbath day, it becomes an unbearable abomination. We hail with joy the inauguration of this popular movement to preserve the sanctity of our Christian Sabbath, and feel profoundly thankful that there is a probability of prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors on one day of the seven at least. We see other reforms possible, among them those useless and senseless appendages to our social life here, the Sunday parade, Sunday picnic, etc. We are for the law first, last, and all the time.

LET US ALL REJOICE.

The war is over, and slavery is dead. Thanks be unto God. But ever and anon we are reminded of its blighting, withering curse. Hundreds of homes have been wrecked, hundreds of hearts broken by the relentless system which permitted parents to be torn from their children, husbands from wives, and every marital vow disregarded, to gratify the behests of those who believed that Negroes had no rights which white people were bound to respect. Our columns often tell a pathetic story of the meeting of friends and relatives, separated under this unholy system, and who, by the mere chance of advertising or diligent inquiry, learn of the whereabouts of those whom they have not seen for years. The following letter gives us joy, as it will the many friends of the brother who writes it. But there will be a mighty reckoning bye and bye:

LAKE PROVIDENCE, May 31, 1895.

Dear Dr. Hammond, Editor—I take this method of letting my many friends know that the Lord has enabled me to find, in Vicksburg, Miss., a dear sister of mine, who has been separated from the family for over sixty years. God be praised for his goodness. Please announce it through the columns of your paper, and oblige, your friend, F. T. CHINN.

A STANDARD TESTIMONIAL.

The Standard is a great religious paper. Dr. Justin A. Smith, the able editor, and the publisher, Mr. Edward Goodman, have labored together for more than forty years as true yokefellows, in making the Standard a great success. Although at one time it was thought that the enterprise would have to be abandoned for lack of financial support, it has justified the most sanguine expectations of its friends, who are legion.

Leland Hotel, Chicago, on May 23, was the scene of a most remarkable gathering. One hundred and thirty-five pastors and laymen from Chicago and vicinity sat down to a sumptuous luncheon in honor of these two men who have done so much for the cause of religion and morality. Great speeches were made by great men, and pledges of renewed and continued co-operation were made. We congratulate the Standard.

—The Atlanta Constitution commends very highly the address of Rev. Dr. Earl Cranston at the commencement of Gammon School of Theology.

TIDINGS FROM THE WHOLE FIELD.

—C. L. Walls, pastor at Okolona Circuit, Miss., says: "Elder Nevils held my second quarterly conference May 11-12, with much credit to himself. He found the work progressing, both spiritually and financially. He did not fail to speak of the SOUTHWESTERN, and secured several cash subscribers which we will send in soon."

—Kalis Terrell, Forest City, Ark., says: "At Kynnett Chapel there are signs of increasing interest in financial as well as spiritual matters. The first quarter was held on the 13th, Elder J. W. Jackson presiding. The officers of all departments of the church were present with full reports. Raised $75 60 for all purposes during this quarter. Our pastor, W. S. Sherrill, is deeply interested in the work, and we are looking forward for grand results during this ecclesiastical year."

—H. C. Gair, Booneville, La., writes: "The Willing Workers Society presented Booneville M. E. Church with a beautiful pulpit set costing $72. Presentation by Miss Stella Dotson on Sunday, May 19. Officers—Miss Emly White, president; Mrs. Hariot Wright, vice; Miss Bella Gadson, secretary, and Mrs Eddy Baham, treasurer. Also they give the preacher a pound meeting monthly. Rally realized $10 80. Mrs. Amanda Clinton, a faithful member of the church, died happy, May 20. Aged 40 years. She was a sister to Rev. Willis Carr.

—"We are moving along nicely. We have had one grand revival here, which resulted in 31 conversions and accessions to the church. We have built a fine parsonage since conference and put new furniture in the church. We are preparing to have a grand time here on Children's Day. We have three Epworth League Chapters on this circuit, and they are all doing excellent work." So says Gloster R. Bryant, Luling, Texas.

—James H. Love, Xenia, O., writes: "Frederic Brown, son of Albert and Frances Brown, members of the Methodist Episcopal Church of this city, departed this life May 6, 1895. He was born May 16, 1877, making his age at the time of his death 17 years, 11 months, 20 days. He professed a hope in Christ a week previous to his death, and died in the triumph of living faith. The funeral services were conducted by the writer, pastor of Xenia Mission, assisted by Rev. Joseph Thompson."

—W. A. Ray, Topeka, Kan., writes: "First quarterly conference of Mt. Olive M. E. Church was held May 18-19. Rev. R. E. Gillum, P. E., was present, and rendered satisfaction. He preached helpful sermons. Collections, $17 11. Baptized 3. Outlook grand."

—Rev. Wm. Ector, Columbus, La., says: "The first quarterly conference was held at Loesville Church. Brother H. J. Wright, P. E., was in the chair. All the conference brothers answered to their names. One new church built since the annual conference, and also $30 subscription for another church. We are doing all we can for the building up of the Church. Brother W. H. Simmons, from the C. M E. Church, joined us as local preacher."

—A. Butler, Lauderdale, Miss., writes: "Second quarterly conference convened on time, with Rev. A. M. Trotter in the chair. It was of interest and prosperity on all lines. The SOUTHWESTERN was looked after, and two subscribers secured and sent in; more to follow. Sacrament given to 40."

—H. A. McClellan, Dennis Mills, La., writes: "Presiding Elder Marshall held our first quarter May 18-19. The house was crowded and the elder preached an edifying sermon. Every department of the church is well organized. Collection, $25 75."

—J. E. Bryant, pastor at Palestine, Texas, writes: "At the church fair gotten up by Mrs. J. E. Bryant $140 was raised to pay a part of the Church Extension debt, the balance for painting the church; $70 being paid to the Church Extension Society and $70 to be put on the church. The people are now looking up, and are encouraged to do more for the Master than in the past. Rev. Mrs. Wesley, the presiding elder's wife, took an active part in our efforts. We pray God's blessings upon her. Total amount raised with expenses, $175."

—Rev. D. G. Taylor, Kennerville, La., writes: "Sunday, May 26, was a high day at Thomas Chapel M. E. Church. The Lord was with us. Four persons came forward and joined the church. The church is spiritually alive."

—J. H. Pierre, pastor at Morgan City, La., writes: "Sister Lottie Shaw, an old mother in Israel, native of Lexington County, Ky., departed this life in the full triumph of faith. Aged 87 years, and 51 years in the M. E. Church. She was formerly a member of old Wesley M. E. Church of New Orleans. She joined that church in 1844, and moved to Morgan City in 1873. She helped to organize the M. E. Church at that place. She paid the first dollar towards its erection."

—Jesse P. Price, pastor at Springfield, Tenn., writes: "Third quarterly conference closed a successful session at New Bethel Church, May 19. Nearly all the leaders were present with written reports, showing an increase in every department of church work. The Epworth League reports were cheering. Sunday was a high day. Love feast at 10 a. m., in a beautiful grove. The elder preached with great acceptability at all four of my preaching places. His visit was a blessing to our cause here. We observed Easter and the Epworth League anniversary, all of which was a success. Raised this quarter for all purposes, $74 30."

—J. C. Hibbler, Jackson, Miss., writes: "We have just closed a glorious revival. The Holy Ghost fell on the people. Many stout hearts were made to bend, and there were 45 conversions and 61 accessions. The church is spiritually aglow. We are now preparing for a rally on June 23, to finish paying debt on parsonage."

—C. W. Butler, Abbeville, Miss., says: "My second quarterly conference was held May 18-19. Presiding Elder W. McDonald was on time. After the elder's lecture, the reports of the pastors and leaders showed that the work was on the upward march. The elder preached on Sunday to large congregations. Collected $17 75. We are now canvassing the work for ten more subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. Have the money in hand for two; hope to be able to send ten together. The elder got one cash subscriber during the quarter."
